During the war, in Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio withdrawals from what was known as the Copperhead Element in the M. E. Church, which believed that the nation had no right to put down the rebellion, were organized under the name of Episcopal Methodists. These societies were in hearty sympathy with the M. E. Church South and at the General Conference of that Church in this city in 1866, Rev. Mr. Ditzler reported 14,000 members. Latterly these were regularly incorporated into the Southern Church. For nearly forty years, therefore, the Southern Church has been steadily pushing its work in the Northern States and the result is as follows:

Conferences.	Trav. Prch'rs.	Local. Prch'rs.	Church Memb's.	S.S. Scholars
Illinois	30	65	6,833	4,878
Western	28	20	2 680	8.0
Denver	7	9	416	266
Montana	8	2	220	115
Columbia	23	26	1 843	636
Pacific	57	44	4 129	3 135
Los Angeles	19	80	1 000	755
	1:2	199	16,120	10 165

The Illinois Conference includes the recently organized Conference of seven preachers in Indiana. The Western Conference embraces Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, and Idaho, and the others all the territories north and west to the Pacific. During the past five years these northern Conferences have made an increase of 1,763.

On the other hand the M. E. Church, beginning with probably 75,000 members on what was slave territory at the close of the war now has 410,000 members, with property in churches and parsonages worth $8,563 416, with thirty odd institutions of learning.

Any thought of the Methodist Episcopal Church forsaking a single part of territory in this or any other country where her standard is planted is the merest nonsense. Other churches may talk about trading away its members if they like.

An Arkansas correspondent of the Raleigh Christian Advocate says of the M. E. Church South: "We have no place to fill in Oregon, Colorado and Montana. We cannot cope with Northern Methodism in that cold, chilly region. She has millions to our thousands. We have no Church Extension Society with money to bury in fruitless enterprises as they are doing in the South, nor should we wish to imitate a bad example. * * If our Northern brethren are willing to waste their funds to come South to preach to us poor heathen, for heaven's sake let us not try to imitate the example. It is certainly a perversion of our funds." The writer speaks in glowing terms of Arkansas, Texas, New Mexico, Mexican Border District, and of foreign fields as all being open and calling for Southern Methodists to come and occupy.

As to the work of the M. E. Church South in the Northern States, this writer evidently does not represent the sentiment of his church. The purpose to push Southern Methodism northward was never more active or persistent than to-day. In this all well-wishers of Methodism will rejoice. The writer displays pitiable ignorance concerning the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States. Over 300,000 members and over $7,000,000 of church property have been acquired in the Southern States since the war, and every year adds to the vigor and strength of our Southern conferences.

Educational Convention.

Dr. E. O. Haven, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education, acting in advice with prominent educators of the church, has called an Educational Convention to meet at Cincinnati, Thursday afternoon, May 6. "The members of faculties and Boards of Trustees of all schools of the M. E. Church, and other ministers and laymen particularly interested in education who may be in Cincinnati, will meet."

The purpose of the convention is to discuss what changes, if any, should be made in the present organization of the Educational Society, and what can be done to awaken a deeper interest throughout the church in the work of education, and lead to larger contributions.

The Kellogg-Spofford Case in Congress.

The sensation of last week in Congress was caused by the presentation of the report of the Senate Committee in the Kellogg-Spofford case. The majority of the committee, as was anticipated, reported in favor of unseating Kellogg. Senator Hill, of Georgia, made the report which charges fraud and corruption upon Mr. Kellogg. The Minority report was as follows:

> Mr. Hoar read as follows: The undersigned minority of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, to whom was referred the memorial of Henry M Spofford, claiming the seat now occupied by William Pitt Kellogg, submit the following as their views:
> On the 30th day of November, 1878, the Senate passed the following resolutions:
> Resolved, That William Pitt Kellogg is, upon the merits of the case, entitled to a seat in the Senate of the United States from the State of Louisiana for the term of six years commencing the 4th of March 1877, and that he be admitted thereto on taking the proper oath.
> Resolved, That Henry M. Spofford is not entitled to a seat in the Senate of the United States
> The party majority in the Senate has changed since Kellogg took the oath of office in pursuance of the above resolution. Nothing else has changed: the facts which the Senate considered and determined were in existence then as now. It is sought by mere superiority of numbers, for the first time, to thrust a Senator from a seat which he holds by virtue of the express and deliberate final judgment of the Senate. The act which is demanded of this party majority would be, in our judgment a great public crime. It will be, if consummated, one of the great political crimes in America's history, to be classed with rebellion, with the attempt to take possession, by fraud of the State Government of Maine, and with the overthrow of State governments in the south, of which it is the fitting sequence. Political parties have too often been led by a partisan zeal into measures which sober judgment might disapprove, but they have ever respected the constitution of the Senate. Men whose professions of returning loyalty to the Constitution have been trusted by the generous confidence of the American people, are now to give evidence of the sincerity of their vows. The people will thoroughly understand this matter, and will not be likely to be deceived again. We do not think proper to enter here upon the discussion of the evidence by which the claimants of Kellogg's seat seeks to establish charges affecting the integrity of that senator. Such evidence can be found in abundance in the slums of great cities. It is not fit to be trusted in cases affecting the smallest amount of property, much less the honor of an eminent citizen, or the title to the object of so much desire as a seat in the Senate. This evidence is not only unworthy of respect or credit, but it is, in many instances, wholly irreconcilable with undisputed facts. and Kellogg has met and overthrown it at every point.
> GEORGE F. HOAR,
> ANGUS CAMERON,
> JOHN A. LOGAN.

Senator Kellogg made a speech of an hour in length, in which he severely criticized the report made against him and announced that when the report came up for action he would show the falsity of the charge, and that he had been dealt with unfairly by the Committee.

The resolution by which Mr. Kellogg was admitted in 1878, settled the case, and this re-opening of it is without a parallel in the history of the Senate, and if the Democrats are successful, they make a precedent by which every Senator's seat is subject to repeated contests. Besides, when Kellogg was admitted, Butler, of South Carolina (of Hamburg massacre infamy), was admitted, and the understanding was expressly had that both should remain undisturbed.

Whatever may be the result in Kellogg's case, it will no doubt serve to call forth an extended and bitter political debate.

Another thing quite evident is that before the matter is settled, Senator Hill, who seems extremely bitter in his prosecution of Kellogg, will be forced to make answer to several very damaging reports concerning his moral character, in circulation in Washington, Atlanta, Pittsburgh and New Orleans.

Growth in Texas.

The first appointment made by the Methodist Episcopal Church to Texas after the war was that of Joseph Welsh, of the Philadelphia Conference, as "Missionary to Texas," made by Bishop Simpson, Aug. 20, 1865.

At the organization of the Mississippi Mission Conference in this city by Bishop Thomson, in 1865, the Texas District was formed, and Rev. Joseph Welsh, now of the Philadelphia Conference, was appointed presiding elder, and Rev. Samuel Osborne and Rev. Elias Dibble were admitted on trial, and stationed respectively at Galveston and Houston.

The Texas Conference was organized by Bishop Simpson at Houston, Jan. 3, 1867. The following is from the official record of the organization:

> HOUSTON, Jan. 3, 1867.
> The Board of Bishops having set apart the work in Texas for organization as the Texas Mission Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop Simpson commenced the religious services preliminary to its institution, at 3 o'clock p. m., in the Houston M. E. Church, by the reading of the sixtieth chapter of Isaiah; the 571st hymn was then sung, and prayer offered by Rev. Joseph Welch and W. R. Fayle.
> The Bishop then addressed the preachers on the general interest and progress of the work, after which he announced the transfer from the Mississippi Mission Conference of Rev. Joseph Welsh, as the only one in full connection in the traveling ministry of whom to constitute the Texas Mission Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The second session of the Texas Conference was held at Houston Jan. 3, 1868, by Bishop Ames, who was accompanied on his visit by Rev. J. P. Newman, D.D., then of New Orleans.

We now have four conferences in Texas, with 173 churches, worth $183,562, and over 300 ministers and 18,000 members.

Laymen in the Annual Conferences.

The last General Conference appointed a committee to inquire into the expediency of introducing lay representation into the Annual Conferences. Revs. Drs. W. F. Mallalieu, James Fuller, J. F. King, and Moses Hill, and Hon. Messrs. J. A. Wright, C. D. Hubbard of that committee met in New York recently, and fixed upon a plan to submit to the approaching General Conference. The following is the substance of the plan as given by the Western:

> The district stewards shall elect annually as delegates to the annual conference one layman for each six quarterly conferences in the district, and an additional one for a fraction of two-thirds. Provided, always, that each district have one representative. No one can act as lay representative in the annual conference unless he be 21 years old and a member in full connection for five consecutive years before his election. Laymen are to sit with the ministers in the annual conference and deliberate together as one body, but they shall vote separately whenever such separate vote shall be demanded by one-third of either order, and in such cases the concurrent majority vote of both orders shall be necessary to complete an action. Laymen shall have a right to speak to all questions in the annual conference, and to vote on all questions, except such as relate to the conduct, character, or relations of travelling elders and in the election of ministerial delegates to the General Conference.

Home for the Poor.

We have received the first Annual Report of Miss J. P. Moore's Home for Aged and Destitute Women, established in this city. This laudable enterprise has upon it the manifest blessing of God. The following are the Board of Managers: B. Leas, Rev. H. Caldwell, S. T. Clanton, Miss J. P. Moore, Rev. G. W. Walker, Revs. J. Marks, A. M. Newman, T. Peterson and M. C. Cole. No one is taken into the Home who is able to work, and if any inmates become able to work they are expected to leave. The Home is supported by voluntary contributions alone. No debts are made. The Home is under the direction and care of our Baptist friends. The following by-law explains itself:

> The Home is supported by voluntary contributions. We never go in debt. Have no capital but God's promises. We have no agents authorized to solicit funds. No one is asked to give. We simply want the world to know that we have this Home, and that the inmates are utterly helpless and dependent. Then if God puts it into the hearts of any to help us we will be very thankful, and give God all the glory. Contributions for the Home may be sent either to Rev. G. W. Walker, Peniston, near Magazine streets, New Orleans, La., or to Miss J. P. Moore, corner Robert and Pitt streets, New Orleans, La.

Alcoholism, Crime and Death.

The Philadelphia Grand Jury for last term in their report say: "A careful analysis of the record of the month's crime in this city shows the alarming prevalence of intoxication, as the basis of ninety per cent. of all the crime committed, and demands that some effectual method be devised by the proper authorities to limit the sale of the inflammable poison."

While a large share of the Irish foreigners are fighting the immigration of the Chinese to this country, the latter are sending in their contributions for the relief of Ireland. Hop Woh, a Chinese laundryman of Brooklyn, has already sent in to the Irish Famine Fund $250.

Personal Mention.

—Texas Republican delegates to Cincinnati declare for Grant.

—Rev. Dr. H. A. Butz, of Drew Theological Seminary, sails for Europe April 13.

—Bishop Merrill, after holding the Virginia and Philadelphia Conferences, is at his home in Chicago resting a few weeks before General Conference.

—Rev. Drs. Mallalieu, of Boston, and T. L. Flood, of Meadville, Pa., have written and Phillips & Hunt are issuing a book entitled "The Lives of the Bishops."

—Mrs. Samuel Gates, wife of Presiding Elder Gates, in the West Texas Conference, recently died in the Lord. We extend our sympathies to the bereaved husband.

—Rev. J. M. Vance, pastor of Thomson Chapel, in this city, has been seriously sick for several weeks. He is now some better, and his many friends hope he may soon be able to resume work.

—Rev. W. H. Miesse, B.D., pastor of Pearl Street Methodist Episcopal Church in Cincinnati, called on us last week. He, with his family, spent some days in the city, and left for home on the steamer Charles Morgan last Saturday evening. He preached in Ames' Chapel while here.

—Mr. John Page is erecting another fine public building for the city schools. The building is located in the lower part of the city on McCarty Square, between Pauline, Rampart, Goodchildren and Jena streets. It will cost $16,000, and is built from the McDonogh School Fund.

—Mr. F. Chandler, for some years General Passenger Agent on the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Railroad, goes to St. Louis to be connected with the Missouri Pacific Railroad. In losing Mr. Chandler New Orleans loses one of its best railroad men and a most estimable gentleman. We wish him great success in his new field of labor.

—Bishop Harris, on his return to New York from Mexico, last week said: "I have traveled in all climes and at all seasons, and have never been sick an hour; and now after doing some of the hardest traveling of my whole life, I am as well as I have been in forty years." While in Mexico the Bishop dedicated a new church at Tezontepec, which the native members had built and paid for; baptized a large number of persons, and ordained Rev. Mr. Luders, a German who has been in Mexico for seven years and now speaks Spanish fluently.

Our Southern Work.

TEXAS.

Rev. F. C. Moore, P. E. Navasota District: "The brethren on the Navasota District are doing grand work. It is going to be one of the most prosperous years."

MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. N. Cannon, Moss Point: "My circuit seems to be in a prospering condition. I have received three into the church in full connection and one on probation. I have baptized four children. We have four Sunday-schools. The school at St. Paul's Church is doing well; quite a large attendance there. A great many young men and ladies are in the school. Superintendent Thomas Williams and teachers are doing a good work. The school at Summerville is growing. Bro. Tony C. Carter, superintendent, and teachers are faithful; so are Bro. John L. James and teachers at Scranton, and at Davies' Chapel Bro. Fred. Wells and teachers are doing a good work. Our first quarterly conference met Saturday, March 20. Elder J. Campbell was not able to reach here till Saturday night. He preached two good sermons, and my people were glad to meet him. We held our love feast on Saturday night, and had a very good time. Sunday evening the sacrament was administered to 66. Elder's collection was $9 80. Our protracted meeting is still going on."

ARKANSAS

Rev. L. Anderson, Brinkly Circuit, March 22: "After several attempts I arrived at my work, and preached yesterday to a large and attentive congregation. I am well pleased with the earnest zeal manifested by our people in this part of the great harvest field." We are few in number, but we are determined on victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. We have many difficulties to contend with here, but the greatest is the lack of a Church in which to worship. But thanks to our God, we expect soon to have a building of our own; then no one can forbid us holding services. We held services in the A. M. E. Church yesterday, which had not been used for three months before. In fact it had been entirely abandoned by the pastor, and this morning one of the leading men of their church came and nailed the door up. They remind us very much of a class of people who were on earth in our Savior's time, of which He said, "Ye will not enter in yourselves nor let others." The Baptists have agreed to let us have their house when they are not using it, so we are not entirely shut out yet. Inclosed I send some subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, others will subscribe soon."

Temperance Statistics.

The revenue statistics show, according to the official statement of the Internal Revenue Department, that during the year 1878 $[illegible],[illegible]79,284.69 was expended in the United States in the manufacture of intoxicating spirits. Add to this the cost of fermented liquors, $10,729,320 08, making in all $63,299,604 77, the cost of making, which represents only a fractional part of the money wasted in this most iniquitous business. It is estimated that the 116,000 saloon-keepers in the United States represent $700,000,000 annually expended for intoxicating beverages. Now let us look at the number of schools in the United States, and the money employed in the cause of education, and see how the two compare. There are 141,629 schools, 221,042 teachers, and 7,209,938 scholars, costing annually $95,402,726, or $604,597,274 less than whisky. Take another comparative view of the cost of the liquors consumed by this Christian nation. There are in the United States 83,637 clergymen, costing, with the support of the Churches they serve, $47,636,495, or $652,363,505 less than whisky! The annual cost for education is $2 02 per capita, for Christianity $1.11, and for whisky $17; that is, eight times as much for whisky as for education, and fifteen times as much as for religion! Are these figures not alarming? What will become of us if this fearful evil is not arrested?—Southern Almanac.

General Religious.

The wife of General Sherman has written a letter to a Washington newspaper defending the Pope against newspaper charges that he has given nothing to the sufferers in Ireland.

During the past year the National Bible Society of Scotland issued 415,833 publications, of which 294,513 were Bibles and New Testaments. This circulation was surpassed only in the war years, 1870, '71 and '78. During the year the first edition of the Scriptures in Russia was published. Colporteurs to the number of 250 were aided or maintained in thirteen European countries and in India, China, Japan and Brazil.

There are now in Chicago 218 churches beside 20 mission chapels, and 11 Adventist and Spiritualist societies. After the fire of 1871 [illegible] remained standing in the city. Of the 213 churches the Catholics have the largest number, 34. The Baptists are next with 21. Then come the Evangelical Lutherans with 24, the Methodists with 19, the Presbyterians with 18, and the Episcopalians, Congregationalists, and Hebrews, each with 10.

The Chautauqua Sunday-School Assembly is a summer school—biblical, literary, scientific—organized in 1874. It is designed to promote general culture among the masses of the people in the interest of biblical study and teaching, both in the family and Sabbath-school. [illegible] properly opens every [illegible] the first Tuesday evening [illegible], and lasts for two or three weeks. Other departments have been added to the original S. S. a bishop on the color line are on the wrong train. They ought to join those churches that carry passengers on the color line. If a colored man was married to a white woman, or a white woman to a colored man, of course the one would be taken and the other left. They must go to different churches. With them families must be divided. "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder." Those who advocate the color line in churches where God has forbidden it ought not to object to it on railroad cars, steamboats, in hotels, and all other places carried out to its fullest extent.

Color is only an incidental circumstance, and varies with surrounding circumstances. Black is the effect of the African sun, soil and also of the atmosphere. If in this age of discovery, some chemist would discover something that with a washing would erase the African tan, such an act would disqualify a man for being a bishop with those men who harp on color, for it is a person black they want. The skin of a colored preacher in Texas, from some unknown cause, has peeled off in spots, and those spots are white. The doctors think it may all peel off and become all white. If nature should take such a freak with a colored Bishop, it would entirely destroy him. Another case I know of where one ear has become white. If one ear, why not the whole body? Why stop at black if it is color which which makes qualifications. We ought to have a yellow bishop, a brown bishop, and a red bishop for our Indian brethren. And, if the world is to be pleased and have a voice in the selection we ought to have a white bishop with a red nose. We have had two colored bishops. They were good men and died without a spot on their characters, but their success among their own people in Africa was not sufficient to justify or urge the election of others on the colored line even for the colored work. The leading argument for electing a bishop on the colored line is, "It would stop the abuse and misrepresentations of many of the enemies of the M. E. Church." Unless we had a better and higher motive, it would be yielding to sin to please the devil. Compromising on the slavery question led to a fifty years war with the Church. Christians are to "resist unto blood striving against sin," if necessary.

After gifts and grace, more important than color, is language and nationality, as our church is in all countries and among all languages.

Foreign Missions.

[B]ULGARIA.—"Sistof, Feb. 8—To-day," writes Rev. E. Lounsbury, "we have observed the General Conference's recommendation, as to the use of unfermented juice of the grape on sacramental occasions. The Spirit was with us as we gathered about the Lord's table, and we were made to rejoice. During our love feast the One 'altogether lovely' did not forsake us. The promises are still good. Two were received into full connection and two on probation."

SELF-SUPPORT IN HIROSAKI, JAPAN.—"The church in Hirosaki, during a period of about four years from the time of its organization received no financial aid from any Missionary Society. Some eighteen months ago, with a view to sending the gospel to places in North Japan where the people seemed favorably inclined towards Christianity, the church applied to our Mission for some financial help, which was granted, it being understood that when the church in Hirosaki could, according to their ability, [illegible] the spread of the Gospel into [illegible] beyond, it was not at [illegible] to see a portion of the money [illegible] from the Mission for [illegible] chapels in Hirosaki [illegible] support their preachers. CHINESE IN NEW YORK.—April 16th—On the evening of that day the Jubilee, or Fisk, Choir of Singers will give a concert for the benefit of the Chinese of that Mission. Let all the friends of that Mission and its inestimable Superintendent, please keep it in mind.

ANNUAL REPORT.—Persons not pastors will please accompany their requests for the Annual Report of the Missionary Society with four cents in stamps, for postage.

JAPAN.—Rev. G. T. Draper and wife, with Miss Long, who were appointed to Japan; and Rev. O. W. Willetts and wife for Peking, China, left on the steamer "Gaelic" from San Francisco for Yokohama.

Secretary Clark, of the American Board of Foreign Missions, is, as missionaries generally are, "a brother born for adversity." He now touches our sorrow in the following words: "Allow me to express my sympathy with you, brethren, and your Board, in the loss of your honored Secretary and my highly esteemed friend, Dr. Dashiell. I formed a very delightful acquaintance with him last year at Chatauqua."

Is there a commentary for another needy missionary? Some time since we asked for two and got them. Now we ask for a third one. Please report to Mission Rooms, No. 805 Broadway, New York, if you have the set to give—we will pay the expressage.

DELEGATES TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.—Among those who expect to put in an appearance at the General Conference, are Hon. and Rev. James S. Payne, ex-President of the Republic of Liberia and now a superannuary missionary of the Conference; Dr. Philip Grass, of Baltimore, son of a deceased missionary in Liberia—himself born there, will appear as lay delegate from the Washington Conference of this country.

Testimony from the Editor of the Indian Mirror, which seems to be the organ of the Brahmo Somaj Religionists: "No one can deny that it is to missionaries that the spread of female education is chiefly due, and if their teachers are not well educated, or their labors are not well rewarded, it is not they that are to blame, but the community whose demand for education is not commensurate with the desire which they feel to benefit it.

Sunday School.

APRIL 4, 1880.—THE POWER OF CHRIST.
SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 8: 18-34.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him."

TOPIC.—"Following or Fearing."
(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The Connection.—Our lesson forms a part of "the solemn procession of miracles" that rapidly follow each other in chaps. 8 and 9.

The preparations of the disciples for departure necessarily would advertise the fact, even if no one had heard the command that Christ had given them. Among those who noticed the intended withdrawal was a "scribe." It was an unusual thing for one of his rank to volunteer to follow the Savior. He was sure that his position would make him a very welcome addition to Christ's little band of followers. Just as men try machines before they use them, and test them in their weakest parts, so Christ put this man to trial. The reply showed to him that the Savior had gleaned nothing from the crowds that had followed him. Any one becoming his disciple had before him a life of hardship, with a doubtful prospect of reaping a harvest of honor. The scribe's enthusiasm was instantly cooled. He did not even go over the sea. He had a good bed at home, and a recognized position in society, and these he did not feel at all like giving up. Philip was one of the first that was called. He replied: "Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father. The answer of Christ meant, instead of burying the dead, he was to go and awaken others to spiritual life!

There was another mentioned by Luke who was desirous of doing something else before doing the will of the Master. He wished first to go and "bid them farewell which are at home at my house." To him the answer was: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

The Sea Stilled (23-26).—They [illegible], and specially famili[ar] [illegible] sea. They were not [illegible] to be frightened. The [illegible] ing. In the very wildest of their moods that voice instantly they obeyed. The winds not only abated, but the sea itself instantaneously was stilled. They saw that though he was a man, eating, and drinking, and sleeping, like themselves, exhausted with labor as they frequently were, yet he could do that which no mere man could perform.

The Devils Cast Out.—The two men had made the way impassable to travelers. One saw Christ "afar off," and, actuated by his usual desire to harm those passing that way, or drawn by some strange power, he ran to him and worshipped him. Their request was: "That he would not send them—out of the country." "Suffer us to go away into the herd of swine." Of these there were some two thousand feeding on the mountain near by. "And he said unto them, Go." As if the evil spirits that had taken possession of the swine were after them the keepers fled, and told it in the city and in the country. "The whole city came out to meet Jesus," and "Besought him that he would depart out of their coasts." But amid the blackness of this shadow, there is one ray of light. One of those who had been healed, the one who was the most indebted for his interposition, came to the Savior as he was about to depart, and besought him "that he might be with him." There was at least one heart in which he had become a resident! This petition, however, was denied, and he was told to go back to his own home and friends, and tell them what "great things the Lord hath done for thee." In his zeal, he, at least, attempted the conversion of the whole city!

Profit, $1.200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all of this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters, taken by my wife. She has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it, for their benefit."

PERSONS of sedentary habits, often suffer with Kidney affections. Irritating medicines and overwork are fruitful causes of diseases of the Kidneys. Sufferers from this weakening and dangerous disease would maintain the strength of the digestive organs and improve the quality of the blood by a persistent use of Simmons Liver Regulator, taken three times a day. This will restore the Kidneys to their wonted health and vigor.

"I have been troubled with Liver Complaint, Kidney Disease and bad blood for a long time. I have used about ten bottles of Simmons Liver Regulator, and it has done me more good than all the medicines I ever took. I would not be without it. If you desire you can publish this. Yours truly,

Deaths.

Alice Raymond, a member of our church for several years, died Jan., 1880, in full triumph of faith. She left a dear husband and children to mourn their loss.
J. T. BURTON.

It becomes my painful duty to write that Rev. Patrick Bowman, a local preacher of our Church at Assumption, La., died March 19; and that on the same day sister Mary LeBlanc, of our Church at Macedonia, on Bayou Lafourche also died. Both died in faith.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are grateful to our Preachers and people who have done so much in pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1880 thus far.

But we feel that the field has not been thoroughly canvassed yet. Will not our Agents everywhere make a special effort at once to send in a list of subscribers for

THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR?

We will send the paper for the remainder of the year for ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF. The

is soon at hand, and the SOUTHWESTERN will contain an abstract of the daily proceedings. The coming General Conference will be an important one. It will have much to say about our work in the Southern States. Several Bishops will be elected, and the question of electing Presiding Elders will be discussed; also the matter of admitting laymen into the Annual Conferences will be decided; besides, many other subjects of great importance will receive attention.

Another great event to transpire in 1880 is the election of a

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

This will occur next November, and between this time and that our people want the news from a reliable source. This they can get in their own church paper.

We will publish the

which will be of great value to our people in posting them as to the price of produce and supplies, and thus enable them to keep from being swindled.

In the matter of

CHURCH NEWS

we propose making the SOUTHWESTERN better than ever during 1880.

OUR PREMIUM BOOK.

We give the Premium Book to one dollar and a half subscribers, the same as to yearly subscribers. So $2 cash will pay for the paper the remainder of the year and the Book. It is surprising how popular the Premium Book is. All who see it are delighted with it. It costs but fifty cents to subscribers. No one else can buy it for any price.

Now let our Agents and friends make a thorough canvass at once and send in the names and cash.

NEW BOOKS.

CANNON FARRAR'S LIFE OF CHRIST. Class A, Nos. 4 and 5, of the Standard Series, being published by I. K. Funk & Co., New York. Price fifty cents for the two, and can be had at all the book stores, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price.

The era of cheap good literature seems to have fairly set in. This life of Christ, which is one of the latest and best, costs $2 50 in book form, can now be had for 50 cents. I. K. Funk & Co. select and publish only the very choicest works and their efforts are to be highly commended. The enemies of Christianity have for years flooded the market with cheap, trashy literature, but now those poorest in purse can have the best books of the age.

The American Book Exchange announces a reprint of the new Analytical Concordance to the Bible, by Dr. Robert Young, lately issued in Edinburgh. A glance at the description of the work shows that it is one of no ordinary magnitude or merit. It has 60 per cent. more references than Cruden; the references, arranged alphabetically, as usual, are grouped under the various original words which they translate; proper names have their literal meanings; places located; in short, the work is at once a Concordance, a Lexicon and a Gazetteer of Biblical Geography and History. It will be difficult to conceive a more comprehensive or critical help to the study of the Bible.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

—The Nineteenth Century for March—re published by George Munro, 17 to 27 Vandewater street, New York—comes in good season and has twelve articles of general interest, as follows: 1, England as a Naval Power; 2, The Common Sense of Home Rule; 3, Sham Admiration of Literature; 4, Newspaper Correspondence in the Field; 5, The Next Reform Bill; 6, Burns and Beranger; 7, The Proper Use of the City Churches; 8, Irish Land Agitation; 9, God and Nature; 10, Reasons for Doubt in the Church of Rome; 11, Recent Science; 12, Russia and England, also the closing chapters of "Splendid Misery," by Miss Braddon, from the London World. This splendid magazine is sold at 20 cents a number, or can be had at $2.25 per annum. For sale at all book stores.

—The North American Review for April has for its leading article a paper entitled "McClellan's Last Service to the Republic," which covers the whole period of McClellan's military career, from the flank movement to the James to the battle of Antietam. It is intended to vindicate the General against the charge that he was over-cautious and unnecessarily slow in his movements, and contains many statements of an interesting character. Sir Francis Hincks contributes a paper on the "Relations of Canada with the United States." The author's principal object is to show that the recently enacted Canadian Tariff is not an act of retaliation against the United States for their refusal to establish reciprocal free trade between the two countries in products that are natural to both. Canada, he says, is desirous of renewing the reciprocity treaty, and is ready to concede all reasonable demands. The Rev. David Swing writes about "The Failure of the Southern Pulpit." According to him, the Southern Pulpit is without influence on public opinion in the South, whereas it might be, and ought to be, a great engine for the moral and material regeneration of the people. The discussion of the Third Term question, begun in the February number of the Review, is continued in the present number by the Hon. George S. Boutwell, who insists that, whatever may have been the practice and the teaching of "the Fathers" with respect to a third term, circumstances make it in the highest degree expedient that General Grant be again elected to the presidency. Charles Stewart Parnell sets forth the reforms in the laws of land tenure which are advocated by himself and his political associates, under the heading "The Irish Land Question." The book notices are by Mr. Edward Cary. For sale by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

Common-sense and the science of chemistry when applied to butter making, reduce the time of churning one-half, increase the product 6 per cent., the quality of the product 20 per cent., and give a rich golden color to the butter the year round. All these improvements, together with many others, result from the use of Gilt-Edge Butter Maker. Sold by druggists, grocers and general storekeepers.

"The Cheapest Article in the World."

This is what a grateful gentleman said who was cured of a bad kidney disease by the use of Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, after he had offered in vain $1000 to any doctor who would rid him of it. It is the cheapest article in the world to all afflicted with kidney and liver diseases.

It is proper to say that the errors in our Conference Minutes are not chargeable to the Committee on Publication. The cover was to have been blue, but the paper could not be had, and a number of them were bound before we knew of the change. And there is not a typographical error but what was corrected in the proof and appears now because the printer failed to make the correction after revised proofs were handed in. We have done the best we could in three week's hard work.

Mistakes and Prejudice

Of Religious and Temperance Journals.

Some good Religious and Temperance journals are making the mistake of declining to advertise a most valuable anti-intoxicating medicine simply because it is called "Bitters" while the same journals are making a greater mistake by advertising some drunken whisky stuff, or nostrum because it has some nice, fancy, deceptive name, ending with "ine," "ine," printed on its label when the bottle is filled with destruction, drunkenness and death. If these good journals would take the trouble to ascertain how many overworked clergymen have had their lost nerve-force, brain-waste and flagging energies restored by the use of Hop Bitters, enabling them to perform their arduous pastoral duties and preach the good sermons that they would have been totally unable to do but for this valuable medicine, and did these journals but know of the host of good Christian Temperance women who rely on them for their family medicine, and how many invalid homes they could make happy and what glad tidings they would send to every neighborhood by publishing the merits of Hop Bitters, they would advertise them without money and without price. And did these journals but know how many have been and may be saved from forming intemperate habits by doctors prescribing Hop Bitters, instead of beer, where the use of hops are needed, (there being more actual hop strength in one bottle of Hop Bitters than in a barrel of beer without any of the intoxicating or evil effect of beer) they would lay aside their fear and prejudice against the word "Bitters."

A few of the many witnesses from religion and temperance sources are given below, who [illegible] and advertise Hop Bitters. [illegible] use, recommend [illegible] Manager of Hop Bitters

The President and Manager of the Hop Bitters Mfg. Co. is a veteran Temperance man and worker of forty-eight years' service; every man in the Company is an active Temperance worker, and the Company spends thousands of dollars annually in Temperance and Christian work.

What the Religious Press Says:

Chicago, Nov. 15, 1878.
Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y.:
Gentlemen—We do not allow anything in the line of Bitters to enter our paper that contains alcohol, but we are satisfied that your Bitters are free from that ingredient. We feel responsible for the good or bad that may be done to the families of our subscribers that are affected by our advertisements. Therefore our discrimination in your favor, and we trust that our very low rates will meet your approval, and that we may hear from you. "THE LIVING CHURCH."

Temperance clergymen, lawyers, ladies and doctors use Hop Bitters, as they do not intoxicate, but restore nerve and brain waste.—Temperance Times, Brockport, N. Y.

Not a Beverage.

"They are not a beverage, but a medicine with curative properties of the highest degree, containing no poisonous drugs. They do not tear down an already debilitated system, but build it up. One bottle contains more hops, that is, more real hop strength than a barrel of ordinary beer. Every druggist in Rochester sells them, and the physicians prescribe them."—Rochester Evening Express on Hop Bitters.

We are not in the habit of making editorial mention of patent medicines, but in case of Hop Bitters, feel free to do so because their merits deserve to be known.—New York Independent.

Sirs—I have taken Hop Bitters and recommend them to others, as I found them very beneficial. MRS. J. W TULLER, Sec'y Women's Christian Temperance Union.

A MEDICINE, NOT A DRINK.
High Authority.

Hop Bitters is not, in any sense, an alcoholic beverage or liquor, and could not be sold for use, except to persons desirous of obtaining medicinal bitters.
GREEN B. RAUM,
U. S. Com'r Internal Rev.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4, 1879.
Dear Sir—Why don't you get a certificate from Col. W. H. W. of Baltimore, showing how he cured himself of drunkenness by the help of Hop Bitters. His is a wonderful case. He is well known in Rochester, N. Y., by all the drinking people there. He is known in the city Cincinnati, New Orleans, New York in fact, all over the country, as he has spent thousands of dollars for rum. I honestly believe his cord would be worth thousands of dollars to you in this city and Baltimore alone, and make thousands of sober men by inducing the use of your Bitters. J. A. W.

Prejudice Kills.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by Hop Bitters, that we had poohed at two years before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The Parents—Good Templars.

Milton, Del., Feb. 10, 1880.
Having used Hop Bitters, the noted remedy for debility, nervousness, indigestion, etc., I have no hesitation in saying that it is indeed an excellent medicine, and recommend it to any one as a truly tonic bitters.
Respectfully,
REV. MRS. J. H. ELLGOOD.

I declined to insert your advertisement of Hop Bitters last year, because I then thought they might not be promotive of the cause of Temperance, but find they are, and a very valuable medicine, myself and wife having been greatly benefitted by them, and I take great pleasure in making them known.
REV. JOHN SEAMAN,
Editor Home Sentinel, Afton, N. Y.

Scipio, N. Y., Dec. 1, 1879.
I am the pastor of the Baptist church here and an educated physician. I am not in practice, but am my sole family physician, and advise in many chronic cases. Over a year ago I recommended your Hop Bitters to my invalid wife, who has been under medical treatment of Albany's best physicians several years. She has been greatly benefitted and still uses the medicine. I believe she will become thoroughly cured of her various complicated diseases by their use. We both recommend them to our friends, many of whom have also been cured of their various ailments by them. REV. E. R. WARREN.

Cured of Drinking.

A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for liquor that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. R. Official, Chicago, Ill.

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article is made up of common valuable remedies known to all, and that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them. REV. ——, Washington, D. C.

A good Baptist clergyman of Bergen, N. Y., a strong temperance man, suffered with kidney trouble, neuralgia and dizziness almost to blindness, over two years after he was advised that Hop Bitters would cure him, because he was afraid of and prejudiced against the word "bitters." Since his cure he says none need fear but trust in Hop Bitters.

My wife and daughter were made healthy by the use of Hop Bitters and I recommend them to my people.—Methodist Clergyman, Mexico, N. Y.

I had severe attacks of Gravel and Kidney trouble; was unable to get any medicine or doctor to cure me until I used Hop Bitters, and they cured me in a short time.—A distinguished lawyer and temperance orator of Wayne County, N. Y. 14-28

The New Hymnal

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price.

Before the Exodus Committee Mr. Avery, of Mississippi, testified, last week, that he thought it very doubtful about negroes getting justice in Southern courts, and thought that Northern white men—even the Senator from Indiana [Mr. Voorhees]—could not get justice there. Referring to the severe punishment for petit larceny in the South, he said the Mississippi laws which permitted prisoners who are hired out to contractors to be punished for what he called the "providence of God"—meaning sickness while imprisoned—was a disgrace to the civilization of the State. Under this law, passed in 1876, for every day lost by sickness the prisoners were compelled to work two additional days. This law, he believed, was passed to get just as much work as possible out of negro criminals, and under the leases system of Mississippi, it put them as near as possible to a condition of slavery. JEMIMA HOWARD.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

The Doctors Yielding.

Ever since Prof. Green wrote to the Medical Record advising physicians everywhere to use the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure in their practice, it has been gaining in favor with the profession. They can find nothing which is a substitute for it. R. Caulkins, M. D., of Rochester, N. Y., says he would now prescribe it to all who are afflicted with serious kidney and liver diseases.

Dr. Harter:—Mr. James Brown of our county, has requested us to tender you his grateful acknowledgments for the great benefits his wife received from the use of your IRON TONIC. He tells us that, after having paid three or four hundred dollars doctors' bills, two bottles of your IRON TONIC did her more good than all other medicine she ever used. and friends, and tried to tell them of these girls and women, and urge upon them the necessity of putting forth a hand to save them: and night after night as I retured to my bed, weary, exhausted and sick, I wondered why I should have this work to do? Why was not some woman of strength of body and strength of intellect, and a tongue of eloquence, and who had no home cares pressing hard upon her, called to this work? But so often was I surprised at the ready gifts of the people, that finally I was constrained to say: "'Tis not by might or by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord."

Through the various papers of the Church you have seen how the hand of the Lord hath been revealed. Four missionaries began their work that winter in New Orleans. Eight "sewing schools" were organized, in which girls and women were taught to cut, fit and make ordinary garments, and instruction given in matters of home life. Frequently these schools were turned into prayer-meetings, and every effort was made to lead them to Christ. "Mothers' meetings" were largely attended and full of interest. A part of each day was spent by these missionaries in visiting the homes of the people: and in this way from one hundred to one hundred and fifty families were weekly visited. In these visits moral and religious instruction was given, the Scriptures read, prayer offered, and efforts made to increase the attendance upon our Sunday-schools and church services. The poor were helped as means could be secured, the sick comforted and the aged cared for; and thus over five hundred girls and women were brought under the influence and care of these missionaries, and a goodly number converted. God be praised! [illegible] winter we have five missionaries at work, and in our Industrial [illegible] alone we have three hundred girls and women, besides the [illegible] who are visited, prayed [illegible] to from the precious [illegible], in their homes. Two old blind men promise to seek an interest in Christ.

Seven little children, of their own accord, left their play on the street, followed me into a house and listened attentively to the reading of the Bible, and all knelt with us in prayer.

One Catholic woman, seeming to understand the design of my visits and not approving, met me at the door and expressed fears of a "dangerous" dog she kept; but I urged an entrance, and while reading to her and her husband the 53th chapter of Isaiah, she called to a neighbor woman to come in and listen to "that beautiful reading."

Visited one man who at first manifested an unwillingness to hear anything on the subject of religion. But a portion of God's Word was read to him: he listened, and then said he had never heard anything that made him feel as that did. With tears he urged me to return and teach him and his wife the way of salvation.

One poor old blind man expressed great happiness in hearing the Bible read, and would repeatedly exclaim: "The Lord sent you here."

One man whom I visited as a seeker of salvation, sent for me the next day to come and rejoice with him in having found the Savior. His experience was a beautiful and convincing one. This man is now very ill, having, in all probability, but a few more days on earth; but all is well!

Met two very old crippled women, one sitting on the door step weeping. I inquired the cause of her grief. She said she had been cast out of her home and had no one to care for her. When I told her of the mansions in Heaven, and the One there who cared for the poorest of His creatures, the tears ran down her cheeks like rain, and she wept aloud. The other woman, the worst deformed woman I ever saw, laid her hand upon her breast, repeating over and over: "The Lord is good. He is good for what He has done for my soul."

Held a religious meeting with our older scholars—sixteen. All but two were in tears and arose and asked to be prayed for.

Held one little children's meeting, in which they seemed much interested. One little girl, only five years old, put her arms around her older sister who was weeping under conviction, and tried to comfort her.

The work is increasing in interest. O for more time and more workers in this wonderful field!

Only last Wednesday a pastor of one of our colored churches said to me: "Sister Hartzell, what shall we do to save our daughters? They are going to ruin as fast as possible. Can't you give us missionary teachers?" And my heart said: "God helping me, you shall have help before another thirty days roll by." And these appeals are not only made by the pastors of our churches in this city, but from the country, and from Mississippi, Texas, Arkansas and Georgia, and all over the South, comes the cry for help! Help for bodies and help for souls! In this city alone there are several hundred old colored men and women crippled, blind and helpless, who at the time of emancipation were too old, even then, to any longer work, and who yet linger in suffering and misery. Many had their children sold far away from them, or they were sold far away from their children, and now unable to work themselves, and without a child or relative, they lay helpless in their filth, getting only a crust now and then from some poor but charitable neighbor. Is it any wonder that my heart aches sometimes almost to bursting? Yet God wants this people saved, body and soul, and I know the warm, noble hearts of my brethren and sisters in the North, and I know that you, too, want them saved. Nay, more; you want to help save them. Yes, you crave the honor of being used by the Infinite One—the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords—to the saving of these unfortunate ones. O, what shouts of hallelujahs will ascend to the Holy One if in the next thirty days you will send us three thousand dollars, thus enabling us to put into the field at once ten more missionaries, and care for the bodies of many poor ones.

Blessed words of encouragement, together with substantial assistance have been sent us by several of our Bishops and a number of kind friends, to carry on the work up to the present time.

Brothers and friends, in the name of the Father lay now your gifts upon the altar. Mothers and sisters, will you not gather together your old garments, which with mending, would serve many a day to cover and make comfortable many a destitute one?

As the Lord hath called me to make known in part this people's wants, so do you let Him use you now, at once, in saving them.

A report of all donations received last year, and all expenditures, was [illegible] to Dr. Rust and published in the last Report of the Freedmen's Aid Society. The same will be done this year.

Your praying, trusting and working sister, were making good headway. We hope before the next conference he may be mounted, and have many out-points under way of prosperity. The congregations were large and enthusiastic during the meeting. A number were at the altar, and five joined the church. I think it is clear that the best class of colored people of the place are connected with our church. That more than twenty subscribe for our conference paper, the SOUTHWESTERN, is good evidence.

We had the pleasure of visiting the public school of the town, under the direction of the Rev. Mr. Foster, of the Congregational church, who is doing a good work. He is well worthy the confidence of both races, which he has. May God send us more like him.

GRANADA, Miss., March 22, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—I left the Central Tennessee College, January 1st, and came to this place for the purpose of teaching a term of school in this county.

Have been successful in organizing a good school numbering 78, and a Sabbath-school of 69, though we have very few books and periodicals we are doing well, and everything seemed peaceful and full of prosperity, until on Friday morning last we were called to the funeral of one of our scholars, a girl of about 14 years, who was murdered just a few furlongs from our school building. Steps were taken to ascertain who was the perpetrator of the deed and, upon investigation, was found to be her father-in-law, who was arrested and delivered into the hands of the constable, but on the way to jail, the constable being on foot and it being necessary to pass over a trestle work on the railroad, the criminal pushed the constable overboard and made his escape to the woods. However, we learn to-day that he has been recaptured.

Waco District, West Texas Conference.

DEAR EDITOR—The work on my district is at a stand still. The men are only holding the fort, but by the help of the Master we hope to advance as soon as the weather gets warmer. Only two or three churches on my district are fit to hold services in to any advantage when the weather is cold. Here the question arises: Why don't you make them comfortable? This is a hard question to answer. I find the most of the colored people on my district in the same condition they were fifteen years ago—living in old masters' log cabins, with no money, no lands, no schools of any importance, and the worst of it is, they seem to be satisfied with living in that way. Lands rent from five to eight dollars per acre when we pay money rent. Old master gets the whole crop. If they work for one-half of the crop, he gets one half and the merchant the other, so they are not able to build churches and support preachers. This is what I meet on every hand.

I find the work of presiding elder to be an up-hill business. We leave the pastors with the words: "God bless you, let me hear how you are getting along." Nothing is heard from the most of them until we go again in person. It seems almost impossible to keep up the Sunday-school work. Of the fourteen charges on my district we have only three or four good Sunday schools. It is very good for an elder to write nice letters to the paper, and say his work is on the up grade. I wish I could do so every time I write, but when I consider that there is One who sits in the heavens and inspects our work, and when I remember that another servant may have this field next year, I think it best for me to give plain facts—let it hurt or offend who it may. Nearly every preacher hurts his annual conference with a good report, be his charge large or small; he leaves it in a good condition—so he says. Another man is sent there, and his first report is that the church is all gone to pieces, the members are scattered, half of them are ready to go to some other church, he finds no Sunday-school; and let me say here that half of them leave now at the charge they just left. After [illegible] his reports are all good. Sunday-school and church are doing [illegible], people are taking the paper, [illegible] some other man [illegible] sent. The first thing he says is that there was nothing done. There must be a screw loose somewhere, and if I am to judge, I would say that the fence is down all around, and it will take a very active elder to keep it up. So far as the meetings among the old people are concerned they are good enough, but in the Sunday-school work, building and improving church property, and paying church debts, it is the hardest to get some of our preachers to do their duty. I have labored with quarterly conferences from three o'clock in the afternoon until twelve o'clock at night, teaching and trying to encourage them in their work, but all in vain. We get the promises, but the work we often fail to see.

The people on my district are mostly pleased with the appointments this year. The preachers were all at their places in good time, except R. P. Brown, who was sent to the Waco mission. I have neither seen nor heard a word from him. I wrote to him twice, but got no answer. The work has been supplied by Bro. A. Brack.

I am told that Rev. Mr. Pile, Presiding Elder of the A. M. E. Church in this place, says the colored delegates of our General Conference set at the door and act as door keepers. Who ever heard of a conference having thirty or forty door keepers! I hope some of those who know so much about our business will give us a call next May in Cincinnati, and see where we sit and what we do. Not that we expect to do one thing to please that class of people. We are free men and live in a free country, with a law that guarantees to every man the right to serve God according to the dictates of his own conscience. We believe we are as well qualified to choose a church to live in as any man in the A. M. E. Church, or any other church that feels disposed to meddle with us. As representatives of the M. E. Church, we feel that our calling and work in said church is too grand for us to ever be guilty of stooping so low as to undermine and break up other churches to build up ours. Brethren, let us do unto others as we would they should do unto us. God made us to be free. Thank God, the chain of slavery is broken and we are free. Before the smoke from the cannon had cleared away orders were issued from the headquarters of the grand old church for her army to move Southward, and it came and built churches and school houses, threw the doors open and said to the neglected and suffering colored people—"Come in, we will preach to you and teach you." Well do I remember one Sunday evening in the year 1866, a man with his blue coat and brass buttons shining like gold came into the basement of the M. E. Church South, in the city of Austin, and with him a lady by the name of Miss Fannie Campbell. She opened a school and taught day and night. It was at this night school that I got my first lessons. This is all the schooling I have ever had. I learned to write from a little tract that was entitled "The Freedman." I used to stop my work and make a smooth place on the ground and practice writing and cyphering. I had not so much as heard of an African Church. Now, Mr. Editor, after the storm was all over then came the A. M. E. Church, saying: "You are all wrong, this is the colored man's church, the white people are only after your money. All the churches you build will belong to the white man—they only want to make money off of you and rob the country, and then leave. I never bother myself with what they say, but there are many colored people who believe them. How, in the name of Heaven, can it be said that the Northern people are taking the colored man's money to support the poor whites of the North, when we have $4,000 from the Missionary Society and $1,000 from the Church Society, making $5,000 to aid in building churches and supporting preachers in the West Texas Conference, to say nothing of the Texas and Austin Conferences that get more than we do. The most of this money is raised among the Northern people. I love the M. E. Church. And when I am gone I want the SOUTHWESTERN to tell my brethren for me that I died like a soldier—I fell at my post. I expect some of your readers will think this a pretty rough letter, but the saving of this work is rough work. There is no use of patting men on their shoulders and telling them they are all right when they are not. What we need in this work is men, with the religion of the Lord Jesus in their souls. Men who know the discipline of our church; men with their eyes open, so they can see the wolf who comes full of hellish malice to scatter, tear and slay; men who have the nerve to stand up for their church, and in the name of God say to the powers of darkness and ignorance: Give way, and let the truth of God shine. If there are any young men who have any notion of coming into the ministry, and are not of this kink, they had better stay at home, for we have enough tender-footed men now that will flee when they see the wolf coming. A man needs the whole armor to stand in this part of the battle-field.

The Widows of India.

It is an appalling fact that there are in India to-day 80,000 widows between the ages of six and sixteen! From the custom of early marriages in India arise the worse features of Hindoo widowhood; for many a child becomes a widow before she has reached the age of seven years. It may be that the child has never lived with her husband, and yet custom forbids her ever marrying again. From the hour of her widowhood her life becomes one of misery. She has no sympathy from friends, not even from members of her own family. She is bereft of all her ornaments; her hair is cut off. She is clothed in the commonest apparel, and acts in the capacity of a menial for all the household. Her jewels, which she valued so much in the days of her pride, are no longer upon her person. She can never wear them again, never wear a nice dress, or eat other than a given quantity of poor food. She seldom mingles, or is allowed to mingle in the company of her more fortunate sisters. Her presence is considered a contamination. We cannot depict her misery. Her condition is almost hopeless. A childless widow, herself perhaps a child, drinks to its dregs the bitterest cup of a soulless heathenism, whose only fate is law.

There was a time when many such preferred death to life, and the widow abandoned her home and earthly connections, and committed herself to the flames on the dead body of her husband. This practice was abolished by the government years ago, although there are occasional instances of it even in these days. Her life is thus spared, but the sentence upon her brow has only been commuted. A recent act of the British government has rendered the re-marriage of widows lawful, and she is now no longer doomed to perpetual widowhood, yet custom and prejudice prevent this act from rapidly taking effect, but it will make its power felt in softening the lot of the Hindu widow.

How different the teachings of Christianity: "Ye shall not afflict the widow." "Let thy widows trust in me."

The Irish Landlords.

It is generally understood that much of the ever-recurrent distress in Ireland is due to the tenant system, and to the great landlords and their large holdings. The extent of these large estates, however, and of their long-rent rolls, is not so well known in this country, and without this knowledge it will not be possible to ascertain the tax which the people of Ireland are compelled to pay for the support of a class of landlords the majority of whom are absentees. The Marquis of Downshire, for instance, owns 100,926 acres, upon which he realizes an annual rental of £80,927, or $400,000. Sir Richard Wallace, illegitimate son and heir to the late Marquis of Hertford, and M. P. for Lisburn, owns 61,058 acres, the annual rental of which is $370,000. Earl Fitzwilliam owns 91,423 acres in Dublin and Wicklow, annual rental value, $235,000. The Earl lives in Yorkshire, and is an absentee, like Sir Richard Wallace. The Duke of Leinster owns 68,271 acres in Kildare and Meath, annual value $237,000. He is a resident landlord, but is reputed to be severe and despotic. The Duke of Abercorn, who owes his title to Lord Beaconsfield, has 63,557 acres, of an annual rental of $175,000, in Donegal and Tyrone. The Marquis of Londonderry owns 27,417 acres, annual value $185,000, chiefly in Derry, Donegal and Down. The Marquis of Lansdowne owns 120,616 acres in Dublin, Kerry, Limerick, Meath and Queen's, rental value $170,000. Lord Lansdowne is an absentee, living in Wiltshire and looking but little to his Irish estates. The Duke of Devonshire owns 60,033 acres, rental $170,000, in Cork and Waterford, and he is an absentee landlord. Smith Barry owns 27,749 acres in Cork, Louth and Tipperary, annual value $160,000. Mr. Barry is an absentee. The Marquis of Conyngham owns 156,973 acres, annual value $160,000, in Clare and Donegal. The Marquis is an absentee, and his estate is in a wretched condition, the property rack-rented and the tenants on the brink of starvation. The Marquis of Waterford owns 65,918 acres, rental value $160,000, in Waterford and Wicklow. He resides on his estate. The Earl of Annesley owns 50,277 acres, rental value $145,000, in Down, Caven and Queen's. He resides on his estates part of which are well kept, but the rest very badly. The Earl of Carysfort owns 19,083 acres, rental value $125,000. He is also a resident. The Earl of Charlemont owns 26,598 acres, annual value $125,000, in Armagh and Tyrone. The Earl of Erne owns 40,365 acres, annual value $115,000, in Donegal, Mayo, Farmanagh and Sligo. The Marquis of Ely owns 48,902 acres, rental value $115,000, in Farmanagh and Wexford. He is an absentee. Besides these there are ten landlords holding 466,793 acres in all, with aggregate annual rental of $1,045,000. In sum there are in Ireland twenty-six landlords whose annual rentals exceed £20,000. These twenty-six persons are the owners of 1,495,960 acres of land, from which they annually receive a rent amounting to $4,190,000, or an average of $2 80 annual rental per acre on good land and poor. On this basis the 15,000,000 acres of land under cultivation in Ireland pay an annual rental of at least $42,000,000.

Public Schools in France.

In 1837 the number of scholars in the primary schools in France was 752 for every 10,000 of the population, but in 1877, as appears by the report of the Minister of Public Instruction, the number of scholars for every 10,000 of the population is 1,281. How generally and extensively the desire for ordinary instruction had spread in the years between may be noted by the fact that in 1877 there were in every 100 conscripts 85 that could write, while 45 in 100 was the normal proportion in the years anterior to the earlier primary school report. In 1820 only 34 in 100 of those who got married could sign their names; now the number is 70 in 100. There are now 298 communes without any school. In 1837 the number of such communes was 5,667. Between 1872 and 1878, merely, the increase in the number of schools and scholars was greatest, being 3,000 schools and 260,000 scholars for the six years. Seventy-three thousand primary schools were open in 1878, and were attended by a trifle short of 5,000,000 scholars. 20,000,000 francs, or about $4,000,000, is the sum called for for the present year; but in 1871 this part of the public expenditure was only $1,700,000.

Gen. Grant a Total Abstainer.

The fact of Gen. Grant's total abstinence from wine or other intoxicating liquors is one which has attracted wide attention and comment. His habits in this respect in the past, it is well known, have been greatly exaggerated and misrepresented. The manager of the Central Pacific, understanding the General's wishes, furnished his car with no liquor of any kind. On the Union Pacific we found the car stocked with all kinds, but Gen. Grant always turned his glass base upwards. One night the porter of his car came to me with a secret, which I tell because suggestive in this connection. It was this: That in the night he was rendered uncomfortable by an accident to his back, occasioned by reaching over some baggage in the car; Mrs. Grant prescribed some brandy, but the General refused it, saying simply, "No, I'll smoke; that will do just as well." It is a subject upon which any one would hesitate to question Gen. Grant; but it is the conviction of all his friends, who have often heard his strong expressions upon kindred moral questions, that in the same unostentatious way in which he has given aid to other good causes he is offering to the cause of temperance the assistance of his example.—Inter-Ocean.

to enter with heroism and devotion upon the work of establishing schools and churches for the millions of freedmen as well as for other millions who welcomed her financial and moral aid. No nation was ever called upon to solve so momentous a problem as that which confronted this Republic from the hour when you, as the embodiment of American heroism, received the sword of Lee. Millions who had met in deadly combat on the field of battle were to be made one in brotherly love. The vast multitudes of freedmen were to be prepared for citizenship in the Republic and helped to lives of independence and self-culture; and race antagonism, intensified by slavery and the war, and later events were to be overcome so that the millions of both races in the South could live in peace and harmony in their changed relations. As the churches were the first to divide on sectional lines, and as those of each section gave the enthusiasm of religious conviction to the antagonistic sentiments which led to a dreadful war, so must the churches lead the way in the establishment of a perfect national unity and peace.

God has greatly blest the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States during the past few years. In these States this Church has over 400,000 members about equally divided between the races. Over thirty schools have been established in which are fully four thousand young men and women being educated. In the same territory our church property now aggregates fully $9,000,000. We have our weekly papers, and book stores, our Sunday-schools and missionary plans in every part of the South. Our leader is the Spirit of the Lord of Hosts, and our weapons are the pulpit, the press, and the school.

And now, sir, in behalf of my brethren in the ministry, and the thousands who are within and about this building and the many other thousands whom they represent in church-fellowship in Louisiana, I bid you welcome among us. We have watched you as you have journied in foreign lands and followed you with our prayers, and we caught with delight the echo of the first words which fell from your lips when you landed on the golden shore of your native land and ours, and our hearts have said Amen to the words of welcome which have greeted you from San Francisco to Florida, and from Galveston to San Antonio, and it is now, with unfeigned joy, that we add our greeting to you in our own city and State. And I beg you to remember that the greetings you receive here to-day have one element in them which can be found nowhere else under the sun. Before you is a multitude of people in whose heart the names of Lincoln and Grant are enshrined as the instruments under God of redeeming them, and their people from the bondage of slavery. These flags which festoon and beautify this church are dear to them, because beneath their folds you led the hosts which saved the nation and gave them freedom. They cannot offer you crowns of gold or titles of honor, or any of the gifts of wealth, but they give you better than anything which money or power can bestow. They give you the benedictions of grateful and loving hearts. You [illegible], and the sentiment is now echoed [illegible] the length and breadth of our land, 'Let us have peace.' In response to [illegible] the hearts of this people say, "God bless you, General Grant, and may the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, [illegible] your soul and keep you forever with the [illegible]. The remarks of Dr. Hartzell were responded to by General Grant in the following words:

Improper Interference of the Military.

The recent affair in the parish of St. Charles, La., is in striking contrast with the frequently expressed abhorrence of the Democratic party, to the use of the military in the enforcement of the National laws. A body of laborers strike for higher wages; one or two planters unlawfully attempt to disperse them by the use of fire-arms; a parish judge hastily forwards affidavits to the Governor, and thereupon that official orders out a company of militia to the scene of disturbance. The laborers continue their strike in the presence of the troops, and promptly deliver the alleged offenders into custody. Not a particle of evidence exists that a resistance to civil process was at any time contemplated; or that at any time previous to the call for militia the parish judge had issued an order to the sheriff to arrest and convey to the parish jail the parties designated as offenders in the affidavits made before him. It did not occurr to Governor Wiltz, it appears, to inquire whether the civil authorities had performed their duty in the premises, or were incapable of doing so. He hastily put the State to the cost of several hundreds of dollars by sending a militia company to a usually peaceable parish, where it remained on duty two or three days, while the civil authorities set about the performance of their duties. To complete the farce near a dozen prisoners were brought to New Orleans and jailed; a petition for their release soon received the signature of the parish judge of St. Charles, and executive pardon released the alleged rioters. Meanwhile the Democratic press filled its columns under such headlines as "Riot in St. Charles," and closed with the comment that the prompt presence of the militia has probably subdued the riotous tendencies of the negroes of St. Charles.

The whole affair is in keeping with the usual exaggeration of facts, when it is desirable, for any purpose, to deprive the Negro of his peaceable standing as a citizen. It bears on its face the spirit of malice, which in some communities upholds the bulldozing element, and in this case has stabbed the fair fame of a Republican parish under the pretence of execution of the law. Labor strikes are of frequent occurrence the world over; and even along the wharves of this city; yet the militia is held in reserve for extreme emergencies only, and not paraded uselessly at the call of incompetent civil functionaries.

The people of St. Charles are indignant over the extra-judicial conduct of Gov. Wiltz, and the impression left behind does not justify the assumption that laborers will be less independent now than before in the exercise of rights they believe they possess in common with the rest of mankind. It was a display to encourage an exodus, and not the contentment of labor. The people of St. Charles are capable of adjudicating their controversies more satisfactorily without than with the presence of the militia. The meddling politicians should be given a back seat in the State executive chamber.

The Senatorial Disgrace.

A few weeks ago it was announced by telegraph that a young woman, Miss Jessie Raymond, through Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, attorney-at-law, had instituted suit against Benj. Hill, United States Senator from Georgia, for damages because of an alleged seduction, a child having been born to her whom she alleged to be a son of Senator Hill. Following it shortly came the statement that Miss Jessie Raymond had signed a card, which was published, denying the Senator's parentage of the child and declaring that she had not authorized Mrs. Belva Lockwood to institute the suit against him.

Published interviews with the Senator by newspaper reporters [illegible] appeared, which represented [illegible] as denying completely his guilt [illegible] the crime alleged, and ascribing the suit as due to the meddlesome [illegible] of Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, [illegible] he alluded in contemptu[illegible]. Mrs. Lockwood, in [illegible] rejoined that her [illegible] the matter was [illegible]; suit had been [illegible] the instance of Miss [illegible] was at a loss to [illegible] what influence had [illegible] to change [illegible] she reminded [illegible] in his [illegible] Washing[illegible] his ac[illegible] of a [illegible] opinion which should deservedly have reached him swiftly. The following special dispatch appeared in the Chicago Tribune, of Sunday, March 20:

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20.—Ben Hill, of Georgia, is not yet relieved of the attentions of Jessie Raymond and her baby, who has been generally named Tommy Hill. Yesterday afternoon she appeared at Senator Hill's residence with the infant in her arms, which she says is a son of the Senator. She asked to see Mr. Hill, when the Senator's son appeared, and, recognizing her, immediately closed and locked the door. A policeman was called, and the officer tried to persuade her to leave, but she refused to "move on" denouncing the Senator as the author of all her troubles, saying aloud that he was the father of her child, and she desired assistance from him. Her excited state drew a crowd, and finally she was induced by the officer to leave, crying loudly as she left. She then returned to the Washington House, where she is staying. She states that her purpose was to leave the Senator's baby with him; that she needed money very much, having spent the $30 he sent her last week, and saw nothing but starvation before her unless the Senator carried out his promise agreed upon when she signed the published card denying that he had ruined her and was the father of her child.

Soon after she left, Senator Hill drove up to his residence in his carriage.

We suggest that it is about time the constituents of the Georgia Senator should call upon him to resign the high position he has disgraced, and for the Senate itself to take action for the sake of its own purity. It was Senator Hill who volunteered a wicked and untruthful assault upon Editor Fuller, of the Atlanta Advocate, with whom, he stated, he had no personal acquaintance, because that editor had vigorously exposed and rebuked the carnival of ku-klux crime in Georgia. The press of the M. E. Church South, which then approved the course of its distinguished champion, is now invited to assist us, in an attempt to replace him in the public councils, with a personage of a loftier character.

Over eighty colored people left Baton Rouge March 21 for Kansas, and about one hundred left the same place the week before. In the last party were a company of over twenty who had been driven from one neighborhood by the bulldozers. Among these was a Methodist brother with a family of five, who was in good circumstances. He had five good mules, a wagon filled with corn, and several barrels of pork which he had killed and salted himself. He declared that he was going, if possible, to some land where he could live in peace. We regret to note these facts as evidence that the good citizens of Baton Rouge who sometime ago held a meeting and denounced these bulldozers and promised protection to the colored people, have not been able to carry out their good and we have no doubt honest intentions.

Joined to their Idols.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate (Southern Methodist) says: "We doubt the statement of Bishop Simpson, that the colored people of South Carolina are unfairly deprived of their vote, or that their vote is fraudulently counted out."

How much testimony is necessary to satisfy the average religious editor in the South, who believed in and defended slavery and the rebellion, that the freed people since the war have been in any State deprived of their political rights, is as yet an unsolved problem. These editors, as a class, furnish a remarkable illustration of the power of education continued on a given line, through a series of years, by which even among the best of people, men become fixed in their prejudices and habits of thought.

The testimony in the cases of intimidation, fraud, and violence practiced against colored voters in South Carolina has been so overwhelming that the respectable secular Democratic papers have ceased to deny them. The Charleston News and Courier, in defending the recent bill before the South Carolina Legislature, to disfranchise all who could not write their names, made the point, that something must be done, if possible, without resorting to the methods heretofore used, because "the moral sense of the South revolts at these methods, and it would be better to avoid the horrible stain of such elections as the last."

Methodists in Texas.

The following figures will be of interest to our readers. They show the number of Methodists in Texas:

Church.	Pastors.	Local Preach'rs.	Members.
M. E. Church South..	416	759	80,499
M. E. Church	225	308	18,009
C. M. E. Church	73	90	11,032

Protestant Meth.	*10	—	2,000
Total	764	1232	121,040

* Estimated.

The most remarkable growth has been that of the M. E. Church, which began its organization in 1866. The membership of the Colored M. E. Church we are quite sure is too large.

Off for Liberia.

A company of 100 colored people arrived in New York the other day from Helena, Arkansas, and 300 more were expected in a few days. These are the first of a large colony which proposes to go to Liberia. The New York Times gives the statements made of the reason they left Arkansas:

After the white bull-dozers at Helena had exhausted every other means of keeping them there they sent the Sheriff down to the landing and forced them to pay from $2.50 to $8 apiece for taxes. Many of them had already paid these taxes before, and had receipts showing that they had done so, but the Sheriff was inexorable, and said they must pay or stay. Newton consulted Republican and Democratic lawyers, who told him that the exaction was a monstrous one, and was clearly illegal, but advised them to pay if they could possibly raise the money, as a lawsuit would only make their plight worse. They clubbed together and satisfied the Sheriff's demands, those who had money paying for those who had not. Women were taxed $2 and $2.50 a head, and every person having a piece of baggage with his or her name on it had to pay something to the Democratic Sheriff, "Bart" Turner, before he was allowed to go. In some cases the original poll-tax of $1.50 a head—which had already been paid—was raised to $2.50.

Richard Newton, Rufus Patton, Ephraim Holmes, and other heads of families describe the suffering and swindling which they have endured at the hands of ex-rebel land-owners and storekeepers as being worse than any possible amount of suffering they could undergo at the North or in Liberia. Their crops were always mortgaged beforehand to the storekeepers, and, struggle as they would, they could not get out of debt. Some of the landlords made them give up one-half the cotton they raised for rent; others took one bale out of three. Out of the two-thirds that were left they had to pay the cost of planting, harvesting, and the storekeeper's bills, which were always swollen in proportion to their crop. No matter how hard they worked, or how big the crop, the storekeeper's bill for advances of provisions and clothing swamped it. Bills were "raised" from $150 to $200 and $250 at a stroke of the pen, and if the unfortunate negro protested he was terrified into paying by threats and abuse. Ephraim Holmes said he had seen a colored man knocked down and beaten in Dr. Jack's store, in Helena, because he refused to take $2 worth of purchases and $1 50 in change for a ten-dollar bill. Others were raided by night-riders, and had their barns burned and their crops destroyed out of pure deviltry. One old woman had her hay-rick fired and her house burned over her head because she sheltered some "Radical niggers" about election time. Girls and married women were violated by drunken white ruffians and if their husbands or fathers sought redress they were "raided" by the "night-riders." The local authorities, who were all Democrats and ex-rebels, were not only powerless to prevent this state of things, but often winked at it. None of the papers dared to take up the black man's case, and in the greater number of instances the outrages were either hushed up or palliated by lying stories set afloat. At election time in 1878 the country was overrun with armed military companies and night-riders; and the negroes were told to vote the Democratic ticket under threats of continued outrages if they did otherwise.

Union Chapel, Bienville street, between Marais and Villere, will give an ice cream and strawberry entertainment on the evenings of April 17th, 19th, and 20th, to defray the pastor's expenses to the General Conference.

A Texas letter informs us that about 250 emigrants from Alabama have arrived at Pilot Point since last December.

Personal Mention.

—W. B. Avery, late of Waelder, Texas, has taken work in the Kansas Conference, and been assigned to Independence.

—O. R. Clark, of Columbus, Tex., who learned his letters in a Sabbath-school a short time ago, is enthusiastic over his premium book and the SOUTHWESTERN.

—Rev. A. J. Witherspoon, of the Upper Bethel, introduced Col. Dan Rice on Monday evening. The amateur concert was given by the crew of the steamship Morglay.

—Rev. D. M. Moores, of the Tennessee Conference, desires his correspondents to address him at Friendship P. O., and not Alamo, as stated in the conference minutes.

—B. F. Powe has taught two schools since he left Meridian Academy—one public and one private. He rejoices that his students were able to pass a creditable examination before friends of education at State Line, Miss.

—Presiding Elder Moore, of the Texas Conference, has published a blank for class-leaders report to the quarterly conference which, he says, "is now used all over the State of Texas and has proved of great benefit."

—Hon. Edwin Ray, of Boston, called last week. He is a prominent member of the Methodist Church, and is also a member of the Wesleyan Association which publishes Zion's Herald. With his wife he is making a tour of the South and left for St. Louis on Saturday night.

—Rev. John Poucher, B. D., of Rockport, Ind.; Rev. E. T. Curnick, A. M., of New Albany, Ind., and Rev. W. W. Webb, of Bedford, Ind., all of the Indiana Conference, arrived in this city by the steamer Robert Mitchell, and spent a few days sight-seeing and left on Thursday, of this week, for home.

—A note from Rev. I. S. Leavitt, A. M., formerly of this city, contains the gratifying news that the church of which he is pastor, at Clinton, Wis., has lately been visited with a gracious revival. Eighty were brought into the church and the congregation has so increased that the church building is to be enlarged.

Our Southern Work.

S. Hardwell, Brenham, reported protracted meeting and 77 converts, and he expected a hundred before the meeting closed. The new church is going up little by little, and the Sunday-school prospering.

TEXAS.

P. G. Brown, Leona: "Our first quarterly meeting was held the third Saturday and Sunday in February. It was a very encouraging one. Paschal Wilkerson, local preacher, Wesley Robinson, and other stewards, have been of great assistand to me."

Thos. Wadkins, Flatonia: "When I came to this place there was no house that I could preach in, and we had only a few members that I could depend on; now we have 13 members, have built a nice house and a Sunday-school. Our presiding elder visited us March 3."

John Guess, Navasota: "The Lord is blessing us in our work at this place and Milican. I entered upon my work immediately after conference, and up to this time we have had 9 conversions, 3 backsliders reclaimed, 18 received into the church in full connection, and 20 on probation. We have erected a parsonage on our new church lot. The church is now in a prosperous condition. The congregations are constantly increasing. Our presiding elder, Bro. F. C. Moore, was with us on his first round. He is beloved by the people, and is doing good work for the Lord. We had three conversions during his visit."

TENNESSEE.

B. James, Lebanon, says the protracted meeting from Jan. 31 to March 4 resulted in twelve joining the church. The collection at quarterly conference was $30.50. The benevolent causes are remembered, and a debt against the church was met.

MISSISSIPPI.

W. H. H. Gallion, Holly Springs: "We had 75 to take the Lord's Supper, and on the night of the 7th Elder Johnson preached a wonderful sermon."

North New Orleans District.

DEAR EDITOR—I beg leave to make a statement about my first round on the North New Orleans District. I reached Morgan City February 18, met Bro. Evans, the pastor, at the depot. It being Wednesday night, I preached for Bro. Wilson, of the Baptist church. Thursday we had bad weather, but on that night the M. E. Church was crowded, and Bro. Evans told me that there were as many outside who could not get in the building. Our work is beginning to grow here, and I predict that a fine work will be built up here. Bro. Evans is very popular with his people, but unfortunately their building is too small. I reached Houma on Friday, the 20th. Bro. Fields arrived the next day. On Saturday night we witnessed the installation of officers in the lodge of Good Templars. This lodge is officered by intelligent young men and women, and I think the organization is a Godsend for the people in Houma, and will be the salvation of many a young man and the saving of many an old one. Sabbath morning, in spite of the wet weather, I found 87 children in Sabbath-school, and a corps of good teachers at their posts. The quarterly conference met immediately after 11 o'clock service. The brethren estimated liberally for their pastor. I preached at three o'clock, and administered the sacrament to 65 persons. At night I preached to a crowded house, though I was told that many were hindered by the inclement weather. The people are well pleased with their pastor. I arrived at Thibodaux on the 23d, and found Bro. Davis at his post. Held the quarterly conference that night. I preached Tuesday and Thursday night. I bespeak for Bro. Davis a good year's work at this point. I reached Woodlawn on the 28th, and was met by Bro. Kennedy. The quarterly conference that night was a very pleasant one. I drove to Assumption Sabbath morning, and preached to the little flock there at 11 o'clock. At this point there are 40 good faithful members. They have no church building, but have secured a lot, and with the help of the Lord intend to put up a building. When this shall be done they will move off finely. I returned to Woodlawn and preached at night to a crowded house. Had a fine time. I think Bro. Kennedy is the right man in the right place here. I reached Terrebonne on the 3d of March, and held conference that night—a pleasant session. Preached on Thursday night. Bro. Washington has made a good start here. On Wednesday night, the 10th, I preached for Father Ross at Pleasant Plains. He is moving off very nicely in his work. I preached for Bro. Royal at LaHarpe on Thursday night to a good congregation. Had a good time. Bro. Royal complains of the low state of finances, but I hope there will be an improvement in this direction this year. I was with Bro. Lynch Sunday, the 14th, at Hahnville. The weather was very bad, but we had a pleasant session of quarterly conference. A few of the people braved the mud and water and came to church on Sunday; 25 persons partook of the sacrament. I could not reach St. John, but as far as I can learn Bro. Lynch is starting off well. The people are well pleased with him. Bro. Williams' quarterly conference was held at Wesley Chapel February 11. Bro. Williams seems to be holding matters level. On the 13th I held the quarterly conference at Union Chapel. Bro. Albert was at his post. The people are very much pleased with him. M. DALE.

Foreign Missions.

Rev. B. A. Carlson, of Stockholm, Sweden, writes of the prevalence of a glorious revival all over his district since January 1st, and that as the fruit up to March 5th 267 persons have been received on trial in the several congregations.

The Swedish Corvette "Border" was for several days off 23d street, N. Y. Our Norwegian colporteur was busy in supplying the crew and officers, numbering 226 men, copies of the Holy Scriptures.

Mrs. Siebert, with her two little ones from Mexico, left New York city on Tuesday evening, March 23, for her home at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.

A SCRAP OF HISTORY.—"There are about 275 boys in the orphanage at Shahjehanpore, India, the great majority of them little boys —some of them very promising, while others have not much promise so far as scholarship is concerned; but we can have no choice in selecting who shall come into the orphanage. The perishing are sent us, and we cannot turn them away. The boys all work, so those who cannot make scholars learn trades and agriculture. The orphanage has sent out well on to 200, who are settled in different parts of the country in various useful callings, a goodly number of them being preachers. Three of them are members of the conference. There are a number in the Theological School, a number of them are teachers, and others are mechanics and servants. Their families are growing up. One of them has nine children and eight of them are girls, all living. He was married some time after I came to the orphanage, so you see orphans become heads of large families, and are no small factors in increasing Christianity in the country. It is of the greatest importance that the children should grow up real substantial Christians. Sure we need your prayers and those of the church for God's special blessing upon this important charge."

The wife of one of our India missionaries writes us: "I have nine schools under my supervision in the city, and five others in the surrounding villages, fourteen in all; so you did not send us help any too soon.

MISSIONARIES COMING.—Rev. S. L. Baldwin, D.D., writes from Bombay, Feb. 2½, expecting to be in New York about the middle of April. "Among our fellow passengers are Miss Seward, M. D., of Allahabad, sister of our late minister to China. Mrs. Bainbridge, of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. Oldham, who goes to join her husband, now studying in Alleghany College. Mrs. Baldwin improves a little in this voyaging."

Missionary Cunningham, from India, being in Naples March 4th, writes: "I have seen an Indian missionary here, Rev. V. Ravi, and am much pleased with him. The Wesleyans here have a fine large school, a newspaper and evangelist. They are the recognized leading Protestant mission here. Mr. Jones, their missionary, has been here 15 years. They have not yet trained their own ministers, but their best men, he said, are gathered from Rome. I could not find out from him that their schools have, as yet, yielded them much in the way of evangelists, though he says he has some young men in his church whom he thinks the Lord will call. Attended a very small and cold meeting of the British & F. Bible Society here. The "deputation," Rev. Mr. Evans, gave an interesting account of past work in Russia. The sale and distribution of Bibles here is slowly increasing. I have seen two shops on principal streets where Bibles are sold. The Scotch Presbyterian Church (English) has a school and a little Italian work. The Church of England now has a large congregation which will come down to fifty as the warm season comes on. Of the Waldensian Church and the three independent Baptist missions here, I have learned but little as yet. Our Consul here is an urbane Christian gentleman who has rendered me assistance and advice, as have Bro. Ravi and Dr. Vernon, in getting settled. I have not yet seen Dr. Vernon, but hope to before I sail. I cannot tell you how shocked I was to hear of Dr. Dashiell's sickness and Bishop Haven's death."

April 11, 1880.—THE INVITATION OF CHRIST.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 11: 20-30.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."—28.

TOPIC.—Judgment or Rest.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The Connection.—John the Baptist, languishing in prison, hearing of the wonderful works of Christ, sent two of his disciples to ask: "Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?" Christ's answer to them was to return, and show to John the things which they saw and heard. The departure of John's disciples, whose presence, and possibly whose errand, must have been known, Christ made the occasion of a discourse in regard to the mission of that prophet.

At this point begins a marked change in the ministry of Christ. He no longer merely proclaims the advent of the kingdom of heaven, but, also, pronounces judgments upon those who refuse to receive it. The performing of miracles had a higher object than merely the relief of suffering or of sorrow, or even the attestation of Christ as the Messiah. They were wrought in order that those who beheld them might repent of their sins, and thus be saved. God deals justly with all mankind. He takes into account one's circumstances, as well as one's deeds. The ignorant are not to be judged by the same standard as those who live in the full light of knowledge. Inasmuch as the Savior is speaking of cities, and not of men, the day referred to must be the day of punishment of Tyre and Sidon.

Capernaum, "Exalted unto heaven," not by its worldly prosperity, but by the residence of Christ, and by his "mighty works" in her midst, had witnessed the healing of the nobleman's son that was lying at the point of death. John 4:46-54. Its people had beheld, even in one of their synagogues, the casting out of an unclean spirit. Mark 1:23-28. They had seen him cure a man sick of the palsy, merely with a word. Matt. 8:1-8. It was in their midst that Peter's wife's mother had been cured of a fever with a touch, and that many others at the same time were healed. 8:14-15. It was here that the daughter of Jairus was recalled to life, that the woman with the issue of blood was healed, and the servant of the centurion was restored to health. 9:18-25; 8:5-13. And yet all of these miracles had been in vain!

"Revealed unto babes." "Babes" must mean those who are "born again"—those who receive the kingdom of heaven as a little child. They are "babes" in the sense that they esteem themselves to be merely beginners in knowledge, and desirous that God shall be their teacher. They are "babes" in the sense that they desire to be taken up in the arms of Christ, and lay upon his bosom. They are the opposite of "wise," in the fact that they esteem their own wisdom to be as nothing, while the wisdom from above is most precious in their sight. They are the opposite of the "prudent" in that, contrary to all maxims of worldly prudence, they are willing to leave all to follow Christ. The teaching of the passage is that the truths of the gospel are not revealed to men because of their intellectual power, but because of their readiness of heart to receive a revelation of God. Those who will receive no revelation get none.

No man now really comprehends the mystery of the union of the divine and the human as it was seen in Christ's incarnation. Only God can fully comprehend God.

Christ does not offer freedom from the yoke and from burden bearing, but he pledges that none shall be broken down in his service. His yoke is never borne by his disciples alone. We are yokefellows with Christ—"workers together with him." 2 Cor. 6:1. The cross is a burden, but as some one of the old commentators rapturously has observed, it is such a burden as sails are to a ship, and as wings are to a bird. Without it, the Christian could not well make his way toward heaven.

Profit, $1,200.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all of this expense was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters, taken by my wife. THROAT DISEASES OFTEN COMMENCE with a Cold, Cough, or unusual exertion of the voice. These incipient symptoms are allayed by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches," which if neglected often result in a chronic trouble of the Throat.

Deaths.

Bro. August Brown died at Planterville, Texas, Feb. 22, aged 47 years, leaving a wife and four children.

P. NOBLE.

The Lord has taken to himself our sister, Betty Rector, aged 23 years. She died March 7th, in the full triumph of Christian faith, after a lingering illness of several months, during which she constantly bore testimony to the saving efficacy of the blood of Christ to cleanse us from the pollution and guilt of sin. Shortly before her death she sang a hymn.

YELLOW FEVER.—The engineers of the Central Railroad of Georgia say:

"Though exposed to the worst miasmatic influences of the Yellow Fever, by going in and coming out of Savannah at different hours of the night, and also in spending entire nights in the city during the prevalence of the Yellow Fever epidemic of 1876, with but the single exception of one of us (who was taken sick, but speedily recovered) we continued in our usual good health—a circumstance we can account for in no other [illegible] by the effect, under Providence, of the habitual and continued use of Simmons Liver Regulator while we were exposed to the Yellow Fever malaria."

Geo. M. Towle sketches John Bright; and Mrs. Wager-Fisher tells of Ernest Renan, showing particularly the beneficial effect on his career of his sister Henriette. The editor has something to say about Mr. Ruskin. This number opens a new volume, published at $3 a year in Springfield, Mass.

The London Illustrated (Penny) Paper says: "With its inimitable finished gems of drawing and engraving, it is the wonder and admiration of the art world." The April number just issued ends the XIXth volume. The New York Evening Post, Hartford Courant, and other papers speak of the series by Eugene Schuyler on Peter the Great, as the most notable event in modern magazine literature. Rev. Dr. Eggleston writes of George W. Cable and his story, The Grandissimes, in Scribner: "If Cable can hold that gait, the rest of us who write American stories must surrender to him. What a superb piece of work it is!" Scribner's is the only American periodical that has as yet established a large circulation abroad; the edition in England being 10,500. The publishers of Scribner announce that all new subscribers after this date who take the back numbers, beginning November last, will receive instead of the six unbound numbers the bound volume, November '79 to April '80 (containing all of Success with Small Fruits, and the opening chapters of Peter the Great, The Grandissimes, and Louisiana), without extra charge. HILLSDALE, Mich.

R. V. Pierce, M. D.:

I had a serious disease of the lungs, and was for a time confined to my bed and under the care of a physician. His prescriptions did not help me. I grew worse, coughing very severely. I commenced taking your Medical Discovery, which helped me greatly. I have taken several bottles, and am restored to good health. Yours respectfully,

JUDITH BURNETT.

We have examined some fourteen pages of signatures,—some of the best in this city, State, and the South,—vouching for the effectiveness of the New Louisiana Remedy, for coughs, colds, etc. We have heard from persons who have used it words of praise. It is a valuable medicine, prepared at home, and not a quack nostrum imported from abroad. Read the advertisement in another column.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are grateful to our Preachers and people who have done so much in pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1880 thus far.

But we feel that the field has not been thoroughly canvassed yet. Will not our Agents everywhere make a special effort at once to send in a list of subscribers for

THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR?

We will send the paper for the remainder of the year for ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF. The

is soon at hand, and the SOUTHWESTERN will contain an abstract of the daily proceedings. The coming General Conference will be an important one. It will have much to say about our work in the Southern States. Several Bishops will be elected, and the question of electing Presiding Elders will be discussed; also the matter of admitting laymen into the Annual Conferences will be decided; besides, many other subjects of great importance will receive attention.

Another great event to transpire in 1880 is the election of a

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

This will occur next November, and between this time and that our people want the news from a reliable source. This they can get in their own church paper.

We will publish the

WEEKLY MARKETS,

which will be of great value to our people in posting them as to the price of produce and supplies, and thus enable them to keep from being swindled.

In the matter of

CHURCH NEWS

we propose making the SOUTHWESTERN better than ever during 1880.

OUR PREMIUM BOOK.

We give the Premium Book to one dollar and a half subscribers, the same as to yearly subscribers. So $2 cash will pay for the paper the remainder of the year and the Book. It is surprising how popular the Premium Book is. All who see it are delighted with it. It costs but fifty cents to subscribers. No one else can buy it for any price.

Now let our Agents and friends make a thorough canvass at once and send in the names and cash.

Mistakes and Prejudice

Of Religious and Temperance Journals.

Some good Religious and Temperance journals are making the mistake of declining to advertise a most valuable anti-intoxicating medicine, simply because it is called "Bitters," while the same journals are making a greater mistake by advertising some drunken whisky stuff, or nostrum, because it has some nice, fancy, deceptive name, ending with "ine," "tine," printed on its label, when the bottle is filled with destruction, drunkenness and death. If these good journals would take the trouble to ascertain how many overworked clergymen have had their lost nerve-force, brain-waste and flagging energies restored by the use of Hop Bitters, enabling them to perform their arduous pastoral duties and preach the good sermons that they would have been totally unable to do but for this valuable medicine, and did these journals but know of the host of good Christian Temperance women who rely on them for their family medicine, and how many invalid homes they could make happy and what glad tidings they would send to every neighborhood by publishing the merits of Hop Bitters, they would advertise them without money and without price. And did these journals but know how many have been and may be saved from forming intemperate habits by doctors prescribing Hop Bitters, instead of beer, where the use of hops are needed, (there being more actual hop strength in one bottle of Hop Bitters than in a barrel of beer, without any of the intoxicating or evil effects of beer,) they would lay aside their fear and prejudice against the word "Bitters."

A few of the many witnesses from religious and temperance sources are given below, who use, recommend and advertise Hop Bitters.

The President and Manager of Hop Bitters Mfg. Co. is a veteran Temperance advocate and worker of forty-eight years' service; every man in the Company is an active Temperance worker, and the Company spends thousands of dollars annually in Temperance and Christian work.

What the Religious Press Says:

Chicago, Nov. 18, 1878.

Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y.:

Gentlemen—We do not allow anything in the line of Bitters to enter our paper that contains alcohol, but we are satisfied that your Bitters are free from that ingredient. We feel responsible for the good or bad that may be done to the families of our subscribers that are affected by our advertisements. Therefore our discrimination in your favor, and we trust that our very low rates will meet your approval, and that we may hear from you

"THE LIVING CHURCH."

Temperance clergymen, lawyers, ladies and doctors use Hop Bitters, as they do not intoxicate, but restore nerve and brain waste.—Temperance Times, Brockport, N. Y.

Not a Beverage.

"They are not a beverage, but a medicine, with curative properties of the highest degree, containing no poisonous drugs. They do not tear down an already debilitated system, but build it up. One bottle contains more hops, that is, more real hop strength, than a barrel of ordinary beer. Every druggist in Rochester sells them, and the physicians prescribe them."—Rochester Evening Express on Hop Bitters.

We are not in the habit of making editorial mention of patent medicines, but in case of Hop Bitters, feel free to do so, because their merits deserve to be known.—New York Independent.

Sirs—I have taken Hop Bitters and recommend them to others, as I found them very beneficial. MRS. J. W. TULLER, Sec'y Women's Christian Temperance Union.

A MEDICINE, NOT A DRINK.
High Authority.

Hop Bitters is not, in any sense, an alcoholic beverage or liquor, and could not be sold, for use, except to persons desirous of obtaining medicinal bitters.

GREEN B. RAUM,
U. S. Com'r Internal Rev.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1, 1879.

Dear Sir—Why don't you get a certificate from Col. W. H. W., of Baltimore, showing how he cured himself of drunkenness by the help of Hop Bitters. His is a wonderful case. He is well known in Rochester, N. Y., by all the drinking people there. He is known in this city, Cincinnati, New Orleans, New York; in fact, all over the country, as he has spent thousands of dollars for rum. I honestly believe his cord would be worth thousands of dollars to you in this city and Baltimore alone, and make thousands of sober men by inducing the use of your Bitters. J. A. W.

Prejudice Kills.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by Hop Bitters, that we had poohed at two years before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did, on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The Parents—Good Templars.

Milton, Del., Feb. 10, 1880.

Having used Hop Bitters, the noted remedy for debility, nervousness, indigestion, etc., I have no hesitation in saying that it is indeed an excellent medicine, and recommend it to any one as a truly tonic bitters.

Respectfully,
REV. MRS. J. H. ELLGOOD.

I declined to insert your advertisement of Hop Bitters last year, because I then thought they might not be promotive of the cause of Temperance, but find they are, and a very valuable medicine, myself and wife having been greatly benefitted by them, and I take great pleasure in making them known.

REV. JOHN SEAMAN,
Editor Home Sentinel, Afton, N. Y.

Scipio, N. Y., Dec. 1, 1879.

I am the pastor of the Baptist church here and an educated physician. I am not in practice, but am my sole family physician, and advise in many chronic cases. Over a year ago I recommended your Hop Bitters to my invalid wife, who has been under medical treatment of Albany's best physicians several years. She has been greatly benefitted and still uses the medicine. I believe she will become thoroughly cured of her various complicated diseases by their use. We both recommend them to our friends, many of whom have also been cured of their various ailments by them. REV. E. R. WARREN.

Cured of Drinking.

A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for liquor that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it.—From a leading R. R. Official, Chicago, Ill.

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article is made up of common valuable remedies known to all, and that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it, I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them. REV. —— Washington, D. C.

A good Baptist clergyman of Bergen, N. Y., a strong temperance man, suffered with kidney trouble, neuralgia and dizziness almost to blindness, over two years after he was advised that Hop Bitters would cure him, because he was afraid of and prejudiced against the word "bitters." Since his cure he says none need fear but trust in Hop Bitters.

My wife and daughter were made healthy by the use of Hop Bitters and I recommend them to my people.—Methodist Clergyman, Mexico, N. Y.

Ecclesiastical Law,

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental [illegible]. —Author's Preface.

THE LIFE OF

Chas. S. Prentice

SAVED

BY THE USE OF

SAFE

Kidney AND Liver

CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. [illegible]

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, [illegible]
Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1877 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1878 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Deulat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case: and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 218 pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig, of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence, by the lake, and, after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE"), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drewoot, Paris; Henri Dubois, 11 Rue Meleeherbs, Paris; Dr. Gerolier, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Rue Algier and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gielgin, 41 Quai de la Molka; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 1 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Beer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county.)

RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat. DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIER'S INSTITUTE, 212 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchitis, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, nor any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses, a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 5 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter. Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLIER.

The General Conference and the South.

BY REV. [illegible] FORD.

[illegible]

... it enjoys a large share of the best thought of the church.

That our missionary and educational work among the Freedmen is a success our numerous and well regulated annual conferences, with their districts and charges manned by colored men, and the seminaries, colleges and universities with which the Freedmen's Aid Society has dotted the map of the Southern States abundantly testify. Our interest in this department of our work will not abate, but will increase as the years roll on. We will go on building churches, multiplying schools and lifting up the poor distressed colored sons and daughters of America until their race, in this country, is freed from the blighting effects of slavery, and thus prepared to take an intelligent and important part in pushing the conquests of the gospel at home and in Africa. And the same society which has founded so many institutions of learning, and employed so many teachers among the Freedmen may now find a new field of usefulness. The discovery and recent emphasis of "and others" in the Freedmen Aid Society's charter was a most fortunate and timely one.

There can be no question but that there is, 1. A great opening for us among the white people of the South. 2. That the time has now come when the General Conference should take decided and advanced steps to extend and strengthen our work among this class. 3. That second to the appropriations to the more indigent portions of the work is the question of education.

A number of small schools have been opened under the auspices of Conference Boards. They are feeble and need help. And no doubt there are many in the Church who are ready and anxious to aid these struggling institutions, but they do not know how to get at it. True, there are local agents, but they cannot, in the nature of things, do [illegible] abroad. We need a well devised system.

With a view to this some advocate the organization of a new society [illegible] shall be to the white [illegible] the South what the Freedmen's Aid Society is to the colored work.

Others believe that the present [illegible] Society can be so re[illegible] as to accomplish the purposes contemplated in its organization [illegible] charter, and also to take supervision of our educational work among the Southern whites, and establish and promote seminaries and colleges in different parts of the country.

Another class think that the white work has a first claim upon the Freedmen's Aid Society, and [illegible] it should receive sympathy and aid therefrom.

Dr. Rust, the able and efficient secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, in his recent report admits the force of the argument based upon those two little words "and others." He suggests that the Church raise annually say $100,000 for the Society, $25,000 of which [illegible] be applied to the schools, under the supervision of the white [illegible].

[illegible] be well, but it would [illegible] the appointment of an [illegible] secretary, for the work [illegible] be too arduous for any [illegible]. I think it would be [illegible] the number of General [illegible] societies, and that [illegible] Freedmen's Aid Society is broad [illegible] and strong [illegible] the sympathy [illegible] of the public to [illegible] schools.

[illegible] Conference instead [illegible] branches of learning should be under the control of the churches is rapidly gaining ground.

I conclude from these facts that that Church which is avowed in its support of, and does not antagonise the Free Schools, and opens schools of high grade where young men and women may gain useful knowledge and thus qualify themselves for the duties and responsibilities of life will be the church of the future in the South.

The Romist Church sees this and spares neither money nor labor to establish schools where they can inveigle the children of Protestant parents into the ruinous meshes of a false and seductive system.

The Methodist Episcopal Church is the only church on this continent that has the requisite elements to meet successfully this ancient foe of human rights, and contest her claim to universal sway over conscience and empire. If we do not check her she will very soon dominate the South; and in no way can we do this as effectively as by offering to all superior advantages in our schools. We must have in the South the power that attaches to the educating denomination. And if the General Conference will make provision for the presentation, to the whole church, of the claims of our educational work among the whites of the South by appointing an additional Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society to work under "and others," within a very few years we will be the leading denomination in the South.

The next thing the General Conference should do for the South is to make ample provision for the more extensive circulation of our book and periodical literature. The Depository and Methodist Advocate at Atlanta, and the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE at New Orleans have already done an immense work. Let them be strengthened in every way possible. What if it does involve an expense of a few thousand dollars? Why, there are thousands of families who have no good books, and no papers; thousands more have only the little story papers which they have been induced to subscribe for by traveling pests and worthless chromos. Much of the secular press is ladened with infidelity, and subsidized by the Romish hierarchy, and many of the leading religious journals are poisoning the minds of their readers with sectarianism in its worst form, and working at wrong doing.

This trashy literature must be supplanted, and their dangerous influences counteracted. The people must be supplied with a wholesome and fearless literature. Such our Advocates is the South have been. They have gone forth weekly to instruct and encourage our people in the midst of difficulties and trials scarcely equalled in their number and magnitude by those of any former period. They are indeed a power. A mightier power is not at work to-day in molding thought, developing character, and driving the destinies of this South-land than our press in the South. Their defense of our history and doctrines, attitude and work in the South has been able and courageous, and deserves commendation. Let the General Conference see to it that appropriations commensurate with the merits and necessities of these cares be made, that these younger members of the Advocate family may go on in their grand work until the banner of full salvation and universal brotherhood waves triumphantly over this land.

Of course the General Conference will elect a small number of Bishops, say four or five, and should direct that at least two reside in the South—one in the Southeast, and one in the Southwest. Thus located, their presence, influence and labors would greatly enhance our cause.

We have no complaints to make against our non-resident bishops. They have exhibited great wisdom, patience and courage in their labors among us, and in their defense of our Southern work; and we would not, for any cause, have the visits of this class of our superintendents discontinued. We are glad that the plan of our superintendency is itinerant and general, and hope it may never be otherwise; but, while this is true, we think there should not be less than [illegible] residences in the [illegible] would afford increased [illegible] understanding [illegible] for the peculiar exi[illegible] in this work, [illegible] and [illegible] are the three great wants of our Southern work, and the General Conference should, and no doubt will, study these and minor wants, and supply them as far as possible. No greater subject will come before that body for consideration than how best to provide for the Southern work. This work is of the greatest importance to the Church, the Nation, and the to the Christian world, and if the right steps are taken we shall enter upon the next quadrennium with greater faith and zeal, and the oncoming years will be freighted with the golden fruits of wise and timely action, and well-directed devotion to the high interests which have been committed to our hands.

Little Rock, Ark., April 5, 1880.

The Orphans' Home Society of Louisiana to the Christian Public of the United States.

We hold in trust a large and valuable sugar plantation on the Bayou Teche, in Louisiana, one hundred miles from New Orleans. The Texas railroad passes through the property. The plantation consisted originally of fifteen hundred acres, which was bought in 1867. An additional large outlay was made in the erection of an Orphan's Home building, a school house, and in building a sugar house and planter's quarters; in fencing and in putting the plantation in a condition to be remunerative. The whole amount expended was $30,000. Ten thousand dollars of this amount were donated by M. De Bossiere, of Marsailles, France. A large part of the remainder was given by the Freedmen's Bureau, and the balance was raised principally in the North by Rev. Dr. J. P. Newman and other devoted friends of the colored people, who labored with him at the South at that time.

The Home, which had already been opened in New Orleans, was transferred to the plantation and there for seven years an average of one hundred orphans per annum—at first the orphans of colored soldiers,—were cared for; being fed, clothed and educated. During these years the income from the plantation was not so large as was anticipated; the hard times, financially, throughout the country cut off donations, and the sugar house was badly damaged by the explosion of the boiler and had to be refitted. So it transpired that in 1874 we found ourselves embarrassed with debt, and we deemed it wise to find homes for nearly all the children, and to devote our efforts to clearing the property from embarrassment. The debts amounted to about $10,000 and interest, in all to nearly $13,000. Of this amount $5,000, with interest, was due the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the remainder was made up of local debts. The Rev. Dr. W. D. Godman, our corresponding secretary, has had in charge the property since 1875. For two and a half years he and Mrs. Godman, who is also one of our managers, have been in the North raising money to pay the debts. During that time they have raised and paid on the debts of the institution something over $6,000.

By a happy arrangement with the Freedmen's Aid Society and our local creditors, we have been enabled to provide for our remaining debts by the sale to our creditors of about one third of our plantation, leaving us nearly one thousand acres and all the improvements valuable to us.

Had it not been for the late terrific storm of last September, by which our buildings were destroyed, we could at once re-open our Home and School. That storm, which destroyed millions of dollars worth of property in that region of the State, played sad havoc with our buildings and improvements. The main building, which was a two story brick, two hundred and twenty-five feet long and fifty feet wide, was so badly wrecked that only a part can be utilized in rebuilding; the school house, the gift of the Freedmen's Bureau, was entirely destroyed; the barn, the planter's quarters and fences were nearly all swept away. We have rebuilt such buildings and fences as we have been able.

Now that our debts are provided for, our purpose is to re-open the Home and the LaTeche Seminary next fall. To furnish the necessary buildings to do this will require about $5,000. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Godman are now in the North to raise this amount. They have already demonstrated their great interest in this work by their unselfish devotion to it, laboring continuously without compensation, even at times bearing a part of their own traveling expenses.

Through them, as our accredited representatives, we appeal to the Christian public of America for help to aid us in our good work. A few orphans have all the time been under our care, but we hope to soon have scores to whom we can impart a Christian culture, and whom we can send forth to lead and save their people. Our Seminary embraces within its helpful influence a large number of pupils from a large territory—the orphans being but a small fraction of the entire number. We beseech especially the friends of the colored people to make Dr. and Mrs. Godman welcome, and to help them, for the Master's sake, whose poor, through us, they represent.

The opportunities for good through this institution are boundless. The poor and homeless children of the colored people are numbered in every Southern State by thousands. From these can be gathered those who, after a few years of Christian training, can go among their people as teachers and leaders to aid them in their struggles for a better and higher civiliza tion.

Remember the words of the Master: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

A Letter of Great Interest to Emigrants.

Being a citizen of Topeka, Kansas, and a member of the Kansas Freedmen's Relief Association, also extensively known in the South, at a regular meeting of the Executive Board, held March 15, 1880, by a unanimous vote, I was instructed to proceed to Cairo, Illinois, and empowered to use such means as I may deem prudent and expedient to turn the tide of emigration from the South into other States than Kansas.

Not that Kansas is getting weary of well-doing, but because it cannot reasonably be expected that Kansas is able to do all that must be done for our people, while our Northern States are willing to help bear the burden.

Those who have read letters from Governor St. John can see that Kansas has never raised any objections to our people coming into that State, since they have understood this exodus movement from the South is something of more than human character. Governor St. John has spoken for the State. Please turn to that letter of his to Mr. H. N. Rust, of Chicago, Ill., and read what he says: "Having in view solely that which is best for these poor people, you will pardon me if I suggest to you and through you to the philanthropic friends in your city, that, in my opinion, the great State of Illinois, that furnished to this country Abraham Lincoln, who issued the proclamation that set these people free, and Grant, at the head of the grand army that enforced it, could do no greater to herself and her martyred heroes than to open wide her doors to these unfortunate refugees, and furnish homes for 50,000 of them, where they could earn their own living, instead of sending supplies to them to a State that is already over-crowded with them to such an extent as to render it almost impossible to secure labor for them, so that they may be self-supporting. I beg of you not to understand me as intimating that Kansas in any sense is complaining. Our people know what it is to struggle for freedom. We know its cost, and shall never turn our backs upon any law-abiding human being who is willing to put forth an earnest effort to make an honest living. I only make these suggestions to the people of your State for the benefit of the people. As you are, of course, aware that Kansas, being yet in her infancy, can absorb only a limited number of this unfortunate race who depend upon their labor for support," etc., and at a meeting that was held in Chicago, Ill., March 11, 1880, in the interest of our people, by Mrs. Elizabeth L. Comstock and others, another letter from Governor St. John was sent to Mrs. Comstock, in these words:

"If you can only induce the people of Illinois to form an organization through which employment can be obtained in Illinois for the poor blacks that are coming northward, you will have accomplished not only a good work, but will save a large expenditure of money that is now incurred in sending refugees from Kansas to other States. The colored people will gladly go to Illinois if they are only made to understand that they will be fairly treated there."

At that same meeting a resolution was adopted inviting 50,000 colored people to settle in Illinois, and the Executive Committee was instructed to make such arrangements for receiving and distributing refugees in the State of Illinois.

Now, having a personal knowledge of the condition of our people, both in the South and in the State of Kansas, I concur with Governor St. John and other friends of our people, in saying that our people must go into other States where they can find employment. I do not mean those who are able to go to Kansas and purchase property. If a man has money enough he can go where he pleases, and do to suit himself; but those that are without means to take care of themselves after getting to Kansas.

Take my advice and go into other Northern States, where labor is more needful and wages are higher.

I do not say that our people should remain in the South, as some have stated without giving a single reason for it; while I know that all our people would rather live South, if they could only enjoy their civil and political rights, and acquire property and have legal protection.

All those going northward wishing to find homes in any of the Northern States may stop at Cairo, Ill., where they will be met by parties authorized by the Kansas Freedmen's Relief Association, also by the Executive Committee of the organization at Chicago, Ill.

From Cairo more than 300 heads of families have found homes in different parts of Illinois and Iowa. They are doing well, and more laborers are wanted.

I have had an interview with several of the Emigrant Agents in the South, and they agree with us in the change of the tide of this emigration, as being for the good of the colored people themselves, and the friends of Kansas.

We have hundreds of applications for laborers to come into Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Michigan, and Ohio. Those wishing to go into either of these States may stop at St. Louis, where arrangements will be made through which they can find homes, without having to lie over on expense to themselves.

Done in behalf of the Kansas Freedmen's Relief Association.

True and False Democracy.

The Herald of Vicksburg, Mississippi, says:

Over two thousand negroes have moved to Washington county this winter. There is no demand for labor there by land-owners whatever. In Issaquena a similar situation exists. Somewhere near a thousand have left Yazoo county, and the planters in Tensas parish, La., find it difficult to get enough laborers on good terms. Washington and Issaquena counties get nearly double as much rent per acre as Yazoo and Tensas. We state facts as given us by intelligent, reliable planters. The Yazoo Herald and Port Gibson Reveille will say politics has nothing to do with this strange contrast, but, inasmuch as the counties where the Conservative policy prevailed are the ones well supplied with good, contented labor, we differ with our contemporaries. The Yazoo and Tensas plans may suit the desperate office-seekers and their friends, but if persisted in, they will prove destructive to material prosperity.

Washington and Issaquena have fully as large a preponderance of colored voters as Yazoo and Tensas, but none of the evils predicted by the Bourbons followed the elections in Washington and Issaquena. Civilization was not outraged, all men voted as they chose, no political widows and orphans were made, there was no fraud and no violence, and to-day we compare their situation with that of Yazoo and Tensas. The comparison teaches thoughtful persons wisdom. Honesty is the best policy. Those who have the moral courage to do right are really more brave than those afraid of the shadows that must at times obscure our political path.

This comparison defines the difference between Bourbonism and Conservatism better than we have yet seen it defined. The one recognizes all classes of citizens, and standing on the Democratic platform as it is written uses only legitimate means of success; the other, under one pretense or another, deserts the platform and forces a success that will prove worse than a defeat in the long run.

Repudiation of Public Debts in the South.

The mania for repudiating State and municipal debts in the Southern States has become so general as to attract universal attention. The following, from the Chicago Inter-Ocean, shows how groundless are the excuses offered for this wholesale robbery:

It is asserted that the loss of material resources after the close of the rebellion deprived them of the power to pay these honestly incurred debts. Here are the facts. The losses of all the seceding States by the war (slave property included) were estimated at $2,759,527,918. The assessed valuation of property in 1865 was $1,603,402,429; in 1870 it was $2,141,834,788, and the census valuation of the same year was $2,735,445,451; in 1877-8 it was $1,624,625,617, showing an increase of only $20,000,000 since 1865, a decrease of over $518,000,000 from the assessed valuation of 1870, and a decrease of over $1,111,000,000 as compared with the true, or census valuation, of the same year. In 1877 the assessed valuation of property in Ohio alone was $120,000,000 more than in the nine repudiating Southern States combined. In Indiana and Illinois together it was about $226,000,000 more; but this showing on the part of the South, as will be seen farther along, is no excuse for wholesale repudiation.

It is an established fact that the prosperity of a nation does not depend on what it has accumulated, but on the continuity of those processes and resources by which the wealth was won in the first instance. Apply this rule to the South and see the result. In the last nine years (1870—1878) the production of the three great staples of the Southern States has been as follows:

Cotton—19,116,000,000 pounds, of which 17,252,000,000 were produced in the repudiating States.

Tobacco—4,301,000,000 pounds, of which 1,075,000,000 were produced in the repudiating States.

Sugar—1,423,000,000 pounds, of which nineteen-twentieths were produced in the repudiating States.

The value of the cotton produced in the last seven years alone exceeds $2,800,000,000.

These figures demonstrate clearly that property in the South is assessed at a mere fraction of its value; and that the inability to meet their engagements, pleaded by the Southern people, is the weakest kind of excuse for downright dishonesty.

The charges of corruption in the issuing of the bonds is alike a pretense, for this has only been shown in the case of $20,000,000, and even as to these the present holders of the bonds are entirely innocent.

The fallacy of the cry of the "tax-ridden South" is shown by the following table, which we have compiled from a recent article in the International Review, and which shows that the Southern States are paying less per capita taxation than either the Eastern or the Western States:

EASTERN STATES.	Taxation per capita.	WESTERN STATES.	Taxation per capita.	SOUTHERN STATES.	Taxation per capita.
Maine	$8.49	Mich	$4.57	Ala	$2.39
N. H.	10.72	Indiana	6.42	Ark	4.91
Vt.	8.50	Illinois	8.59	Florida	2.64
Mass.	17.10	Wis.	8.10	La.	9.71
R. I.	9.98	Minn	8.02	Miss.	4.51
Conn.	12.28	Iowa	7.58	Georgia	2.21
N. Y.	11.07	Mo.	8.08	N. C.	2.30
N. J.	8.18	Kansas	7.28	S. C.	2.92
Pa.	7.00	Neb.	8.35	Tenn.	2.60
				Va.	3.76
Average	$10.09	Average	$6.89	Average	$4.08

Taxation per capita in the Southern States is less than half what it is in the Eastern States, and almost $3 per capita less than in the Western States. But to more forcibly bring out the absurdity of the claim that the "South is tax-ridden" etc., need we do more than call attention to the following comparison between the taxation of Southern and Western States having nearly the same assessed valuation for 1870:

State	Assessed valuation.	Total tax.
Alabama	$155,582,000	$2,962,000
New Hampshire	149,065,000	3,268,000
Virginia	365,439,000	4,612,000
Iowa	302,515,000	9,065,000
North Carolina	130,000,000	2,262,000
Kansas	92,125,000	2,672,000
Tennessee	253,782,000	2,861,000
Michigan	272,242,000	5,412,000

It has been shown that the assessments are notoriously low in the South, a fact which makes the above even more significant. The figures tell a story the recital of which should make every honest and patriotic American citizen blush with shame, not only for those of his countrymen in the South that are directly responsible for this wholesale robbery, but for those of the North who are indirectly responsible for it, because they have lent their influence and given their votes to reinstate the very men who have thus brought disgrace upon their nation, both at home and abroad.

The Light of the World.

"The light of the world is Jesus." He is to the moral world what the natural sun is to the natural world. As the natural sun dispels darkness, and is necessary to all vegetable and animal life, so Christ, who is called the Sun of Righteousness, dispels moral darkness, and is the source of spiritual life and light. He says of himself: "I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth in me should not abide in darkness."

Christ is the light of the world; first, because He has revealed the character of God. He is God manifest in the flesh. The Jews, through the Old Testament revelation, had some knowledge of the true God, but not so full and complete as that which Christ brought. They knew but little of God as a loving Father. It is through Jesus Christ that this revelation of God to men was first fully revealed. He taught the paternal love and care of God for men, that He loves us with a love that is as unchangeable and eternal as His own essence. He calls God our Father and himself our Elder Brother. By His own gracious tempers and dispositions He showed to men what is the character of God; for in Him dwells all the fulness of the God bodily. He said, "I am in the Father, and the Father is in me;" and "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father."

Christ is the light of the world, because He revealed distinctly a future state of existence. Before Christ's immortality to the heathen world was only a conjecture, or a vague hope. Jesus, by His teaching and resurrection, made it a certainty. What was before dimly believed with regard to the future, "is now made manifest by the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel."

Christ is the light of the world, because He is the way of salvation. Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. He says: "I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father except by me."

Christ is the light of the world, because He has made plain the [illegible] of duty by His precepts and [illegible] His example. Notes on General Grant's Visit.

We have already spoken of General Grant's total abstinence from intoxicating drinks and commended it. At the great banquet given to him by prominent men of New Orleans last week, we sat within a few feet of him during the four hours and a half which the feast and speeches lasted, and although the best of wines were served in abundance to all who desired them he drank only water and coffee. Governor Wiltz, who sat at his side, was about to fill the General's glass with wine, when the latter replied, "No, thank you," and touching his glass of ice water, said, "This is all I want." As we saw bottle after bottle of wine disappearing, some of it down the throats of ministers, we could but wish that the example set by the great man who sat at the head of the table had been followed by all present. Some of the cheering would probably have been less boisterous, and many faces would have been less red, but we are sure the good results which are expected to flow from the banquet would have been increased and more enduring.

Much has been said about General Grant being a great lover of horse racing. His own putting of the case to us was about as follows: "I am a great admirer of fine horses, but care nothing at all about horse racing. Beyond the ordinary trotting sometimes seen at fairs I have attended but two races in America since 1845. Many years ago, in Cincinnati, I drove my wife and boys out to see a race, and in San Francisco I saw the champion of the turf trot a mile in two minutes twelve and three-fourth seconds." Great expectations were raised that General Grant would attend the races while here. But he attended none of the several days of racing advertised during his stay. We know of one hour of social chat he spent for the purpose of being too late to go to the races when it had been advertised he would be there. We heard it remarked that his coming to New Orleans was principally to see the races, which indicates how often public men are misrepresented.

General Grant's proverbial silence on public occasions, and his lack of fluency in public addresses, do not at all apply to him in private social intercourse. He is indeed an admirable conversationalist. He remembers distinctly places, names and events, and his use of language is good. After the meeting with the preachers last Monday, we were with him a couple of hours, driving from point to point in the city, he having several matters of private business to attend to. Among other things he desired a new hat, and when we suggested that he might desire to buy a "Robert E. Lee" hat he replied: "All I want is a good hat." So General Grant will wear a "Robert E. Lee" hat for a while. He was greatly interested in learning of the educational and religious work going on among the colored people of the South, and was gratified at the advance they had made and the good work being done in helping them.

One of General Grant's chief characteristics is his modesty. He never, by act or word, unnecessarily calls attention to himself, either what he has done or what others have done for him. Another thing indicative of his greatness is his kindness and impartiality in meeting all classes of people. Whether in the magnificent banquetting hall receiving the homage of wealth and power, in the presence of cultured men and women, or whether returning the salute of the commonest people who stare at him on the street, or whether shaking hands with the humblest persons, black or white, who press through the crowd to speak to him; his manner is always the same. He has the soul and manner of a real gentleman.

There was one old colored man named Lewis, who, because of his age and feebleness, was unable to make his way through the crowd [illegible] Wesley Chapel on Monday to shake the General's hand. He had brought a basket of flowers, and [illegible] greatly disappointed. Not to [illegible] he made his way far up [illegible] the gate of Maj. Fearn, [illegible] the General stopped, and [illegible] his return. As the car[illegible] drove up we recognized the [illegible] told the General who [illegible] his errand. The great [illegible] and heard his story, [illegible] with him, and took [illegible] the two boquets, [illegible] and appre[illegible] they were from the [illegible] princess.

[illegible] of the colored [illegible] Grant has no [illegible] City, as he [illegible] to [illegible] woman [illegible] ferry at Algiers, another old colored woman made her way to him and followed behind him, and slapping him on the shoulder over and over again, cried out, "Dis am he—dis am the General—dis am General Grant—God bless him." Another one, while the General was making his way through the crowd into Wesley Chapel, made out to touch the skirt of his coat, and said: "Dis am Jesus, I hab touched de hem ob his garmint." And a moment after, another, who was asked not to crowd the General, said: "I'se bound to touch him, if I dies next minute." One enthusiastic colored brother put his arm around him and shouted: "Thank the Lord, I've got my arm around him." The excitement extended to the children. In one of Mrs. Hartzell's girls' mission schools the excitement became so intense on the day General Grant was expected to arrive in the city that the teacher was compelled, as a matter of discipline, to adopt some means of keeping the more restless ones still. A separate bench was set apart for those who had the "Grant fever," as the teacher called the excitement. This held in check some, but others held up their hands and said they too had the Grant fever too, and wanted to go on that bench.

The reception accorded General Grant by the old Union people of the city was cordial in the extreme. While the extreme Southern people as a mass did not turn out to see him, still there were enough of all classes in various ways took part in the reception to indicate a great deal. Whether General Grant remains in private life or is again called to the Presidency, we are satisfied that his visit to New Orleans and the South will do much to molify Southern prejudice against him, and thereby go far toward increasing good feeling between the North and South.

Bad Taste in Criticism.

The Nashville Christian Advocate after giving a fairly appreciative notice of the last Annual Report of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, spoils it by adding this slur upon our teachers:

> While from lack of information we cannot speak positively on the point, we think it likely that on the whole a better class of laborers are now at work in this field. The visionaries, the shallow enthusiasts, the adventurers, who were borne South on the tide of excitement, or with an eye to appropriations, at the close of the war, have in many instances gone back whence they came. A few more might perhaps yet be spared with advantage to all concerned. But those who have remained, and devoted themselves steadily to the work, are presumptively of a different type. They have learned some things that could be known only by actual contact with the class for whom they are laboring, and have modified their expectations and methods accordingly.

And also gives this piece of egotistic self-laudation in the name of the "intelligent white people of the South," by whom he means, we suppose, the people of the South who taught the divinity of slavery and still justify the late attempt to destroy this nation. It says:

> It has long been, and is still, our firm conviction that we, who began this work, must resume it; that though the conditions are changed: the obligation is not dissolved, nor the opportunity put beyond our reach. None can do this work so well as the intelligent Christian white people of the South.

Ignorance, egotism and lack of charity are three bad symptoms, especially when all are found in one and the same editorial. "Lack of information" is admitted; "I am holier than thou" is paraphrased by "None can do this work so well as we," and certainly there is no charity in such epithets as "Visionaries, shallow enthusiasts and adventurers" when applied to the teachers of any year, who have been employed by the Freedmen's Aid Society.

The Advocate says, "We who began this work must resume it." When the "intelligent white people of the South" do resume this work in earnest, all will rejoice, but until then criticisms of the type we have quoted are not in good taste.

The elective presiding elder movement has received quite a check in a change of sentiment in one of its chief places of power. The New England Conference which, under the lead of Dr. Cummings and others, has lead chiefly in the agitation of this question seems to have undergone a complete revolution. Four years ago, in the election of delegates to the General Conference, the elective presiding elder sentiment swept everything four to one, but last week, in the election, out of five delegates three, Rev. Drs. Upham, Mallelieu and Rogers, are open opponents of electing presiding elders, and a fourth, Dr. Butler, was elected on his missionary record, and was voted for by both sides. Dr. Cummings, one of the ablest and fairest advocate of the elective plan, was elected last after three ballots, and chiefly on grounds of personal popularity.

The New Orleans University Singers, under the direction of Dr. Goldman, are filling important engagements in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. April 8th [illegible] they sang in Washington.

General Grant's Movements.

Last Monday evening Gen. Grant enjoyed a banquet given by leading citizens at the St. Charles Hotel. Tuesday a trip to the jetties on the steamer John W. Cannon, and the hospitalities of ex-Governor Warmoth at the Magnolia plantation, engrossed his attention. On Wednesday he visited the Straight University, the City Hall, Governor Pinchback's house and Mr. Hellman's mansion. About 300 students welcomed him at the University. Mr. Pinchback's house was profusely decorated. On Thursday evening a banquet was given in his honor by ex-officers of the U. S. army at Moreau's restaurant. Friday morning a special train conveyed him to Mobile. On Saturday he visited the Custom House, had his picture taken at Lillienthal's, drove to the Lake, and in the afternoon went to the races. He left in a special car for Vicksburgh, on Sunday, at 2:30 p. m., by the Jackson Route.

Our conversation with him about attending the races was in type before Saturday, so he has now been to three races in America since 1845.

A Kind Word.

The Southern Christian Advocate (Southern Methodist) speaking of our churches in the Southern States, says:

> We would not be just to ourself nor to Northern Methodist brethren, if we did not acknowledge, with gratitude to God, the good work they have done among our colored people. Our white people do not need nor desire their service, but our colored people do, and we trust they will be equal, under God, to the heavy responsibility placed upon them.

This is a kind word, and will be appreciated concerning our work among the colored people of the South. As to the white people of the South, the fact that over 100,000 have joined our church in the Southern States since the war indicates that the Southern Methodist needs a little more light.

Rev. Albert's Address.

The following is the address of welcome delivered by Rev. A. E. P. Albert, at Wesley Chapel, on Monday, 5th inst.:

> GENERAL GRANT—We welcome you here. Our welcome to you is a peculiar one. For we hail you not as an ex-President and a great general; but as our liberator, constant friend and protector. Your name and that of the immortal Lincoin shall forever be linked together as the Aaron and Moses of our emancipation—Aaron the talker and Moses the silent. You are enshrined in our hearts as the Moses of our deliverance. Whether upon the bloody field of carnage, or within the precincts of the White House, your friendship to my race has ever been as pure as the light, and as constant as the radiating beams from the star of the eternal North. While you were belting the earth the eyes of your colored fellow citizens never lost sight of you; but with much devotion, mixed with anxiety, followed you into every country and clime. You have been honored by kings, princes and potentates of the earth far above any man, living or dead, but your friendship for my people remains as true as the needle to the pole. Your motto, "Let us have peace," has electrified the nation, but another more recent declaration of yours burns in our hearts today. You have distinguished yourself in war and peace; but nowhere, and at no time, did you distinguish yourself more gallantly than at Jacksonville, Florida, when the hotel-keeper, Nicholas, attempted to drive away my people from your presence. He said to them, "Go out, you are not wanted here;" but you answered, "Wherever I am, they can come. If not at this hotel, then I will go to one where they can." General, this heaven-born sentiment in the behalf of my race reminds me of the time when those self-conceited church dignitaries would drive away their betters (the little children) from the Savior, when he replied that the children were the worthier to be with him. "Where I am, they may come." This sentiment forms one of the most precious pictures that hang upon memory's wall. General, we love, honor and cherish your name as no other in American history. May heaven bless you, is our prayer.

The Delusions of Legislators.

The advocates of a wholesale lottery law in the Louisiana Legislature defend their scheme with the plea that they wish to increase the educational fund. The Raleigh Christian Advocate shows the result of the same class, who labored to increase the State revenue of North Carolina, by providing cheap whisky. Says the Advocate:

> The extra session of our Legislature reduced the revenue on liquor sellers, as some of them stated, to increase the revenue of the State. In other words they put liquor selling down lower to induce more men to engage in it. Some members of the church, we are sorry to say, advocated the measure. The very idea of making liquor more accessible, producing more drunkards, producing more crime, putting more men in our jails, alms-houses and lunatic asylums, making more women and children miserable to increase the revenue derived from liquor dealers! We firmly believe the great object of this legislation was to curry favor with liquor dealers and liquor drinkers; and those legislators who advocated and voted for it, and those who failed to fight it because of its unpopularity, deserve the censure of all good men.

The Methodist Quarterly Review for April has the following articles: The Glorious Return of the Vandois, by Rev. Abel Stevens, LL. D.; Equatorial Africa, by Rev. E. —Rev. A. Moore, of La Teche, La., called last week. He reported seven accessions, and was encouraged with progress on his charge.

—Rev. M. A. Daugherty, of our church in San Antonio, and Rev. Mr. Skewes, of Palestine, Texas, are both North raising money, each for his church.

—John Yancy, of Columbus, Texas, was so well pleased with his premium book that he wrote us a letter asking us to publish the fact for the benefit of the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN.

—The New Orleans Board of Health are Drs. E. F. Sheppard, Joseph Jones, David Davidson, F. Loeber, F. Formento, J. C. Beard, and Messrs. E. Hernandez, R. Brewster and I. N. Marks.

—Rev. L. H. Carhart gives a note of encouragement from the District Conference of Jefferson District, Texas Conference, under date of April 6. We hope Presiding Elder Rippetoe will send a full account of the conference.

—Rev. D. D. Goodwin, of Vicksburg, on his return from Mississippi Conference found his wife ill, and on her recovery he was taken sick and confined to his bed for three weeks. He is now a little easier, and requested Rev. C. P. Head to write us. The church is doing well.

—Rev. Dr. R. Allyn, President of Southern Illinois Normal University, accompanied by his brother and daughter, arrived in this city on the steamer City of Alton on Wednesday and departed on Saturday of last week. Dr. Allyn is enjoying a little respite from his arduous labors. We regret his stay could not have been longer.

—Rev. S. B. Darnell, B. D., of Jacksonville, Florida, reports that the Cookman Institute, of which he is principal, is closing a very successful year. Captain Kitwood, assistant General Superintendent of the Western Seamen's Friend Society, did our cause great service by his late visit to Jacksonville. His sermons were full of power.

—Rev. James Morrow formerly pastor of Ames Methodist Church in this city, but now of Philadelphia, is spending a few days among his old friends here. He is in fine spirits and is cordially welcomed by his many acquaintances in the Crescent City. He preached an admirable sermon in Ames Church last Sunday morning, and on Monday night lectured in the same place, to a large audience, on "Ireland and Specimen Irishmen." A collection was taken up for the Irish sufferers at the close of the lecture.

—Ex-President James S. Payne (Hon. or Rev. as you prefer, for he is both) is the delegate from the Liberia Conference to the General Conference. Our personal intercourse with the ex-President enables us to say that he is an African of rare intellectual and social culture, every inch a gentleman, and as broad-minded a statesman as any we met on the West coast of Africa. His reputation as a preacher is good. He is a very valuable representative, and many greater blunders might be made than to make him a bishop for Africa, if that policy were to obtain, which, however, we presume is not likely to, because our former limited episcopacy experiments have not been satisfactory either to us here or the Liberians yonder. We bespeak for the Reverend ex-President a cordial reception, and for his judgments becoming consideration. He is a judicious man.—Northern.

—The anniversary of Mrs. Maggie Van Cott's fiftieth birthday at the Washington Square M. E. Church, of which she is a member, on Thursday afternoon and evening was a grand success. Rev. W. F. Hatfield, her pastor, presided, and in a very effective manner made the address of welcome. Rev. John Parker, who fourteen years ago received her into the Duane M. E. Church, and Rev. A. C. Morehouse, who gave her the first license, and Dr. L. H. King, who in the controversy publicly defended the right of women to preach, and the Hon. Chauncey Shaffer, who followed in addresses and read letters from all parts of the United States, and also gave some account of her great work in the 12 years of her ministry—traveling 143,417 miles, held 9,853 religious meetings, spent 17,971 hours in religious gatherings, preached 4,294 sermons, written 9,853 letters, and has seen 32,143 souls converted. Her many friends contributed in presents and golden offerings tokens of their appreciation of her work. The evening love-feast was conducted by her, and was a season of spiritual power, closing with a consecration meeting and the conversion of one precious soul.—N. Y. Advocate.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. Wm. Smith, St. James: "Sunday-school is getting along finely, with 52 in attendance. We are adding backsliders to the church. On the first Sunday in April we collected $91.30 for repairs to the church."

Stephen Priestly: "The revival is still ablaze at First Street Church. We have 75 converts thus far. On Sunday night 290 communed, and nine united with the church on probation. Brethren, pray for the conversion of New Orleans. We cannot tell how long it will last. The church cannot seat the congregation. On Sunday night 9 were baptized."

At a recent meeting of the Philadelphia Methodist Ministerial Union, Bishop Bowman said, that in his travels he found that the young people had not been thoroughly instructed in the Catechism and other matters relating to the church. The study of the Bible had been neglected.

At the last session of the New York Conference it was announced that Hon. Thomas H. Suckley had given the Conference a five-thousand-dollar farm of 126 acres at Rhinebeck, N. Y., on which to build homes for the worn out preachers of the conference. To build these houses $1600 had been subscribed by various laymen, but $1000 more was needed. Within fifteen minutes this sum was raised among the pastors of the conference.

A Colored Bishop.

FAIRFIELD, Texas, March 13, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—I have been reading many letters asking the General Conference to appoint a colored bishop, and that because they suppose it would strengthen the church.

Well, let us see whether the Lord will bless the administration of the white bishops or not, and if he does, no difference about the color, we will simply ask for a bishop. I believe it was in 1769 when Richard Boardman and Joseph Pilmoor were sent to America by John Wesley. Those were the first travelling Methodist preachers on the continent. We believe that God's design in calling white bishops to this great work in America was to reform the continent and spread scriptural holiness over these lands. As a proof hereof we have seen since that time a glorious work of God extending all over the United States and territories, the British possessions of North America, and the planting of successful missions in South America and Mexico; and moreover, the white bishops have been successful in planting the Methodist Church in Africa, Asia and Europe, and God has given them great prosperity in all those countries. Again, some have said that the colored people were not properly represented. Let us see about that. John Wesley declared that slavery should not enter the pales of the church. When Bishop O. Andrews broke this law he had to take shelter in the Methodist Church South, which shows that Wesley and his successors meant what they said. Mason and Dixon's line was then drawn, and the white bishops and their friends kept the colored man continually in their mind's eye. Yea, they represented the colored man before he knew what it was, and I hardly think he knows what it is now, if he claims he has not been represented. Yes, when we, the colored people, were bowed down under task-masters, and had no chance to represent ourselves, the white bishops said let my people go, that they may sacrifice to the Lord; and so by their able representation and powerful influence the colored man was emancipated, and every one of the white ministers of the old church have been fighting for us ever since. Now I would ask if a colored bishop could do anything more? Let us see wherein: Nothing at all, only the colored people would flock to us more if we had a colored bishop, to which I will just say that all who are awaiting a colored bishop should be kept waiting. Such are not Methodists, and the church don't want them. They would do the church harm. They are not Methodists in heart, but only Methodists in a colored bishop, so the increase of members that a colored bishop would produce we do not want. We want members to unite with us, the Methodists, because they believe our doctrines.

Now, brethren, it is all bosh to say we don't know that the white bishops and ministers generally have labored not only zealously, but wonderfully, for the colored people. Yet after all the white brethren have done in regard to our emancipation; after paying ten or fifteen thousand dollars or more yearly to the conferences in Texas, and after men of high rank and ability have left homes, friends and society, and amid the scorn and contempt of frowning millions have said: "We will teach the colored people; they shall have the pure Word of God preached to them." And still the colored people think they are not represented. The truth is simply this: The Spirit of the Lord is upon these men, and hath anointed them to preach the Gospel to the poor. From what has been said, we must conclude that it is safe for us to send such men as delegates to the General Conference to represent us; besides, ought we not love and appreciate these good men? Undoubtedly we ought.

As bishops and delegates I fear their equals cannot be found. Now my colored brethren are good men, but where is our experience in business matters? And again, where is our education, which is almost indispensable for a delegate to the General Conference. A child just beginning to walk exactly represents our colored ministers at the present time. If the mother fails to watch the child at this critical period it is apt to totter and fall headlong into the fire. Just so with our colored ministers. The white bishops and ministers have taken them up, as it were, and toiled and nursed them until they know a little about business, and they have concluded they can walk alone; but if they don't watch they will fall into the fire. Already they are beginning to totter and stumble. They stumbled when they caused division in the West Texas Conference. They stumbled when they sent colored delegates to the General Conference, instead of the very best material of the church; but the worst blunder is asking for a colored bishop and declaring that the church can not prosper without one.

Now as to the colored delegates, I helped to send them myself, which only shows my weakness with all the rest of my colored brethren, but, again, the asking for a colored Bishop is bound to be considered bigotry. If I were to ask the annual conference to make me presiding elder, everybody would say, "There is a bigoted man." Just so it is when a people of a certain race or color, who come up and ask for one of their number to be made bishop, everybody will, of course, say "There is a bigoted race." I hope the brethren of my race will never disgrace themselves again in asking for a colored bishop.

SCOTLAND.—A missionary writes: "The priests are bigoted, while the teachers of the public schools are [illegible] atheists, and preach materialism, which finds many followers among the so-called intelligent. I am not discouraged at all this. My hope is in God. Here and there I find good men, and though they are not open followers of the Truth, still I trust in time the Lord will open their hearts and make them willing to bear their cross for the Lord Jesus. As I am seldom visited on Sabbath days, I continue daily visiting the coffee houses, where I meet different classes of people, and have more than in any other place opportunity to speak of Christ. I trust God will bless all my little efforts in due time. At Bonhill Mr. Gabriel has succeeded in obtaining permission to keep open his coffee house, and to converse upon the truths contained therein as often as he desires."

Of Orchania Bro. Dimitry writes: "I hold service regularly on Sabbath, and spend the week visiting and preaching in the numerous villages in the vicinity. His experience is very warm and interesting. A Glowing Decade.

FROM 1870 TO 1880.

1. Great numbers have been added to the church out of heathen wickedness of such as shall be saved. In 1871 Dr. Butler estimated the number of converts at 1,000,000. In 1879 Prof. Christlieb shows that the number has reached 1,650,000, an increase of 50 per cent. and an ingathering of over a half million souls.

2. The contributions have increased. In 1871 the Christian world gave $5,232,000 toward supporting the gospel in the heathen world. In 1879 Great Britain alone gave five and a half million dollars. In 1879 the Christian world gave over six million dollars for foreign missions, or an increase of the annual contribution of a million dollars.

3. The Christian Church in Japan is the product of this period. It was a period of remarkable revivals in the mission fields. In one year there were 70,000 members added to the church in India, a larger number than the membership of the entire North Georgia Conference. In one year the work among the Telugus alone resulted in 15,100 additions.

4. The open door has been set before the Christian world in this decade. China has let down the last bar. In Japan the Christian Sabbath and civilization have been adopted. Science has been used to prepare a way in Africa. Political convulsions in France, Italy, Mexico, Spain and elsewhere have prevailed Protestant Christian work.

Sunday School.

April 18, 1880.—THE WHEAT AND THE TARES.

SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 13:24-30; 37-43.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The harvest is the end of the world."—39.

TOPIC.—"Wheat or Tares."

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Matthew xiii. is a chapter of parables. As expressed in verse 13, the object of teaching through them was to convey truth into minds unwilling to receive it in its undisguised form. 1. The parable of the sower has reference to the times of Christ and his apostles, when "the Son of man" began to sow "the word of the kingdom." 2. The parable of the tares applies to the age succeeding, when heresies began to spring up, which, of course, had been planted by the "enemy" of Christ. 3. That of the mustard seed describes the age of Constantine, when the kingdom had such a wonderful growth. 4. The parable of the leaven illustrates the permeating of the world with the true religion. 5. That of the hid treasure sets forth the time of the reformation, when, as it were, the gospel was newly discovered. 6. The parable of the pearl is prophetic of the time when the kingdom of heaven shall be valued above all things. 7. The one that concerns the draw net is typical of the present mixture of the good and bad in this world, and of the time when they shall be separated.

"The kingdom of heaven," as has been noted, is the subject of all the seven parables. The suggestion that a man sowing seed even then was in sight is not at all improbable. The farmers take great pains to get good seed, and are willing to pay a high price for it. Christ, who in this case is the husbandman, exercises care even greater, and for the obtaining of the seed has paid therefor with his own blood. It was while his "servants" were sleeping that the tares were sown. In this there is no condemnation of them; for to them rest was necessary. "His enemy sowed tares." He was on the watch to pay off a grudge. He took advantage of the cover afforded by the darkness and of the sleeping of the servants. This covert way of gratifying malice or revenge is said to be practiced, as described in this parable, in India even at the present day. There a man sows in his neighbor's field pandinelle, or pigpeddy, a weed that has an astonishingly rapid growth. It springs up before the wheat and chokes it, and recedes itself before the good grain can come to maturity, thus not only destroying the present crop, but giving the owner years of trouble in its extermination. "When the blade was sprung up," they did not then find out the evil; for in the blade the tares and wheat are very much alike. So far as professions are concerned, it is very hard to distinguish between the good and the evil. In youth, there usually are no very marked differences between the future murderer and the future minister. "And brought forth fruit." Then there was no doubt of their character. Any one could see that they were tares.

The decision. "Wilt thou—that we go, and gather them up?" "But, he said Nay." The servants could not well distinguish between the tares and the wheat in all cases. The roots of both were so intertwined, that the tares could not be pulled up without also pulling up the wheat. And it is for the sake of the wheat that the husbandman is willing to let the tares alone. Christ has a still farther care, and that is for the tares.

The world is Christ's "field" even though the devil has done such damage in it. "The good seed are the children of the kingdom." They are planted here that they may bring forth a bountiful spiritual harvest. "The tares are the children of the wicked one." "The enemy that sowed them is the devil." And like the Son of man with the good seed, he has sown them broadcast over the earth. Wherever the Son of man expects a harvest, there, while men sleep, he is busy scattering those seeds which will cause doubt, suspicion and discord. The disciples had been expecting an immediate harvest. They had been told that the kingdom of heaven was at hand. What more natural for them to infer, then, that there was to be a [illegible] between the good and the bad—between the children of the evil one, and the children of the kingdom. "The reapers are the angels." They shall come with angels when he comes in the clouds of heaven with great glory for the purpose of judging the world. "There shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth." The Savior had an audience when he set forth the glories of the future. It was a solemn warning. To [illegible], there will be an [illegible] harvest is de[illegible] to be, it will [illegible] Christ.

Mistakes and Prejudice

Of Religious and Temperance Journals.

Some good Religious and Temperance journals are making the mistake of declining to advertise a most valuable anti-intoxicating medicine, simply because it is called "Bitters," while the same journals are making a greater mistake by advertising some drunken whisky stuff, or nostrum, because it has some nice, fancy, deceptive name, ending with "cine," "tine," printed on its label, when the bottle is filled with destruction, drunkenness and death. If these good journals would take the trouble to ascertain how many overworked clergymen have had their lost nerve-force, brain-waste and flagging energies restored by the use of Hop Bitters, enabling them to perform their arduous pastoral duties and preach the good sermons that they would have been totally unable to do but for this valuable medicine, and did these journals but know how many have been and may be saved from forming intemperate habits by doctors prescribing Hop Bitters, instead of beer, where the use of hops are needed, (there being more actual hop strength in one bottle of Hop Bitters than in a barrel of beer, without any of the intoxicating or evil effects of beer,) they would lay aside their fear and prejudice against the word "Bitters."

A few of the many witnesses from religious and temperance sources are given below, who use, recommend and advertise Hop Bitters.

The President and Manager of Hop Bitters Mfg. Co. is a veteran Temperance advocate and worker of forty-eight years' service; every man in the Company is an active Temperance worker, and the Company spends thousands of dollars annually in Temperance and Christian work.

What the Religious Press Says:

Chicago, Nov. 18, 1878.

Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y.:

Gentlemen—We do not allow anything in the line of Bitters to enter our paper that contains alcohol, but we are satisfied that your Bitters are free from that ingredient. We feel responsible for the good or bad that may be done to the families of our subscribers that are affected by our advertisements. Therefore our discrimination in your favor, and we trust that our very low rates will meet your approval, and that we may hear from you "THE LIVING CHURCH."

Temperance clergymen, lawyers, ladies and doctors use Hop Bitters, as they do not intoxicate, but restore nerve and brain waste.—Temperance Times, Brockport, N. Y.

Not a Beverage.

"They are not a beverage, but a medicine, with curative properties of the highest degree, containing no poisonous drugs. They do not tear down an already debilitated system, but build it up. One bottle contains more hope, that is, more real hop strength, than a barrel of ordinary beer. Every druggist in Rochester sells them, and the physicians prescribe them."—Rochester Evening Express on Hop Bitters.

We are not in the habit of making editorial mention of patent medicines, but in case of Hop Bitters, feel free to do so, because their merits deserve to be known.—New York Independent.

Northern Christian Advocate, Syracuse, N. Y.
Examiner and Chronicle, N. Y.
Evangelical Messenger, Cleveland, O.
National Baptist, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pilot, Boston, Mass.
Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.
Home Journal, Detroit, Mich.
Methodist Protestant, Baltimore, Md.
Southwestern Christian Advocate, New Orleans, La.
Christian Mirror, Portland, Me.

And over five hundred more Religious and Temperance papers.

Pittsford, Mass., Sept. 28, 1878.

Sirs—I have taken Hop Bitters and recommend them to others, as I found them very beneficial. MRS. J. W. TULLER,
Sec'y Women's Christian Temperance Union.

A MEDICINE, NOT A DRINK.

High Authority.

Hop Bitters is not, in any sense, an alcoholic beverage or liquor, and could not be sold for use, except to persons desirous of obtaining medicinal bitters.

GREEN B. BAUM,
U. S. Com'r Internal Rev.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4, 1879.

Dear Sir—Why don't you get a certificate from Col. W. H. W., of Baltimore, showing how he cured himself of drunkenness by the help of Hop Bitters. His is a wonderful case. He is well known in Rochester, N. Y., by all the drinking people there. He is known in this city Cincinnati, New Orleans, New York; in fact, all over the country, as he has spent thousands of dollars for rum. I honestly believe his cord would be worth thousands of dollars to you in this city and Baltimore alone, and make thousands of sober men by induncing the use of your Bitters. J. A. W.

Prejudice Kills.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by Hop Bitters, that we had pooched at two years before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did, on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The Parents—Good Templars.

Milton, Del., Feb. 10, 1880.

Having used Hop Bitters, the noted remedy for debility, nervousness, indigestion, etc., I have no hesitation in saying that it is indeed an excellent medicine, and recommend it to any one as a truly tonic bitters.

Respectfully,
Rev. MRS. J. H. ELLGOOD.

I declined to insert your advertisement of Hop Bitters last year, because I then thought they might not be promotive of the cause of Temperance, but find they are, and a very valuable medicine, myself and wife having been greatly benefited by them, and I take great pleasure in making them known.

Rev. JOHN SEAMAN,
Editor Home Sentinel, Afton, N. Y.

Scipio, N. Y., Dec. 1, 1879.

I am the pastor of the Baptist church here and an educated physician. I am not in practice, but am my sole family physician, and advise in many chronic cases. Over a year ago I recommended your Hop Bitters to my invalid wife, who has been under medical treatment of Albany's best physicians several years. She has been greatly benefitted and still uses the medicine. I believe she will become thoroughly cured of her various complicated diseases by their use. We both recommend them to our friends, many of whom have also been cured of their various ailments by them. Rev. E. R. WARREN.

Cured of Drinking.

A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for liquor that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that hurning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. R. Official, Chicago, Ill.

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article is made up of common valuable remedies known to all, and that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them. Rev.——, Washington, D. C.

A good Baptist clergyman of Bergen N. Y., a strong temperance man, suffered with kidney trouble, neuralgia and dizziness almost to blindness, over two years after he was advised that Hop Bitters would cure him, because he was afraid of and prejudiced against the word "bitters." Since his cure he says none need fear but trust in Hop Bitters.

My wife and daughter were made healthy by the use of Hop Bitters and I recommend them to my people.—Methodist Clergyman, Mexico, N. Y.

I had severe attacks of Gravel and Kidney trouble; was unable to get any medicine or doctor to cure me until I used Hop Bitters, and they cured me in a short time.—A distinguished lawyer and temperance orator of Warren County, N. Y. 15-6t

Make Hens Lay.

An English Veterinary Surgeon and Chemist, now traveling in this country, says that most of the Horse and Cattle Powders sold here are worthless trash. He says that Sheridan's Condition Powders are absolutely pure and immensely valuable. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Condition Powders. Dose: one teaspoonful to one pint food. TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are grateful to our Preachers and people who have done so much in pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1880 thus far.

But we feel that the field has not been thoroughly canvassed yet. Will not our Agents everywhere make a special effort at once to send in a list of subscribers for

THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR?

We will send the paper for the remainder of the year for ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF. The

is soon at hand, and the SOUTHWESTERN will contain an abstract of the daily proceedings. The coming General Conference will be an important one. It will have much to say about our work in the Southern States. Several Bishops will be elected, and the question of electing Presiding Elders will be discussed; also the matter of admitting laymen into the Annual Conferences will be decided; besides, many other subjects of great importance will receive attention.

Another great event to transpire in 1880 is the election of a

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

This will occur next November, and between this time and that our people want the news from a reliable source. This they can get in their own church paper.

We will publish the

WEEKLY MARKETS,

which will be of great value to our people in posting them as to the price of produce and supplies, and thus enable them to keep from being swindled.

In the matter of

CHURCH NEWS

we propose making the SOUTHWESTERN better than ever during 1880.

OUR PREMIUM BOOK.

We give the Premium Book to one dollar and a half subscribers, the same as to yearly subscribers. So $2 cash will pay for the paper the remainder of the year and the Book. It is surprising how popular the Premium Book is. All who see it are delighted with it. It costs but fifty cents to subscribers. No one else can buy it for any price.

Now let our Agents and friends make a thorough canvass at once and send in the names and cash.

Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for eight letter stamps.

The Methodist Episcopal Church in the South.

Two years ago we gave the most careful and complete statistical summary of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South that had ever been made. Now we present a similar review for the present date. The numbers in the following tables are for 1879, except the conferences in the Carolinas, which are for 1880. We have compared the statistics of these conferences for a series of years, and know that the figures here given are more accurate than the aggregates found in the General Minutes. We arrange the conferences in two groups, not for the purpose of making improper distinctions among our people, but to give the clearest idea of the work in all its aspects that can be done by statistical tables. We ask for them a careful examination.

The East Tennessee Wesleyan University has graduated several classes and is doing excellent work in the higher branches of education. The students in the other institutions are mostly in the primary and intermediate departments, with a considerable number in the academic, and some are preparing for college. There ought to be at least a thousand young men and women in these schools preparing for missionaries, ministers, teachers, Sunday-school workers, class-leaders and stewards.

The students in the above institutions during the past year are classified as follows; namely: Biblical, 453; Law, 20; Medical, 60; Collegiate, 74; Academic, 270; Normal, 1,020; Intermediate, 242; Primary, 371; total, 2,510.

1. From the above it would appear that there are 221,504 white and 189,395 colored communicants in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South, but it must be remembered that the Russellville and Cleveland districts in Holston, the Missouri district in the St. Louis, and the North Missouri district in the Missouri Conference, with an aggregate of 7,728 members, are colored. Add these, and we have 197,123 colored members, and subtract the same from the white conferences and we have 212,776 white members in the South. There are also some white members in Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida and South Carolina, but the above numbers are substantially correct. The gain in two years is 13,892, being over six thousand colored and nearly eight thousand white.

2. The most striking fact in the above tables is the number baptized by our ministers in the South in 1879; namely: 40,406. About one-half of these are adults, and should have given us an increase in membership of about twenty thousand, instead of seven thousand, a year. The unsettled condition of the country, the opposition to the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South, the proselyting of our members into other Churches, and the removal of thousands, both white and colored, to the North and West, explain the lack of increase which should have occurred. This number of baptisms demonstrates the activity and vitality of the Church in these States, and the actual increase in members is encouraging.

3. Perhaps the most satisfactory gain is in the Sunday-school department, being in the last two years 249 Sunday-schools, 2,410 officers and teachers, and 24,228 scholars, the total increase of persons enrolled is 26,644. This growth is undoubtedly owing, to a large extent, to the labors of the agent in this field, Rev. J. B. Ford. The improvement in the character and spirituality of our Sunday-schools is still more marked.

4. It may be a surprise to some that the increase in members has been greater among the whites than the colored. The latter have had to contend against the M. E. Church, South, and the Bourbons nearly as much as the white people, also against the African, the Zion, and the colored Baptist Churches, besides thousands are annually lost to the Church by being forced by circumstances to remove from plantation to plantation, and from county to county. Probably enough have gone to Kansas and the West to balance this difference, and to make up fully 200,000 members. There is no room to doubt that the Methodist Episcopal Church is the strongest Christian body among the colored people in America and in the world. The General Conference should guard the interests of these people with a watchful eye. Enemies both to them and to the Church are constantly preying upon them, and were they not true, as a people, to the old Church, our work among them would be greatly crippled. May God help our Methodism to be true to itself by caring for these! Before the war, there were 24,000 colored members in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Now there are 198,000, an increase of 174,000 since that event, most of whom have been converted at its altars and under its ministry. Then, those 24,000 were mostly in bonds, without ecclesiastical autonomy or in the enjoyment of the rights belonging to citizens or Christians, without schools or Bibles. Now they have churches, conferences, pastors and presiding elders of their own choice, representation in the General Conference, equal rights with their brethren, schools, books, and the Bible in their homes by scores of thousands. What hath God wrought!

5. In Church houses there has been an increase of 483 in two years, or one hundred and four weeks, which is an average of over four Church houses built in the South each week; and of 77 parsonages [illegible] two parsonages built for every three weeks' time. At [illegible] will all have places of worship and the ministers [illegible] after a few years. The valuation of Church [illegible] amount [illegible] of the general decrease of [illegible]. Though the estimated worth of [illegible] value is greater, because of the additional number of houses. Four new Church houses for each week is a good showing for such times as we have passed through.

6. The benevolent collections in most of the conferences are small, absurdly so in many cases, still they aggregate for Missions, including the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, $54,542.88, and nearly six thousand dollars for Church Extension, for all of the benevolent collections for our denomination, $67,655.13. Of this sum, the colored people paid $10,130.49. This is a small amount in comparison with the sums expended in their behalf, but it is no mean thank-offering to God and the Church for the labor among them. If the sums contributed by them to build churches, support the ministry, sustain schools, for the care of the sick and destitute, and the burial of the dead could be given, the amount would surprise the whole world and speak volumes in their behalf.

7. Comparisons are odious. Then those who feel the odium should not provoke comparison. The Methodist Episcopal Church has on what was slave territory in 1860, 410,899 communicants. The M. E. Church, South, claims to have on what was then free territory, including the North, West and the Pacific coast, only 16,481 members and ministers. In the past four years the Methodist Episcopal Church has gained in the South 34,960, and the M. E. Church, South, has gained in the North, West, and on the Pacific coast, during that time, 1,763. The Methodist Episcopal Church now has in the South half as many members, and two-thirds as many Sunday-school scholars as the entire M. E. Church, South. The Methodist Episcopal Church has 1,708,290 communicants and 1,543,386 Sunday-school scholars, the M. E. Church, South, has, all told, only 798,862 communicants and 371,293 Sunday-school scholars, i. e.: the Methodist Episcopal Church has about four times as many in Sunday-school as the M. E. Church, South. The former is doing at least ten times as much missionary work as the latter. The Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States is first among the Churches in aggressiveness and missionary work, second in Sunday-schools, and third in numbers, and must be considered not only as having now a secure footing in the South but as holding a front rank among the leading Churches in the Southern States. It has cost a struggle to gain this position, but the day is ours, and the fact will be recognized after a while. It has twice as many white members in the South as the Presbyterians or any other denomination, except the Baptists and Southern Methodists, and its members give more, per capita, for benevolence than those of the M. E. Church, South.

8. It is difficult, if not impossible, to determine exactly the number of white members in our church in Maryland and Virginia, and along the border, during the years 1871-2-3, because of the war. The decrease in the church during that time, owing to the war, was sixty-seven thousand, and the loss in this section must have been equal to this number, if not still greater. In 1861 twenty thousand or over seceded from the Baltimore Conference and adjoining territory, with the intention of uniting with the M. E. Church, South, which purpose was consummated in 1866. The seceding body prosecuted as bitter and destructive warfare upon the Methodist Episcopal Church as did the Confederates upon the Government. The Southern Church organized in Washington, Baltimore, throughout Maryland, on the Eastern shore and in Delaware, wherever an opening could be found. The masses who sympathized with the rebellion united with the Baltimore Conference of that church, which now numbers 28,737. The statistics of the annual conferences on the border during those turbulent times cannot be exact, but we will suppose that in addition to the twenty-four thousand colored members mentioned in paragraph 4, there were left in the territory now included in the Baltimore and Wilmington conferences forty thousand whites, which is undoubtedly more than could have been found in 1862-3. The West Virginia Conference had, in 1859, twenty-one thousand, but that ground was also a battle-field of the churches. We will suppose that fifteen thousand adhered to the original body. West of this, including Kentucky, Missouri and Arkansas, there were less than five thousand members in 1862. But allowing this number, we have an aggregate of sixty thousand white members in the whole South, and they were found in what is now the Wilmington, Baltimore, West Virginia, Kentucky, St. Louis, Missouri and Arkansas Conferences. This is a large estimate, but it shows that since 1862, or since the war, the Methodist Episcopal Church has gained so rapidly as to show at this time an increase of 154,000 white members on Southern soil. And yet we are told that this denomination can never succeed in the South. In our humble opinion it has succeeded grandly in holding or retaking the entire border, including Delaware, Maryland, large portions of Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, and also in Tennessee. It will yet succeed among the whites as gloriously in the Carolinas and the Gulf States.—Meth. Advocate.

The San Antonio District.

MR. EDITOR—I have just returned home after spending thirty-four days passing around San Antonio district. Seventeen days were spent in visiting the western part of the the district, commencing with San Antonio. Here I find the church in a thriving condition, with their faithful pastor, P. Gates, in the van. The quarterly conference terminated in a glorious revival. The pastor and people are determined to pay off all indebtedness of the church. The quarterly collection amounted to $20 45. Sixty-eight communed at the altar Sunday night, but not until after a feeling and instructive sermon had been preached from the text, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life," by that gentleman and Christian worker, M. A. Daugherty, presiding elder of the San Antonio district among our white work. He said he was about to leave the city to go North on a financial trip, in quest of means to complete his unfinished but beautiful church edifice. We pray success awaits him up there among our strong, wealthy members. The work lying beyond San Antonio was in no condition to have me visit it, according to information from different pastors who seemed to be earnestly engaged at their posts. At Lavernia I found W. H. Mosby, the pastor, rallying his forces with undoubted skill. I find we have no church in Lavernia, but five or six miles above, at Pollander Settlement, a common looking California hut is in course of building, nearly completed. At Floresville we have about eight members, and no church building. The newly finished building, 18x24 feet, is built on ground paid for by our members. Through the evil influence of a man belonging to the A. M. E. Church, he being trusted to aid our people, took advantage of them and had the entire parcel of land, containing one and one quarter acres, deeded to the free school property of Wilson county, when they had intended to deed only one quarter of an acre for that purpose! The Lord reward him according to this evil transaction. All through this section we need competent teachers who will take an interest in our Sunday-school work in conjunction with our preachers. Bro. J. T. Gibbons is one of our most prominent young men. His chances have been very limited to qualify him for the position he so creditably sustains, giving satisfaction to the entire community he serves. There is employment for ten or twelve able teachers in my district. With all the earnestness of a Macedonian I appeal to our young men and women to "come over and help us." The one school building used in San Antonio to accommodate our scholastic youth is not at all sufficient or centrally located. A teacher who knows how to hoe his or her own row, can, with judicious action and patience, build up a paying school. If teachers of the Congregational persuasion can venture out this far, why do not some of our own try it? And think not to say within yourselves,

"I must be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease."

Not getting any notice from the P. C. at Riddleville, I crossed the country for home, arriving on the third of February, after spending twenty-six hours going forty-five miles on account of the almost impassable condition of the roads. All the night of Feb. 2d was spent in the stage coach and hobbling about in the mud to keep from chilling through. Feb. 7-8th was spent at Sand Hill M. E. Church. Found the work in fine condition. The pastor, R. Deaux, is an earnest minister and the people love him much. Their building has not yet reached completion on account of the contractor absenting himself. The lumber lays on the ground water-soaking. We advised them to go to work and finish it, which they propose to do at the earliest date. From there I had to make a long leap of seventy odd miles to Victoria. Here the pastor is bravely standing at his post; his earnest congregation are well into line of battle and are besieging the strongholds of the enemy. Sunday night eighty-four met us at the festive board and an holy impulse thrilled every heart. Monday night we had a love feast—a grand occasion! The quarterly collection amounted to $20 35. The collection for delegates to General Conference was taken at the love feast, as at San Antonio and other points. The 21st found us at Indianola. Our congregation here is small, but they [illegible] earnest workers. They have [illegible] neatest little chapel in the [illegible] among the colored people. [illegible] owe $65 on the building; [illegible] provisions are being made [illegible] ting $50 from that powerful [illegible] our Church Extension society [illegible] ble society! With good [illegible] on the district our cause [illegible] ceed as never before. We [illegible] eight right away, and with [illegible] to be applied to this purpose, [illegible] lieve we would receive many [illegible] our fold in return. At Cuero I [illegible] Bro. D. Harper doing good [illegible] for the Master. Our society [illegible] small here, and much opp[illegible] We have no church property [illegible] at all, as has been reported [illegible] mer days. However, we took [illegible] to secure a lot before [illegible] With $175 we could build a [illegible] worth $400, and build up a [illegible] society. Until suitable church [illegible] fices shall take the place of [illegible] fortable log cabins and brush [illegible] we need not expect to wield [illegible] great power in the com[illegible] among whom we labor. [illegible] norther blew Saturday [illegible] preventing any meeting until [illegible] day night. A protracted [illegible] prevailed till Thursday night [illegible] good effect. We preached [illegible] night to full audiences. [illegible] per provided conveyance to [illegible] The brethren all seemed [illegible] of their presiding elder's [illegible] in passing over these long, [illegible] some roads through a sparsely [illegible] tled frontier country. Bro. G. [illegible] at Goliad, is one of our best [illegible] and no doubt will accomplish [illegible] great work. He will soon be [illegible] in his Sunday-school work [illegible] R. H. Harbert, who expects to [illegible] to that community as teacher [illegible] welcome such able workers [illegible] self and that noble young [illegible] J. Starnes, of Victoria, who [illegible] took unto himself a better [illegible] The quarterly collection at [illegible] was $13 65. Have heard [illegible] points on the district not [illegible] and this writing closes my [illegible] round.

I do not find as much of the [illegible] triot as I had been led to [illegible] However, we anticipate much [illegible] cess. We find that we will have [illegible] study new tactics to what we [illegible] did before. Our churches [illegible] district are usually and persistently [illegible] opposed by the A. M. E.'s [illegible] Baptists. We can't see [illegible] is to be gained by [illegible] Christian churches fighting [illegible] each other. The A. M. E. [illegible] confuse many of our [illegible] brethren by telling them that [illegible] E. church is a white man's [illegible] and telling them of exalted po[illegible] withheld from them on account [illegible] their connection with this [illegible] E. Church. Now we, as true C[illegible] tians and Methodists, will [illegible] ashamed of a church which [illegible] gathered us to bless us [illegible] unceasingly labors to elevate [illegible] spised and crushed people. [illegible] A. M. E. Church thinks as [illegible] her sable brothers and sisters [illegible] she affects, she would certainly [illegible] thank the Old Mother for [illegible] that among the colored [illegible] which they cannot do now, [illegible] have they at any time previous [illegible] this writing, been able to do [illegible] our race. They brag about having [illegible] a few D.Ds., LL.Ds. and A. [illegible] and exalted positions, etc. Now [illegible] would ask in all candor, who [illegible] the greatest number of M. [illegible] B.Ds., D.Ds., LL.Ds. and A.Ms. [illegible] themselves or the Old Mother? [illegible] they cannot answer these interroga[illegible] tories I am quite sure the reading [illegible] public can! I trust that our [illegible] ters and people may not be [illegible] tracted by the mentioning of those [illegible] glittering honors absurdly [illegible] by agitators as being withheld [illegible] the church of our choice on account [illegible] of our complexion and [illegible] reasons. I trust that our General [illegible] Conference will elect one or [illegible] colored bishops, if that number [illegible] be found anywhere in our [illegible] Methodism of sufficient piety [illegible] Christian culture. I think [illegible] Church possesses as much [illegible] as she does true valor and integ[illegible] and her keen-sighted [illegible] know of her wants about as [illegible] all of those outside factions. [illegible] have every reason to believe [illegible] the General Conference will [illegible] a clean breast of all its [illegible] matters without any outs[illegible] ences. At any rate we have [illegible] to wait. Our native min[illegible] teachers, seminaries, colleges [illegible] universities certainly give [illegible] permanency and prominence [illegible] the hosts of all lands, [illegible] guages and tongues. [illegible] Editor, I close not for [illegible] thing more to write [illegible] fear of being too [illegible] thankful to almighty [illegible] goodness knows [illegible] we belong to a church [illegible] regard any [illegible] disregard him [illegible] but [illegible] swell [illegible]

[illegible]DAY, APRIL 22, 1880.

[illegible] Orleans and our Southern Work.

[illegible] has come for the Metho[dist] Episcopal Church to fully rec[ognize] the importance of New Or[leans] as a centre from which to [illegible] and carry forward her [illegible] Southern States. This [illegible] a population of over 200,-[illegible] is the largest cotton mar[ket] [illegible] world, and must con[illegible] the great commercial [illegible] the Ohio. culation is now 4000. Considering our territory, and the comparative small number of our agents, the history of the church does not give a better, if it does as good a success in the newspaper line. This success has been largely due to the fact that the paper is published in a great city, which besides the local patronage assured, gives it metropolitan prestige.

The work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South is no longer an experiment. All questions of policy as to our occupancy of the South as a church are now settled. The magnitude of the Christian effort needed in these Southern States must now commands the thought and faith of the church. We must plan for mighty effort, and in doing so must plant our forces where they have the most power.

The Exodus.

The colored people of St. Charles, St. John, St. James, Ascension and Assumption parishes, Louisiana, are now disposed to regard the exodus with more favor than heretofore, as a protective measure to their race, against the steady encroachment of the white minority upon the exercise of their manhood rights. A new impulse has been given by the use of the State militia in St. Charles and St. John parishes, in which labor strikes occurred, to compel the colored people to cease their demand for higher wages. They have been impressed with the fact that they are expected to submit to rates of wages fixed by the planters or leave, or if they demonstrate any feeling of resentment be prepared to take such consequences as an unreasonable White League spirit invariably prescribes. They have witnessed the process by which nearly all officials, whom they might fairly elect by large majorities in all these parishes, have been placed beyond the influence of their votes. The Legislature authorized the Governor to appoint police juries, school boards, assessors, and other officials in cases of removal, [illegible] or a vacancy. The new con[illegible] increased the amount of [illegible] required before sheriffs and [illegible] of court could be inducted [illegible] office; and the whites com[illegible] to prevent any one of their [illegible] signing the bond of a [illegible] official. The colored [illegible] always generously and [illegible] fair share of whites [illegible] offices of trust and re[illegible]. The Governor now [illegible] to appoint colored men to [illegible]. In consequence, a small [illegible] of office-hunting whites in [illegible] parishes have been al[illegible] to almost completely nullify [illegible] of the black majorities in [illegible] of their local self-[illegible]. Until the accession [illegible] State govern[illegible] people of these [illegible], peaceable, [illegible] of intelligent and [illegible] men. The leaders are [illegible] disheartened and hope[illegible] possess no influence [illegible].

They are com[illegible] intelligent of the [illegible] that will be [illegible] their neighbor[illegible] is still in its [illegible] of the North [illegible] to the indus[illegible] come to [illegible] quarter of the [illegible] colored men re[illegible] the Northwest [illegible] to work fac[illegible] in Iowa and [illegible] her [illegible] 40,000 [illegible] the number [illegible] teachers and 390 scholars. These churches contribute for benevolent funds nearly $200 annually. This growth and these evidences of present efficiency in church work are very gratifying.

The following memorial to the General Conference explains itself. While we regret to lose these churches from the Louisiana Conference we heartily concur in the transfer, believing it as better for our German brethren:

To the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to meet in Cincinnati, Ohio, May 1st, 1880:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN—At a meeting of the official members of the three German churches of New Orleans held April 12, 1880, after a full discussion of the interests involved in our German work in the State of Louisiana, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, 1. That we hereby respectfully petition the General Conference to connect at once the German work of Louisiana with the Southern German Conference of the M. E. Church, which now includes the State of Texas.

Resolved, 2. That this change of Conference relation is asked solely on the ground that we think our German work can be supplied with pastors better if we are connected with a conference composed wholly of German ministers. Our relations with the Louisiana Conference since the beginning of our work in New Orleans in 1869, has been most pleasant, and the growth of our work, from a small band of workers to our three present vigorous and successful churches, has been very gratifying.

Resolved, 3. That we do especially desire to express our appreciation of the superintendence of our work by the Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., who, for nearly eight years, has been our presiding elder. He has been a faithful and efficient adviser and helper during these years.

Resolved, 4. That these resolutions be signed in our behalf by the Recording Stewards of the First, Second, and Third German churches of New Orleans, and that they be placed in the hands of Dr. Hartzell, to be presented to the General Conference.

J. B. MEYERS,
Recording Steward 1st German church.

Politics in Photography.

When General Grant was in New Orleans he visited Lillienthal's Art Gallery and had his picture taken. The event was duly advertised by that enterprising artist. We supposed we had seen every possible shade of political toadyism in this city. We have seen it in the church, in both pulpit and pew; in the social life, in business circles and in schools. But photographic politics we had not yet seen a specimen of until we read the following advertisement in a city daily paper:

GRANT'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Had General Grant entered Souby's studio on the Rappahannock seventeen years ago, he certainly would have been taken. However, he was taken, seventeen years afterward—on the 10th of April, 1880—in this city, and glory be to the artist who took him.

Which being interpreted means, Mr. Souby seventeen years ago was with the Confederate Army on the Rappahannock, and that he wants his Southern friends to distinctly understand that his studio was not polluted by the presence of General Grant.

Our Visiting Indiana Brethren.

We clip the following from the following from the Mississippi Methodist of April 17:

FRATERNITY.

MESSRS. EDITORS—It is to be regretted, and certainly it is unfortunate, that more of the Northern ministry, especially of the Methodist Episcopal Church, have not come South and informed themselves with regard to our social and religious condition before turning loose against the Southern pulpit and Southern morality their anathema maranathas, formulated from the sensational stories and party capital manufactured by politicians in order to inflame and keep alive sectional animosities for the purpose of self-aggrandizement.

On a recent trip down the Mississippi river on a Cincinnati steamer, I had the pleasure to fall in company with several members of the Indiana Conference of the M. E. Church. I had scarcely boarded the boat when, by that instinctive recognition, universal among Methodist preachers, I was approached by one of the party, introduced to the others, and after a general fraternal hand-shaking, felt as comfortable and easy as if in a group of my own brethren. Methodism is alike the world over. They were the Rev. John Poucher, pastor of the Church in Rockport; Rev. E. T. Curnick, pastor of John Street Church, New Albany, and Rev. Mr. Webb, whose appointment I have forgotten.

These gentlemen were making the tour of the South for the double purpose of learning for themselves the religious and social condition of the country and enjoying at this, the most inviting season, the delights of our Southern climate.

I found them genial and cultivated gentlemen, and devoid of many of those prejudices which I had been wont to suppose belonged to so large a majority of the ministry of our sister Methodism. They assert that but a small proportion of the clergy ever indorsed the policy of Bishop Haven; they, themselves [illegible] not indorse Dr. Fowler in toto, and endeavored to explain away his recent attack [illegible] the integrity of Southern people by saying, "He is radical and impulsive, and language often means more than he intends it shall."

We are rejoiced to find that there are a few hearts among the ministers of the great Methodism in the North who do not join with Dr. Fowler in a wholesale slander of the purity of our mothers and sisters.

They are of the opinion, however, that he (Dr. Fowler) will be elected to the episcopacy on the first ballot at Cincinnati in May. [illegible] found them decidedly in favor of a broad [illegible]ty, and even an organic union of the churches, and they report a strong sentiment in its favor throughout the Church.

H. M. DUBOSE.

Fayette, Miss., April 7, 1880.

According to the Presbyterian Journal, of Philadelphia, there are [illegible] ministers of that church [illegible] employment. In answering [illegible], "What is the matter?" [illegible] "We are making too many [illegible], such as they are. It [illegible] said of us, (as it has been [illegible]nation,) they [illegible] for a field, nor a [illegible]."

[illegible] received a pamphlet [illegible] Ap-[illegible]

stitutional one, but is given by the General Conference, and may therefore be taken from the bishops by that body.

We have received the first issue of the Central Tennessee College Record, a neat eight page little paper, which, as stated in Dr. Braden's salutatory, "will from time to time contain accounts of the progress of the College, its wants and future prospects." We will publish the historical sketch given of the College.

The proposed Educational Convention at Cincinnati May 6 is being arranged for by Prof. Comfort, of Syracuse University. It promises to be an important gathering of educators of the church. Dr. Moore, of Cincinnati, is chairman of the local committee.

The Mexican Mission have petitioned the General Conference to be organized into an Annual Conference. It ought to be done.

Read and carefully study the elaborate and reliable statistics we publish this week from the Methodist Advocate.

Personal Mention.

—Amos Shinkle, Esq., of Covington, Ky., is elected the third time a lay delegate to the General Conference.

Our Southern Work.

LOUISIANA.

H. T. O. Abbott, Shreveport: "Our quarterly meeting, held on the 22d, was a satisfactory one. Elder Davage presided. Sixteen have joined the church, nine on probation. The sisters gave a festival and realized $53. We built a new altar and bought a new carpet. A love of Jesus prevails."

Elijah Clark, Algiers: "The church has been made comfortable by a new set of pews worth $150. Membership is increasing. We were sorry when the Conference took Bro. Moore from us, but Rev. T. Kennedy, his successor, is doing faithful work. A committee of ladies—Mrs. Sidney Haywood, Miss Lucy Cooper, Miss Felician Marks and Mrs. Robert Moore. We are getting up a list of new subscribers for the paper."

Sunday, April 11, was a great day at Union Chapel, New Orleans, Rev. A. E. P. Albert, pastor. At 9 a. m. the congregation went to the Lake, where ten persons were baptized by sprinkling and thirteen by immersion. At night the people could not be seated in the large audience room, and two hundred and forty-two partook of the Lord's Supper. Rev. Emperor Williams preached at 3 p. m., and Rev. Scott Chinn assisted at the evening services.

TEXAS.

W. Wesley, Columbia: "The parsonage is done, and the church is filled with love and peace."

Rev. Dr. Morris is doing his best to secure a bell for the church at Mineola, and will be thankful for any assistance.

John Jackson, Jefferson: "Have received four into the church by letter and one on probation. Rev. W. Wesley held our quarterly meeting."

Rev. A. Campbell, Courtney, has given letters to 18 of his members, bound for Kansas. He has four appointments and 98 members on his circuit. More laborers are needed for its spiritual welfare.

S. Hardwell, Brenham: "The progress of our church has been reasonably good. In three week's protracted meeting 119 persons were added to the church, 56 baptised, and there were 81 conversions."

D. Mucker: "When I left the conference I did so with the intention [illegible] more for the Master [illegible]. I am glad [illegible] four preaching points, and three Sunday-schools organized as missionary societies. So pray for the Winchester work.

J. C. Houston of Lodi, Yazoo City, writes a good letter on the duty of members supporting their preacher, and after quoting the Discipline gives many good reasons why no member of the church can be useful or blameless who does not contribute to the extent of his or her ability to the support of the pastor.

C. W. Ivy, Shuqualak: "My work is in very good condition. I have three Sunday-schools on the circuit doing finely. Miss Jane Murphy, one of the teachers in the public school, is doing good work in our Sunday-school in Shuqualak; Mr. Wesley Stewart, brother of Robt. Stewart, post-master at Macon, is also one of our Sunday-school teachers. Rev. O. Gillespie was with me Friday night, March 19, and preached us an able sermon. A good church has been built on this circuit since the annual conference, at Ballard Settlement, six miles from Shuqualak. It is 24x30 feet and all finished. It is deeded to the trustees of the M. E. Church. Bro. Fred Jordan deeded the one acre of land. He and all of his family are full members of our church. Five of the family were converted to Christ at my protracted meeting in August, 1879. The brothers worked hard to build that church and it is finished. Mrs. Powell, the mother of ex-Governor Powell, promises to dress the pulpit for us. She is a Methodist and has been many years."

MISSISSIPPI.

The work at Marion station, Rev. M. Brown, pastor, is prospering.

Jacob J. Garrett writes favorably of the church and Sabbath-school at Canton. They are well attended.

The Sunday-school at De Kalb has 65 in attendance. Supt. L. S. Bell, says the people are well pleased with their pastor, Rev. B. F. Penny.

H. Cawthorn, Enterprise: "Elder Dunn held our quarterly meeting on the 20th. The Lord's supper was administered to 87. We had a glorious time."

H. Henderson, Clinton: "The presiding elder visited us. The church has been celled. Benevolent collections during the quarter $40 10. We are much pleased with Elder Williams."

L. Bradford, Grenada: "Will D. Moore look on the 48th page of the minutes of the Mississippi Conference and see that Whitfield Circuit is credited with $6.25 for benevolent purposes? The conference steward's report says $49."

ARKANSAS.

The members of Wesley Chapel, Little Rock, are determined to build a new church on Gains street, four blocks from the old church. Brethren have volunteered their services, with their teams and wagons, and are hauling the brick and putting it on their new church lot.

TENNESSEE.

H. W. Key, Murfreesboro: "After five months illness and confinement to my room, I am convalescent and able to be at church, but not to preach. We have been engaged in revival for the last three weeks. Thirteen converts up to date and a great many mourners still at the altar. I have not been able to do anything more than sit in the pulpit and manage; but through the faithfulness of the membership and the kindness of Revs. Phenix, of the A. M. E. Church, and H. Robinson, E. Provine, H. Moody, W. Lillard, E. Manson, Wm. Millard, of the M. E. Church; and R. Dowdas, of the Second Baptist Church, efficient work has been done. Elder B. B. Manson held our quarterly meeting and preached two very acceptable sermons.

Sunday-School Centennial.

I hope every Methodist Episcopal Sunday-school in the South will observe the Robert Raikes Centennial on the 30th of May. Send to 805 Broadway, New York, for particulars and programme of exercises. I desire each pastor to preach at 11 a. m. upon the rise and progress of Sunday-schools, and take a collection for our Sunday-school Union as a thank offering. Sometime during the day at a Sunday-school mass meeting take another collection for same cause. Urge upon all of the children to contribute something, and place it to the credit of the Sunday-school, and so report at next session of your annual conferences. Decorate your churches with evergreen and flowers, and then make them cheerful and bright. Don't be afraid of time, trouble, work or money to make the day a grand success.

A second edition of 40,000 of the book entitled "A Fool's Errand" has been sold.

Notes from Texas.

Palestine is probably one of the best openings of our work in the State. Rev. H. Skewes and wife are hard at work—having secured a whole block very central and valuable, and already erected a parsonage and completed it, worth $1200 or more. The "temporary First M. E. Chapel," occupies a rear corner costing $300 and makes the little society comfortable and respectable until the church proper can be built. We worshipped yesterday (April 11) with a nice and attentive congregation morning and evening, and the Sunday-school at 3 p. m. was well attended and conducted. Bro. S. is a man of energy and good taste, and will succeed beyond a doubt. Palestine is at the junction of the Houston and Great Northern, and International lines, and the general offices and shops are located here, giving the city, now numbering over 4,000, a permanent and thrifty population. These "temporary Chapels," built at $300 to $500, to be used for a year or so and then converted into other uses without loss, works well, and we commend it to any and all who cannot build at once what is needed. A building 24 by 36, merely a shell, with double front doors, 3 or 4 windows on each side, and about 12 feet between joists, with floor, and comfortable, plain seats, with backs, etc., then equipped with song books, Sunday-school requisites, and a live pastor, furnishes, in a new country, a good "outfit" with which to launch a better and larger enterprise. Let our people so do in many places.

At Austin the Central M. E. Church is assuming comeliness and proportion. The walls are nearly up and soon will be ready for the roof. The plan is very fine and will be the best and most tasteful church edifice in the State. It stands only a block from the Capital. Our society is yet small and the work of building up the social surroundings of the society will be even greater than the completion of the building. Dr. Wm. Brush is tirelessly at work at the finances while Rev. H. Webb and family are pulling lustily at the spiritual and local work. This is a heavy but all-important enterprise. Let our people everywhere lend a helping hand quickly and cheerfully.

Wiley University, under the management of Profs. Davis, Lincoln and others, is doing splendid work, and is one star of hope for the colored ministry of our church in northern Texas. A better and more cultured grade of preachers is an immediate necessity. Until colored men have time to get an education and prepare for the work we advise largely the employment of white presiding elders, and in any colored conference at least a half dozen of the best, truest and most cultured and effective men of the ministry for pastors, among the colored congregations. Let these alternate rapidly with the colored brethren—remaining only a year in each place, but endeavor by great wisdom, power and grace to elevate the standard of preaching, of thought, and of every day life in church and family, to an approximation of what it ought to be. Ignorant and uninstructed men are somewhat better than nothing, but they cannot teach and preach the gospel in purity or power. If solid culture, ability and piety can be found among the colored men as now in some cases, all right, if not, select white men to teach and lead the people. In some places ten or fifteen years of freedom and civil life have not yielded the wholesome results expected. Many of the preachers know but little more than the people, and the years roll on, while the masses think, act and live but little, if any better than when first emancipated. Ignorance is not the mother of devotion. Many, if not all the larger congregations in towns and cities would welcome, appreciate and support, such men as above indicated. Will not our Bishops and conferences make a new departure in this matter?

The district conference recently held at Jefferson, North Texas, was well attended, and the heart of the presiding elder, Bro. W. L. Molloy, was much encouraged. We mingled several days with the brethren with personal pleasure and profit. These district conferences can be made of immense benefit to the ministry and people among whom they meet, if well arranged and managed. We think important subjects should first be well written up, and then discussed by the conference, and special attention given to points of doctrine, discipline and Bible study, not omitting manner of reading, preaching, singing, pronunciation, etc. There is no excuse or apology for a preacher of several years standing saying, "Brethering," or "Brethering and sistering," yet these and similar errors we may hear a score of times in certain pulpits every Sabbath. Let our pastors learn at these conventions, if not sooner, that "brethren" is exhaustive, and that the frequent use of the word "sisters" in public addresses is out of place, inasmuch as in the kingdom of heaven there is neither male nor female, and that "Brethering" is a barbarism to be discarded.

The singing among our colored people is excellent, and would, with a little judicious training, be superlative; but the tendency is to sing too slow, thus consuming time and violating correct musical taste. Every congregation needs, and may easily obtain, an organ and chorister who will stand in front and conduct the singing. In many places people living within hearing of the congregation are greatly annoyed by the unwise continuance of the service beyond a proper hour for closing. Will not our people wipe out this reproach by dispatching business with energy, and closing at a proper hour? No evening service should be continued later than nine and a half o'clock, and never after ten.

Several of our pastors expect to be at Cincinnati May 1st, but will not be long absent from their work. At every point, white and colored, our lines are lengthening, and our cords strengthening stronger. The SOUTHWESTERN is an indispensable arm of this Southern service, and its management is on the line of wisdom and success.

Work for Women.

DEAR EDITOR—Please permit me through our paper, to say a few words to the delegates to the General Conference.

"After the death of my wife the entire care of my children devolved upon me," so reads the heading of a letter from Bro. Gates. To an intelligent woman with a mother's heart, what a volume there is in these few words. Was there no sister willing, nor able, to supply the dear departed one's place?

Alas! for the selfishness of human nature, not one; and why? Not because religion is a failure, but because every day duties are not inculcated, or not received.

The greatest work of the Church, I think, should be to seek to elevate the girls, seek to raise them socially and morally, for religion without these is only a mockery. The great need of the Church is chaste women, with courage and wisdom to instruct and lead in paths of virtue the rising race.

My heart aches when I think of the many young men, who bid fair to be useful members of the Church and active workers therein, who have been drawn aside from the path of rectitude and right through the influence of evil women.

Oh, brethren, plead the cause of your sisters and daughters and save the Church from corruption. Plead for the establishment of such institutions as will gather in and preserve from degradation and disgrace, the little ones that are now around us.

We cannot save them unless we begin in early life to plant good seed in good soil. They are the Savior's lambs and shall we through our neglect, suffer them to be drawn away from Christ into the ranks of the enemy.

May the Lord help us to work while it is day, so prays your sister in Christ and fellow helper.

Palestine District, Texas Conference.

MARSHALL, Texas, March 18, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—This is a very large district in territory, but churches are few and far between. I have traveled over a large portion of this territory within the last ten weeks; visited over twenty congregations, and preached to each one and to some of them several times. I held nine quarterly meetings, with no complaints except from Jessie Davies (who had withdrawn from the church under charges) at Butler, Texas. I find about four churches on the district that we can call Methodist churches. I have had to hold our quarterly conferences under brush shelter, which they build in summer to keep off the sun, so they use them all the year as places of worship, and these they call their churches. I find four or five hundred members on the entire district. I find that not very many of the members of our church have broken up and gone to Kansas. I have seen entire congregations of other churches leaving for Kansas, taking half price for their lands and stock. I find the district spiritually fair, but temporally not very good. Some places I find it a very hard thing to get them to make any estimation at all for the preacher, though I succeeded in getting them to say something, though some of the estimates are very scant. Some charges say that they will not give anything to the presiding elder, though most of them agree to give him a quarterly collection. As the district is so large, and the people are troubled for a supply, I think it not best to call a district stewards' meeting this year. I think we have everything under headway to build about five new churches this year. We have appointed as building committee for Fairfield: Jackson Jones, Cato Blaine, Halbert Scott, Emmanuel Stark and Sidney Janes. For Jewett: Joseph Hall, Henry Stephen, Robert Monroe, Charles Henderson, Squire Noble and Chas. Thamars. For Crockett: John Bailey, M. James, and Wm. Riley. For Jacksonville: David Jones, Abram Earles and Wm. Jones. I find a call for churches at these places, and I think with a little aid from the Church Extension Board we will be able to have several new churches before the year is ended, for we need a church at each one of these places. The brethren at Butler are at work trying to build a new church, and at about eight miles from Mineola they are building. I supplied Trinity with Bro. L. Callaway; Madison circuit, L. H. Hunter, (P. O. at Leona, Leon Co.;) Tyler, Eli Gray, (P. O. Tyler,) and at Henderson Plato Thompson, (P. O. Henderson.) I found in my travels several young men who see that they have to do something more than just pray to get religion; so they requested me to write to them once a month, and give them all the instruction that I could to help them on in their religious course. This caused me to feel like Mr. Wesley felt when those young men came to him and desired him to help them in their distress. So I agreed to write to them, and give them the best instruction I could. Will you and all true believers pray for them, that they may be one in our number?

WALTER RIPETOE, P. E.

West Tennessee.

MR. EDITOR—March 27-28 I held my second quarterly conference for Rev. J. D. Hay at Mansfield, Tenn. This work was not in good condition when he went to it after the adjournment of our last annual conference, therefore my first quarter was not very good, spiritually or financially; but he being the right man in the right place he has wonderfully improved his field of labor, and I am happy to say that it stands second to none in my charge. It is better financially and spiritually than ever before since my presiding eldership in the west. My second quarter was surprising to myself. The pastor's report was such as never before of this work. All the leaders and committees were prepared with written reports. They were real encouraging and showed the work to be in good condition, spiritually and financially. They promised me $40 for this conference year's service. They payed $21.75. Rev. J. D. Hay is doing a good work and is much loved by his people. He has much power in the pulpit, and preaches with attractiveness. His sermons are able ones, and if he continues in the way will do much for the great cause of Christ. Rev. J. P. Price, at Mason's is doing a good work: his work is very good, spiritually and financially. Rev. L. M. Moores, at Alamo Circuit, is doing a splendid word. Pray for his success. G. Babers, at Gallway, is pushing onward. The pastor at Memphis is holding the fort. [illegible] W. Dwegans, on the Memphis [illegible] is pushing the great cause, and is doing well. Bro. Summerhill is a faithful young man and is doing a good work. My whole charge is on gaining ground. Mr. Editor, I could say more, but stop. I trust the many readers of your paper will pray for our success.

Marriages.

In Canton, Miss., March 19, by Rev. J. W. Parks, Mr. James Frost to Miss Anna Jackson.

Mr. Paul Carr to Miss Kate Sherman at the bride's residence, Enterprise, Miss., March 24; also Mr. J. H. Brown to Miss Leah Gardner, April 4, at the M. E. Church, Rev. H. Cawthorn officiating.

SLEEPLESSNESS almost invariably arises from a disordered state of the Stomach. Stimulate the organs of digestion, regulate the bowels and thereby produce sound and refreshing sleep. Narcotics and sedatives murder sleep, and such forced and unnatural stupor is soon followed by ill effects. But Simmons Liver Regulator will remove the cause of restlessness and sleeplessness by regulating the Stomach; thus, by improved digestion—by a regular habit of body—free alike from laxity or constipation—good health will be established, with its attendant blessing, sound sleep.

"I have been a great sufferer from Dyspepsia and loss of sleep. As soon as I feel the least nervous, I take a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator, and sleep all night.

Deaths.

Died at his residence, at Okolona, Miss., April 3, 1880, Rev. Henry Hardy, pastor of the Tupelo Circuit. He leaves a wife, three daughters and a son to mourn the loss, which we believe is his eternal gain. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

D. MCLACHLAN.

Sister Eliza Armstrong departed this life on Saturday morning, the 20th of March, at 4:30 o'clock. She leaves a husband and two little children to mourn her loss. She was a member of Wesley Chapel at Little Rock, Ark., and also a member of a society in that church known as the United Sisters of Wesley Chapel. Sister Armstrong joined the church some years ago. She was a faithful servant of God.

Eliza Armstrong, wife of J. C. Armstrong, was born in Little Rock, was married to her bereaved husband Nov. 16, 1875 and died April 20, 1880, aged about 20 years. She was converted about a year and [illegible] months ago, and joined Wesley Chapel. She was a faithful but [illegible] Christian, a devoted mother and an affectionate wife. She died in the full triumph of faith.

THE LITERARY REVOLUTION—HISTORY.

The Literary Revolution is emphatically in the interest of good literature and of sensible people. The trash, or pestilential stuff that makes up the cheap "Libraries" that flood the country, is utterly discarded. History, Biography, Poetry, Science—the best productions of the ablest writers the world has known, make up the volumes issued from our presses.

"What is worth reading is worth preserving," is one motto of the "Revolution." Notwithstanding the incomparably low prices, the best and handiest forms of volumes for reading and reference have been adopted, and the binding is always neat, strong and durable. The books are made for people who value contents rather than covers, and who want a limited sum of money to do them the greatest possible service.

Acme Library of History.

In this series it is proposed to present the works of the great authors whose writings have themselves become a part of history, and are associated in the minds of all readers with the nations whose history they narrate. We shall publish them at prices which, compared with usual rates, will be considered marvelously low.

The type in the Acme and in the Aldus Editions is the same. The paper in the Acme Edition is light, but excellent in quality, and all that is generally desired. All of our binding is extra well done. The cloth binding is very neat, and will serve for many years of good usage. The half Russia is more elegant, as well as more durable, and to any one who can spare the small additional cost it is the much more desirable style. The Aldus Edition is printed with extra care, on heavy paper, with much wider margins. In this form our books will compare favorably, if they do not contrast favorably, with the best editions of the same works which have ever been published.

A Great Offer. As the best possible advertisement for our historical series will be to scatter the volumes among purchasers throughout the country, and thus demonstrate their unrivaled excellence combined with low price, we offer to the first 10,000 purchasers of Gibbon and Macaulay a special discount of 10 per cent. from the list prices given. Readers of this paper who will cut out and return this slip, with their remittance, within ten days of the receipt of this paper, will be sure of admittance at the first 10,000 rate. For 10 Days.

Macaulay's History of England

History of England. By Thomas Babington Macaulay. In three volumes of about 2300 pages, beautiful new large-faced brevier type, with very full index. Volume III, completing the work, ready March 31st.

Acme Edition, extra cloth, gilt title $1 50
Acme Edition, half Russia, sprinkled edges 2 25
Aldus Edition, Half Russia, gilt top 3 00

Postage: Acme Edition, 24 cents; Aldus Edition, 36 cents.

For reading or reference we believe this to be the best edition of Macaulay ever issued. Readers will certainly prefer it to the five-volume edition which until recently was sold by the millionaire publishing houses at $7.50 for the cloth, but lately reduced considerably by competition with us.

"The most popular historical work that ever issued from the English press. * * As widely as our language has traveled these volumes have spread the reputation and the opinions of the author."—Edinburgh Review.

"Mr. Macaulay can afford to smile at all reviewers who affect to possess more than his own gigantic stores of information."—Sir Archibald Alison.

"Every page bears testimony to a degree of conscientious and minute research which no historian has ever surpassed."—North British Review.

"The style is faultlessly luminous; every word is in its right place; every sentence is exquisitely balanced; the current never flags."—Westminster Review.

"Macaulay is like a book in breeches."—Sydney Smith.

Milman's Gibbon's Rome.

History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. By Edward Gibbon. With Notes by H. H. Milman. A new edition, in five volumes, with very full Index. The type is new, very clear, large-faced bourgeois. Volume V., completing the work, ready March 25th.

Acme Edition, extra cloth, gilt title $2 50
Acme Edition, half Russia, sprinkled edges 3 75
Aldus Edition, half Russia, gilt top 5 00

Postage: Acme Edition, 40 cents; Aldus Edition, 60 cents.

No other edition of Gibbon's Rome ever published in this country at less than four times its price will compare with this beauty of typography, convenience of form and excellence of binding.

"He exhibits his ideas in the most splendid and imposing forms of which the English language is capable."—Prescott.

"As edited by Milman, a work for all time and all classes."—London Monthly Review.

"Gibbon, the architect of a bridge over the dark gulf which separates ancient from modern times, whose vivid genius has tinged with brilliant colors the greatest historical work in existence."—Alison.

"His work . . . is often something more than history, and above it; it is philosophy, it is theology, it is wit and eloquence, it is criticism the most masterly on every subject with which literature can be connected."—Prof. Smyth.

"His book, in spite of its faults, will always be a noble work."—Guizot.

"His eloquence and his great skill in representation give a charm and splendor the thoughts which he wishes to disseminate."—Schlosser (translated by Davidson.)

Knight's History of England.

Popular History of England, by Charles Knight. Complete in 4 vols. 12mo. Nearly 5,000 pages, beautiful new bourgeois type, with illustrations. Neatly and strongly bound in extra cloth, $3.00; in elegant and durable half Russia, gilt top. $5.00. Postage, 48 cents. Just ready.

This greatest work of one of the most justly celebrated authors of modern times covers the entire period of English history from earliest times to the present, in this respect differing from the works of Hume, Macaulay, Froude and others, each of which covers but a short period of time. Until recently it has not been published in this country at a less price than $25.00; in 1879 an edition printed in the same type as the one now issued by us, but without illustrations, was published at $10.00. As issued by us, KNIGHT'S ENGLAND, in type, paper, illustrations, printing and binding, is all that can be desired by the general reader.

"The best history of England for the general reader. For a single history which may serve for constant use and reference in the library, or for frequent reading, it is to be preferred to every other."—Noah Porter.

"We very cordially recommend these volumes. We know of no history of England so free from prejudice, so thoroughly honest and impartial; so stored with facts."—London Athenæum.

Rollin's Ancient History.

Ancient History of the Egyptians, Carthagenians, Assyrians, Babylonians, Medes and Persians, Grecians and Macedonians, including a history of the arts and sciences of the ancients, by Charles Rollin. In one very large octavo volume, 1,318 double-column pages, very large clear type. Price, strongly bound in cloth, $2.25; In half Russia, sprinkled edges, $2.75; postage 42 cents.

For more than a hundred years ROLLIN'S ANCIENT HISTORY has ranked with the best of great historical works. The author has been especially noted for the intense interest with which he clothes his subjects, so that his history has found its way into the homes of the unlearned, as well as into the library of the scholar. The edition being issued by us is not only the best edition which is now offered to the public at any price but is cheap, quite beyond comparison with the cheapest and most inferior editions.

Comic History of the United States

By L. Hopkins. Copiously Illustrated by the Author, from Sketches taken at a Safe Distance. 16 mo, Cloth extra, Ebony and Gold. Price, 50 cents; Postage, 7 cents.

"When it first became noised abroad that he contemplated bringing out an Illustrated History of the United States, he was deluged with letters from a host of well-disposed persons, such as Thomas Carlyle, James Parton, Wendell Phillips, and others of more or less literary ability, offering to "write up" to his pictures. Mr. Carlyle said he could do it nights. But the public was not to be trifled with, so he resolved to put his shoulder to the literary as well as the artistic wheel, as it were, and he flatters himself he has demonstrated in these pages that truth is more of a stranger than fiction."—From Author's Preface.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow-grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying; They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at a nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rolling of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process can not injure fabrics. In cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and can not get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 8 inches long by 8 inches wide and 1½ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 13 inches high over that, and is 1½ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 5 to 8 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 15 to 30 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7½ inches wide, 1½ inches deep, and weighs about 8 pounds. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics once as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER—ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fibres which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of [illegible] immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling to good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No: Impossible. Then why is it (asks the house-wife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

A girl of 14, "with a cough From Infancy," radically cured.

(From Superintendent of Public Schools for Henrico county.)

RICHMOND, Va., April 2, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—My niece, fourteen years of age, had been subject more or less to a troublesome cough from her infancy. After some persuasion I induced her parents to try your "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY," and now, after using three or four bottles, I consider her entirely cured; appetite, color and vigor restored, and she goes about cheerful and happy, looking the very picture of health. I regard it as the best remedy I have ever known used for bronchial affections of the throat.

DANIEL E. GARDNER.

A Gentleman, who was not expected to live but a few weeks, cured of desperate Bronchitis and Diseased Lungs.

DE VILLIERS'S INSTITUTE, 312 N. 12th street, Richmond, Va., March 8, 1879.

Thos. J. Starke, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—I arrived in this city with my family in December, 1877. I was in a complete state of exhaustion and debility, in consequence of long suffering from an affection of Bronchia, or of the lungs, or rather say both. I was not expected to live but very few weeks or months at the most. In March, 1878, to please my wife, I consented to try the "NEW LOUISIANA REMEDY." I had no faith whatever in it, or any other medicine. I had absorbed dozens of Cod Liver Oil without effect. I soon became convinced of the merits of the Remedy; it gave me, after a few doses, a sound rest at night, it regulated the bowels, it subdued the severe fits of coughing occasionally followed by spitting of blood, and gave me great relief. It is a soothing cordial, an excellent purifier, and an unsurpassing regulator. I am now living and doing well. I make daily 6 or 7 hours class (hard teaching). I have taken in all 5 or 6 bottles. Perhaps I ought to have taken a few bottles more. I wish it was in my power to induce every poor sufferer to try one bottle. It will speak for itself at once. You can use my name freely, and refer any one to me personally, if you think I can have any influence in the matter.

Very truly yours, CHARLES DE VILLIERS.

HOW A LIFE

—WAS—

SAVED.

THE LIFE OF

Chas. S. Prentice

SAVED

BY THE USE OF

WARNER'S SAFE Kidney AND Liver CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.: Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1872 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1875 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Deciat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212½ pounds, 67½ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67½ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called "WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE"), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment, and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 30 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Bue Malesherbs, Paris; Dr. Beteiler, Bordeaux, France; Dr. E. Charmaux, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gielnie, 81 Quai de la Moika; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Beer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

the Board. This was at San Vicente, and now we have begun another at Tulyehualco, and besides the one referred to as begun in Ayapango, Bro. Barker is going to build at Real del Monte. None of these enterprises are receiving aid from the Board. At Apizaco, junction of the Puebla and Vera Cruz railroads, our people are also building, but with aid from home.

The Conference Sabbath was a precious day for all. In the morning Bishop Harris preached before the Union Protestant congregation. All our foreign missionaries, and some of the native preachers who understand English, were present. It was a grand, good sermon. Our love feast at 3 p. m. gave the Bishop an opportunity of seeing how our Mexican people, led out of Romanism, are enjoying experimental religion. At night Bishop Harris, through an interpreter, gave us, abbreviated, his trip around the world. His account of the China mission was not only interesting, but inspiring. Our native brethren were particularly profited by it. Some of them, as they left the meeting, expressed their determination to do and suffer more for Christ than ever before.

On Monday the Standing Committee on the press gave its report, which was followed by some statements and an "exhortation" from our publishing agent. It was seen that our Abogado Cristiano Ilustrado (Illustrated Christian Advocate) has an increasing circulation. It goes into every State of the Mexican Republic, into New Mexico, British Honduras, Spain, South America, and other parts of the world.

We now have in Spanish Carvosso's Life, Bishop Peck's "What Must I Do to be Saved?" Hurst's Church History, Alden's Evidences of Christian Evidences, Brimsey's Theological Compend, the Catechism of our church, Ritual, [illegible] Merrill on Salvation, a [illegible] Hymn Book, and many [illegible] books and tracts [illegible] Leaves are published [illegible], and have a circulation of [illegible], 100 of which go into Presbyterian congregations. [illegible] I am on [illegible] of Texas, [illegible] told most injuriously upon my throat and lungs, and to avoid further trouble I abruptly terminated my campaign until a more favorable season. Thinking a trip by water would be of benefit I engaged passage on one of Mallory & Co.'s steamships from New York to Galveston. The indescribable horrors of sea-sickness on Saturday night and Sunday kept this young brother in his berth for 36 hours, but since then his peace has been undisturbed and his pleasures are unalloyed. The sea is peaceful; the sky is cloudless, no dust, no crowded seats, no disturbance from other passengers, no hurrying at, or to meals, and with no change of cars, but with an abundance of time and ample space for eating, reading, writing or sleeping, this mode of travel seems far preferable at this season and during the entire summer, than by rail. It seems good to get the rest and quiet afforded by such a retreat for a few days. Our work at home moves pleasantly forward, all our services being well attended. We have licensed two of our members as local preachers and they, with the efficient aid so kindly afforded by Bro.'s Webb and Clarke, have maintained services during my absence. You would be surprised and delighted to see our property, with its neat parsonage and comfortable surroundings; with its plain tasty chapel, with its nicely constructed sidewalks, ornamented with shade trees, and with its gardens of adornment and usefulness. One corner we have left unenclosed. On it we expect to erect a church. Yours was the first contribution made toward the erection of this "gem of a parsonage," as some have been pleased to term it.

Your donation was last Thanksgiving day, now, I trust Providence may so favor us that you may again be with us on the coming Thanksgiving Day to aid by word and deed in dedicating our new church which we have in contemplation! Hold yourself in readiness this far in advance.

Our Sunday-school is a decided success. Class and prayer-meetings are well attended and, "best of all is, God is with us," several souls having been soundly converted.

General Conferences absorbs the attention of all our brethren in the North. May God direct in all its deliberations. Yours fraternally,

H. SKEWES.

Arkansas Letter.

A month and over has passed, and we are again at work at Jacksonport, where the last session of the Little Rock Conference was held.

Bishop Merrill did our work much good by stopping with one of the families of our church, although Bro. Reynolds, who entertained him, is a colored man. Of course one of our Bishops, as Bishop Merrill said of himself, could not afford to pay any attention to the little narrowness of prejudice between the races." We thank God for such bishops who look deeper than the skin of a man to find him. Well do I remember conversing freely with the Bishop on what he said to the editor of the Western Methodist while he was in Little Rock about the organization of the colored Methodists into a seperate ecclesiastical body. We were the more careful on this point because we looked for something in the Western Methodist concerning it. The Bishop said he favored all of the colored Methodists uniting in our ecclesiastical organization. The Western Methodist brother said yes, "in yours?" "Well," said the Bishop, "we are better able to help them and will do more for them than any body else." The Western Methodist has, therefore, misrepresented the Bishop. How Bishop Merrill or any other Christian minister could favor the division of God's people in a way that would even indirectly feed the pride and prejudice of either the old slaveholder or the former slave, and at the same time profess to be faithful and practical preachers of the Gospel I can not understand.

Bro. Emory here is doing well. [illegible] will be the people here when [illegible] editor of the SOUTHWESTERN [illegible] again.

[illegible] the pleasure of walking [illegible] the way out to, and all the [illegible] from, Sand Hill—twelve [illegible] see our society there. [illegible] there came to that [illegible]

the person of Bro. Layton (now in charge of Lonoke circuit), who had not a place to lay his head nor any scrip to buy his meat with. He was met by an elect lady, sister Wright, who took him in, as God's prophet, although she was denounced by some people of both races for receiving and boarding without charge this servant of the Lord. She, as but one out of many would have done, said: "I will not turn him away; he is my pastor, for God hath sent him in answer to my prayers." God blesses her today and will bless all such good and true Marys, for that is her name. What is the result? Within a year a number have been converted, a society of twenty members and probationers organized, with a Sunday-school of more than forty members. The school is one of the best, if not the best, in the county, white or colored, outside of the towns. A good church, one of the best in county, has been built and is out of debt; and last, but not least, which shows the character of the work of Bros. Layton and Emory, there are ten subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN.

The New Orleans Seamen's Bethel.

The Seamen's Bethel, located on Esplanade street, held its anniversary in Ames Methodist Church, Sunday night, April 4.

A large audience was present. Rev. Drs. Lowery and Matthews delivered the addresses. Dr. Bristor, the pastor, and Rev. James Morrow, of Philadelphia, took part in the services.

Rev. L. H. Pease, the chaplain, gave his annual report, of which the following is an abstract.

"Heartfelt thanks be unto God for sparing me through fifteen years of service among the seamen here, and permitting me to witness this ninth anniversary of the New Orleans Seamen's Friend Society.

"In our Reading Room we have a library of 2800 volumes. I receive regularly about 200 different periodicals, and have publications in 14 or 15 different languages adapted to seamen of different nations. And there, from day to day, we have had a throng, often numbering fifty and upwards, all silently engaged in reading or writing to friends, and thus kept from ruinous indulgences. Over 2000 letters have been written there during the past year to distant friends, and thus many hundreds of anxious mothers have learned 'where is my wandering boy to-night?' who would otherwise have known nothing respecting him.

"On the Sabbath we have five religious services; one in Scandinavian, one in French and two in English in our Bethel, and one on shipboard on the upper docks. The services on the upper docks have been conducted by Judge Fisk, and this is the seventh year in which he has acceptably and successfully co-operated with us without charge. Best of all, the Lord of hosts has been with us in our meetings. Our weekly Thursday evening entertainments, temperance, musical and social, have been so thronged that it has frequently been found difficult to obtain standing room. These are not mere entertainments, but are intended to subordinate to a higher end. The songs and recitations are the bait, and the temperance pledge the hook by which we seek to catch and save men. On our Roll of Honor, as signers of the temperance pledge, we have the names of a grand army of 1900 men. These, and all others who desire it, are furnished with books and papers on their departure, and these constitute the rations and ammunition of the grand army.

"Our Mission Sunday-school is in a prosperous condition, with a self-denying band of teachers. I have engaged a teacher to instruct in navigation, and arrangements are in progress for a Sailor's Home. If any one doubts the utility of bethels, we have only to say to him and to all as Philip said to Nathaniel, 'come and see.'"

A Good Protest.

The lynching of Jake Tucker, a colored man in St. Helena Parish, last week, called out a vigorous protest from the Picayune. That paper says;

"Is this State to be forever disgraced by violence and murder perpetrated by assassins who usurp the functions of justice, and the executioner? On Tuesday the Picayune contained a short account by telegraph of the murder of a negro by masked men, who broke into the jail where their victim was confined, took him out of the keeping of his legal custodians and hung him. This happened at Greensburg, in St. Helena parish. Greensburg is ten miles from Amite City, a town which became notorious in the annals of crime last year by the assassination of three men confined as prisoners in its jail. A good deal was said about the murders at the time. It was represented that the people of the neighborhood were much excited about them, and were, in fact, "indignant." But their excitement and indignation seem to have no terror for the midnight murderers who break open jails and hang their victims by way of diverting leisure hours. Nobody concerned in the Amite City murder was ever arrested, and, of course, nobody was punished for that detestable and infamous crime. Now we are told that the same band of murderers have repeated their performance at Greensburg, but it is not likely that any of them will be arrested."

More Chain-Gang Horrors.

The horrors of the chain-gang which have come to light in several Southern States where the labor of penitentiary convicts is sold to contractors, are now things of common notoriety. The convict camps established in the different States surpass in barbarity and cruelty any thing which words can describe. The chain gang is found only in the former slave States, and could only be possible where the public sense had been deadened by the barbarities of human slavery.

A dispatch from Burmah, April 12, reports that King Thebaw, being sick, inquired of the astrologers what should be done, and the reply was that 700 persons must be sacrificed, and it was done. The seven hundred men, women, girls, priests and foreigners were burried alive under the towers of the city walls, as a sacrifice for the restoration of the King's health. This same tyranical brute, when he, in 1878, became king of the 3,500,000 people over whom he rules, murdered nearly one hundred of his relatives so that no one would dispute his right to be king. We read of these awful cruelties and are shocked. But we must remember that that king is but the instrument of wicked priests, who, under heathenish superstition, blind and destroy both king and people; and even the priests themselves are to be pitied, because of the perfect subjection of their minds and souls to the false teachings and religious fanaticism which in all ages have justified the most awful crimes. There is one good thing about the barbarities of Thebaw,—he kills his victims.

Judged by the enlightened Christian sentiment of America, the horrors of the Southern chain-gang are worse than the human sacrifices of Burmah. Thousands of persons, convicted mostly for small crimes, are being to-day camped throughout the Southern States in "convict camps," as they are called, who are being subjected to cruelties of the most revolting character. They are poorly fed and clothed and sheltered, they are "guarded" often by men who have no feelings and who have the right to shoot them if they in the least disobey orders.

The following extracts are from an official report made by the superintendent of the South Carolina penitentiary, made by order of the Legislature. The superintendent says:

"I found in one end of the stockade nine sick men, chained on what was intended to be a straw bed, but the straw was too thin to do much good. I could not stand the awful stench, and had to direct the guard to unchain them and bring them out in front of the stockade. I found them in a deplorable condition, all of them complaining of swollen limbs, venereal diseases, etc. I then went to the so-called hospital, where I found three sick. They had some straw to lie upon, and were all chained. They were all covered with vermin and fleas—so much so that I was forced to leave the room. I don't see how it was possible for a well man to exist in these places well treated, much less a sick man with no treatment, or so little that I regarded it as none. They had no change of clothing, no shoes, no covering of any description that I could see. They reported that they had no medicine and no medical treatment, except one dose of paregoric, in the three days preceding, and their nourishment was fat bacon and bread. I left the camp and proceeded to where they were at work on the road, about a mile or a mile and a half distant. I found about seventy-five men at work on the road, but it was so late that I could only look at their condition generally, and postpone inspection till the next morning.

"I went next morning to where they were at work, called the roll, and inspected them. I found a great many complaining of venereal diseases and swollen limbs, and almost all with scurvy. They were very dirty in person and clothing—having no change; some of them said they had not washed for weeks. I saw no blankets or bed-clothing for them to lie upon or cover with.

"I heard great and loud complaint against Captain J. J. Cahill and his guard. One of them, W. H. McGarvey, No. 3,125, showed Colonel Butler and myself scars upon his head which he said were caused by blows from a stick in the hands of Captain Cahill, and persons outside gave the same information. Captain Cahill himself, in reporting those that were dead, informed me that the guard had shot one while in shackles and fastened to the gang-chain, claiming that he was in revolt. We heard that Cahill had ordered the guard to shoot him."

Superintendent Lipscomb's report then dwells upon the mortality rate, showing that out of 285 convicts 114 had died up to the first day of last September, by far the greatest death rate that has yet been discovered in any of the chain-gangs of the South. The report of Dr. Trezevant, the surgeon of the South Carolina Penitentiary, upon the condition of this same gang of convicts, verifies in the strongest terms the Superintendent's report, and, in some respects, adds to the horrors of the picture. He says:

"I reached the stockade on Monday afternoon, the 25th, and immediately proceeded to inspection. I found in the log pen, which is called the hospital, three convicts lying on a shelf made of poles and clapboards, and covered about two inches with straw. Two of said convicts were colored and one white. One of the convicts, John Lord, was in the last stages of exhaustion, and had nothing on but his shackles and a pair of pants—the rest of his body being covered with flies. McGarvey, the white convict, was so weak and emaciated that he was unable to leave the shelf, and the straw was so full of vermin that I was unable to make a satisfactory examination of him. The English language does not possess words sufficiently strong to express the stench that arose from that place.

"The quarters in which the laboring convicts are consist of log pens, twenty by thirty feet, separated by an alley-way of eight or ten feet. In this space, in our pen, I found eighteen other convicts lying on the naked earth, their diseases being principally exhaustion and dropsies.

"The same style of sleeping accommodations prevail in these pens as do in the hospital, with the exception that on some of the shelves there is no straw at all, and from the polished appearance of the clapboards there has been none since they were occupied.

"I saw neither trace or covering of any kind. The stench arising from these quarters was sickening to the uttermost extent.

"The cooking is done in six or eight round ovens in the open air, the bread which I examined being burnt on top, and raw throughout the balance.

"From the stockade I went to where the convicts were at work, and inspected each convict separately. With the exception of nine, I found them all more or less infected with scurvy, and with an eruption that was evidently caused by the vermin on their persons. There were two who were so swollen with dropsy of the extremities that I remarked that they should have been in the hospital, and was told that they were there on light work, just to do what they pleased. None of them possessed a change of clothing, and their persons, though evidently having been washed on the preceding Sunday, were offensive on account of the stench from their filthy clothes."

The Story of the Colored Cadet's Maltreatment.

The following is the story of Whitaker, the colored cadet in the United States Military Academy at West Point. He is from South Carolina, and is described 22 years old, with a complexion so light that he could not be identified as a colored man while parading. He has a handsome eye, is retiring in manner and stands No. 1 in deportment. The matter is before Congress and a thorough investigation is announced. The New York Times thinks the perpetrators of the deed are from the South, because of the remark: "Let's mark him the way they do hogs down South." One Democratic Congressman objected to the further investigation of the case as he believed it to be "a bogus outrage." The same man would, no doubt, swear that there had never been a ku klux in America, and that every Republican voter killed in the South was purely accidental.

No matter who outraged Whitaker let them be found out and punished. This is the colored cadet's story given April 6:

"Last night, immediately after tattoo, I retired, and apparently had been to sleep some time, when I was awakened, I think, shortly after 2 a. m., by the moving of the latch on the door of my room. The door is never locked. At first I thought the noise might have been occasioned by the wind against the hall window. I listened for a moment, and then fell into a doze, when I was again suddenly awakened by some one jumping right on me. I looked sharp, and there were three men in all. Two of them were attired in dark clothing, and the third had on a light gray suit and all wore black masks. I drew back my arm to strike the man who had jumped on me, and I partially raised in the bed in the struggle, when I was seized by the throat and choked till I was almost suffocated, and I was also struck a heavy blow on the left temple, and also on the nose with something hard, the man who dealt the blow shouting to me, 'If you don't be still you will be a dead man; don't you holler.' I was completely overpowered. One of the men then said, 'Let's mark him like they do hogs down South.' And then, with what I think was a knife, they cut off the lower end of my left ear, and slit the lobe of my right ear once or twice. Next they commenced to tie my feet, and I kicked as hard as I could, when one exclaimed, 'Don't you kick, or I will cut you,' and he did stick my feet twice. At this time the small man, dressed in gray, said to one of the others, 'Look out, don't hurt him; see how he bleeds; take my handkerchief and put it around his wounds;' and the handkerchief was taken and applied as suggested, but afterward taken away. They then tied my feet and my hands with strips of white cross belts, and laid me on the floor with my feet toward the bed in the little alcove you see there, and my head toward the wall. Next they tied my feet to the iron bedstead. I asked them if they wouldn't place a pillow under my head, and they did. Again they told me not to holler, and one said, 'Now let's leave,' and they passed quietly out of the room. After they left, I tried hard to gnaw the straps from my hands with my teeth, without success. I cried, but not very loud, 'Help! Help!' but got no answer. I did not dare to shout loud for fear of more harm from them. I think I must have laid there three hours before reveille, and was in a stupor from blows received. I don't know who could have done this thing. I didn't know that I had an enemy. I think I could recognize at least one of the men by his clothing, I tried to pull his mask off, but he jerked back. About a year ago I got a note on which was written 'Look out,' I don't know where it came from. Last Sunday I found a sealed envelope in my room, and, opening it, found a note inside which read as follows:

"'Look out; keep awake; you will be fixed. A FRIEND.'

"I paid no attention to the first note of a year ago, nor did I pay any attention to the warning of Sunday. I felt bad this morning, but am better now. I guess I will come out all right."

Fleeing from Europe to America.

A Berlin dispatch tells of the tremendous emigration movement from Germany to England and the United States. The Germans are leaving the fatherland by thousands to escape the severity of the new military requirements, and the generally increased and increasing hardships of existence on their native soil. They are bringing their savings and industry to the new world, to assist in making the United States the richest and most powerful of nations.

Judging from foreign advices, the immigration this year will exceed the largest arrivals in past years. The arrivals at New York last month were at the rate of 430,000 a year. In 1872 they were 381,460, which was the largest in our history. At present Great Britain and Ireland and Germany furnish more than one-half of all the emigrants to this country, as the following statement arrivals for March will show:

England	2,780	Switzerland	814
Scotland	775	Italy	368
Wales	36	Holland	500
Ireland	4,007	Belgium	85
Germany	6,508	Russia	195
Austria	681	Poland	259
Swenden	2,183	Hungary	678
Norway	494	Cuba	42
Denmark	391	Other Countries	43
France	306

It will be seen that Great Britain and Ireland contributed 7,598, or upward of 16 per cent. more than Germany, which comes next in order, Ireland alone sending to our shores more than one-half of the whole number. Sweden comes next in order, with 2,138. The fact that there were about two and two-thirds as many arrivals from little Switzerland as from populous France is indicative of the proverbial attachment of the French people to their country. Strong attachment to their country and disinclination to permanently establish themselves in other lands is characteristic of the Swiss as well as the French people, but the latter seem to be more firmly rooted in the home soil. Frenchmen seldom go abroad with the intention of permanently severing their connection with their native land. It is probable, however, that peasant proprietorship of the soil has quite as much to do with this as the sentiment of patriotism. Be that as it may, we have no occasion to apply the limitation of fifteen in any one ship to them.—ED.

Questions and Answers.

Question 1. When a local preacher's license is not renewed at the fourth quarterly conference, does the local preacher still remain a member of the district conference?

Answer. He does not, if for any reason the quarterly conference refuses to renew his license. If there was nothing against the local preacher, and by an oversight his license was not renewed by the [illegible] quarterly conference, we do not think he should be debarred from sitting in the district conference.

Ques. 2. When a committee is appointed in the district conference to try an accused local preacher, has the accused preacher or defendant any right to challenge members of the committee?

On the payment of the debts a successful year's work has been done and the end of Ames Church debts seems certainly near. First there were some old unsettled claims; one of $1700, held by John Page, Esq., the builder of the church. Of this Mr. Page gave $1350, and the balance of $350, has been paid. Then there was a claim held by the sexton, Mr. Beverly White, of $800, for which he took $200, which removed another annoying debt. $200 of interest was paid on the mortgage, due up to last August, besides $300 of interest paid just before Dr. Bristor came. The principal debt was the mortgage held by the Lafayette Insurance Company of $5000. This Gen. Cyrus Bussey, with his characteristic generosity, has become personally responsible for, with interest due, the whole amounting to $5,218. Of this Gen. Bussey has received a little over half, including $500 donated by himself; so that there is due Gen. Bussey on the mortgage, and last debt, about $2,500. The pastor has subscriptions to cover this, except between four and five hundred dollars. His work now is to get the remaining necessary subscriptions and collect all. Edward Heath, Esq., has subscribed $200. This is a good showing, creditable alike to pastor and people. The ladies of the church have been untiring in their efforts. Ames Church has a splendid future [illegible] in this city. We rejoice [illegible] and in the name of the general church in its success. We [illegible] its pastorate nearly eight years [illegible], but our personal interest in its success has continued.

preacher in charge when a local elder, deacon or preacher is accused of any crime expressly forbidden in the Word of God, to bring him before a committee of three or more local preachers. If that committee find him guilty he is suspended until the next district or quarterly conference, by which he is tried. He is tried by the whole conference. The district or quarterly conference may bring a local preacher to trial without any preliminary examination. Neither a district nor quarterly conference has any right to appoint a committee to try an accused person, as is the case with annual conferences. A committee may be appointed to investigate a case by a district or quarterly conference, but the trial must take place before all the members of the body.

Dr. Talmage's Advertisement.

In the city of Brooklyn, New York, lives a preacher of some eminence, who has attained much of his present notoriety by spasmodic feats in the pulpit. The press has frequently ridiculed his pretentious noisiness, and he but recently emerged from a church trial during which his reputation for veracity was seriously questioned. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage after meeting engagements in nine Southern cities; and after talking, as he claims, "with high and low, Governors and water-carriers," black and white, "old residents of the South and new settlers from the North," returned to the scene of his peculiar theatrical exhibitions. On the subject of "Mistakes about the South Corrected," he told his congregation:

"I found there had been most persistent and outrageous misrepresentations in regard to the South by many of the correspondents of secular and religious journals, and by men who, overbearing and dishonest in their behavior at the South, have had intimation given to them that their company was not desirable. If a man go South and behave well, he will be treated well. There is no more need of rigorous governmental espionage in Atlanta, Augusta or Macon than there is in Boston or New York."

"The whole subject of American slavery is dead and damned. I inquired everywhere, 'How do the colored people work under the new plan?' The answer was, 'Well, very well; we have no trouble.' * * My friends, all that talk about dragging rivers and lakes of the South to haul ashore black people murdered and flung in, though seriously believed by many people at the North, is a falsehood too ridiculous to mention in a religious assembly. * * * I give as my opinion that to-day there is more consideration and sympathy for colored labor at the South than there is consideration and sympathy for employes in some of the stores on Fulton Avenue, Brooklyn, or Broadway, New York, etc.

"Another misrepresentation in regard to the South I cure when I say that they are not antagonistic to the settlement of Northern men within their borders. We have been told that Northerners going there are ku-kluxed, crowded out of social circles, unrecognized, and in every way uncomfortable. But the universal sentiment of the South as I found it was, 'Send down your Northern capitalists! Send down your Northern farming machines! Buy plantations! Open stores! Build cotton factories and rice mills! Come! Come right away! Come by tens of thousands and by millions!' Of course they have no more liking for Northern fools or Northern braggarts than we have. * * * Any moral man who will go South and exercise just ordinary common sense, will be welcomed, made at home, and coming from Brooklyn will be treated just as well as if he came from Mobile."

Dr. Talmage, in making these statements, proved himself to be either an ignoramus or a knave. The better class of Southern people, and those who in good faith have accepted some of the decisions of the war, will estimate him at his true worth. His effort reads like those apologies for the conduct of the South just previous to the opening of the war, which came from like pulpits. They weakened the Union cause and strengthened the secession movement. They caused the sentiment of the North to be regarded as weak and pusillanimous, and gave rise to the hope that a little bluster and bravado on the part of the South would give peace to the country. That mistake was corrected after considerable bloodshed. To-day the press, which champions the victories of bulldozers, Ku-Klux and stuffed ballot boxes, gratuitously advertises Dr. Talmage. It speaks of his egotistic assumptions as an "eloquent vindication of the Southern people;" just as if the crimes had been charged against the entire Southern people, instead of their authors in every instance. If Dr. Talmage had bought a farm and resided on it a year or so in the interior of any Southern State, or had attempted to express convictions antagonistic to a white community politically; or had labored as an educator or preacher of the gospel among the freedmen, we would have no hesitancy in saying that it would have been impossible for him to have uttered so many words of comfort to the wrong-doers and authors of all the misdeeds for which the South suffers in general reputation. The exodus is a sufficient reply to [illegible] comments on the labor phase of the discourse. The facts of history [illegible] conspicuous to be successfully [illegible] by Dr. Talmage [illegible]. For a little [illegible] will be an increased demand [illegible] books and lectures [illegible] and the adver[illegible] him pe[illegible] should not [illegible] pulpit [illegible]

Louisiana Educational Bill.

Governor Wiltz has evidently done a wise thing in vetoing the educational bill passed by the Legislature which has just adjourned. The old law will remain in force. The following is the Governor's veto:

After a careful examination of house bill No. 235, I feel constrained to withhold my approval for the following, among other, reasons:

In the matter of text books, section second, the responsibility is so complicated that there appears to be no guarantee for a change of books when such changes are desirable, and no security against frequent changes after the close of the present scholastic year; no time being specified for the use of the new books after those now in use shall have been superceded.

Section 4. The board of school directors for the city of New Orleans is to be composed of fifteen members. We have in this city 56 public schools, 480 teachers, and about 22,000 pupils in actual attendance. The city contains seventeen wards with important schools in each. As the number of directors will be less than the number of wards, and as there is no provision for the appointment of local trustees or ward supervisors, the board will not be large enough for an efficient charge of the schools, nor will there be a proper representation of all the tax paying portion of the city.

Section 8. The legal quorum for the transaction of business, eight members, is too small to represent all the interests of the city schools. As six of these members may be appointees of the State Superintendent, the city government may be virtually excluded from all influence in the administration of the board.

The limitations placed upon the expenses of the board in the salary of its secretary, stationery, etc., $1500, and the allowance for the salary of the city superintendent and the expenses of his office, $2000, and the prohibition against the employment of any assistants who may be required for the successful working of the schools, are unjust to the city schools, and are evidently based upon an imperfect estimate of the requirements, duties and responsibilities of the board and its officers.

Section 16 is seriously objectionable in many features, more especially in so far as it allows the distribution of the school fund to private schools, in the sense of tuition paying schools.

The bill is also silent as to what number of pupils shall constitute a "public school." A multiplication of such schools and the distribution of the fund would shorten the session of public schools throughout the State. The colored people throughout the State would particularly suffer from the operation of section 16, since they have but a limited number of schools aided by "paying patrons."

Notice to General Conference Delegates.

DEAR EDITOR—Please announce that the General Conference Entertainment Association will mail to each delegate, this week, a notice of his assignment to a home for the session. Delegates who fail to receive said notice are requested to call for assignment at the Book Concern, 190 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, prior to May 1st, or at the Conference Hall after the session opens.

Our University Singers in the White House.

The Philadelphia Methodist says:

The original New Orleans University Singers, accompanied by Rev. Drs. and Mrs. Godman, J. Lanahan and W. R. Webster, had a grand reception at the White House on Friday, the 9th inst. Mrs. Hayes, the queenly lady who presides with so much grace and dignity, conducted her visitors through the splendid mansion, and called their attention to the various features of interest, historic relics, engravings, etc. Special escort was furnished through the adjoining buildings of the Secretary of State. The party then returned to the Blue Room, and were severally introduced to President Hayes, Secretary Evarts and other notables. The University Singers then rendered several fine selections, with which the company expressed their high gratification. Some affirmed that Dr. Godman's singers were far superior to the celebrated Fiskes, who sang in the same room a few weeks before. Mrs. Hayes and her family attended the grand matinee at Lincoln Hall, on Saturday afternoon.

Crime in Texas.

We are sometimes accused of publishing too much about crimes in Texas. Read this, from the New Orleans City Item:

The Galveston News says that four hundred persons have been tried in Texas for rape and murder during the past twelve months; that fourteen only have been found guilty, and of these fourteen four were pardoned by the Governor. Texas justice is A1. Three hundred and eighty-eight crimes of rape and murder thus go unpunished.

From the Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., we have received circular No. 1—1880, of the Bureau of Education, on College Libraries as Aids to Instruction.

A young man has written to us: "I am extremely anxious to go to Africa, and wish to prepare for the ministry by taking a theological course in the college."

Personal Mention.

—Rev. Dr. A. C. George made a fine impression in his addresses on the cause of Missions before late conferences in the West.

—Miss N. C. Hurse writes that a grand picnic was held at Centreville, La., April 10, attended by young ladies and gentlemen from Cypremort and Pattersonville; and it passed off very nicely.

—Dr. Hartzell left for Cincinnati to attend the General Conference, of which he is a member, last Tuesday evening. He will be absent fully a month, during which time his address will be, Cincinnati, Ohio, care of the Methodist General Conference.

—Rev. Emperor Williams, Graham Bell, Esq., and Mr. John Paddy, delegates elect to the General Conference from Louisiana, left for Cincinnati yesterday. Mr. Paddy goes as reserve in place of Mr. W. B. Smith, of Franklin, who cannot leave home on account of sickness of his wife. These brethren were accompanied by Rev. Marcus Dale, who goes to the Conference as a visitor. Several other brethren will go as visitors from this city in a few days.

Our Southern Work.

LOUISIANA.

T. G. Montgomery, Clinton: "I have received 6 converts and 13 probationers; baptized 5. Protracted meeting is going on, and the altar is crowded every night. Elder Robinson, of the M. E. Church South, preached for me, and Presiding Elder Gould also. Rev. Martin was with us one night. The church here is getting along well, but the times are hard."

John Brooks, Allen: "I arrived at my work, Allen circuit, Natchitoches parish, all right. I have four appointments, and am well pleased. I love the people and they love me. All of my appointments have been visited by me, and have built one new church, which we call Union, and have administered the sacrament at all the appointments but one, and will attend to that next Sunday. I will begin the first Sunday in April to preach a series of sermons on temperance, and continue until I preach on that subject to each one of my congregations."

TENNESSEE.

Jesse D. Hay, Mansfield: "After the adjournment of the Tennessee Conference I came to my work and found it not in a good condition. I made up my mind not to look at the bad, but to look at the good, and work with what power I had. By the help of God I have been successful in every particular. Dr. J. B. Ford, while addressing the brethren in our last conference, gave a very good rule how to get money. Within myself I decided to try his plan, and have found it to be a successful one. My work is better financially than ever before. We are determined to improve our church at this place. My members are going forward, and are anxious to see our church finished. My Sunday-school numbers 103—officers and teachers, 10. The Sunday-school is organized into a missionary society. My benevolent collections are as follows: Missions, $3.50; Church Extension, 95 cts.; Freedmen's Aid Society, 25 cts.; Education, 60 cts.; Tract Society, 15 cts.; S. S. Union, $1.05; total, $6.50, only a few cents behind last conference year's benevolent collections at this place. I have paid the elder $21.75; balance due him, $18.25. I have had several converts. The work is growing rapidly. The people say they will pay their pastor this year. They are doing very well in this particular. March 27-28 Rev. M. S. Butler, our esteemed presiding elder, held my quarterly conference. He appeared to be highly cheered by the progress of this part of his field. He preached two able sermons for us, and the congregations were very large; 80 participated in the Lord's Supper. The Savior met us in His temple, and filled our hearts with His love and confidence."

MISSISSIPPI.

H. Cawthorn, Enterprise: "We have three Sunday-schools, with 175 in attendance. I have received 10 full members in the church on probation. Elder J. W. Dunn administered the sacrament to 84 on his visit."

TEXAS.

J. Smith, Huntsville: "Have received in full connection this quarter 18. We are trying to improve our church property."

D. Harper, Cuero: "The people are poor. They have had to replant all of their crops. I am getting along well under the circumstances."

Around the Kerrville Circuit.

Spring Creek is a small tributary of the Pedernalis river, some eight or ten miles in length from its source to its mouth. The face of the country for miles around, in every direction, is mountainous and broken into little, but delightful valleys, by hundreds of hills. These valleys are fast being inclosed in small farms. The hills and mountains of this section of Gillespie county afford abundant pasturage for the horses, cattle, sheep and hogs that here abound. Grass is in abundance. Cattle and sheep require no food and horses but little from the hand of man during the winter. "The cattle upon a thousand hills" find here a luxurious plenty, and need no care until ready to be driven northward to market.

Near the source of this delightful little stream Bro. Beal, a member of the Southern German Conference, organized a society in 1873, which has formed a part of Mason circuit until the last session of the Austin Conference, when it was cut off of Mason and placed with Kerrville. Notwithstanding some of the members have died and many have moved off, yet this society lives and has a membership of thirty-five. We have no church house on Spring Creek, but have to worship in a small picket pen covered with clapboards, more suitable for a pig pen than a place of worship; yet in this pen, called a house, we have some old fashioned Methodist meetings. The loud shouts of victory have often been heard there, and this shanty has been the spiritual birth place of scores of souls that have been born into the kingdom of Christ.

At my last appointment I secured five acres of land and the promise of some $200 in money or work to aid in building a church. Now if we can get the Church Extension Society to help us with, say, $100, we will build a church on Spring Creek this year, worth $400. I believe I shall be able, before the close of the year to report that the Spring Creek society has moved from the pen to a nice, comfortable church. Two of our best members at this point have died this year—Rev. M. Taylor and sister Rachel McDonal. They were both humble Christians in life, had a rich experience of the Divine presence in death, and are now doubtless in glory. Peace be to their memories.

The pastoral work at Spring Creek is indeed laborious, having to travel over a large district of country to visit the members at their homes, and preaching four or five times at each appointment, besides assisting in the Sabbath-school, meeting the children and holding class-meeting. I am almost exhausted when ready to leave for other appointments; yet I enjoy the labor and toil, and rejoice that I am counted worthy to labor with this needy people.

Jefferson District Conference.

MARSHALL, Texas, April 19, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—I read in the ADVOCATE of this week a notice of a card received from Rev. L. H. Carhart, speaking of the district conference of Jefferson district. The conference was opened at 2 o'clock, Thursday, April 1st. We had quite a large attendance of members from every part of the district. All the pastors were on hand, and with but few exceptions, reported their works in good condition. Many of them had more or less revival influence. Enough could be gathered from the reports of several to satisfy all that they had been at their posts doing good work for the Master. Bro. Moore, of Paris, made a report that would do any preacher honor. He had gone there after conference, found the church one hundred dollars in debt, without windows, doors or painting. He had paid the debt, bought windows and doors, and had the church painted, pulpit and gallery made, and a parsonage built, and was in it. We only have a membership of about 50 at Paris.

On the whole, we had a profitable and very pleasant conference. On Sunday we had the pleasure of introducing Bro. L. H. Carhart, presiding elder of the Austin Conference, to the brethren. His visit will not be forgotten soon. He came as a brother in Christ, not to criticise, but to help move this work forward. He expressed himself as having a deep interest in our colored work. He had great sympathy for the men engaged in the work, and thought they were doing grandly. Such words of cheer coming from such men as Bro. C. make us resolved to double our efforts to save this people. He preached on Sunday in the M. E. Church in Jefferson, with great power, to a large congregation. The people will not forget that sermon very soon. We all say, "Come again."

Saturday evening Bros. Davis and Lincoln came over from Wiley University, bringing with them 25 or 30 young men and women—all students. They made a lasting impression on the minds of the brethren and all who saw them. They saw at once what was being done by our church for the education and lifting up of our young people. I think I am not going beyond the truth in saying that Wiley University is as good and as well managed as any school in the State of Texas. The President, Bro. Davis, deserves great credit for his management of this institution for several years. Prof. Lincoln is doing his work grandly. Miss Patton, a teacher in the school, is an educated Christian lady. Her heart is in the work, and she is beloved by all. One hundred young men and women are being daily trained here in heart and head to go out and do work for the Lord. Letters are coming in from every part of the country, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, promising a large increase next year. They need a large boarding house here, and must have it. Who will furnish the money? This is the place for young men who are preparing for the ministry.

Returning to the district conference we had a pleasant time all day Sunday. The presiding elder preached at 11 o'clock, Bro. C. at 3, and Bro. Lincoln at night. It was a great day for Jefferson. The people were delighted with all they said and heard. The conference was well taken care of by the people of Jefferson. We cannot say that the district is in a good condition, but we can say it is improving, and we are looking forward and praying for a revival. Pray for us.

Fasting and Prayer for the General Conference.

In pursuance of the suggestion of Bishop Scott, our senior bishop, (just received), the ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church are requested to observe Friday, the 30th of April, the day preceding the meeting of the General Conference, as a day of fasting and prayer for the divine blessing on that body, and for the divine guidance in its proceedings.

MAY 2, 1880.—THE TRANSFIGURATION.
SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 17: 1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"We beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."—John 1: 14.

TOPIC.—Warning of the Savior's Death.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Preliminary.—It is, at least, a striking, and, perhaps, a significant fact, that so soon after our Lord clearly had made known to his disciples the sufferings, shame, and death that he was to undergo, there should be another supernatural witness to his glory. The voice of his Father from heaven uttered a benediction upon him at the beginning of his ministry, and now it made proclamation: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

A part of the interest in this narrative centers in the choice made of disciples. When he selected the three, did the Savior know of that which was to happen, or did he choose them, as in the garden of Gethsemane, to be with him during a period of despondency, when their sympathy would be to him like a balm? The three appeared to be nearer to him than any others of his little band. They were the ones whom he selected to be with him at the raising of the daughter of Jairus, and whom he chose to be with him in the hour of his agony in Gethsemane. He took them apart for a purpose. Luke tells what that was. It was not to be transfigured, but with them "he went up into a mountain to pray." Such retirements for prayer usually were in the night-time. Luke 6:12; 21:37; 22:39; Matt. 14:23, 24. The apostles were "heavy with sleep," and had to struggle against their drowsiness. Luke 9:32. They came down from the mountain "on the next day."

There can be no way of accounting for the transformation which took place in the appearance of Christ except upon the basis of the supernatural. They "were heavy with sleep, and, when they were awake, they saw his glory." His transfiguration was the outward exhibition of the inward exaltation and ecstasy that he felt in communing with his Father. He needed not the assurance of the voice from the cloud of his acceptance with him. That was given for the benefit of the disciples. All that touched him became luminous from being permeated with his divine glory.

The theme of their conversation was not the glory that he had with the Father before the world was, nor did it concern the mystery of his incarnation, nor the excellence of his teachings, nor the wonderful character of his miracles, nor the glory that awaited him when he should return to the Father, but they "spake of his decease that he should accomplish at Jerusalem." Luke 9: 31. "Then answered Peter, Lord it is good for us to be here. Let us make here three tabernacles." The apostle's foolish suggestion received no answer. God's presence was made audible as well as perceptible. This time Father and Son were together, and Christ not only heard his Father's voice, but was looking upon his Father's face! He was well pleased because he was willing to become the redeemer of the human race. This was a most solemn attestation of the Messiahship of Christ—of his right to teach. A sight so wonderful, so convincing of the fact of the Messiahship of their Master—and not allowed to speak to any one about it! The command, hard as it was to keep, was strictly obeyed. "They kept that saying with themselves, questioning one with another, what the rising from the dead should mean." Mark 9:10. Christ went down from the Mount of Transfiguration with the cross clearly in view. From [illegible] forward a new color is given to his teachings. He emphasizes the thought that was the theme of conversation between himself and Moses and Elias. "Then the disciples understood." At last! They were wonderfully slow to apprehend. But they were pondering divine things, and men now are just as slow of comprehension as were they. And they had, and we have, a teacher whose patience nothing can exhaust, when a disciple really desires to learn.

Results of Vivisection.

From the New York Tribune.

A series of highly interesting experiments with dogs has been lately made by Prof. Mott, and in the Scientific American of Feb. 7 a detailed account is given. The disclosures are so unpleasant and startling, coming home, as they do, to every one, that we believe they should be given the greatest publicity. The effort Dr. Mott is making to purify our articles of kitchen use should receive the support of every thinking man and woman. There has been too much indifference on this subject—an indifference that has resulted in Americans earning the title of "a race of dyspeptics." Poison, year after year, is introduced into the stomach with a criminal disregard to consequences that is appalling. If every purveyor of domestic supplies will carefully consider the result of Dr. Mott's experiments, as detailed in the Scientific American, one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of these evils will be corrected.

Dr. Mott says: "The introduction of alum in flour, for various purposes, has been a trick of the baker for the past 100 years. Fortunately for society, its introduction is limited now to a few unscrupulous bakers. In England, France and Germany it is an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment to use alum in any connection with articles of food. It should be so in America."

The Royal Baking Powder Company, of this city, a long-established corporation celebrated for the absolute purity of their goods, [illegible] time ago commenced a vigorous warfare against many of their competitors who were indulging [illegible] hurtful adulteration. The [illegible] excited great interest in scientific circles, in which Prof. Angell, [illegible] Mott, and other leading lights [illegible] a very prominent part. The experiments of Dr. Mott are a [illegible] of this discussion, and go to [illegible] conclusively that the most dangerous adulteration that a community has to guard against is alum baking powder. In his paper, [illegible] Doctor says: "It was with difficulty I found a suitable place to [illegible] the experiments so that the animals would not disturb the neighborhood; but, through the [illegible] of the Commissioners of the [illegible] Department, I secured a shed [illegible] their premises, foot of [illegible] street and East River. This [illegible] I had completely remodeled [illegible] suitable house, having the dimensions of about 16x14x12 [illegible] teen stalls were made [illegible] ing the dimensions of [illegible] The bottom of each [illegible] was covered with [illegible]

The breed, age, food, color, and weight of every dog was carefully noted. Each dog was then confined to a stall and securely chained, and they all received a number, from 1 to 16. I commenced my experiments on the ... of September, and finished Dec. 3. My assistant was with the dogs from morning until night, and never left the animals without first securely bolting and locking the dog house. No stranger was allowed to enter the house unaccompanied either by myself or my assistant, and the dogs never received a mouthful of food or anything else from any one except from my assistant or myself. I will now detail the results of my experiments:

lose all energy, and show weakness in their limbs."

It is a clear and triumphant corroboration of the assertions of the Royal Baking Powder Company, and entitles them to the gratitude and support of the community they are endeavoring to protect. As they claim, and Dr. Mott has shown, bread made of alum is totally unfit for human or animal food. 'Tis true, in the bread of domestic consumption there may not be as large a proportion of baking powders as was in the bread used by Dr. Mott, and that accounts for the fact that the symptoms in the reader are not so well defined as they were in the experiments in question. How many there are of our immediate friends suffering from this evil, scientific investigation will alone reveal; but many a lingering and suffering invalid, with no defined idea of his trouble, can easily trace it to its source by stopping the use of alum powders, substituting some brand like the Royal Baking Powder, whose manufacturers have a competent chemist in their exclusive employ, who rigidly analyzes every ingredient before its incorporation into their powder. The old cry of "honesty is the best policy" may be worn threadbare, but its truth will hold forever, and while adulterations and short weights abound, it is a pleasure to see at least one in the trade strenuously endeavoring to give full weights and pure goods.

Given up by Doctors.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good.

degree many of the noblest qualities that adorn our nature. He had been a member of the Presbyterian church 33 years, and also pastor of that church. He earnestly discharged the duties of his responsible position. He was noted far and near among all classes as a man of integrity, piety and reliability, and with the shield of faith he met the grim monster calmly and fearlessly and died praising that God whom he had faithfully served so many years. He is now beyond a doubt in the enjoyment of that glorious rest that awaits the children of God. His death is to be deeply regretted by the M. E. Church. His excellent home was always a home for Methodist preachers.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are grateful to our Preachers and people who have done so much in pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1880 thus far.

But we feel that the field has not been thoroughly canvassed yet. Will not our Agents everywhere make a special effort at once to send in a list of subscribers for

THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR?

We will send the paper for the remainder of the year for ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF. The

GENERAL CONFERENCE

is soon at hand, and the SOUTHWESTERN will contain an abstract of the daily proceedings. The coming General Conference will be an important one. It will have much to say about our work in the Southern States. Several Bishops will be elected, and the question of electing Presiding Elders will be discussed; also the matter of admitting laymen into the Annual Conferences will be decided; besides, many other subjects of great importance will receive attention.

Another great event to transpire in 1880 is the election of a

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

This will occur next November, and between this time and that our people want the news from a reliable source. This they can get in their own church paper.

We will publish the

WEEKLY MARKETS,

which will be of great value to our people in posting them as to the price of produce and supplies, and thus enable them to keep from being swindled.

In the matter of

CHURCH NEWS

we propose making the SOUTHWESTERN better than ever during 1880.

OUR PREMIUM BOOK.

We give the Premium Book to one dollar and a half subscribers, the same as to yearly subscribers. So $2 cash will pay for the paper the remainder of the year and the Book. It is surprising how popular the Premium Book is. All who see it are delighted with it. It costs but fifty cents to subscribers. No one else can buy it for any price.

Now let our Agents and friends make a thorough canvass at once and send in the names and cash.

"NO CURE, NO PAY."—We authorize our agents to guarantee that our medicine, if taken according to direction, will relieve Constipation and the diseases incident to a Torpid Liver; provided they take the genuine Simmons Liver Regulator, by the directions. Be sure to note it is perfectly safe and reliable, free from any the the objections and dangers connected with the ordinary remedies. It is an active Cathartic, Tonic and Alterative, not unpleasant to the taste, and leaves no lassitude or ill effects after it has operated, and in no event can it injure the most delicate constitution. Children take it without hesitancy.

"I have been selling Simmons Liver Regulator for three or four years and it gives entire satisfaction. Don't know of a single case where it failed to cure. Yours truly,

"C. C. GILLILAND,
"114 Main St., Gallatin, Mo.

NEW BOOKS.

Many years ago the literary world was electrified by the appearance of a remarkable novel called "Rutledge," by an unknown American writer, and now a new novel by the same author, entitled "Missy," will be published by G. W. Carleton & Co., which promises to create as wide a sensation as did the former, which sold over 50,000 copies.

ON SELF-CULTURE. By John Stuart Blackie. Price 10 cts.

RUSKIN'S LETTERS TO WORKMEN AND LABORERS. Fors Clavigera. Complete in two parts. Price 15 cts. each.

KNIGHT'S POPULAR HISTORY OF ENGLAND. A History of Society and Government from the Earliest Period to our Own Times. Complete in eight volumes. Vol. 1. Price 30 cts.

The above numbers of the Standard Series, published by I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey street, New York, are now on sale at the newsstands. Choice works of first class authors. Their cheapness should secure them thousands of readers.

Lee & Shepherd have in press a book entitled, "The True Story of the Exodus of Israel," together with a brief history of Monumental Egypt, compiled from works of Dr. Henry Brugsch-Bey, and edited by Frances H. Underwood. Dr. Brugsch, after thirty years of exploration and study, has been able to fix the residence of the Israelites in Egypt, and the birth-place of Moses. The various proofs he has brought forward on this point are ... He also takes up the ... account, examines the ... and places mentioned in Exodus, and traces the route of the Israelites. ancient Egypt, reproduced from the original in Dr. Brugsch's "Egypt Under the Pharaohs." Price, $1.50.

THE POPULAR HISTORY OF ENGLAND, by Charles Knight. "Standard Series" edition, in eight volumes. Price, manilla cover, 30 cents per Vol.; $2.40 per set; in cloth, $2.90 per set. I. K. Funk & Co., New York.

This is the cheapest edition ever issued of this great work. The former price was $18 and $25. This edition is not cheapened by printing on second hand plates and thin wood-paper, as are so many other cheap books, to the destruction of the eyes of readers. The type is large. This work contains nearly as much matter as Hume's and Macaulay's histories combined, covering the whole ground of English history down to 1868. It is called "popular" because it is a history of the people, not of the dynasties alone. Said Lord Brougham of this work: "Nothing has ever appeared superior, if anything has been published equal, to the account of the state of commerce, government and society at different periods." Dr. Noah Porter speaks enthusiastically: "The best history of England for the general reader is Knight's 'Popular History.' For a single history, which may serve for constant use and reference in the library, or for frequent reading, it is to be preferred to every other." The London Standard declares: "This work is the very best history of England that we possess." At these marvellously low prices every family should possess a copy of this great work. Few books are better calculated to deal a deadlier blow at pernicious literature. We commend the "Standard Series" edition to all.

"BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES," when allowed to dissolve in the mouth, have a direct influence on the inflamed parts, allaying Pulmonary Irritation, and giving relief in Coughs, Colds, and the various Throat Troubles to which Singers and Public Speakers are liable.

—Far more bushels of corn are raised in America than of all other grain crops added together. The American Agriculturist for May gives instructive results of hundreds of experiments with fertilizers on corn during 1878 and 1879. Price 15 cents, or $1.50 a year. Orange Judd Company, New York, publishers.

Cross, Southern Passenger Agent of the Louisville and Great Southern Railway, copies of the Tourist's Manual of Health, Pleasure and Scenic Resorts of the Golden Northwest; and Noted Summer and Pleasure Resorts in Wisconsin and on Lake Superior, Wisconsin Central Railroad.

The scientific miscellany summarizes a great number of subjects. New York: D. Appleton & Co. Price, 50 cts; price, $5 per year.

—The Contemporary Review for April (George Munro, N. Y.) has the American Question; Prof. Max Muller and Mr. Mill on Liberty; The Genealogies between Adam and the Deluge; Personal Property, Debt and Interest; The Relations of Living Beings to One Another; the Society of the Future; A Spring Carol; Metternich; the History of Rent in England; the Outlook in Europe.

—In the North American Review for May, ex-Judge Jere. S. Black continues the very interesting series of papers on the Third Term Question begun in the February number. His article is entitled "Gen. Grant and Strong Government," and its purpose is to show, first, that the limitation of tenure of office in the Presidency to two terms is a fundamental principle of our republican form of government; and, secondly, that not only does disregard of that principle threaten the permanency of republican institutions, but that Grant's third candidacy is actually a plot to revolutionize the republic and introduce monarchy. Mr. Leslie Stephen writes of "The Religion of all Sensible Men," and speculates on the prospect of that religion displacing the present creeds of the multitude. George Ticknor Curtis continues his series of articles on "McClellan's Last Service to the Republic." These papers are specially valuable on account of the large number of hitherto unpublished documents which they contain. Mr. Francis H. Underwood contributes an essay on R. W. Emerson and his writings; and an anonymous writer labors to show that the United States Government cannot, consistently with the Monroe Doctrine, permit the construction of an American Isthmian Canal, unless the same shall be controlled solely by cis-Atlantic Governments. The Review is sold by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

The Market Price of Butter is increased 3 to 5 cents a pound by using Gilt-Edge Butter Maker in churning—increases production 6 to 10 per cent. Reduces time of churning one-half. Keeps butter from becoming "strong" or rancid. Gives a rich golden color the year round. Sold by druggists, grocers and general storekeepers. Send stamp for "Hints to Butter Makers." Address, Butter Improvement Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A remarkable proposition is made to our readers this week by Messrs. Marchal & Smith, Organ Manufacturers, of New York City. The terms on which these gentlemen offer their instruments insures complete satisfaction. They not only offer a price at which it seems impossible to furnish such an Organ, but also send it on trial, and if in every respect it does not please, they remove it without cost. Such unbounded confidence in their own work argues well for the quality of their Organs. Messrs. Marchal & Smith's last offer met with unprecedented success, every instrument giving entire satisfaction.

Eminent Dr. W. F. Steuart, of Baltimore, writes: "I take pleasure in recommending Colden's Liebeg's Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator as a most excellent tonic in all cases of weakness, consumption, debility, chlorosis, &c. I have tested it with universal success. Sold by druggists. I. L. Lyons, druggist, agent, New Orleans. 15 19

The New Hymnal

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

For any Washing Machine that will Wash Cleaner, Quicker, with Less Labor and Wear and Tear of Clothes than the

ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, Pat'd Oct. 3, '71.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY PERFECT SELF-OPERATING WASHER IN THE WORLD.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rolling of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLES OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. In cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide and 1¾ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 13 inches high over that, and is 1½ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 5 to 6 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 10 to 30 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7¾ inches wide, 1¾ inches deep, and weighs about 8 pounds. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER—ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fabrics which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

Temperance.

DEAR EDITOR—The New Testament teaches temperance. It also teaches that "drunkards shall not enter the kingdom of heaven." And notwithstanding this, there are many who are claiming to be Christians, and who are willing to consecrate themselves and all they have to the cause of Christ because of his having suffered and died for their restitution. They visit the churches in which God's Word is expounded, they sing and pray when requested; and, not only [illegible], but they about and indulge in [illegible] testimonies, and speak vehe[illegible] about persevering in Christian faith when accosted by others, [illegible] that they are having [illegible] continually dwell[illegible]. Sometimes they [illegible] concerts of others [illegible] drinking of alcoholic liquors; but we are of the impression that all such ministers give an erroneous interpretation of God's sacred Word. The use of alcoholic liquors is prohibited by God's Word: "All Christians are to have within themselves a moral power equal to any emergency; and which they are to bring to bear in an instant with effectual restraint. This power is the united force of a proper Christian's intelligence and a good conscience toward God, which recognizes and enforces all our moral obligations and duties. This is Gospel temperance," when intelligently understood. God's spirit will never consent to fraternize whisky spirits. Christ has gone to prepare a place in which to take his followers, and those who have not given themselves to their inappeasable appetite; those who have not tried to pervert his words so as to palliate their sacrilegious offenses; those who have perseveringly striven against the satanical temptations; those who have denied themselves, their families, and taken up the cross simply for Christ's sake. Heaven is no common place — no barrel-house in which all classes are equally invited. W. S. HAWTHORNE.

Letter from Professor Willis.

The many friends of Prof. J. B. Willis will be pleased to read the following letter from him, although it was not written for publication. We are glad to learn of his great improvement in health. He left his school in Boston, and sailed from New York on his trip because of broken health:

GOLD HILL, Nevada, April 12, 1880.

DEAR FRIEND—Nearly two years have elapsed since I have heard anything directly from you, a fact which I have continually regretted, and it was my purpose to write you immediately on my arrival on the Pacific Coast, but the days have been so full of unexpected and imperative demands that my correspondence has continued in the same neglected state as when I was physically unable to write at all without great suffering. Presume you are more or less familiar with my history since leaving New York Dec. 4, 1878. After three months of ocean life, during the first half of which my sufferings were indescribably great, I arrived on the coast of Peru, South America, much improved in general health, but otherwise little benefited—utterly unable to undertake any mental work. Two months were spent wandering about in Peru and Bolivia, during which I crossed the Andes four times, and enjoyed an experience the uniqueness and value of which you can well estimate. Thence I floated Southward, calling for a little time at every important point on the coast, and making frequent excursions into the interior, until I finally reached Concepcion, in Chili, where I found an old college friend in charge of the "Collegio Ingles," and there I spent about six months, teaching part of the time, and rusticating about the country at my own sweet will. Several desirable and lucrative positions were at my service for the present year, but having been fully convinced that a continuance of that work would very seriously impair the probability of my complete recovery, I made up my mind to give up present chances for future hopes, and so came to California, where I landed Feb. 15, 1880. It was my purpose to remain in San Francisco for two or three months at least, but fortunately (or unfortunately) was taken sick and confined to my room for several days, and the weather proving extremely disagreeable, I became thoroughly discouraged and disgusted, and finally yielded to my brother's imperative summons for me to join him in Carson City, where he has been preaching during the present conference year. On my arrival I learned that the Bishops, anticipating a more speedy return from South America, had appointed me to this work, and that the people had been most anxiously awaiting my return for more than six months, so that instead of the expected rest, I found myself confronted with what seemed a providential call, and after a good deal of hesitation I decided to undertake one sermon per Sabbath, and here I am "botching it" in a very comfortably furnished parsonage. Am the only parson in the place—a roaring mining town of 5,000 inhabitants. Have been here five weeks, and now have good audience, and a large and flourishing Sunday School, with 13 teachers and 125 scholars, and increasing at the rate of about a dozen per Sabbath. Have a very comfortable church, which, with $250 of improvements, will be in splendid condition. My parish is large, and its work exacting—over 100 families to visit, and every one of them living on the slopes of these almost inaccessible hills. So much for my work and surroundings. My brother is only twenty miles [illegible], and we see each other al[illegible] every week. Thus far my [illegible] [illegible] most beneficial. Am unable to read and study however but little, and hence must do lots of unsatisfactory work. Should I continue to improve, I shall in all probability remain here until conference in September. It was my intention to visit New Orleans as soon as I got East, but just now that time is rather indefinite. We are planning a three weeks' trip to Yosemite Valley overland for the summer vacation. Am exceedingly anxious to hear from you and all my friends in New Orleans, and to see a copy of the SOUTHWESTERN, only two copies of which have greeted my eyes in as many years. Ever faithfully yours, J. B. WILLIS.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter from Martinsville.

MARTINSVILLE, Miss., April 4, 1880.

MR. EDITOR—I reached here February 1st, circumstances preventing any meeting at the time. Seventeen miles up the river from Yazoo City we have a very good church. I found a large number of people there; about 98 members and a progressive Sunday-school, also a good day school under the charge of Rev. A. S. Johnson, of Georgia. He is a nice young gentleman. His wife acts as an assistant. They are both qualified for the work. I found a very inferior pulpit at Holly Grove church, so I had it taken down and had a better one built. The church is very poorly seated. I have gotten up a subscription of $50, of which $30 has been paid, for the purpose of seating it.

At this place (Wesley Chapel) we have a very commendable church, a good pulpit, and the church is nicely seated, with a membership numbering eighty with many probationers, of whom twenty-three have been received into full membership. We have a wide awake and energetic Sunday-school and also an enthusiastic day school under the principalship of Mr. Geo. C. Granberry, of Tugaloo; Miss I. B. Griffin assisting. The people in general seem to be alive to the best interest of the church. Elder Bradford met us on the 14th ult., and found everything in working condition. The day being one of rain, the Lord's table was not administered until Thursday following, when we had a good time. We raised $10 for the Elder. As both churches were not represented at Holly Grove, the pastor administered the Lord's table here on the 28th ult., and the people received the Holy Ghost with much power. We collected $10 for the Elder on his second round.

My people, as a mass, care so little for an education that I have set apart the fourth Sunday as a day to call them together and lecture upon the importance of being educated. The exercise will be opened by Rev. J. M. Dickson, who will be followed by Geo. C. Granberry with "Who is responsible for the good government of schools?" Music—"The Year of Jubilee is Come;" an essay by Miss Sidney Freeman—"Dress of Children;" an essay by Mrs. M. R. Smith—"The Best Mode of Teaching Sunday-school;" music—"What a Friend We have in Jesus;" lecture by Prof. A. S. Jackson; address by the pastor—"What our Church has Done and is Doing toward Educating the People." As the 30th of May has been set apart for the children's day, we have made the following programme for that day: The exercises will be opened by Rev. James M. Dixon; an address by the pastor on "Duty of the Day;" lecture by Mr. Geo. C. Granberry on "Design of Sunday-school and Christian Training of Children." At 7 o'clock p. m. the people will be addressed from the pulpit by Revs. A. S. Jackson and J. C. Houston on "Temperance," which, we think, will be very appropriate for the occasion. Yours,

I. B. GRIFFIN.

Chinese Talk.

A native Chinese preacher, in a sermon given at a late conference, offered to the preachers the following good counsel, which is well worth the attention of others besides those that dwell in the Flowery land: "Ask the Master for Peter's hook, to bring up the fish; for David's crook, to guide the sheep aright; for Gideon's torch, to light up the dark places; for gospel seed without any tares in it; for Moses' guiding rod; for the brazen serpent, to cure the bites of the world's snakes; for David's sling, to prostrate your giant foe; for the armor inventoried by Paul in the last chapter of Ephesians; but, above all, for the wonderful Holy Spirit to help at all times. If we have all these, it is no matter [illegible] we go."

Central Tennessee College.

This school had its origin in the necessities of the colored people, and the Christian sympathy of their friends, in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The thronging of the colored people in the cities at the close of the war gave rise to the opportunity and necessity for establishing this, and other schools for them in this city.

Early in 1865, Rev. A. A. Gee had a school organized for the children of the colored people. Revs. John Seys and O. O. Knight had charge, and were engaged in teaching. The school was opened in the building now known as Clark Chapel. The school increased rapidly in size, until the church became too small, and the next year it was moved into the building on South College Street, now occupied as a furniture factory, and then known as the Gun Factory. In the meantime, the missionary society of the M. E. Church had appropriated ten thousand dollars for the establishment of a school for the youth of the South, in which the preparation of young men for the ministry, and for the missionary work of the church, should be a prominent feature. Bishop D. W. Clark, D.D., under whose special charge this money had been placed, selected Tennessee as the State, and Nashville as the city in which the school should be located. A board of trustees was duly incorporated by the legislature of the State, and the money was placed in their hands. It cost about one thousand dollars to prepare the Gun Factory for school purposes, and at the close of the second year in 1868, the building was returned to its owners by the United States Government. The trustees bought the present site of the College, on Maple Street during the year 1868, and the school was opened in the only building on the ground, about the 1st of November. This building, only a dwelling house, was wholly unfit for the accommodation of the school, and with the aid of the Freedmen's Bureau, the trustees completed two brick buildings, the present boarding hall and Thompson Chapel, which were used the latter part of the school year. These buildings in a few years could not afford accommodations for the number of students who sought the advantages of the school. To aid in raising funds for a new building, the "Tenneseeans," a troupe of singers composed of students of the college, gave concerts in the Northern States in 1874-1876, with great credit to themselves and delight of many thousands of hearers, by which assistance the Freedmen's Aid Society completed another building in 1875, at a cost of about twenty thousand dollars. About this time it became evident that there was a real necessity for a Medical school in the Mississippi Valley, open to colored persons seeking preparation to practice the profession of medicine among their people. The great demand hitherto for teachers and ministers for this people had turned nearly all the teaching in the college in the direction to meet this pressing demand. But the time seemed fully come when this new need, developed by the advancement of the colored students in education, and in the knowledge of the wants of their people, must be met. By the assistance of Rev. Samuel Meharry, of Shawnee Mound, Ind., a beginning was made in 1877, the first class of one, Dr. J. M. Jamison, now successfully practicing in Nashville, was graduated; three classes have since graduated nineteen others. This department has been steadily growing, and the need of increased accommodations having become a necessity, the Brothers Meharry, by their counsels and generous contributions, have aided Rev. R. S. Rust, D.D., corresponding secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, in erecting a beautiful building near the other college buildings, specially for the Meharry Medical Department, from which it is expected hundreds of competent physicians will be sent out to bless their people in this and other lands.

During the fourteen years of the existence of the college over three thousand different students have been enrolled. Hundreds of these have engaged in teaching. Scores of ministers are laboring in the various conferences of the different branches of the Methodist Church, and some are successful workers in other churches. From reports of students who have taught, it is estimated that nearly two hundred thousand children have been taught in day and Sunday-schools in the South by students of this school. Students have passed through all the grades successfully, from the primary class to the complete college course. This has been done on the part of the students, by hard study, self-denial and hard work to procure the means to support themselves while they pass through these several courses of study. They have done this cheerfully, under circumstances calculated to discourage stout hearts. Most of them have been able to pay their entire expenses by their own labor. Their attendance has been irregular in consequence of having to labor for low wages, and in some cases uncertain payment. The students of this college have taught successfully in nearly every Southern, and in some of the Northern States. Their work has given satisfaction, and has been highly commended by school directors and county superintendents. The present school year has been one of the most prosperous. Over three hundred students have been enrolled, and all departments have shown an increased attendance. The prospect for an increased attendance in the future is bright, and an increased usefulness seems to be opening up before the Central Tennessee College.—Central Tennessee College Record.

A Negro's Eloquence.

At Waxahachie, during the last term of the Ellis county district court, a colored man was indicted for entering into conspiracy to murder. He was brought to trial, the evidence was strong, and, in spite of the good fight made in his defense by his attorney, he was convicted. A motion for a new trial was made, and the judge, seeing that no error of law was made, and believing the evidence sufficient, promptly overruled the motion. When the prisoners were brought in to be sentenced, this negro was among them. When asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, he said he knew anything he might say would have no weight with the court, as all the forms of law had been complied with, and he must go to the penitentiary, but he had something to say for the benefit of his colored friends, and, with the permission of the court, he would make a few remarks. The court told him that he would listen. The negro started off slowly and deliberately, reviewing the testimony, showing the inconsistencies of witnesses' statements, and then, carried away at the idea of the wrong done him, he burst forth in a strain of eloquence seldom heard. When he sat down the judge said: "Sam, I thought you guilty; I don't believe so now, and will set aside the judgment overruling your motion for a new trial and give you another chance." So eloquently had the negro presented his case, that the county attorney dismissed the case, and the prisoner walked out of the courtroom a free man. This is the first case, in Texas, at least, where a man brought up to be sentenced was ever turned loose. Every person present says that the effort was the finest one ever heard. The negro is uneducated, and is a common field hand.—Dallas (Texas) Times.

An Englishman's Opinion.

John Bright has written a letter to a gentleman at Atlanta, which indicates that he has a good knowledge of the current events of the South. He remarks:—

"As for your old slave South, you will have few Englishmen settling there so long as the old temper of your people continues to exist. We hear of the ill-treatment of the negro and of the hostile disposition of many of your white population toward families who come from the North. I know not how much of this is true, but so long as the belief in its truth exists your Southern States will make small progress in comparison with the North and West. You have soil and climate, but you will not easily or speedily shake off the old curse, and men from Europe will prefer a country where slavery has not prevailed, and where the negro is not a considerable portion of your population; they will think that the North and West offer a better field for them—with more real freedom and less of the elements of disorder. I wish all your States a growing prosperity."

The negro exodus question is still one of importance, not only in a political, but in a politico-economic and humane sense. regal title of Queen City. Cincinnati is rich also in its historical relation to the early labors of Methodism in extending itself into the great West and South. The names of many of our early heroes are still fragrant here in the memories of many of our citizens. The names of Finley, Raper, Christie, Morris, Wright, are embalmed in some of our Churches. Here, too, is the birthplace of German Methodism, and its venerable father, William Nast, is still among us, honored and cherished by all. For nearly fifty years this has also been a great center of Methodistic publishing interests, from which has gone forth through the West and South a steady stream of periodicals and books, whose power and influence for good no man can measure.

It is now forty-four years since a General Conference assembled in this city. Few live now who participated in its doings. Roberts, Soule, Hedding, and Andrew presided over its deliberations. Beverly Waugh, of Baltimore, and Thomas A. Morris, of this city, were then elected bishops, and with them Wilbur Fisk, who set the marvelous example which no man has had the courage to imitate, of declining the episcopacy after having been elected to it. These, and nearly all who were associated with them in that Conference, have died in the faith. Great changes have passed upon the city, the State, the country, and the Church since that time. With an unbroken North and South, only twenty-two conferences were represented, and on a ratio of one member for every twenty members of annual conferences, only one hundred and fifty delegates were elected. Before us to-day, assemble two hundred and forty-five ministers elected on a basis of one to every forty-five members of the annual conferences, and one hundred and fifty-two laymen, a body of almost four hundred representatives from ninety-five conferences of one branch of Methodism alone; and these include representatives from nearly all parts of the world, whereas at that time we had no foreign work at all, except the mission in Liberia, which was at that session created the first of our family of foreign conferences. From Africa, from China, from India, and from several States in Europe, we welcome to-day the representatives of a Church whose mission stations girdle the world. The Conference of 1836 represented a membership of the whole of Episcopal Methodism of this country of 650,000. This one repre[illegible] a membership of 1,700,000, in [illegible] branch of the church, while [illegible] church that was here [illegible]ted in 1836, now numbers [illegible] two millions and a half [illegible], an almost four-fold in[illegible] of membership in forty-five [illegible] and more than six-times as [illegible] annual conferences; and [illegible] the triumphant host [illegible] time have gone to their [illegible] behalf of the Conference in a short, but very appropriate speech. We quote in part, as follows:

In thinking of the growth of the Church, while you were speaking, a little incident came to my mind. On my arrival in this city there was placed in my hand a little card, and on it was printed a large list of works on the refutation of Methodism, information designed for members of this body and for the public who may look in upon this body, as to where they might find a refutation of the Methodist Church. We were told thereon that these books were gathered in two or three large institutions in the East. I could not but think: Why all this labor in refuting Methodism? I am not aware that theological schools have undertaken to make a collection of books refuting any other branches of the Church of Christ, but for some reason careful preparation has been made of a library to refute Methodism. I ask why? I suppose it is because it has had this wonderful growth. I am very certain that none of our theological schools have made any collection of books refuting other denominations. We have been willing they should stand by us in a fair field for us all.

But, sir, the growth of the country and the progress of the Church have been alike wonderful. I am reminded this morning of the growth of public improvement, anticipating and providing for the enlarged condition of the Church. It is a very pleasant thought to me that the progress of improvement and invention has provided for the Church, as she needed them, the appliances necessary for her perfect development. Just as we needed more rapid transit, railroads were finished; just when we needed it to communicate with the men who are carrying the work of the Church into heathen lands all over the world, the telegraph laid its electric line under the sea, and when we needed larger buildings for such a great gathering of the Church as this, for which our churches cannot afford sufficient accommodation, the Opera-house is thrown open to us. [Cheers.] It was not so with our fathers; the opera-house was not open to them. The opera houses of that day were not filled with the voice of songs of this nature.

We will try and keep the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN posted on all the chief doings of the Conference.

The Labor Strikes.

Our amiable contemporary, the New Orleans Christian Advocate, (M. E. Church South,) in a spirit of forgetfulness, admitted these statements into its editorial columns:

The recent labor strikes on the river, between New Orleans and Donaldsonville have been, as might have been expected, a choice morsel to the Republican religious editors. The strikers happened to be negroes, misdirected and infatuated negroes. They were an armed mob, guilty of trespassing upon the property of the planters, and of violently and forcibly preventing the well-disposed from pursuing their accustomed labor. Negroes were whipped and beaten most unmercifully, and the lives and property of the whites placed in peril by these armed bands of colored strikers. The Governor, as in duty bound, sent a few militia men to the scene of the trouble, to protect the people, to preserve the peace, and to arrest the ring-leaders. The position taken by the authorities was the same that was taken by the State and national governments in reference to the railroad strikes and of miners. But the fact that these lawless strikers in Louisiana were negroes, made the difference in the eyes of those who can see nothing but the perfection of beauty and propriety in the character and conduct of the colored race.

The SOUTHWESTERN has conscientiously criticised the unnecessary use of troops against labor strikers. The facts that the strikers were negroes, misguided, trespassing on property, preventing others from pursuing their accustomed labor, and had whipped some of their own race, were duly noted. That the "lives and property of the whites were placed in peril by armed bands of colored strikers" is only partially correct. If any life was endangered, the indiscretion of the whites in firing upon the strikers unlawfully gave rise to that danger. It is an exciting circumstance in the settling of disputes anywhere; and the negroes are good imitators. The purpose of the strikers was to secure higher wages, not to take life or property. The civil authorities made no attempt whatever to suppress lawlessness, and the judge who called for troops could have sent a constable to the rioters, armed with a writ. The Governor, "in duty bound," should have told the civil officers to discharge their duty. Instead, the militia was hastily, if not lawlessly sent, at great cost to the public treasury, to do what in all probability a constable or sheriff [illegible] have done, with a regular [illegible].

[illegible] this case the St. Charles Her[illegible] with our view: that [illegible] authorities might have [illegible] to do something before [illegible] was ordered out. Our [illegible] is mistaken when it ma[illegible] action to be [illegible] that of the State [illegible] Governments with [illegible] and miners [illegible] it was [illegible] resistance [illegible] overpower [illegible] did stop work, and have not yet resumed it. On last Saturday evening affidavits were made against four or five of the leaders, and, having been placed for execution in the hands of Sheriff P. A. Jones (a colored man), he proceeded alone and unaccompanied to the Burnside plantations, situated five or six miles below Donaldsonville, on the opposite side of the river, and, without any difficulty, executed all the warrants and lodged the ringleaders in the parish jail, where they are still.

On Monday morning their friends, to the number of one hundred or one hundred and twenty, believing that they were to be tried on that day, marched up very quietly, without any arms, and without making the least hostile demonstration, to Darrowville, opposite Donaldsonville, and contented themselves with sending over to the court-house a committee of seven from among their number to ascertain what would be done with their friends, the prisoners. Upon being told by the proper authorities that their trial would not take place until to-morrow (Thursday), they returned home very peaceably and have been very quiet since. This I have from one of Mr. Burnside's agents, whom I saw this evening.

We shall cheerfully support the faithful execution of the law, but object to partisans getting the ear of the Governor, and exaggerating an ordinary labor strike into undue proportions to serve partisan ends. We regret that our contemporary cannot take a more charitable view of the strikers, especially when it is known that the wages now received will not feed, clothe and educate them to become better citizens.

Death of Rev. James M. Vance.

Rev. James M. Vance died in this city on Friday last at 12:10. The deceased was born a slave in Tennessee, bought himself before the war, and acquired considerable property. He was sixty-five years old. Forty years were devoted to the ministry. He was one of the first ministers who joined our church in this State, and for six years he served it as a presiding elder. At the last annual conference Bishop Harris assigned him to Thompson Chapel, but he was only able to fill the pulpit once. For nearly three months he was confined to his bed. Rev. A. E. P. Albert, and others who visited him, found him perfectly resigned in spirit. He leaves a wife and two grown sons to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held at Union Chapel, and his remains were followed to their rest by a very large concourse of people. Due honors were paid him by Masonic brethren. It was remarked that his funeral was the largest ever witnessed since that of Hon. O. J. Dunn, some years since.

Judge Billings on Repudiation.

Last week Judge Billings, of the U. S. Circuit Court passed upon the application of Henry Bier, a citizen of France, for an injunction pendente lite, requiring the municipal authorities of New Orleans to show cause why their December budget, levying a tax of fifteen mills in 1880 should not be carried into effect. The Council had subsequently adopted an ordinance reducing the levy to ten mills, a virtual repudiation of obligations to its premium bondholders. From the clear decision of Judge Billings we make the following extract:

Then I am at a loss to see what defense can be successfully made to the demand of the holders of these bonds in a court either of law or of equity jurisdiction. The case presented is this: A municipal corporation undertook and promised that they would make an annual levy to satisfy certain of its debts. They did this under the most solemn of legislative sanctions, and when in the forum of conscience they must admit they owe these debts. Upon these promises and undertakings old obligations were surrendered, and the obligations upon which this suit is brought were received and put into circulation. The city has levied the contract tax, and the question is, shall she be enjoined from recalling that levy? The provision of the new constitution known as article 209, and the act of the general assembly of 1879 known as act No. 79, if they were intended to include the city of New Orleans, can have no effect, for around this contract is thrown the protective power of the federal constitution, which prohibits any State from passing any law which shall impair the obligation of a contract. The Supreme Court of the United States has said again and again that a subsequently passed statute which repeals or restricts the power of taxation as it existed at the time of incurring obligations is, as to such obligations, null and void. Van Hoffman vs. Quincy, 4 Wall., 535, and Butz vs. Muscatine, 8 Wall., 562.

Greatly to the surprise of editor and publishers of St. Nicholas, who had not entered it for competition, nor thought of doing so, it was awarded the first prize offered by the Mass. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, for the publication which best explains and defends the cause of mercy to animals. Mentioning this, the New York Evening Post, says: "What St. Nicholas has done for the right in this respect has been done simply in the course of its uniform labors for the building up of sound manly and womanly character among its young readers, and its work is entitled to the prize awarded, rather as a testimony to the uniform character of the magazine than as the reward of special effort."

A band of masked men visited several colored families near Springfield, La., accused them of stealing hogs, and ordered them to leave. Three families, or eleven persons in all, are now in this city. They say they were living in comfortable homes of their own, had [illegible], and lately butchered [illegible] usual summer [illegible] neighbor[illegible] hood, and they attribute their driving out to the jealousy of poor whites. They regret to leave the homes and the fruits of their honest industry, but know the midnight raider to be superior to the executors of Louisiana law.

Recent English journals seem to note the fact that we are now making better paper in this country than is being manufactured in England. The Queen of March 13th, speaking of the effects seen in the engravings of Scribner's Monthly, says of the paper on which that magazine is printed, "it is of such a texture and has such a surface that the printer is able to reproduce the most delicate touches. As no similar paper is used in this country, we must be content with merit of a different order in home work."

Moody and Sankey, the celebrated evangelists, spent Sunday, April 18th, in this city. Services were held, at 11 a. m. at Carondelet Street Methodist Church, at five p. m. at Ames Methodist Church, and at 8 p. m. at Coliseum Baptist Church. Also on Monday, at 12 m. in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Immense crowds were at each service. They left this city on Tuesday, the 21st, for Texas.

Communications for the columns of the General Conference Daily can be addressed to the Editor, Rev. W. H. Daniels; proposals for advertisements and other business matters, to Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Local option was voted down in the Ohio Legislature, by a small majority.

—Rev. P. Jamison, reporting the death of sister Louisa Barker, says that sister Roxanna Williams, her husband and two children were badly wounded by the storm at Macon, Miss.

—F. H. Johnson writes from Alleyton, Texas: "Bro. O. B. Clark requests me to express his joy to you. He has heard from his people, and his wife's people, by advertising in the SOUTHWESTERN. The paper has overpaid the price of it in finding his friends. Some of them were in Mississippi, and some in Tennessee. We are glad to hear from them. Thank you, thank you a thousand times."

—Zion's Herald, of April 22, says: "Bishop Foster has just returned to his home, looking fresh, but thoroughly tired out by an extraordinary and unintermitted succession of services. In fifty days he has traveled five thousand miles, delivered twenty-four sermons, lectures and addresses, and thirty days of the time he passed in conference and cabinet sessions. This gives a somewhat vivid idea of the work of our bishops. Surely the office is not a sinecure."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TENNESSEE.

J. F. R. W. Summerhill, Cedar Grove: "We held our second quarterly meeting at Mt. Union on the 34th ult. Our beloved elder, W. Butler, was unable to be with us on account of sickness in his family. Rev. H. Burton presided. We collected $5.15. Fifty communed with us, the largest number known at that place. We are getting ready for the 30th of May."

E. Provine, Alexandria: "The Murfreesboro district conference was held March 24. Rev. Hiram Robinson preached the opening sermon. Elder Manson called the conference to order, and the writer was elected secretary. Eight pastors, 4 Sunday-school superintendents, 6 class leaders and 5 local preachers were present. It was agreed to pay the elder $240. The spiritual interest on the work is good, but it is financially weak, especially on that part of it where many of our members have gone to Kansas."

MISSISSIPPI.

L. P. Brown, Shubuta: "Elder Dunn held our quarterly conference. The dollar system for missionary collections was adopted. Three converts during the quarter. Churches in favorable condition."

W. H. Gallion, Holly Springs: "For the past three weeks I have been engaged in a protracted meeting. We have received 46 members into the church; 40 are new converts and 20 are students of Shaw University. Bro. W. W. Hooper and teachers took an active part in this great work. The meeting is yet going on. Pray for us."

Geo. Washington, Cypremort: "I am proud to say that the Lord has blessed us so far. Our Sabbath-school is improving much. We have an attendance of about eighty or ninety. We are unable to [illegible] in regular sessions as we wish, owing to our church having been wrecked by storm last September. By the help of the Lord we are going to raise up the walls of Zion again."

ARKANSAS.

C. A. Tabor, Rob Roy: "I have a deed for new church; 1 new Sunday-school; 1 new appointment; have taken in two members, and will hold the fort, by God's help."

B. Crumpton, Little Rock: "We are doing all we can for our church. Rev. J. G. Thompson is the kind of a man we should have had here ten years ago. The sisters of Wesley Chapel will give a festival to aid the building of a house of worship, on Thursday, May 16. Mrs. B. Crumpton is president; Lucy Jackson, vice-president; Miss Mary Howard, secretary; Mrs. O. Hill, treasurer of the society. Our flourishing Sunday-school, R. May, superintendent, gave a festival April 1, to raise money to purchase a library. About $35 was cleared."

TEXAS.

G. Holland, San Marcos: "The presiding elder has held our first quarter. The people are doing well."

G. R. Smith, Alleyton: "I have just returned from the line of Colorado and Fayette county, where I have been teaching public free school. I have a lively Sunday-school and about 40 enrolled."

LOUISIANA.

H. J. Wright, Alexandria: "Our first quarterly conference was held on Saturday, and in the absence of the presiding elder, Rev. J. F. Marshall, our beloved pastor, presided. There was a good attendance. The pastor reported Sabbath-schools 2; pupils, 770; preached to the children twice; received in full membership 1, deceased 1, visits 20, to to sick, 14; classes reported by their leaders 9, in number very favorable. Pastor received this quarter $53.85. One recommended for local preacher's license—Bro. Fulton Norwood, of the M. E. Church."

Sunday-School Centennial Day —May 30, 1880.

In pursuance of the action of the Board of Managers of our Sunday-school Union, indorsed by the bench of Bishops, I hereby respectfully call the attention of the Church, especially of preachers in charge and Sunday-school superintendents, to the plan for celebrating the Robert Raikes Centennial in Methodist Episcopal Sunday-schools throughout the world.

I. OBJECT. It is the object of this appointment to call to mind the earnest efforts of Mr. Raikes in founding the modern mission Sunday-school a century ago; to emphasize the distinction between that institution and the true school of the Church, of which Christ himself was the founder and first teacher; to awaken a new interest in philanthropic labor for the needy and neglected; to promote more careful and devout study of the Bible by all members of the Church, and to increase the fund of the Sunday-school Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church by which this manifold and blessed work may be extended in all parts of our Zion.

II. PLAN. The last Sabbath in May, 1880, (May 30,) has been selected as the Centennial Day. The following programme is respectfully submitted:

1. Ringing of the CHURCH BELL at 6 o'clock Sabbath morning in honor of Robert Raikes.
2. Teachers' and officers' SERVICE OF PRAYER AND PRAISE at 8:30 o'clock.
3. Regular SUNDAY-SCHOOL SESSION at 9:15 o'clock.
   [Schools that meet usually in the afternoon will undoubtedly change for this day that the afternoon may be given up to the Centennial Service.]
4. PUBLIC SERVICE at 10:30 o'clock.
   [It is hoped that the school will be present to aid in the singing; that the minister will preach on some phase or relation of the Sunday-school work, and that a collection will be taken in behalf of the Sunday-school Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church.]
5. CENTENNIAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL CELEBRATION at 2:30 o'clock.
   [A special "Sunday-school Centennial Service" has been prepared for this occasion. Portions of it may be used in connection with the morning service. Price of the "Centennial Service," $1 per hundred copies. Apply to Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, and Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati and Chicago. It is earnestly hoped that another collection will be taken in behalf of the Sunday-school Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church at this afternoon service.]
6. VESPER SERVICE at 7:30 o'clock.
   [See "Sunday-school Centennial Service."]
7. PUBLIC SERVICE at 8 o'clock.
   [Singing by Sunday-school choir, etc.]
8. NIGHT SONG at close of evening service.

III. The Sabbath selected for this Centennial celebration is the National Decoration Day, but as all loyal Methodists will devote Monday, May 31, to that patriotic service, it will in no wise interfere with it to observe Sabbath as a Memorial of the brave and noble philanthropist who was a soldier in the army of Christ and a friend of humanity.

IV. The plan of the Centennial Day is thus prayerfully submitted to the Church. Shall it have a response worthy of the Church and of the cause?

The Phonetic Sounds.

What a preacher needs to do in the pulpit is to speak distinctly. He should articulate clearly. His enunciation should be smooth and with ease; but, unfortunately, too many of us in the South have never been drilled in the phonetic sounds of our language, and as to a course in elocution, many would not understand what it meant; besides, many who have not had very good advantages in earlier life have, for reasons best known to themselves, since coming before the public as instructors, made pretentions to acquired knowledge such as they too often show they have the greatest need; and thus they excuse themselves from studying and perfecting a better knowledge of the first principles.

Again, many have been more honest, and less proud and pretentious, and have endeavored to lay a foundation like the Father's, for at least a passable knowledge of common branches of our English education—leaving out an effort to master Greek and Latin—and although they do not become so envious as a Baptist divine not long since gave as a reason for the Methodists being jealous of him, went on to say in his sermon: "The reason the Methodists do not like us Baptists is because we preach Greek and Latin and Geography." Yet those less pretentious and more earnest brethren find that the more they learn about the English, the more they have to learn, in order to do anything with its rules and exceptions to rules; in consequence of which many of its masters are heard to stumble and blunder.

Now, what we need is reformation in phonetic writing and spelling. Having examined a number of systems of short hand writing, and I did so in hope of something practical, I failed until I came across the Manuel of Takigraphy, as taught and written by Rev. D. P. Lindsley, of New York. I at once availed myself of the opportunity of studying it under Mr. L. M. Layton, now Rev. L. M. Layton, of the Little Rock Conference, and can say unhesitatingly that the common style, which consists of 42 characters representing the supposed 42 distinct sounds we use in speaking, furnishing a connective vowel scale, is easily learned, easily written, and easily read. There are 16 exercises or lessons in the book, and twenty days of close application would take any average student through. Two years ago to-day I took up the study of this style, and the first three days I took the first four lessons, and from that day to this I have never, so far as I remember, written to Bro. Layton in long hand. Any man, woman or child can easily learn it. Rev. L. M. Layton and myself have the agency for this State, but can teach in any other State, and in order to give Methodist preachers a chance, we propose teaching any one of them so he can write any word in the English language correctly, for the small pittance of $3—in advance. We will take him through a full course. Any other person who may desire to study it may have a full course for $5. These offers except the brethren in our own conference, whom we will teach for nothing. Books always on hand, and can be had by students for $1.25, but we do not care to sell, except to students. We understand that this system of short hand has been introduced into the public schools of Chicago.

Any one wishing further information can address either of us at 1017 Thirteenth St., Little Rock, Ark.

Shaw University.

The advertisement in the Conference Minutes states that our present school year closes on the 16th of June. This is a mistake. We close on Tuesday, June 1st. Let the visiting committee and others intending to attend please take notice, and make their arrangements accordingly. The programme of our closing exercises will be furnished to the SOUTHWESTERN next week.

Letter from Holly Springs.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss., April 12, 1880.

MR. EDITOR — We are in the midst of a gracious outpouring of God's Spirit. For the past ten days Asbury Chapel and Shaw University have been scenes of rejoicing in many respects, unparalleled in the history of either church or school. There have been over forty conversions, about thirty of whom are students of the University, and most of that number are from the upper classes. Every student now in school above the preparatory department is to-day a zealous worker for Christ, and there are few in the lower classes who are not within the folds of the church. The son of one of our ministers, Bro. Brooks, is among those soundly converted to God. Bro. Gallion, our pastor, is laboring faithfully for the cause, and is rejoicing over the great ingathering of souls and workers for the Master.

May the friends of the University continue to pray that those who go out from its walls may be bright and shining lights in the vineyard of the Lord, and that the University may be annually reconsecrated to God by the conversion of many souls among its students.

REP.

Financial Agent's First Report.

DEAR EDITOR—I commenced my financial tour Jan. 2d, by appealing to the conscience of the present State Governor, O. M. Roberts. The old gentleman responded very liberally by endorsing an appeal to the public for aid and giving $10. The Mayor of the city gave $5. The city marshall, Ed. Crany, ex-Congressman John Hancock, and Dr. Walker promised donations on my return to the city.

The 10th and 11th of January found me at Columbus, Rev. Larkin Carper pastor. Here I found a live congregation, laboring under a tremendous strain to remove the Church Extension debt. Here I lectured, represented the interest of the college, and lifted a collection of $11.65, $2 from the Sunday-school and $1 from the pastor. On the Columbus Circuit, Bro. C. Young, on account of a keen norther, the people failed to turn out, so I lectured to 8 persons and received 70 cents.

At Alleyton, Bro. E. E. Cooper's work, this grand brother had used every effort possible to make my visit a success. I met a full house and took $3.25. From this point I went to Eagle Lake, of which Bro. Charles Chase is pastor. I found a live little church of 17 members. The pastor contributed his dollar, so from this little band I raised $6.30. Mrs. Ailsey Thomas made a gift of $1.75. From there I went to Oakland and Brown's Chapel. Bro. Peter Johnson and congregation were watching and waiting for me. Just here I must note that Bro. Johnson wields an extensive influence in his community. At this point I received $11.70.

On the 17th and 18th I was at Halletsville, having notified the pastor, Rev. S. Morgan, nearly three weeks previous to my arrival; but to my utter astonishment when I drove up the citizens informed me that they were not aware of my coming, and their pastor had been been gone more than a month. I met with wonderful success. After lecturing to a large audience I took a neat collection of $18.60. Mrs. Aberhill Morrow gave $1.20, and Miss Mollie Mitchel $1.

The night of Jan. 23 I was on the LaGrange circuit, Bro. P. M. Carmichael, pastor. Inclement weather, scarcity of money and hard times generally, prevented much success. Here I took $1.15, and pushed my boat to LaGrange, of which Rev. G. W. Smith, the big gun of the West Texas Conference, is pastor. After lecturing to quite a large audience I took $14.15. The Sunday-school contributed $3.25. Sister Louisia Phason gave $1. We next visited West Point, Rev. O. Hart, pastor. Here I took $2.75, Bro. Hart giving $1 of it.

On the night of Jan. 27, at Giddings, Rev. James Jarmon, pastor, I found the people had been notified, and were prepared to meet the school claim. I lectured, and took up $7.

At Fiatonia and Schulenburg I found Rev. Thomas Wadkins waiting for me, having notified the people of my coming, but not prepared to receive a lecture on account of having no place to assemble a congregation.

The inclement weather prevented my reaching the Cunningham work, of which the Rev. D. Mucker is pastor.

Feb. 3d and 4th, at Lockhart, the pastor, W. H. Davis, was gone, and I did not know where to find him. I had notified the people through the pastor, of my coming, a month previous, but I was informed that they were not aware of my visit, so I took but $3.70, Bro. Albert Bright contributing $1.

Feb. 7th and 8th I was at Luling. The same complaint was made. Rev. E. Nesbitt had not been there since before the Conference at Victoria. At this charge I took $6.20. From here I went to Gonzales where I found the pastor, Bro. James Henderson, at his post, and the people well notified. Here I lectured to quite an audience and took a neat collection of $11.60. Mr. Alex Mathews gave $1.25.

The 17th and 18th found me at Belmont, Rev. Robert Deaux, pastor. Here I took $6.75, Mr. Joe Brothers contributing $5.

Feb. 21 and 22 I was at Riddleville, Bro. T. August, pastor. I found the people well notified but I could not get out to Riddleville and lectured to a small company at one of the circuit points and took $2.65.

The 25th found me at [illegible]

[illegible] W. H. Mossley's work. Al[illegible] nearly two months [illegible] pastor had never said a [illegible] people concerning my [illegible] at this point I took nothing. On the 26th I was at Seguin [illegible] Bro. Wright's death Rev. E. [illegible] became pastor. The people [illegible] contributed $6.80.

While in San Antonio on the 28th [illegible] the rain came down in [illegible]. The people were well [illegible] but I did not meet the op[illegible] of lecturing on account of [illegible] but managed to raise $6.50.

The 6th and 7th of March I lec[illegible] Georgetown, Rev. E. Cogs[illegible] pastor, to a full house and [illegible] $10.75. Sisters Dauphney [illegible], Pollie Reed and Mrs. Ar[illegible] Williams each contributed a dollar.

At Austin, Rev. D. Gregory, pas[illegible] could be done on ac[illegible] inclement weather. I made [illegible] but failed each time.

Rev. Granville Norman, pastor of [illegible] Tabernacle, told me [illegible] had received both of my [illegible] had not said a word to [illegible] people concerning the matter. [illegible] nothing about the school. The West Texas Conference [illegible] at Austin is doing finely. [illegible] is full and still they [illegible] scholars are under [illegible] subjection to their teachers. [illegible] school; I don't think [illegible] well pleased at [illegible] of pupils in my life. [illegible] is worthy of patronage [illegible] by all means be patron[illegible] own church.

"commandments." He sent him to the law, that the law might be his school-master to teach him the lesson that salvation could not be earned. Perhaps he was doubtful whether he meant to send him to the law of Moses, or, like some of the rabbis, give to him some new commandments. He points him only to those that were framed with reference to man's relation with man. He says nothing of those that relate to God. "Jesus, beholding him, loved him." Christ admitted the virtue of all that the young man had done. His deeds were good so far as they went. He wanted but the one thing—but that was the one thing that vitally was necessary. He needed to give God the first place in his heart. He had not kept the very first commandment. It is not riches that Christ anywhere condemns, but the love of them. The giving up of his possessions would have secured to him eternal life, only because such a sacrifice would have been proof that he had brought his will into subjection to God's will. He was not so willing to do as he had thought. So long as a man worships riches, he can not worship God. They themselves shared in the same spirit which just had been condemned; for in verse 27 it is apparent that thoughts of earthly reward were not unmixed with the devotion of the apostles to their Master. To them this may appear impossible—the salvation of our race, despite the love for the things of this world, that so characterize it. "But with God all things are possible." The redemption of the world was possible, or he never would have sent his Son here to die for it.

By a strange yet wise providence death has once more entered the home of our dear Bro. F. C. Moore, presiding elder of the Navasota district. On Saturday, April 24, at 4 p. m., with bleeding and yet trustful hearts they buried their little Georgie, aged one year and six months.

Our little boy Georgie, aged 1 year 6 months and 12 days, died April 22d. Thus God is preparing heaven for us. He passed away from great suffering to where there is joy and peace without sorrow, health without sickness, peace without temptation, eyes without tears, souls without sin. He will never know doubt or fear, or care, he shall know the 'fullness of joy' which heaven affords.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We are grateful to our Preachers and people who have done so much in pushing the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1880 thus far.

But we feel that the field has not been thoroughly canvassed yet. Will not our Agents everywhere make a special effort at once to send in a list of subscribers for

THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR?

We will send the paper for the remainder of the year for ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF. The

GENERAL CONFERENCE

is soon at hand, and the SOUTHWESTERN will contain an abstract of the daily proceedings. The coming General Conference will be an important one. It will have much to say about our work in the Southern States. Several Bishops will be elected, and the question of electing Presiding Elders will be discussed; also the matter of admitting laymen into the Annual Conferences will be decided; besides, many other subjects of great importance will receive attention.

Another great event to transpire in 1880 is the election of a

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

This will occur next November, and between this time and that our people want the news from a reliable source. This they can get in their own church paper.

We will publish the

WEEKLY MARKETS,

which will be of great value to our people in posting them as to the price of produce and supplies, and thus enable them to keep from being swindled.

GENERAL EFFECTS OF

FELLOWS'

Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

"It is perfectly safe, and the taste pleasant."

THE first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations. Its effect on the mucous membrane is such that easy expectoration is produced, not only are the air passages easily voided of the secretion already deposited, but its collection is carried on in a healthy manner, while the formation of tubercle is retarded. The rapidity with which patients take on flesh while under the influence of the Syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more efficacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened and the blood purified.

FELLOWS'

Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites

Speedily and permanently cures Congestion of the Lungs, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Shortness of Breath, Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Physical and Mental Depression, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Energy, Loss of Memory. It will rapidly improve the weakened functions and organs of the body, which depend for health upon voluntary, semi-voluntary, and involuntary nervous action. It acts with vigor, gentleness, and subtlety owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

The New Hymnal

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister, Phillis Pickett. At the time Phillis left us we were living in Clarkecounty, Mississippi. The oldest child was Charley and when Phillis was sold she was sold from Charley. The next Disley, Lewis and Phillis and Green Peggie. We know where all are except Phillis. Address me at Mass Point, Jackson county, Miss. I go by the name of Disley Cannon, wife of Rev. DEAR EDITOR—I was the last one sold out of nine in 1860. My mother and eight children were sold in Clarksville, Tenn., to Clark Cummings, a speculator. Mother was sold to Thomas Hughes, near Clarksville. The youngest one, Evaline, is dead. The next, Major, was sold the same day I was. I can't tell where he was taken to. I heard he went to Alabama. I was sold to a man in Mississippi named James Pollard, and he caused me to be run to Texas. I heard that mother and five children were living in Logan county, Kentucky. HOW A LIFE —WAS— SAVED.

THE LIFE OF

Chas. S. Prentice SAVED

BY THE USE OF

WARNER'S SAFE Kidney AND Liver CURE.

The following letter proves that BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in its worst form, IS CURABLE:

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25, 1879.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N.Y.: Gentlemen—Having escaped death from Bright's disease by the use of your Remedy, I feel it a duty not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and have those who are suffering similarly to judge whether a medicine not prepared by the "regulars" will cure this frightful malady or not.

In the summer of 1873 I was first taken ill, with symptoms which, I was informed, were those of Bright's disease. I went to Marquette, Mich., and called to my aid a physician of noted ability. After remaining a considerable time under his care, I found no improvement; on the contrary, my disease was considerably aggravated. I next placed myself in charge of one of the first physicians in Toledo, O., with no better result. I was then induced to try the skill of an eminent medical man in New York, and remained under his care six months. Finding myself growing steadily weaker, with no abatement of the kidney derangement, I began to despair of ever getting well.

In the summer of 1876 my friends induced me to go abroad, thinking that the sea voyage, together with the superior skill of foreign medical men, might effect a cure. I succeeded in gaining an introduction to the celebrated Dr. Declat of Paris, and remained under his care fifteen months. He used in my case what is known as the carbolic treatment, and then every method which the most scientific men of the profession on the Continent were known to employ. No improvement being apparent, the services of Dr. B., a gentleman of equal eminence, were next solicited. Seven months of careful treatment by this kind gentleman brought me to the beginning of the most aggravated symptoms of the disease. With swollen limbs, disordered liver, impaired digestion and serious irregularities of the heart, I proceeded to Manchester, Eng., and for five months my case baffled the skill of Dr. Roberts, one of the ablest men of his profession in England, and author of a work on diseases of the kidneys. His great knowledge did not avail in my case; and, finally, despairing of any improvement, much less a cure, I returned to my native land in the belief that I soon must die.

When I reached home two physicians were summoned, who, on subjecting samples of the urine to the test of heat and acid, discovered the presence of albumen in large proportion, while the microscope showed numerous casts. All this, together with the despairing look of my physicians, forced the agonizing conviction that death was inevitable. I then dismissed my medical attendants, with the intention of letting nature struggle on unaided to the end; for my confidence in the ability of medical men to cope with disordered kidneys had become, to say the least, greatly lessened. At this time, I weighed myself in the presence of several friends in the wholesale grocery establishment of Emerson & Co., Toledo, O., and turned the scales at 212¾ pounds, 67¾ pounds more than my ordinary weight when in health; in other words, the tissues of my body were saturated with 67¾ pounds, or about 8½ gallons of water.

Finally, while listlessly lingering in pain and anguish, I was informed by a lady residing on Plymouth avenue, Rochester, N. Y., that one Charles Craig of Charlotte, had discovered a remedy for Bright's Disease, with which he had cured himself and many others. I immediately repaired to his residence by the lake, and, after a treatment of five weeks with the remedy (now called WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE), all my symptoms abated, and I began to feel that I was almost a well man. I returned home, taking with me a quantity of the medicine, and now, although months have elapsed since I took the last dose, I joyfully declare myself absolutely well, both in mind and body.

Should you have occasion in the future to use this letter, you are at liberty to do so, and any one who hesitates to believe the conclusiveness of my statements, is respectfully referred to the following persons, who were aware of the character of my ailment and the apparent hopelessness of my case: Mme. Le Blanc, 20 Rue Drowoot, Paris; Henri DuBois 11 Rue Melesherbs, Paris; Dr. Setelier, Bordeaux, France; Dr. H Chamieux, Rue Algine and Lucas Vichy, France; M. Jean Gleiule, et Quai de la Molka; Bernard Bradshaw, Esq., 3 York Chambers, Adelphi, London; J. W. Long, Esq., London; John H. Wilson, New York; J. O. Beer, Toledo, O.; Thomas Daniels, Toledo, O.; J. Prentice, Toledo, O.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. S. PRENTICE.

ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, Pat'd Oct. 3, '71.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY PERFECT SELF-OPERATING WASHER IN THE WORLD.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers, and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow-grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. In cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide and 1¼ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 13 inches high over that, and is 1¼ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 8 to 8 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 10 to 30 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7½ inches wide, 1½ inches deep, and weighs about 8 pounds. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER, ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fibres which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

has carefully corrected errors in General Minutes. These figures include the preachers, traveling and local, and the probationers, as membership. Of these 410,889 members, 221,504 are "white," and 189,395 are "colored." Of the $8,563,416 of church and parsonage property, $6,560,287 are in what are known as "white" conferences, and $2,003,129 in what are known as "colored" conferences.

The net gain to the Church since 1866 in the whole South may then be seen at a glance:

	Members.	Property.
1879	410,899	$8,563,416
1866	87,804	2,280,693
Gain	318,095	$6,282,723

This is a yearly increase in membership of 24,000 during the past thirteen years in the Southern States.

If it be desired to know how this increase is divided between the white and colored people, we have it indicated with approximate correctness as follows:

	Members.	Property.
White—1879	221,504	$6,560,287
" 1866	68,000	2,330,698
Increase	153,504	$4,229,594
Colored—1879	189,395	$2,003,129
" 1866	20,000	250,000
Increase	169,395	$1,753,129

These figures are not exactly true, because several of the conferences in the South are "mixed," that is, have not divided on the color line, and it is difficult to be exact in such a table; but the above is substantially correct.

I have given the figures of membership and church property only, for sake of brevity. The increase in Sunday-schools, benevolent collections, and every other evidence of commendable church growth are in similar proportions.

How much has this gain of 313,095 members and $6,282,723 in property cost the Church? Space will not allow a detailed reply to this question. But it may safely be stated that if all the missionary, Church extension, and other benevolent moneys used in the support of the ministry and in aiding Sunday-schools and Church work, given in all the Southern States from 1866 to 1879 inclusive, be added together, the amount will not exceed $3,600,000; so that the increase in Church and parsonage property alone since 1866 is more than twice the amount expended in [illegible] and cash in the South since that year. As to men, the Church at large has given but few to the South. The ministry of the old border conferences were to the manor born; and the ministerial increase in these conferences has come almost wholly from the Churches on the ground. As to the white ministry in the new Southern conferences, the great majority are Southern men. There are about 450 white preachers in the new Southern conferences, and not more than seventy-five of these are [illegible]. As to the colored ministry, it has entirely sprung from the people in the South, to whom they preach. Of these there are in round numbers 250 on the old border territory, and 750 in our new [illegible], making, say, 1,000 [illegible]. Not more than 75 of [illegible] were in the Church in [illegible] and the increase has been [illegible] from their own people, and [illegible] to us as we have gone to [illegible].

For [illegible] time, men, and money [illegible] in history of the Church [illegible] such wonderful results as have come to the Methodist Episcopal Church, since 1866, in the results of her work in the Southern States.

[illegible] must be added the [illegible] work in [illegible] proper question, and an answer will be valuable in several ways.

In 1866 we have seen that the Church had in border territory, which was occupied before the war, 87,804 members and $2,580,693 of church property. On the same territory the Church now has as follows:

Conference.	Members.	Property.
Baltimore	37,351	$2,878,225
Delaware	14,799	245,505
Kentucky	21,201	408,005
Lexington	6,181	133,068
Missouri	19,106	308,325
St. Louis	15,804	305,485
West Virginia	33,071	576,300
Wilmington	31,120	1,286,850
Washington	41,158	557,568
Total 1879	221,797	$6,698,846
" 1866	87,804	2,580,693
Increase	123,993	$4,118,153

This splendid increase in membership and vast addition to Church property on the border, has been no doubt largely brought about by the occupancy of the territory farther South, by which the "picket lines" were extended to the gulf, and our brethren on the border thus relieved of many of the greatest difficulties incident to our Southern work. This fact must be borne in mind in estimating success of our Southern work.

By subtracting the increase in the border conferences since 1866 from the whole increase in the Southern States, we have the net results of our work in the recently organized conferences in the South:

	Members.	Property.
Whole increase	323,095	$6,282,723
Border increase	123,993	4,113,153
New work increase	199,102	$2,169,570

With the summaries already named we may with fair exactness learn how much of the increase in both the border or older conferences and in the new conferences has been among the white people, and how much among the colored people. The Delaware, Lexington and Washington Conferences include the work among the colored people on the border; and the Baltimore, Wilmington, West Virginia, Kentucky, St. Louis and Missouri Conferences contain the work among the white people in the same region.

A careful calculation gives the following approximate results:

INCREASE ON BORDER.	Members.	Property.
"White"	85,000	$3,416,000
"Colored"	38,000	685,000
INCREASE IN NEW CONFERENCES.	Members.	Property.
"White"	56,000	$675,000
"Colored"	153,000	1,633,000

These figures indicate that the greatest growth among the white people has been in the old border conferences, and in the growth of the new conferences, which is our Southern work proper, the growth among the colored people has been nearly three times as great, in membership and property as among the whites.

These several summaries are not exactly correct, and the aggregates may vary a few thousands, but they are sufficiently correct on which to base a judgment of the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South as a whole, and in the old and new Territories, and among the different classes of people.

Several suggestions are submitted:

1. Judged by the results of thirteen year's efforts in the Southern States no such results have crowned the efforts of the Methodist Episcopal Church in any other field since its organization.

2. The great success of the Church among the colored people of the South already achieved indicates how surely Providence opened the way from the first for the old mother Methodist Church to go to them, and also how truly we are called to larger effort in their behalf.

3. The success among the white people of the South has been equally marked, considering all the circumstances. The increase of eighty-five thousand in the old border conferences, and of the net gain of fifty-six thousand in the new South, all in fourteen years, is certainly remarkable, and makes promise of yet greater success in the future, because of the removal of many of the [illegible] obstacles met in the past.

4. Educationally our Southern work makes a splendid showing. Thirty institutions established since 1866, with over 4,000 students, and nearly $400,000 worth of school property. So grand a beginning amid the difficulties of the first years of our Southern work indicates how the necessities of this work have commanded recognition, [illegible] prophecy of what that [illegible] and ought to be in the [illegible]

Houston District—Texas Conference.

MR. EDITOR—If the "curse causeless shall not come," most certainly there must be some cause for the insanity of a Christian minister. Perhaps no one can with certainty state the real cause for clerical dementation, and yet most all men are ready with at least one reason for such a disaster. I know of a minister that was once called upon to attend three funerals and one wedding at the same hour, and they were fully six miles apart. Of course that minister was not able to attend to but one of these four calls, and no matter as to which he attended, the three to which he could not possibly go charged him with outrageous neglect. Now, that minister believes in God the Father, Almighty Maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son—in the communion of saints and everlasting life after death, and though thus strongly anchored, I heard him ask:

"Why were the clergy made so fine;
And the people made so coarse!"

Upon the Houston district there are no crazy ministers; but men who work well, though poorly paid, and yet they keep pressing on. At the same time there are a few who say that God has called them to the work of saving souls, and still they refuse to go. The Lord Jesus said: "Go preach the Gospel to every creature;" but the commission of these stay-at-home men has no "go" in it. It is practical life that tests a man's character and the real principles of his heart. It is a little out of place for a man to call himself a Christian, and say that the Lord has called him to preach the Gospel, and still refuse to go. We need a living Gospel preached by living men, that can talk of things they know and feel, by men whose commission has a "go" in it. When the Gospel is preached by such men with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, sinners will feel, and we shall hear them cry out: "What must I do to be saved?"

"Let Zion's watchmen all awake,
And take the alarm they give;
Now let them from the mouth of God
Their awful charge receive."

We learn from nearly all parts of the district that the spirit of the Lord is operating in all the churches and refreshing showers are falling on the parched and thirsty ground.

At St. Paul, Galveston, a wonderful season of grace is being enjoyed. Mourners are nightly coming forward and giving themselves to the Lord. Over fifty have professed conversion, and still the work moves on, and both old and young are being swept forward to the current of the river of life.

At Richmond the people have passed by the "I can't" corner, and are living in the region of "I can," and as one of the results, a work much needed but long neglected has been accomplished. Their church has been nicely ceiled, and all paid for. The labors of Bro. Williams have been greatly blessed. The church has been rejuvenated.

At Forest Chapel and Pittsville Bro. Culbreath is doing good work. Over thirty have joined on probation, and three Sabbath-schools have been organized and are now in a flourishing condition. The indications are very hopeful for a sweeping reformation.

Mount Vernon, Houston, is favored with an unusual degree of prosperity. The trustees have added greatly to the sitting capacity of their church in the erection of a gallery. At the same time the church has enjoyed a good revival, witnessing in nearly all of their meetings the conversion of precious souls.

At Columbia a new parsonage has been erected, and from this time forward let it be understood that the pastor of the M. E. Church in this place has a home for himself and family. Our district conference met at this place April 15, at 9 a. m., and all through the various sessions of the conference the brethren felt that they were "with one accord in one place," and the Spirit was given in answer to their prayers and in the fulfillment of the promise. The discussion of the essays read, and the various questions presented, was spirited, kind and profitable, and must result in great good, while earnest sermons and exhortations, prayers powerful in faith, and soul-stirring songs of praise filled the night meetings. The pastor received upward of thirty on probation during the meeting. The people of Columbia entertained the conference grandly. So well did they care for us that some of us were strongly inclined to remain a little longer.

Letter from Thibodaux.

DEAR EDITOR—The church is in a prosperous condition, and the choir has been made happy, through Elder Davis, who has bought an organ for them. Mr. Ross, of your city, is now giving the young people lessons. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will ever be remembered in this community for their many good qualities—Mrs. Davis is particularly perseverant. A social circle organized by her here sometime since, besides the good effect it has brought on our society, has given the Odd Fellows two large flags, and is now ready to present them with a large banner and two swords and staves.

The Sunday-school, under the supervision of Rev. F. T. Chinn, could not do otherwise than move on to prosperity. We have an example of Rev. Mr. Chinn's faith in the good Master from the following incident which occurred a few Sundays since at Calvary Church: Rev. Chinn lives at some distance from town, and therefore rides his large bay horse over to church every Sunday just as regularly as it comes. Upon this occasion Rev. Chinn was the occupant of the pulpit; he was going on with his discourse and everybody's attention was taken up with what he would next say, when some one in the audience burst out: "Mr. Chinn, your horse has fallen into the pool!" To see him start at "quick time" out the church with everybody behind him, was what we looked for. But not so. "Let him alone, God will provide another," was the prompt reply, and resuming his subject, he went on as though never interrupted. Certainly some good friends went out and pulled "big hay" out, but Rev. Mr. Chinn never inquired about his horse until church was over.

Death has again laid his icy hands upon a member of Rev. Mr. Grimes' family.

The public schools are still closed as tight as ever, for want of funds. Had the last Legislature considered public schools of any importance, they would have had that long-looked-for new school law all right before now.

Letter from LaGrange.

LAGRANGE, Texas, April 23, 1880.

MR. EDITOR—You will please permit me space in your valuable paper to say something about my work. My second quarter was held on Saturday and Sunday, 17th and 18th inst. Presiding Elder S. Gates was with me. The session was pleasant and well attended. On Sabbath afternoon Bro. Gates preached a very effective sermon to a large and appreciative congregation. After the sermon the Lord's Supper was administered to sixty persons. I held a protracted meeting some time ago, which resulted in four probationers and a number of backsliders reclaimed. At the close of the meeting we left a number of serious mourners. The church seems spiritually revived. Bro. P. M. Carmichael, of LaGrange, rendered me valuable assistance during the meeting.

The brethren of the West Texas Conference will remember that I objected to having presiding elders constituted a committee to superintend the printing of the minutes. I believed then, and I presume some of my brethren will concur with me now, that the pressure of other important duties on our presiding elders would prevent them from attending to the publication of our minutes immediately after the adjournment of conference. It is now five months after the adjournment of conference, or nearly so, and no minutes yet. The people are asking for them, and I, too, think it almost time for them to make an appearance. I sought information concerning this matter from one of our beloved elders a few days ago, who told me that the whole matter had been transferred to Bro. G. W. Richardson, who had turned them over to Bro. Grant, of the Austin Conference, for publication. There certainly is neglect somewhere. I would suggest that the brethren be provided with one dollar each at our next annual conference, for publication of minutes. This, I think, would greatly facilitate the matter.

I have read with great interest the various articles in the SOUTHWESTERN headed "Colored Bishop." This question has drawn a great deal of comment from our people, both pro and con. My humble opinion is that this agitation of color is entirely uncalled for, and contrary to the principles of Methodism. It is a question that finds no recognition in the Bible. Then why should we go beyond the foundation of religious truth? In the agitation of this color question it seems to me that we lose sight of the 10th chapter of Acts, and the 19th and 20th verses of the 28th chapter of Matthew. As Methodists we should, it appears to me, first look to the welfare and prosperity of our church, and see to it that all important positions be filled with men of God, who possess adequate qualifications for the duties they may be called upon to perform. Their being Negro, Caucasian, Mongolian, Malay or Indian should certainly be no challenge to their eligibility.

I do trust that our impending General Conference may, in its wisdom, remove the only clause by which a color line may be struck, from our discipline, and I do anxiously look forth to see our colored delegates take the initiative in this direction. Then in future it will not be necessary for Bro. P. S. Brown to accuse us of stumbling, and this, too, very unjustly, as a large number of brethren of West Texas Conference, and I among them, were opposed to separation until the white brethren asked the same for the good of the work. I believed then as I do now, that a separation on the color line was contrary to the principles of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

G. W. SMITH.

Those Frontier Churches Again.

Our Board of Church Extension is constantly receiving earnest appeals for help to build churches on the frontier. Here is an example from a newly settled county in Nebraska: "All the members of our class except two came here this spring, and all are depending upon the crops we shall put in for a living the coming year. If the season should prove adverse I shudder to think what the result would be. All except two live in sod houses, many without a chair, and with but scant and rude furniture of any kind. Under these circumstances it seems hopeless to attempt to get anything but labor toward a church, and yet we do so want a house where we can meet together to worship God and have a home for our beloved Methodism in this beautiful valley. We have thought of trying to build, by our own labor, a sod church 30x40 feet. This would stand well for ten years or longer, but we cannot do even this without some money to buy windows, nails, lumber for floor, roof, sides, etc. Lumber here is now worth from $40 to $60 per thousand feet. We are willing to beg or do almost anything that is right to secure a house of worship for ourselves and our children."

In reply to a letter from the Secretary encouraging them to ask in the form provided by the Discipline for such aid as should be imperatively needed, and to try for something better than a sod house, enlisting all the people to do what they could, the following was added in reference to this same case: "We concluded to follow your advice in regard to soliciting subscriptions, which we have done, with much better success than we anticipated. The spirit of the Lord has gone out over our people, filling their hearts with enthusiasm to build a house unto God and to give even in their poverty to that end. The prospect of getting aid from our friends encourages all to do what they can, and we believe that with the aid you encourage us to ask, we shall be able to build something better than the sod house we had contemplated. We intend to try for plan No. 1 or No. 2 of the Annual of 1879. We have secured the promise of an acre of ground in our little town, and our subscriptions, including labor and lot amount to nearly $600. We have three good carpenters, and a mason, who will work on our church and let us go and work on their farms for them to pay them. Our quarterly meeting will be held April 24th and 25th when we expect to appoint our Trustees and send on our application immediately. You can hardly understand how wonderful is the result of a little labor and much prayer, with the encouragement you have given us. One sister, living in a sod house of one room and without any floor, whose husband had just signed $20, said: 'I will live in this way contentedly if we can only build a church.' A man not a member of our church, said: 'I will give you work to the amount of $20. I know I am not what I ought to be, but I want to be better and I want a church here in this country more than I want anything else.'" Should not such people be helped? Let all the pastors take the collections, and the Board of Church Extension will be able to help them.

Letter From Granada.

DEAR EDITOR—The first quarterly conference for Granada Station M. E. Church was held on the 10th and 11th inst., and it was full of interest. In addition to our presiding elder, Rev. J. G. Johnson, who lectured beautifully to our Sabbath-school, and at 11 o'clock a. m., preached an able sermon, at 3 o'clock p. m. Rev. E. B. Ramsey, pastor of M. E. Church South, in this city, preached a most excellent sermon to a large and appreciative congregation. His sermon was listened to with marked attention. Rev. Mr. Ramsey is a young man of fine ability, and an active worker in the temperance cause. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered at night to a large number of communicants. Rev. L. Bradford, presiding elder of Greenwood district, was present, and assisted. The love feast on Monday night was a time long to be remembered, on account of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the congregation.

Our Sabbath-school is doing well under the superintendency of Miss Anna Howard, assisted by other faithful teachers, among whom are Miss Carrie Segar and Mrs. L. Bradford. Mrs. Bradford is our organist for Sunday-school and church services. She has a large singing class, and also quite a number taking music lessons, and they are making rapid progression in that direction, which is so essential to good singing.

On the night of April 1st, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. Wm. Tate and Miss Rachel Golden were united in holy wedlock, Rev. J. M. Shumpert officiating. As a testimony of the high esteem in which they were held by all citizens, a grand reception was given them, and it was enjoyed by both white and colored alike. Slowly but surely there is a better feeling beginning to prevail among the races in Mississippi. The Lord speed the day when righteousness and truth shall predominate.

On the 3d of April, at the M. E. Parsonage, Mr. Jasper Powell and Mrs. Rachel Shepherd were married by Rev. J. M. Shumpert; and on the night of the 8th inst., at the M. E. Church, Mr. Augustus Cunningham to Miss Arnata Lake, all of Granada, the pastor performing the ceremony. A very enjoyable reception was given them at the residence of the bride's parents. Miss Arnata Lake is one of our most worthy and highest esteemed members. May peace and happiness attend them all through life.

Resolved, That we appoint four lay members of this body to attend the funeral of our honored co-delegate.

Geo. L. W. S. Prentiss, of the Illinois Conference, asked leave of absence for Dr. W. R. Goodwin, of the Illinois Conference, in order to attend the funeral of his brother, John R. Goodwin, and his request was granted.

Bishop Foster said: The address of the bishops will now be read by Bishop Simpson.

To the Delegates of the several Annual and Electoral Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church in General Conference assembled:

DEAR BRETHREN,—With gratitude to Almighty God, who has permitted us to witness the assembling of this General Conference, we extend to you, as the representatives of the ministry and laity of the Methodist Episcopal Church, our cordial and fraternal greetings. We most earnestly pray that the presence of the great Head of the Church may be constantly felt in your midst, and that the divine benediction may rest upon you personally, and upon all your deliberations.

The work you have to perform is one of vast responsibility. You are to supervise the interests of a Church which covers not only the wide-spread territories of our own country, but which extends into distant parts of the globe; which numbers its communicants by the hundreds of thousands, [illegible] the various places occupied by our work, and acquired much valuable information as to the condition of the interior.

In 1877, Bishop Wiley, after holding conferences on the Pacific coast, sailed for Japan and China, where he held the annual meeting in Pekin and Ku-Kiang, and organized in December, 1877, under the direction of the last General Conference, the annual conference of Foochow. After extensive explorations in both China and Japan, he returned in the spring of 1878.

In the summer of 1878, Bishop Bowman presided over the conferences of Germany and Switzerland, of Sweden and Norway, and held the annual meeting of the missionaries in Denmark. He also presided over the South India conference in December, 1878, and over the North India conference in January, 1879. Returning, he held the annual meeting of our missionaries in Italy, where the sad intelligence reached him that during his absence his wife had been summoned to her heavenly home. In 1879 Bishop Wiley presided in the conferences of Germany and Switzerland, of Sweden and of Norway, and held the annual meeting in Denmark.

The missions in Mexico were visited by Bishop Merrill in 1878, and by Bishop Harris in 1880. During these visits the annual meetings were held, and the different parts of the work were examined. The mission fields in New Mexico were visited by Bishop Bowman in 1877, by Bishop Simpson in 1878, and by Bishop Merrill in 1879. An inspection of the missions in South America had been contemplated, and also a second visit to China and Japan; but owing to the death of our colleagues and other causes they were deferred. Should information be desired from any of the bishops in reference to their work in the foreign fields, it will be their pleasure to await the order of the General Conference.

In addition to the work performed in annual conferences and in the mission fields, we have presided over judicial conferences held in Waterloo and Davenport, Iowa; in Richmond, Indiana; Mansfield, Ohio; Wheeling, West Virginia; in the city of Philadelphia, and in Wilmington, Delaware, to hear appeal cases from the California, Nevada, Nebraska, North-west Iowa, Des Moines, Wisconsin, Indiana, Cincinnati, Ohio, Erie, West Virginia, Philadelphia and New Jersey Conferences. We have also presided over district conferences, whenever we could do so consistently with other duties. According to the direction of the last General Conference, Bishop Bowman was deputed by us to visit, as fraternal delegate, the British Wesleyan Conference, and in this office Rev. E. O. Haven, D.D., was associated with him. They were cordially received, and no doubt their mission has added to the links which bind so closely the two bodies together. Delegates were also appointed to the various Conferences with which your body is in fraternal correspondence.

ANNUAL CONFERENCES.

By the authority of the last General Conference the Swedish work embraced in the Central Illinois and Minnesota Conferences was organized, in 1876, into the Northwest Swedish Conference. The Rocky Mountain Conference was divided into two parts, the one known as the Utah, and the other as the Montana Conference. And in 1878 the Southwest German Conference divided its territory into the St. Louis German and Western German Conferences. Under a general provision, made as to the division of conferences, there have been organized the Central Tennessee, the Little Rock, Austin, and the Southern Central Conferences. At their first session after the General Conference the Western New York Conference, which met at Leroy, and the East Genesee Conference, which sat in Rochester, at the same time, unanimously passed resolutions proposing to obliterate the line of division between them, and to be united in one body. While there was no express warrant of the Discipline for this action, yet, as there had been, for several years, discussions and controversies in reference to the boundaries, as the conferences were authorized to change their lines indefinitely near to a union, as the action was without a dissenting voice, and as it would not affect other annual conferences, Bishop Ames, who presided at the Western New York Conference, and Bishop Simpson, who presided at the East Genesee Conference, believing that it would not be wise for them to interpose any obstacle to the proposed union, gave to it their concurrence and approval. The two bodies were merged into one, known as the Genesee Conference, which by a formal vote ratified the proceedings. With the new conferences organized the annual conferences now number ninety-five.

The bishops would respectfully submit to the General Conference whether it might not be wise to organize the Rocky Mountain region now occupied by the Utah, Montana, and a part of the Nevada Conferences, into mission districts, to be administered as foreign missions. The small number of pastors employed, and the immense distances from each other at which they are located, render a large conference almost impracticable, and yet any division leaves too few pastors to properly constitute an annual conference, or to be entitled to elect a delegate.

COMMITTEES.

The bishops were directed by the last General Conference to appoint several committees, which should pursue their labors after the close of its session. Of these the first in order was the committee to prepare a new hymn book. This committee consisted of fifteen brethren, selected from different sections of the church. They devoted a large portion of their time for nearly one year to this work, without pecuniary compensation, and performed it both faithfully and skillfully. They are justly entitled to the thanks of the entire church. The work has everywhere met with approval, and is unquestionably one of the best collections which has ever been published. A committee was also appointed on the subject of an ecumenical council. A circular letter was issued and addressed to the various Methodist bodies in different parts of the world. Kind and favorable responses have been received from nearly all of these, and a meeting of the committee, as well as a joint meeting of committees from the various Methodist bodies, will be held in this city, after which a full report will be made to the General Conference. The measure thus inaugurated it is hoped will be consummated, and will add to the strength, influence and unity of the Methodist family of Churches. Committees were also appointed on fraternity and union; on lay delegation in the annual conferences, and on the preparation of a judicial code.

GENERAL CONDITION.

The financial depression which marked the earlier part of the quadrennium now closing affected the interest of the church in common with the general condition of the country. To some extent the benevolent contributions were diminished, and many churches suffered from embarrassment on account of debts contracted during the period of high prices. It is to us a matter of thankfulness that notwithstanding that condition of the country, the interests of the Church have been generally maintained. Our literary institutions and our benevolent [illegible] have been kept in active operation, scarcely a church has been lost, and the general indebtedness of the Church has been considerably diminished. We have [illegible] and harmony in all our borders [illegible] the progress has not been [illegible] some periods, it has nevertheless been [illegible] and constant. The general [illegible] may be seen from a brief review [illegible] and of the reports of [illegible] institutions.

[illegible] 1876 show 10,923 traveling [illegible] local preachers and [illegible] members including probationers. [illegible] for 1879 show 11,930 traveling [illegible] local preachers and 1,700,[illegible] and probationers. This exhibits an increase in the four years of [illegible] preachers, and 119,7[illegible] members [illegible] increase, though not so [illegible] the preceding quadrennium. [illegible] gratifying and encouraging [illegible] We must also take into [illegible] during that time there [illegible] preachers and 78[illegible] must be added to the [illegible] to show the actual [illegible] there were 15,633 church edifices and 5,017 parsonages, valued at $81,091,862. In 1879 there were 16,955 churches and 5,689 parsonages, valued at $70,965,509. This shows an increase in the number of churches of 1,322, or more than one church for every working day in the four years; and an increase of 672 parsonages, or more than one for every two working days in the same period. The estimated value, however, instead of being increased has been diminished. This results from a change in the price of real estate throughout the land. The number of new churches and parsonages will not show the full work of the Church, for during that period many churches have been remodeled, enlarged and rebuilt.

BOOK CONCERN.

The publishing interests of the Church, the earliest organized among its institutions, continue to be of great value and power. After the death of Dr. Nelson, the Book Committee met, and on the 3d of March, 1879, in conjunction with the bishops elected Sanford Hunt, D.D., of the Genesee Conference, to serve until the General Conference. During the quadrennium $95,000 of the bonded debt on the New York publishing-house have been paid, and the interest on the remaining $400,000 has been reduced from 7 to 6 per cent. per annum. New and valuable books have been added to the extensive list heretofore published, and the various periodicals are generally sustained, the circulation of several of them having largely increased. They are doing much to promote the connectional interests of the Church, as well as to furnish suitable and profitable reading for our families. The sales of books and periodicals during the last four years in New York amounted to $3,415,016, and in the Western Book Concern to $2,675,125, aggregating $6,090,141. We think the General Conference should consider whether some plan might be devised whereby a greater impetus may be given to the sale of our publications. It seems to us that with the large capital employed, with the excellent character of the publications, and with the increasing number of communicants in the Church, the sales ought to be larger than they now are. The experiments which have been made in establishing depositories under the control of the annual conferences, and by associations in various cities, have shown that without loss to the Book Concern, the publications can be kept on sale in the leading centers. It may be well worth considering how far these conference and associated effort may be more extensively employed in the circulation of our literature.

MISSIONS.

The mission cause continues to occupy its position of prominence among the movements of the Church. No new mission field has been opened during the last quadrennium, but nearly every field has been enlarged, either in its boundaries, the number of its missionaries, or in its resources. The South India Conference, which was organized in 1876, has enlarged its field by extending not only into large districts in South India, but also into Rangoon, Burmah. It now embraces three districts, with thirty-seven traveling ministers, forty-five local preachers, and 2,169 members and probationers. The mission in Japan, which was opened in 1873, gives promise of great success. In no part of the world is the outlook more cheering. In China, the Foochow Conference was organized in 1877, and now consists of six districts and fifty-seven ministers, of whom fifty-two are native preachers. There are also twenty-eight others employed as supplies, making eighty native laborers. Some of these fields are self-sustaining; and in all the spirit of heroic Christianity is evinced by many of its native ministers. In addition to the conference of Foochow, the mission fields of North China and of Central China are also manifesting indications of hopefulness and success. Our brethren in the North India Conference are steadily prosecuting their labors, and the schools and orphanages are taking firm hold of the hearts of the people. In Bulgaria, the conflict between Russia and Turkey rendered missionary labor for a time impracticable. Since peace has been restored there are hopeful indications, but the work is limited. In Italy decided progress has been made. Sixteen ministers are employed, all of whom, except Dr. Vernon, the superintendent, are native Italians. In Denmark, also, recent manifestations favor the enlargement of the work. In Germany, Sweden and Norway new conferences are in operation, papers are published, and books are printed and circulated. The membership is increasing, but the good accomplished far exceeds the increase in the membership of the Church. Wherever our missions are prosperous the State Churches are putting forth greater efforts. Sunday-schools are established, and more evangelistic work is done.

In Africa an effort has been made to reach the interior, and we trust that the territorial acquisitions made by Liberia may open a wider door to our missionaries.

In Mexico, in the face of many difficulties produced by the long and degrading influence of the Church of Rome, considerable progress has been made. A paper has been established, and books have been printed by the aid of a fund procured by its former superintendent. This work is still carried on through the present missionaries, who are laboring faithfully. A theological school and orphanage add to their instrumentalities. In South America there has been some enlargement, and an urgent call is made for more missionaries and for more means.

The western coast of South America was visited a few years since by Rev. William Taylor; and under his influence several young men and women have gone to that region, chiefly as teachers, risking their support among the people, and also endeavoring, when there is opportunity, to preach the Gospel of Christ. This work, though not under the control nor at the expense of our missionary society, has yet been so far sanctioned, that the mission field has been extended to embrace all South America, and a few preachers have been appointed by the bishops to that work. Our mission fields thus encircle the globe, and occupy centres which promise future development. Our missionaries are preaching in some twenty languages and dialects, into some of which many of our hymns have been translated, and in all of which efforts have been made for the distribution of our religious literature.

In these mission fields the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of our Church has also been an earnest co-laborer. We owe much to the devoted women who have organized societies, collected funds, and sent young women as missionaries to India, China, Japan, Mexico and South America, and more recently to Africa. We have great confidence in the wisdom and devotion of the Christian women who manage this interest, and we trust there will ever be a perfect and cordial co-operation between the societies.

After the death of Dr. Nelson, Mr. J. M. Phillips, book agent at New York, was appointed as missionary treasurer to fill the vacancy until the General Conference. We are gratified at the statement that the debt, which in 1876 was $252,356, was reduced in November last to $62,067. In addition the proportion of debt owing by the Missionary Society, and which had remained on the building, has been paid, and a permanent fund of some $80,000 has accumulated through the benevolence of friends, on which annuities are yet paid, but which will soon fall into the treasury. Such is now the credit of the society, that bills are sent to some of the mission fields by the treasurer, and are sold at as favorable prices as those of leading bankers, thus saving to the society the expense of commissions. The receipts of the last four years, as compared with the previous period, show a diminution of $250,600, or about 13 per cent., a part of which, as to the support of our missions, may be balanced by the difference in the value of money, and of saving in the rate of exchange. In the last quadrennium the receipts of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society have considerably increased.

While we rejoice in what has been accomplished, we cannot conceal from ourselves the fact that the annual contributions of the Church are far below what we believe is demanded of the Church, and far below the pressing demands of the mission fields. We hope the General Conference may be able, by some action, to reach the heart and conscience of the Church, and to secure contributions from every person in our Churches and congregations. A severe loss was sustained by the society in the sickness and death of Dr. Dashiell, but it was not deemed necessary by the bishops, in view of the near approach of General Conference, to fill his place.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

The Board of Church Extension has performed a grand work in building and assisting churches among the sparse population on the Western frontier and through the South. It has also been instrumental both by donations and loans in saving many embarrassed churches, which, so far as we can judge, would otherwise have been lost. The calls for aid by loans are less numerous than they once were, and many leading Churches which were heavily embarrassed have paid their entire indebtedness. A spirit of greater carefulness prevails in the churches, and will leave them hereafter less heavily burdened. The annual collections for donations amounted last year to $75,731.77, and for the quadrennium to $266,047.95 In the same time the loan fund has increased from $303,411.23 to $329,920.73, upon $171,-535 50, of which there were several annuities to be paid. This Board has rapidly extended its influence and is acquiring a strong hold upon the heart of the Church. In the improved financial condition of the country it seems to us it would be wise to make a general and simultaneous effort to liquidate the entire indebtedness upon Church property. The organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church dates from the beginning of 1785, and its one hundredth anniversary is rapidly approaching. We believe that if proper effort was made all the debts existing at the beginning of 1880 might be paid by the beginning of 1885.

Though there will never be a time when a growing church can be entirely free from debt, yet its liabilities should not be large nor of long standing. It would be a grand record if the Church could show to the world its accumulated property free from past indebtedness during its first one hundred years of toil. We believe this to be possible. Though the returns are not perfect, yet the reports made to Conference show an indebtedness on the average of 10 per cent. on the estimated value of the property, or about $7,000,000 of indebtedness on $70,000,000 of property. The statistics also show that during the past year nearly $2,400,000 were paid on Church improvements or on Church indebtedness. A less amount than this annually would free the Church property from debt in the time mentioned. If a Church, beginning without wealth and without influence, could accumulate in the first century a property in churches and parsonages, literary and educational institutions, and funds for benevolent purposes of at least $80,000,000, how much more might it do when commencing a new era on such a basis?

We also ask your attention to the necessity of some effective provision to prevent the accumulation of indebtedness upon Church property for current expenses. The last General Conference enacted a law that no mortgage or lien should be placed on Church property for current expenses, but notwithstanding the enactment several cases have occurred in which Church property has been so mortgaged. We think this has resulted chiefly from a departure from primitive principles. Mr. Wesley displayed his foresight in creating two separate boards: Trustees to care for and preserve the property, and stewards to attend to the current expenses. Under this arrangement the stewards endeavor at the close of each year to meet the current liabilities, but when the current expenses are assumed by the trustees, if the board be either careless or reckless the debt accumulates and becomes a lien upon the Church. Were this a matter affecting only a few churches it would be of little moment, but in our connection its tendency is to destroy confidence in the management of the churches, and to prevent liberal contributions for embarrassed churches. Our friends have heretofore contributed to relieve churches under the conviction that they would remain as permanent church property, and they would not have so given had they thought their contributions would be used to pay current expenses. For trustees to permit this is a breach of faith to the public. If persisted in, it will destroy our power to appeal to the public, and will interfere with our whole plan of church extension.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

In the Sunday-school department considerable progress has been made. The number of schools is reported at 20,340, the officers and teachers 226,367, and scholars 1,538,311, being an increase in four years of 1,234 schools, 19,754 teachers, and 139,580 scholars, the increase in scholars being larger than the membership of the Church. One of the most gratifying features is the report of 352,908 conversions in the four years, and it reminds the Church it must look largely to its scholars for its future growth. Its list of publications has been increased by several valuable works, and many new and important helps have been furnished to aid the Sunday-school teacher. The public mind has been stirred by assemblies held at Chautauqua and other important points where Sunday-school workers have met to promote their own improvement and the interests of their department. We rejoice in all the helps that can be afforded and in the habits of reading and study which are being promoted. We approve also of the adoption of the international series, because the public attention has been turned to the same great facts in Bible history and to the same great lessons at the same time among different denominations and in different parts of the world. In our judgment it will prove to be one of the great steps toward promoting unity of thought and feeling among nations far distant from each other. While, however, we rejoice in these international lessons, and in the Berean series, and in the increased appliances and helps which have been provided, we fear that close and catechetical instruction has been either neglected or but partially imparted in many of our schools. While a broad catholicity of spirit should be cultivated, and a narrow sectarianism avoided, it is yet the duty of the Church to educate its children carefully in the doctrines of the Gospel as it sees and understands them. For the performance of this work the pastors are chiefly responsible, and they should see that such instruction is given in their Sunday-schools. To neglect accurate doctrinal teaching encourages a latitudinarianism, which must weaken the future power of the Church. The same remarks will apply to Church polity; the general outlines of our Church economy should be so taught in our Sunday-schools that our young people may have an intelligent view of our Church organization, as well as of our general benevolent enterprises.

TRACTS.

We have little to report in reference to our Tract Society. Its publishing office is in connection with the Sunday-school Union. Several new and valuable tracts have been published during the last quadrennium, and of different sizes, more especially for the young. The Tract Board has also assisted in the publication of tracts for our foreign missions. We regret, however, that there is not a more systematic effort made for the distribution of these tracts, or that there is not some agency by which they may more readily reach the entire population. Might not the services of many of the women of the Church be more actively enlisted in their circulation?

FREEDMEN'S AID SOCIETY.

The Freedmen's Aid Society, the last in organization among the great benevolent boards, has been performing in its field a noble work. Through its secretary its revenue has been largely increased during the last four years. Its chief effort is now directed to the education of young ministers, and to the training of young men and women as teachers for the colored population. Several institutions, especially those at Nashville, Atlanta, Orangeburg, and Baltimore, have erected, or are erecting, large and commodious buildings, and are preparing to give more thorough instruction. A medical department has also been established in connection with the university at Nashville, where colored young men are being trained for professional life.

We deem it also of great importance that a similar work should be done among the white members and friends in the South. Possibly the sphere of the Freedmen's Aid Society might be enlarged so that it would work in the same lines in this field also. At all events, the educational work among the poorer white people of the South should be in some way developed through the general benevolence of the Church.

Though the work performed by the Freedmen's Aid Society may not be needed when the race among which it labors shall enjoy full and equal privileges with others, yet for years to come the fostering care of such a society will be imperatively required.

COLLEGES AND SEMINARIES.

The general cause of education, embracing our colleges, seminaries, and universities, is very dear to the Church, and has long received its attention. While mistakes have doubtless been made in attempting to found too many colleges and seminaries, yet we are glad to note the general improved conditions of our literary institutions. Many of our friends have contributed to their endowment, and a few large donations have been made, which we trust are but the precursors of many others. Most of the literary institutions are enjoying prosperity, and are accumulating means to provide facilities for superior education; yet in a few cases, as in reference to our Churches, we are obliged to report that the trustees have mortgaged the property for current expenses. We believe this to be a flagrant violation of trust, as the contributors, to purchase ground and erect buildings, gave the money with the conviction that it would not be consumed for current expenses.

THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS.

The Church has a deep interest in the theological schools, and should ever give them a careful supervision. These institutions are either under the watch-care of the General Conference or of the annual conference where they are located, and the professors are either chosen on the nomination of the bishops or confirmed on their approval. The object of this is to secure the most perfect harmony with our doctrines and economy. The three principal institutions, the Boston Theological School, the Garrett Biblical Institute, and the Drew Seminary, are in active operation, and their halls are well filled with students. We regret to say that they have suffered considerable loss through accidents, or the change of times, but we are gratified to add that our friends are coming to the rescue, replacing their endowment by generous gifts, and showing how deep an interest the Church feels in the education of its young ministers.

The Martin Theological School at Frankfort, Germany, the theological school in India, and the smaller biblical and theological schools, are also accomplishing a good work.

The Board of Education has received some additions to its funds from the contributions on Children's Day, and has also received a few donations from benevolent individuals. The fund is carefully invested, and the income has been distributed to aid students preparing for the ministry, and especially for the mission field. Large additions ought to be made to this fund in view of the objects to be promoted.

LADIES' AND PASTORS' CHRISTIAN UNION.

No action was taken by the last General Conference on the report of the Ladies' and Pastors' Christian Union. The Board appointed at the previous Conference continue to act and will report to your body. Though without funds and without any Church appointed officers, this association has accomplished, in many localities, a good work in visiting the sick and poor, and stimulating Christian women to increased activity.

SUGGESTIONS.

As the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church will occur within less than a year after the next General Conference, it will be appropriate for this body to consider what measures should be adopted to arrange for a suitable observance of so important an occasion and what objects should be selected for the generous offerings of our people.

According to the order of the last General Conference, we submitted its action on the alteration of the second Restrictive Rule concerning a change in the ratio of representation in the General Conference. It did not receive the constitutional approval of the annual conferences, the vote being 3,144 for and 2,753 against. We also submitted its action touching the alteration of the third Restrictive Rule, but this did not meet their concurrence, the vote being 1,338 for and 4,445 against.

Several of the lay electoral conferences passed resolutions favoring the introduction of lay representation in the annual conference, and this action was also endorsed by some of the annual conferences. The question will doubtless come before you on the report of the committee appointed at your last session, and will be worthy of your most careful consideration. We do not see how such a measure can be properly consummated without an alteration of the second Restrictive Rule, as it must affect the composition of the annual conference and the basis for the election of ministerial delegates.

Appeals were taken from episcopal decisions in annual conferences as to the right, under our Discipline, of licensing women to preach, and as to their election and ordination to the office of deacons. These appeals will bring the subject fully before you. As it is a question affecting the administration and the uniformity of Church action, it should have your careful deliberation and determination.

It has been the honor of Methodism to have maintained from the commencement of its history the doctrines of the Church in their purity and efficiency. The controversies which have arisen have had reference to questions of Church polity, but not as to questions of doctrine. Its ministers fully accepted the teachings, and were almost universally faithful to their vows. We regret to say that in some quarters a spirit of latitudinarian speculation has been introduced into the Church, and occasionally ministers have claimed the right to preach doctrines which are not in harmony with our articles and standards. We are in full sympathy with freedom of thought and freedom of speech. Every one should follow the dictates of his own judgment and conscience, and should so select his Church affiliations. But when a minister has been admitted into official position in the Church, professing to believe its doctrines, and pledging himself to maintain and defend them, and when he is sent forth on that profession to minister to its congregations, he is under sacred obligations to be faithful to his vows. He is not at liberty to occupy the pulpits of the Church for the purpose of disseminating sentiments contrary to the faith of the Church. If he should change his convictions he can honorably retire from his position and give utterance to his views in some other sphere.

We would earnestly recommend to your consideration the propriety of so amending the Discipline as to extend the period of probation for membership in annual conferences to four years. In so short a time as two years, especially where the candidate may have been changed at the end of one year from one part of the conference to another, the Church has not full opportunity to ascertain his qualifications or his fitness for the itinerant ministry; hence, some persons are admitted who are not clear in their doctrinal views or who are not apt to teach or to labor effectively for the edification of the Church; but when once received into full connection they can not very easily be displaced. The presence of such preachers, even though few in numbers, works an injury to the reputation of the conference, and seriously affects the progress of the Church. As early as 1748 Mr. Wesley found it necessary to extend the period of probation to four years, and such has remained the rule of Wesleyan Methodism in Great Britain. In the United States, the demands for laborers in frontier fields was so great that the period of two years was thought to be for the interest of the Church. As the work increased, the necessity of the extension of the period was so greatly felt that the bishops, in their address in 1844, recommended the extension of probation to four years. The recommendation was not then adopted, as it was alleged it would interfere with properly supplying some of the Western conferences. With the present supply of ministers, however, we think the Church might safely extend the period, allowing the candidate to be ordained as deacon at the close of the two years, and to the office of elder when he is admitted into full connection. The only change would be that the Church would have a longer time in which to become acquainted with the qualifications of the candidate before his admission into full membership.

Closely allied to this subject is the question of members of annual conferences engaging in secular pursuits. In some instances ministers have taken a supernumerary or superannuated relation to engage in business. If successful, they have so remained for years; but if unsuccessful, they have returned to the conference and demanded appointments at the hands of the bishops. This return has given rise to a crowded state of the conference, and has prevented the introduction of active and promising young men whose hearts are in the work of the ministry. Not unfrequently these secular occupations give occasion by failure in business, or by other circumstances, to cast discredit upon the Church and its ministers.

The same remarks apply to members of annual conferences becoming candidates for political offices. Ministers are indeed citizens, and have all the rights of citizenship, but the work of the ministry is so momentous, it demands all the energies and all the time of the strongest minds and hearts.

In this connection we regret to say that in some parts of the Church sufficient provision has not been made for the support of the ministry. We fear that the membership of the Church has been in many instances derelict in their duties, and have thus caused the ministers to turn temporarily aside. We think the whole subject demands your wise consideration. There seems to us to be an urgent demand for some simpler method of locating ministers who are not, for various reasons, acceptable to the Church, or useful in the itinerancy.

It is our conviction that the Methodist Episcopal Church was never in a more promising condition than it is to-day, and we see no cause for the adverse criticism or for the predictions of disaster which have sometimes been made. The condition of Methodism in our large cities has been a subject of discussion, and its small relative advance has been contrasted with its more rapid growth in rural populations.

It is your duty to look carefully into this matter and into all other matters that affect the prosperity and progress of the Church.

For ourselves we are free to say that so far from being discouraged or being despondent, we are rather surprised at the progress of the church in our great centers. The growth of those cities has been very largely from foreign immigration. In the city of New York nearly four-fifths of all the inhabitants, as shown by the census of 1870, are either foreign born or the children of foreign parentage. In Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, and some other cities the persons who are foreign born or of foreign parentage compose more than two-thirds of the entire population. Of these foreign families very few were educated as Methodists. The Wesleyan family in England do not compose more than one in twenty of the population. In Ireland not more than one in eighty or ninety. Beyond these countries, until within a very few years, there has been no appreciative per centage of Methodism. To-day there is a slight sprinkling in Germany and Scandinavia, but so slight as to scarcely enter into the calculation. This entire foreign population has been brought up, not only without Methodist influence, but generally in hostility to it. A large proportion of the immigration from Europe is Roman Catholic. The greater part of the Protestant immigration from England, Scotland, and parts of Ireland, is either of the Church of England or Presbyterians. The Protestant element on the Continent is divided between the Episcopal Churches of Scandinavia and the Lutheran or the Reformed Churches on the Continent, the latter of which always affiliates with Presbyterian bodies. Thus the Presbyterian and Protestant Episcopal Churches have received large additions, both in number and means, from the immigration to our cities, while Methodism has received but a few, and those as a general rule of the working classes of the community. Another consideration is, that the other leading Protestant Churches were in the older cities a century or so in advance of the commencement of our Church. They had secured sites for churches, their friends had possession of large portions of the real estate of the country; they had the control of the colleges, of the press, and of the social influences of the land. When we think of the amount of means necessary to purchase real estate in cities, and to erect suitable buildings, we shall see how greatly other Protestant denominations were in advance of us, and what strong agencies of financial literary and social influence they possessed. That under such circumstances the Methodist Episcopal Church should now stand in almost every city as either first or second among the Protestant Churches, in point of numbers and church accommodations, must be a matter of surprise and a proof of the energy and efficiency of its movements. When we survey the whole country we find the membership is annually enlarging; its edifices are not only increasing in number but in taste and commodiousness. Its literary institutions are placed on broader foundations. The number of students in its seminaries, colleges and universities are increasing from year to year; its periodicals are obtaining a wider circulation, and the issues of its press are more extensively diffused. The benevolence of the Church is shown not only in the mission fields, which are annually extending, but in the enlargement of the funds of the Church Extension, Freedmen's Aid, and Educational Boards. In several of our cities also, chiefly by the labor and self-sacrifice of Christian women, homes for the aged of the Church have been established, and commencements have been made for orphanages among both the American and German population.

Not only are there these external evidences of progress, but we believe there is as much piety, purity and devotion in the membership as at any former period. Class-meetings, though not so generally attended as we could desire, are, we believe, better attended within the past few years, while prayer-meetings, love-feasts, watch-nights, special revival services, protracted and camp meetings, show the same spirit of energetic devotion which influenced our fathers. We think there is also an intelligent and earnest appreciation of the general polity of the Church. It cannot be expected that in a communion so large as ours there should be perfect unanimity of opinion, and especially so where a large proportion of the membership was in early life educated under the influence of Churches with a different economy, yet a careful examination has led us to believe that the Church is as much devoted as ever to its itinerancy and its connectional unity.

There is some difference of opinion as to the proper period of limitation as to ministerial service, but with few exceptions, there is unfaltering devotion to the system of itinerancy. It is not claimed that there is any divine authority for any definite term of years. It is simply a question of expediency, to be determined by the judgment of the Church. So far as we can judge, both the ministry and membership are well satisfied with our present rules, and there is little demand for any change. There is a need felt for some measure of flexibility in cases of great exigency. How this exigency shall be determined, or how this need can best be met in harmony with the principles of our itinerancy, we submit to your wise and godly judgment.

In maintaining and working our system of itinerancy, in addition to the limitation of service, an umpire is needed, which from its constitution shall be as impartial as may be possible in our imperfect humanity. This umpire in our Church is the episcopacy, selected by the highest assembly of the Church, and removed as far as possible from all questions of locality and partizanship. The bishops should be men of pure personal life, deep piety, earnest devotion to the doctrines and economy of the Church, of self-sacrificing and sympathetic spirit, of comprehensive views, of fair culture, and willing to be in labors "more abundant." Such men we hope may be selected by you for such additions as you may see fit to make to the number of bishops at this General Conference. As to the number that should be selected, we express the opinion that it is best to select only the number sufficient for the proper performance of the work, and to make additions at subsequent conferences as necessity may demand. Such a policy, we believe, would give greater regularity and uniformity to our work, than to select a larger number and to make no additions for several conferences.

As the policy of our Church, as it came to us from the fathers, has been to place the superintendency in the hands of a few bishops, they have had the assistance of presiding elders, who in their official sphere are also umpires between the pastors and the Churches. As the administration of these presiding elders is through the bishops under the control of the General Conference; as these elders visit every Church and preside in the quarterly conferences, the administration is everywhere in harmony with the directions of the General Conference and the connectional unity and efficiency are preserved. It has been our aim to select for this office men of executive ability, of deep piety, and of sound judgment and discretion. It has also been our conviction that the judgment of the Church favors, as a general rule, the change of the presiding elder from district work to the pastorate at the end of four years, unless special circumstances shall demand a reappointment. It has also been our judgment that in general it is not wise to change an elder from one district to another during a four years' term. The action of the last General Conference, which relieved the presiding elder from the absolute necessity of attending four quarterly conferences for each charge, enabled us in many parts of the work to enlarge the districts, without, as we think, seriously impairing the efficiency of the office. We desire, however, to express our firm and deliberate judgment, that the presiding eldership is essential in a Church constituted as ours, to the efficiency of the itinerancy, and to the uniformity of the administration.

We believe, also, that the connectional unity of the Church commands both the judgment and the affection of our people. There may be a few who, from the prejudice of education, or from being members of strong and wealthy congregations, may not so deeply consider the value of connectional ties. There may be a few who would prefer a temporary benefit to their own Church to the general good of the whole Churches. But such, we think, are few in number. Our intelligent and active laymen are devotedly attached to the Church, and are seeking its growth in all departments. Some of them are contributing to its general institutions liberally and munificently. Others are spending large sums on plans of city evangelization; and others are aiding quietly and unostentatiously our poorer ministers who occupy hard fields of labor. Some of these laymen we know have spent weeks of careful study that they might be better prepared at this Conference to understand and sustain the general principles of our economy.

This connectional unity is seen in every part of our organization. The class is but a part of the society, the society of the circuit, or station, the circuit of the district, the district of the annual conference, and the annual conference of the General Conference. This supervising body turns its eyes to every part of the Church, and extend its arms of affection to different parts of the globe.

To preserve this unity and efficiency in this unity, its superintendency is connectional, and not diocesan. It sends its bishops to hold conferences throughout its wide territory, and to bring back tidings of victory from every field. Thus its Churches and its missions become part of one great body, the Churches sympathizing with the missions, and the missions, though small and feeble, feeling they are parts of a great body which nourishes and protects them. What may be in the future we know not, but thus far in our history the noble spirit of a Wesley, who said, "the world is my parish," inspires his followers. Far distant be the day when a spirit of congregationalism shall make our Churches independent, shall separate our annual conferences from each other, or shall cast off a single mission field that clings to us with fond affection. Let our itinerant hosts ever listen to the voice of the Captain of our salvation as he commands: "Go ye into the world."

Ready as we are to follow in our administration the direction of this body as the supreme council of the Church we place, before you our administration, with the hope that it may meet your approval.

Again invoking the divine blessing upon you, and praying that you may ever abide under the shadow of the Almighty, we are, dear brethren, fellow-laborers in the Gospel of Christ.

The Bishops' address was greeted with frequent and hearty applause. Several resolutions were introduced directing its publication, as follows: S. A. W. Jewett, of Rock River Conference, offered the following:

Resolved, By the General Conference that we have listened with interest to the able address of our honored bishops, now read to us by Bishop Simpson, and we hereby order the publication of five thousand copies of the address for distribution among the pastors and people of the Church.

Brother Jewett said: "I have fixed that number. It is small, compared with the number of pastors, but perhaps that number will be sufficient."

I. S. Bingham, of Northern New York Conference, presented the following:

Resolved, That that part of the Bishops' Address which treats the question of extending the term of probation in annual conferences, and the locating of members of conferences who have become unacceptable in the regular work, be referred to the Committee on Itinerancy, with instructions to report at an early day to this body.

J. M. Walden, of Cincinnati Conference, offered the following:

Resolved, That the Bishops' address be published in the daily [illegible], and all of the official weekly [illegible] the direction of the General Conference.

Resolved, That the several portions and recommendations of the Bishops' Address be referred to the appropriate committees for consideration.

After an extended discussion, participated in by several, on motion of J. Lanahan the resolutions were all referred to a committee consisting of I. S. Bingham and W. McK. Hester, to report on matters of reference and publication.

J. C. Hartzell, of Louisiana, said: "There is one point in connection with the publication of the Bishops' Address, which we have entirely omitted, and which seems to me to be very wise for us to consider. That is the suggestion of Ram Chundra Bose and Brother Nippert, of Germany, that the address ought to be translated into some of the foreign languages at least, and sent broadcast to our missions. The suggestion was made by those brethren, and I will read the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Address of the Bishops be translated into such foreign languages as the agents and Board of Managers of the Missionary Society may deem wise, and published in such languages for distribution, the expense of such translation and distribution to be borne by the Missionary Society.

On motion of J. Lanahan the resolution was referred to the Committee on the Bishops' Address.

J. M. Walden, of Cincinnati, offered the following:

Resolved, That a committee of one minister and one layman from each General Conference district be appointed to report to this Conference a plan for the appropriate commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and that so much of the Bishops's Address as refers to this matter be referred to said committee.

Which was adopted.

S. Hunt, of New York, presented the report of the Methodist Book Concern, of New York, which was referred to the Committee on Book Concern. The report shows four years of prosperity.

G. G. Reynolds, of New York East, presented the following:

Resolved, That the election of bishops and other officers of the Church, deriving their powers from the election by the General Conference be made the special order of the day for Wednesday, May 12, at 10 o'clock, a. m., at which time the election shall begin, and shall continue from day to day according to [illegible]

[illegible] of the General Conference, until [illegible] have been elected.

[illegible] discussion and several attempts to amend the resolution was adopted, the order being that the bishops shall be elected.

[illegible], of Providence; John [illegible], of Colorado; William S. Prentice, of Illinois; Alonzo Webster, of South Carolina; Bishop William L. Harris, Bishop Stephen M. Merrill, Bishop Edward G. Andrews.

In the afternoon session, Bishop [illegible] presided, the purpose of the session being to organize the standing Committees. One or two committees at a time retired and as [illegible] consisted of 95 members the afternoon session was occupied in [illegible] of organization. "God is Love."

of sin can wholly obliterate. In view, then, of the nature of God and the nature of man, and the endearing relations between the two, there is strong presumptive evidence that God loves sinners.

3. But any lingering doubt on the subject should be forever dispelled by the teaching of the Scriptures. God's Word and His acts, upon which that Word is based, plainly declare that he loves sinners. The Word is: "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us." That declaration and many others to the same effect, are sufficient proof of the divine love for sinners to every believer of revelation. But God's acts confirm what His Word teaches, and "actions speak louder than words." The strongest evidence of love is acts of sacrifice and suffering for being loved. This conclusive evidence of His love for sinners God has given us: "God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us."

The next question is, Does persistent sinning alienate or destroy the divine love for sinners? If we may interpret God by what is best and noblest in men, we should say that it does not. The wisest and best human parents never cease to love their children, however vicious and protracted their sins. The parable of the Prodigal Son teaches this truth and is given to prove the undyingness (if we may coin a word) of God's love. The fact that when the prodigal "was yet a great way off, the father saw him" and ran to greet and welcome him, proves that all the days of the son's rebellion, his father had continued to love him with a yearning, tender love, which only a father's heart can know. And so of every true human parent. But God teaches us that His love for sinners is infinitely greater and more enduring than that of earthly parents. "Can a woman forget her sucking child that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? Yet the teaching is that what is barely possible with unnatural parents, is simply impossible with God.

> Every human tie may perish,
> Friend to friend unfaithful prove;
> Mothers cease their own to cherish,
> Heaven and earth at last remove,
> But no changes
> Can attend Jehovah's love."

God's love for sinners can never [illegible]. It is as enduring as His eternal essence. When this [illegible] says, "God is love," it means [illegible] that is His nature; that love [illegible] essential attribute of His [illegible]. And God's character is unchangeable. He is "the same [illegible], to-day and forever." [illegible] there is neither variableness nor shadow of turning," and therefore, since he loves sinners now, he will love them forever.

But how shall we reconcile the eternal punishment of the sinner with the goodness and love of God? We answer: In the same way that we reconcile the present existence of sin and suffering with His goodness and love. For the punishment of sinners hereafter takes place on condition that they are incorrigible, and that punishment is no more in conflict with divine love than the punishment of the [illegible] in this life, which we [illegible] seen, is not only consistent [illegible] the dictate of God's love. [illegible] the fact that there [illegible] forever does not [illegible] God from a Being of infinite [love] to a demon, who ceases to [illegible] his offspring and looks with [illegible] their eternal woe, [illegible] persist in sin. In addition [illegible] both from [illegible] of Scripture and the [illegible] of the case) the doctrine [illegible] punishment, for endless [illegible] deny the goodness [illegible], but still hold, and [illegible] that "God is love," [illegible] he loves forever.

ence among them. Noble John McDougall kindly and firmly informed them that the colored man, intelligent and respectable in appearance, should remain. In this he meets the hearty approval of all lovers of justice and fair play. This is the correct way to remove colorphobia where it offensively exhibits itself.

A Note from Rev. John Poucher, D.D.

We cheerfully give place to the following:

MR. EDITOR—In your issue of April 22d, I notice an extract from the Mississippi Methodist, containing a report of an interview between Rev. H. M. DuBose and some preachers of the M. E. Church from Indiana. I request space for so much of an explanation as relates to our deceased Bishop Haven and the live editor, Dr. Fowler. If Bro. DuBose means by the "policy" of Bishop Haven, the operations of the M. E. Church in founding schools and planting churches in the South, and if he received the impression that but a small portion of the clergy endorsed the plan, he certainly was very far mislead; for in our pleasant interview I think there was a mutual acknowledgment of the necessity of just such work as our church is doing. As to Dr. Fowler's endorsers, he is abundantly able to answer for himself, while the bare suggestion of the probability of his being elected a bishop on the first ballot, is a sufficient indication of the estimate in which he is held by the Church. If any one should infer that, as a result of our interview, any doubt arose as to the propriety and efficiency of our church work among whites and colored in the South, I sincerely hope that such an impression will be at once corrected. I returned with the deeply settled conviction that, while the Church, South, was doing good service for the Master among certain persons, the M. E. Church was directly and indirectly accomplishing a glorious mission for all classes of Southern society—a work from which it would be a folly and a sin to desist.

—Rev. Morris Dyer, in charge at New Iberia, called this week and reported fair progress at his appointment.

—Gov. Wiltz summoned Lieut. Gov. McEnery to the executive chair, and will take a trip to Texas and Colorado for the benefit of his health.

—Dr. Samuel Choppin, an eminent physician and surgeon, died on Sunday, May 2. He was born in Baton Rouge La., in 1812, and practiced his profession in New Orleans for thirty years. For several years he was president of the State Board of Health.

—Judge Taylor Beattie, in a letter addressed to W. B. Gray, of the Morgan City Free Press, declines to be considered as a candidate for Congress, Third district, in the ordinary sense. If the nomination be tendered as the popular expression of Republicans, he will accept. He is opposed to corrupt men and measures in control of party politics. The letter is a manly and sincere one.

—Rev. A. W. Greenman and lady arrived in this city last week, en route to Puebla, Mexico. Rev. Greenman is a son of Rev. Almon Greenman, presiding elder of North Indiana Conference, and graduated this year from the Northwestern University, at Evanston, Illinois. He received a missionary appointment from Bishop Merrill, and leaves on the first steamer for Vera Cruz. He goes hopefully to a field where energetic young men are greatly needed in missionary work.

Letter from Holly Springs.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss., April 6, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Doubtless your readers would be pleased to hear occasionally from Holly Springs, touching her progress religiously, domestically and politically. Religiously, I expect Bro. Gallion (the pastor in charge of Asbury Chapel) can boast of one of the most successful and joyful times that we have ever experienced. We have had a protracted effort going on for about three weeks, and up to the time of my writing we have had forty-four conversions, and are proud to add that the Spirit of God seemed to have moved towards Shaw University and the normal schools. Our efficient and beloved Prof. Hooper, principal of Shaw University, has labored indefatigably with us. Bro. Gallion is an untiring worker, always at his post and ready for duty; he has endeared himself not only to the members of his church, but to the public generally. Our Sabbath-school is simply grand, with an excellent corps of teachers and an average of about 115 pupils.

Domestically we are doing tolerably well, if I am permitted to use that term. Our schools are in splendid condition. Colored tramps are few and far between, so we would infer that there is meat on the board and meal in the bag.

Politically we are like the colored people are over the entire South, so it is unnecessary for me to dwell on this subject, yet the prospects are propitious that we will have an early dawn, when all will be well.

Letter from Macon.

MACON, Miss., March 30th, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—It having been some time since I have written to you valuable paper I avail myself of the present opportunity of informing you of the working of both our church and Sunday-school, under the pastoral charge of our beloved pastor, the Rev. P. Jamison.

Bro. Jamison arrived here on the 31st of January last, and immediately entered upon his pastoral work, and taking up the work from where our former pastor, the Rev. Geo. W. Barney, left off has continued to build up.

The Church and Sabbath-school are both in a prosperous condition. Pastor, officers and teachers work in harmony. Bro. Jemison is loved by his Church and the community at large. All express a desire to work for the Lord, and do all they can to advance his cause.

Our parsonage was situated at the back of the church: he showed us that it was badly situated, and told us that we ought to have it moved, and said that "where there was a will there was a way." And we went to work and had it moved, and placed by the side of the church, fronting on Green street, by which, as it is now situated, we have the view of the town. Our property is now worth about $500 and when completed will be worth about $1,000.

The sisters have worked nobly in the great movement, having had a dining-room and a kitchen buil , and also purchased a nice No. 7 stove for the parsonage.

We believe that the Lord has been with us in our movement. We also have a fine music teacher from Nashville, Tenn., Miss America W. Robinson by name.

We were owing forty odd dollars on our parsonage, and on last Sunday we raised twenty-five dollars of it. The cause of Christ is still growing. Fraternally,

J. W. LONGSTREET.

To Pastors and Sunday-school Superintendents.

DEAR BRETHREN — Sabbath, May 30, will be the Sunday-school Centennial Day throughout our Methodism. A Centennial Service is ready with provisions for readings, songs, etc., morning, afternoon and evening. I am sure that your congregation and school will be deeply interested in the service. Will you not send for it? Price, one dollar per hundred copies. Will you not hold the service and take the two collections for the Sunday-school Union? Yours sincerely,

J. H. VINCENT,

Cor. Sec. S. S. Union, 805 Broadway, New York.

To the Preachers in Columbus District—West Texas Conference.

DEAR BRETHREN—I wish to call your attention to the Bishops' Address, published in the SOUTHWESTERN. It is a valuable paper for all parts of the country; but especially so for us in Texas. Don't fail to read it through carefully, and preserve the paper that has it in.

I find the General Conference in full sympathy with our work in the South, and I think they will devise liberal things for us.

I hope you will push forward your protracted meetings and camp meetings during the camp meeting season, and may the Lord give you abundant success.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"As many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage."

TOPIC.—Warning in regard to the danger of refusing the Gospel.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The Connection.—After Christ had spoken the parable of the wicked husbandmen, the rulers, for whom it specially was intended, "left him, and went their way." That in Luke was spoken in the house of a Pharisee, at a much earlier period in his ministry—this in the temple. That was a great supper—this a marriage feast, and a dinner. That was given by a man of wealth—this by a king. A favor from him meant something—a slight to him had more significance than one given to an ordinary man. Those who insulted him did so at their peril. The only natural interpretation of the marriage feast is the marriage of Christ with his chosen people, who, in their collective capacity of the church, are called the Bride—"the Lamb's wife."

John the Baptist was the first to announce that the kingdom of heaven was at hand—that the marriage feast was ready. The "servants" informed the invited guests of no new fact, but of the arrival of an event which they had been long expecting. Christ simply was the fulfillment of the law. The invitations to the marriage feast were not repudiated—but their summons to attend it met with no response. The king graciously assumes that their not coming is the result of some misunderstanding. He makes no threats—such as a slighted earthly king freely would have used. He indulges in no reproaches. The second deputation of servants met with a different reception than was accorded to the first. They turned their backs upon the messengers, or slew them. It was only the small coterie of scribes and Pharisees that were actively engaged in the persecution of Christ and his ministers. "The common people heard him gladly." To insult an ambassador is to insult the king who sends him. When their king was upon the cross the Jews had taunted him with his impotency. When they were clamoring for the blood of Christ they cried out: "His blood be upon us and upon our children." Most terribly was that invocation answered. More than a million Jews, it is estimated, perished in the siege of Jerusalem. The Jerusalem of today is but a testimony of how fearfully God can take vengeance upon those who despise his gracious message and maltreat his messengers. They proved themselves unworthy by rejecting the summons to the feast.

Peter went to the house of Cornelius, the Roman centurion, and baptized him and all his house. Paul and Barnabas traveled through Asia Minor, and declared even in the streets of Athens, that city of intellectual feasts, how much better a banquet God had spread for them. The disciples now are trying to make every land a mission field. The plan of salvation will be no failure. The fate of the murderers and of the man who had not on the wedding garment shows what a great difference there is between being called and being chosen—between receiving an invitation and accepting it—between the beginning and the end of rebellion and of hypocrisy.

Timely Caution.

Genuine Hop Bitters are put up in square paneled, amber-colored bottles, with white label on one side, printed in black letters, and green hop cluster, and on the other side yellow paper with red letters; revenue stamp over the cork. This is the only form in which genuine Hop Bitters are put up, and the sole right to make, sell and use them is granted to the Hop Bitters M'f'g Co., of Rochester, N. Y., and Toronto, Ont., by patents, copyright and trade mark. All others put up in any other way or by any one else, claiming to be like it or pretending to contain hops, by whatever names they may be called are bogus and unfit for use, and only put up to sell and cheat the people on the credit and popularity of Hop Bitters.

CHRONIC Looseness of the Bowels results from imperfect digestion, and this again from stomachic irregularities and interruptions. The cause lies in the torpidity of the Liver, and the cure is, take Simmons Liver Regulator to aid digestion, to stimulate the dull and sluggish Liver and to regulate the bowels.

"For twenty months I was afflicted with Diarrhœa. Numbers of physicians prescribing for me missed my case—their medicine, mostly astringent, aggravating my condition. I was advised to use the Simmons Liver Regulator. This medicine soon indicated the proper diagnosis—an impure matter, secreted from a disordered Liver, and, coursing the passage of the bowels, irritated and inflamed to a diseased condition. In a few weeks the medicine corrected it. I was restored to perfect health and have remained so over two years, no symptoms having returned. I use it in my family as a specific for all disorders originating in disordered Liver. JAMES G. TISON, Bagdad, Texas.

From Eminent Dr. C. C. Clark, Oswego, N. Y.

I have made sufficient experiment of Colden's Liebig's Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator, to enable me to say it is by far the best of all the preparations of the kind (FOOD and TONIC) that I have ever used. To the sufferer from chronic diseases, or the convalescent, it is invaluable, being both nourishing and strengthening. I. L. Lyon's, druggist agent, New Orleans.

The New Louisiana Remedy is winning golden opinions from many who have tested its merits in the treatment of coughs, colds, etc. We recently examined some fourteen pages of signatures vouching for its effectiveness. Read advertisement elsewhere, and remember that this home medicine is well known, and finds sale throughout the country. A large order was received lately from Richmond, Va., where the Remedy had been tried, and thus commended itself.

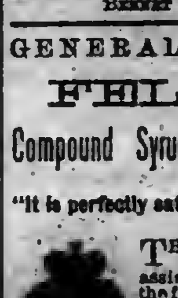
GENERAL EFFECTS OF FELLOWS' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

"It is perfectly safe, and the taste pleasant."



THE first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations. Its effect on the mucous membrane is such that easy expectoration is produced, not only are the air passages easily voided of the secretion already deposited, but its collection is carried on in a healthy manner, while the formation of tubercle is retarded. The rapidity with which patients take on flesh while under the influence of the Syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more efficacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened and the blood purified.

FELLOWS' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites

Speedily and permanently cures Congestion of the Lungs, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Shortness of Breath, Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Physical and Mental Depression, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Energy, Loss of Memory. It will rapidly improve the weakened functions and organs of the body, which depend for health upon voluntary, semi-voluntary, and involuntary nervous action. It acts with vigor, gentleness, and subtlety owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent.

DR HARTER'S IRON TONIC

W. P. HILL, Crockett Station, Tenn., writes: "DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC has done wonders here. A lady who had been doctored nearly to death for several years, has been cured of Debility and General Prostration by the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, which raised her from her bed where she had been lying for many months."

Dr. Harter:—Mr. James Brown of our county, has requested us to tender you his grateful acknowledgments for the great benefits his wife received from the use of your IRON TONIC. He tells us that, after having paid two or four hundred dollars doctors' bills, two bottles of your IRON TONIC did her more good than all other medicines she ever used. She was troubled with Derangement of the Womb, Whites, etc., from which she is much relieved.

The New Hymnal

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

$1000, REWARD

For any Washing Machine that will Wash Cleaner, Quicker, with Less Labor and Wear and Tear of Clothes than the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, Pat'd Oct. 3, '71.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY PERFECT SELF-OPERATING WASHER IN THE WORLD.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow-grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. It cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide and 1¾ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 13 inches high over that, and is 1¼ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 6 to 8 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 10 to 20 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7¾ inches wide, 1¾ inches deep, and weighs about 8 pounds. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes, through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER—ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fibres which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No: impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you everytime.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW,

Rules of Evidence:

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judical investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

acceptance, and Bishop Simpson was so appointed.

The non-American Methodist bodies were constituted the Eastern section, and the President of the British Wesleyan Conference was made its President.

The proposed Ecumenical Methodist Conference is to be held in London in August, 1881. It will consist of 400 members, who will be chosen proportionately to their numerical membership by the respective Methodist bodies. The Methodist Episcopal Church will be entitled to eighty delegates, the Church South to forty, and the smallest bodies to two delegates each.

When it was proposed that the Presidents of Eastern and Western sections have power to call the London Conference to order, a ripple of laughter passed over the corner occupied by the European and Canadian representatives, which Mr. MacDonald quickly explained was caused by the fact that calling an assembly to order on the other side of the water meant a rebuke for disorderliness. The expression was then changed so as to empower the designated officers to "open the proceedings."

Throughout the proceedings only the best feelings prevailed. The stiffness with which strangers began their work soon melted away, and a feeling of kinship as well as friendship actuated the members of the committee.

EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION.

The great Educational Convention called to convene in this city on the 6th instant was largely attended. Educators were present from every part of the nation. Among the prominent educators who took part in the proceedings were Drs. Haven, Warren, Martin, Bennett, Marcey, Huntley, Bugbee, Fiske, Braden, Payne; Profs. Hemenway and Hurst, besides many other ministers, editors and laymen. The practical results of this important gathering are crystalized in the following actions:

rials and resolutions offered by the delegates from the several annual conferences, is very great. Already the number has reached hundreds, and yet other hundreds will come. Some look upon this flood of papers which pour in upon the Conference as of little importance, if not a positive nuisance. Thoughtful men see in them, however, much that is of value. It is the only way in which the whole church can be heard. From the most wealthy layman to the youngest member on the far-away frontier or in foreign lands, and from the bishops to the preacher on trial on the poorest circuit—all alike—can thus speak to the highest court of the church, and receive a respectful hearing. Besides, often some of the best suggestions the body receive come in this way; it is in fact the only way in which the General Conference can judge of the spirit or sentiments of the whole Church.

DELEGATES FROM THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

The delegates from the M. E. Church South are Rev. A. G. Haygood, D.D., editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, and Hon. J. A. Carlisle, LL.D., President of Walford College, in South Carolina. They were received last Friday night, and made a good impression. In advance of the official report, which is not yet published, the following from the Cincinnati Commercial, will be read with interest:

The evening session of the General Conference was again held in St. Paul to receive and hear the addresses of fraternal delegates. Bishop Simpson presided with his attractive and commanding ease and gracefulness, and the ceremony of presenting the distinguished visitors was made doubly interesting by the manner in which it was done.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell, who represented the Reception Committee, was appropriately chosen to present the first delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church South, as he is himself a resident of New Orleans, and editor of the ADVOCATE, published in that city. His presentation was in keeping with his position, and was intended to deservedly honor his brother editor, Dr. Haygood. Dr. Haygood is in the prime of life, gives evidence of being in good health, and speaks with vigor and readiness. Representing a great church, in a brief address he chose to speak more especially of the evangelistic and missionary work of the Southern Church. Methodism has always been missionary. The largest Protestant Missionary Society in Europe is the Wesleyan. The Church South has been active in the foreign fields, and in the most distant outposts the two Methodisms work side by side. It is a very pleasing thought, affording beautiful evidence of the heart unity of the two Churches, that at a period during the war, when the missionaries of the Church South, in foreign fields, were in need, and the church treasury at home was exhausted and could not relieve their necessities, that the Rev. Dr. Carlton, treasurer of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New York, without security, advanced $20,000 to sustain the missions of the Church South. The great kindness was duly appreciated, and when the battle sounds had died, and the war clouds had passed away, the Church South, prostrate as it was, raised this amount and sent it to Dr. Carlton by a personal messenger, but the messenger proved dishonest and absconded with his trust. Hereupon, the Church South, with redoubled energy, gathered the means and a second time remitted to New York.

Rev. Dr. Bennett, of New York, presented the Hon. Dr. Carlisle, President of Walford College, who is the co-delegate of Dr. Haygood, and who spoke well and wisely on the spirit of Christian fraternity. Dr. Carlisle is a layman, and looks upon this matter from a good standpoint. The growing fraternity gives encouragement of good results. Masonry and Odd Fellowship are doing something to promote peace and good-will between the sections; the International Young Men's Christian Associations are helping the good cause, but most of all the Church is wedding the hearts of the North and South. But for the ... influence of politicians, the ... and most enduring marriage bonds would soon unite these. ... the courtship was an ... and should be continued.

GENERAL CONFERENCE PROCEEDINGS.

FOURTH DAY—MAY 5.

Bishop Merrill presided, and W. H. Olen, of Wyoming, conducted the religious exercises.

The Committee on Ecumenical Conference ordered by last General Conference, reported through its secretary, A. C. George. The report set forth at length the acceptance of the proposition to hold such a Conference, by the Methodist Episcopal Church South, British Wesleyan Methodists, and all the other prominent Methodist bodies in the world. Of the proposed Conference the Committee said:

Methodism is more than continental; it is ecumenical. It has accomplished a great evangelistic and missionary work in many lands. It has been, from the beginning, a revival and missionary movement, steadily aiming at the conversion of the world. Such a Church could not be left within national limits. To be itinerant was a necessity of its spiritual life. Its restless, conquering ardor could not be restrained. As a historic fact, Methodism has been an overflow. Its evangelists have gone everywhere preaching the Gospel. Its banners have been unfurled from ocean to ocean, and almost from pole to pole. Its victories have been gained on land and sea, among all classes and conditions, and despite the most powerful obstacles which could be arrayed against a religious movement. Its ministers and members are of many colors, and speak many different languages. The Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States has annual conferences, entitled to send delegates to its supreme legislative body, in Europe, Africa and Asia. The Wesleyan Methodist Church of England—the parent body—is present as a practical power, not only on the British Isles, but on the continent, in Africa, Asia, Australia, and in many islands of the ocean. Methodism, therefore, is rightfully ecumenical, and is entitled to hold a General Council.

The proposed conference will possess no ecclesiastical authority, and can impose no dogma on the Church; but its influence will undoubtedly be powerful to promote a closer alliance, a warmer fraternity, and a fuller co-operation among the various Methodist organizations for the advancement and triumph of the Redeemer's kingdom. It might secure for the one worldwide Methodism a common psalmody and a uniform order of worship. It might possibly devise some way to prevent the waste of wealth and energy which comes from two or more Methodist bodies occupying the same mission field. It would, almost certainly, be such an exhibition of Christian unity, such a manifestation of brotherly love and such a demonstration of devotion to the welfare of the race, as would rebuke worldliness, command the consideration of bigots and skeptics, and prove a blessing to mankind. "Through all the differences and contests of the modern world," says Guizot, "a deep and dominant unity lies in its moral life as in its destinies—let us call it," he adds, "Christianity." The more signally and powerfully this deep spiritual unity is demonstrated to the world, the more speedily will the Gospel triumph in all lands.

The report was received and ordered printed and referred to Committee on State of Church.

The Committee on Lay Representation, appointed by last Conference, reported. Our readers have already seen the plan reported. The report was referred to the Standing Committee on the subject.

Reports of Western Book Agents, Board Church Extension, Freedmen's Aid, Missionary Society, etc., were received and referred to proper committees.

On motion of C. D. Foss, the report of Fraternal delegates to M. E. Church South, was received:

REPORT OF THE FRATERNAL DELEGATES TO THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

The fraternal delegates appointed by the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in pursuance of the action of the General Conference of 1876, to bear the fraternal greetings of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, respectfully present the following report:

We reached Atlanta, Georgia, where our pleasant duty was to be discharged, on Tuesday a. m., May 14, 1878. As soon as we entered the General Conference room we were greeted with the utmost cordiality by the committee on introductions, the bishops and many of the most prominent members of the conference. Thursday a. m., May 16, was fixed for our reception. At the time appointed we were escorted to the platform by Governor Colquitt, of Georgia, the chairman of the committee on introductions, and by him presented to the venerable senior Bishop Paine, who introduced us both to his colleagues severally.

After our addresses to the conference, the patriarch of Southern Methodism, Rev. Dr. Lovick Pierce, then in his ninety-fifth year, responded briefly, beginning thus: "Beloved brethren, I rise to thank you for your kind expression in regard to myself, and I request you to return to my brethren in the North this communication: When they can OUT-LOVE me I want them to send me word!" closing with these words: "I am glad that fraternity has come to pass in all its beauty, and in all its perfection, and in all its sacredness."

In further response to our addresses Bishop Paine, with great tenderness and fervor, gave utterance to these, among other most fraternal words: "It is the earnest hope of him who addresses you, and of my beloved colleagues and the whole body who appear before you, that fraternity may become more genial, more effective, and that our hearts and souls may be knit together more closely in the love of our common Methodism, under the influence of the Holy Spirit."

The Journal of the Conference says: "The whole scene was morally sublime, and at its close the conference spontaneously rose and sang the doxology:

"Praise God, from whom all blessings flow," etc., and, without formal vote, adjourned, with the benediction by the bishop.

We remained in Atlanta about a week, and were entertained with such cordiality as left nothing to be desired or thought of in emphasizing the welcome and greeting which our beloved Church received in our persons.

Your fraternal delegates could not but feel that such a reception was, under the circumstances, a very significant fact. The action of the commission which met at Cape May, to establish formal fraternity, had been hailed with a general outburst of joy by both branches of Episcopal Methodism in this country. That action had been taken with a full understanding that our Church had gone South to stay, and to carry forward with all our ... among ... God had committed to our hands in ... of our common country. What ... this conviction both your fraternal delegates profoundly sympathize. Inclination, as well as duty led us, therefore, studiously to avoid, both in public and in private, every word which could by any possibility be construed as giving an "uncertain sound" as to this matter; and we agreed before hand in saying to the conference, as we did say, "If our Christian charity is too narrow to extend beyond State lines, and is cramped within sectional boundaries, then had we all better look into the genuineness of our conversion."

When we took our leave we felt warranted in giving the conference this assurance: "The cordiality of the welcome which the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will extend to your fraternal messengers to us in 1880 will emulate, though it can not surpass your example; and will make Cincinnati as bright a spot in their memory as Atlanta must ever be in ours." Respectfully submitted,

CYRUS D. FOSS,
WILL CUMBACK.

Geo. L. Curtiss, of South-east Indiana, presented the report of Rev. T. H. Lynch, D. D., fraternal delegate to the Wesleyan Connection, and it was read by the secretary. After reading, it was ordered that it be printed in the Daily Advocate to-morrow morning.

REPORT OF FRATERNAL DELEGATE TO THE WESLEYAN METHODIST CHURCH—A COOL RECEPTION.

To the Bishops Presiding and to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church to Meet in the City of Cincinnati on the first day of May, 1880:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN—The Board of Bishops, acting under the authority of the General Conference of 1876, appointed me fraternal delegate to the general conference of the Wesleyan Connection of America, which held its sessions in the town of Pittsford, in the State of Michigan, October 16th, 1879. I attended that general conference, and presented my credentials. The president of the conference immediately asked me the question whether or not I was a member of any secret society. Without recognizing his right to ask such a question, I frankly answered in the affirmative that I was a member of what he would call a secret society. Upon giving this answer, the president, Rev. Mr. Wardner, declined to introduce me to the conference, or to give me any official recognition. In this refusal he was sustained by a majority of the conference. Of course, my mission was at once terminated, and I returned to my home and to my ministerial work. I consider the Board of Bishops and the General Conference fully competent to select their own agents, and to judge of their qualifications for the work assigned them, and deem it would be delicate in me to indicate what action, if any, should be taken in the premises; I, therefore, without comment, make to your body this report of my fraternal visit to the Wesleyan Connection of America. Very respectfully,

THOMAS H. LYNCH.

J. M. Buckley, of New York East, said: I wish to state that in 1876 I made an address to the General Conference in favor of the appointment of a fraternal delegate to the body referred to. I wish now to retract that address. [Laughter.]

The call of the Conference was begun for the Reception of Memorials and Petitions. Ninety-two petitions and memorials were presented and referred to the several committees.

H. Buck, of Illinois, presented the report of Rev. Dr. R. N. Davis, of Illinois Fraternal delegate to the Reformed Episcopal Church.

Bishop Bowman and E. O. Haven, who had been appointed fraternal delegates to the British Wesleyan Conference, reported having visited that body at Bradford, Yorkshire, and were most cordially received.

The call of Conference was made for resolutions, and a large number were presented and referred.

The Conference accepted an invitation to visit the Zoological Gardens and Chamber of Commerce.

FIFTH DAY—MAY 6.

Bishop Andrews presided, and G. S. Hare, of New York Conference, conducted religious exercises.

The arrival of several delegates and changes in membership on seven delegates were announced by different delegations and proper action taken.

Bishop Harris announced the committee on Rules of Order.

The call of Conferences for resolutions was resumed. Many resolutions were presented and referred. One asked for the institution of the order of deaconesses in the Church. Another looking toward the establishing of two houses of legislation in the General Conference. Another asking the Committee on Book Concern to inquire into the desirableness of consolidating the publishing interests of the Church under one management, and one to do away with District Conferences, etc.*

Several Fraternal Delegates from other Churches were introduced, Bishop Simpson occupying the chair. Each one was presented to the Chairman by some member of the Committee on Fraternal Delegates. Dr. Cummings presented Rev. Wm. Arthur, and Gen. Fisk presented Rev. F. W. McDonald, these two being the delegation from the British Wesleyan Conference. Dr. Hatfield presented Rev. Wallace McMullen, the delegate from the Irish Conference. Dr. Hartzell presented Rev. A. G. Haygood, D.D., and Dr. Bennett presented Hon. J. H. Carlisle, LL.D., who were the delegates from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The other delegates presented were: Dr. John Jones, of the General Presbyterian Church in the United States; Bidwell Lane, M. A., of the M. E. Church in Canada; Rev. Dr. Ryckman, of Canada Methodist Church; Bishop Samuel G. Fallows, of the Reformed Episcopal Church; and Revs. R. A. Johnson and Dr. J. G. Johnson, of the African M. E. Church. All were received with applause.

*All petitions, memorials and resolutions referred to committee are considered and will be reported for final action.

Evening Session.

The evening session was held in St. Paul's M. E. Church. An immense audience was present to listen to the addresses of the British and Irish delegations.

Bishop Simpson presided.

Rev. Dr. Cummings introduced Rev. Wm. Arthur, of England, with an appropriate address. He referred to the visit of Mr. Arthur twenty-five years ago, and to his outspoken sympathy with our nation in its late struggle. This reference was greeted with applause.

Mr. Arthur spoke at length and was frequently interrupted with applause. In speaking of the power of Methodism, he referred, among other countries, to Italy. He said:

In the year 1836, I found myself there with my wife. I said: "We must not leave this place without having a prayer meeting." "We can't have one." "We must have one." "We haven't any place." "We have this bedroom." "The police will be upon you." "We must consider." So I sallied out to get some one to come to our bed-room in our Hotel d' Angleterre. The first man that accepted my invitation was Thomas Henry Tarlton, the originator of the Y. M. C. A. work in Europe. The second man that accepted the invitation was Dr. Treat, of Boston, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions. The next was Dr. Forbes, a clergyman of the Church of England, who is now for many years the English chaplain in Paris, and the only other person was Mr. Hale, an American clergyman, then officiating as chaplain at the American Embassy in Rome. Seven of us met in that bed-room in the Hotel d' Angleterre.

We spent nearly two hours in very earnest prayer. We did not know who might be overhearing us, or what might follow. But, during the meeting, there fell upon me this impression: It is very strange that here, in this little room, at such a short notice, and there should be met together the representatives of the leading missionary society in America, the representative of the largest missionary society in Protestant Europe, the representative of the Young Men's Christian Associations, the representative of the clergymen of America and nearly all England. And of those seven there were two Christian women among them—those seven to offer earnest prayer.

And there are things that come into a man's mind, we don't know how, and somehow they form a part of it, and from that time I always went about praying quietly, I shall live to see the Gospel freely preached in Rome. [Applause.]

Well, sir, I have paid other visits in the interim, to Rome, but two years ago I entered that city as one of a deputation from the Evangelical Alliance, in company with the Rev. Donald Frazier and Rev. Mr. Bly. There was a railway platform in Rome. It was pleasant when I reached the platform in Cincinnati to see the faces of Bishop Simpson, and Bro. Sargent and others, but will you pardon me if I lack politeness, and say that it was even pleasanter to see fifteen men of different Christian denominations gather to welcome a deputation of the Evangelical Alliance in Rome? [Applause.] And one of the first things they said to us was, We are going to give you a reception to-night in the Hotel d' Angleterre—in that very hotel in which our prayer-meeting had been held twenty years before. And there that evening, in a few yards of the very room where the prayer-meeting was held, we were welcomed by fifty men who were all employed in working for the spread of the Gospel in the city of Rome, and working in as perfect freedom and protection by the law as in the city of Cincinnati. Dr. Prime, of the New York Observer, was there, and Dr. Vernon was there, with others of your own agents.

Shall I mention, then, one scene more in connection with that country? You have all heard of the first constitutional prime minister of Italy—Cavour—and one of the most remarkable men ever produced in any country—a man, great, with one of those heads that seem as if the Great Architect had made them for the purpose of extraordinary thought. I remember one night, in the year 1869, in the midst of a dense crowd, that man strangely found time to talk to me. Naples was then still under the power of its terrible king, and I said something about it. He said that reminded him of something, but I will not quote the expression. I replied, when I was in Naples the palace of the king seemed the most emblematical building I ever saw. "What do you mean?" said he. I answered: He had the emblems of all his reign about him. On this end of this palace there was an arsenal; that represented force. Here on this other end of the palace the theater—the next instrument of his power, corruption. Here under the portico of the palace the public letter writer, whom I saw with my own eyes writing letters for women clothed in silk and in satin, too. The next instrument of this power—public ignorance. "Yes," he said, I hesitated for a moment before giving a final touch, but he uttered the exact sentence I was going to utter: On the other side, the Jesuit Church, the final instrument of his power—superstition. [Applause.]

Well, sir, in the month of April last, within a pistol-shot of that place, I sat in what was called a synod that was like the meeting of Methodist districts. There were twenty-five Italian ministers with one or two English ones; and into the midst of that meeting walks a deputation of ministers and laborers of other denominations. It was a little Ecumenical Conference in its own way, and there before that united meeting of Italians of all sorts from Calabria and Piedmont, there came a great strong man, strong with Methodist sense in the inner man without any flourishes who felt called upon to tell how God had brought him up in Ireland, and sent him to school, and forced him out to preach the Gospel, and sent him to India to begin the mission in India, and had guided him to Mexico to begin a work for you and your name, and as Wm. Butler [applause] went on telling these details, so like what might be told in a good conference love-feast in any part of the world, I felt that it is a very different scene from the scenes then in Naples, when I was there first [applause], and so I felt, "What has God wrought!"

General Clinton B. Fisk introduced Rev. Frederick W. McDonald, the associate delegate with Mr. Arthur.

Mr. McDonald made an address which for brilliancy and power has seldom been equalled.

But, it is not the actual achievements of Methodism in America, as great as it is, that impresses and almost awes a visitor; it is the promise, the pretentious promise which every thing in this land bears with reference to your future.

You have had the inestimable advantage of beginning your Church life with the birth of the nation. We had to commence in an old nation—a young Church in an old country. You are a young Church in a young nation. When we were born, the institutions of our land were fixed and tenacious. You were born in time to help draw the plans, and lay the foundation of your national existence. [Applause.]

I hardly know whether to envy you your opportunities, or to tremble at your responsibilities. Your land is only beginning to be peopled. Your forty millions might be multiplied by ten and ten again, and you would not burden the soil. It has been yours to welcome in the name of Christianity the emigrant from almost every country in the whole world, and meet them on your shores, and you have accompanied them to every settlement. You have gone with the farmer, and the miner, and the shepherd, and what has been your reward? It has been in the strong, wide-spread, hopeful and healthy organization of the Church, which with its points of advantage and enterprise, has already mapped out and assigned the country.

And, when these great Territories, whose strange, musical names charm my ear, Arizona, Montana, and all the rest, when they are filled with people, when they possess all the wealth that labor gives rise to, what will be your reward? An enlarged sense of citizenship? Something better than that. Your reward will be that your thousands will be tens of thousands, and your tens of thousands will be hundreds of thousands, and your Churches, your schools, your parsonages, your colleges, will cover the whole continent, and you will by God's blessing infuse power into the whole life of a great people, and the strongest elements of Christian character and worth which ever a Church has been allowed to impart to a great and vigorous people. [Applause.]

It is plain from your present and past history that whatever may be the extent of your operations and of your successes on this continent, they will not suffice you. They have not sufficed you already. You have taken up your position in the farther East as well as your own wonderful West. And by and by you will do so on a large scale, and you will pay back to the Old World, after a very handsome sort, if you will allow me to say it, that for which you are indebted to the Old World. There are debts, brethren, which it is an honour to acknowledge, even before one is able to pay them. [Laughter.] There are debts, with respect to which it seems to me, it would be graceful to acknowledge even before pay-day and the time of settlement arrives.

When I look upon American civilization, its literature, its politics, I need not prove to you your debt of obligation to the old world. Your literature links you to England, your jurisprudence joins you to Rome, and your religion is God's gift to you from Jerusalem, where God's son consummated his sacrifice. [Applause.] How shall you pay that to the Old World? Not only as you are doing now with the produce of your fields, and your countless factories, but with such a band of missionary labor and holy beneficent toil, as shall hasten in the regeneration of the heathen world, the downfall of the last stronghold of sin, and the fulfilling of our highest hopes. God hasten such a time. [Applause and responses of Amen.]

Be sure it is not in our way at home to grieve or grudge for one moment the ever enlarging prosperity of the American people. Your kinsmen across the sea are counting upon you for Christ in a way which it would delight you to feel and know. As we see the terrible records of history, and look upon the civilization of the Old World, our hopes and prayers reach out ever more and more toward you, for the alliance of heart and soul, which is ordained in the cause of Christ, for righting the wrongs which distress a suffering world. After the indications which meet us of your wealth and progress, we are most confident that God has prepared here in his new world a benediction, which shall by and by in still larger measure be poured out upon the older populations of the earth.

And is not this—let me say it for us Englishmen as well as you Americans—is not this the true bearing of our Christian patriotism? I know that the word patriotism on our side of the Atlantic—I am sure it is so on that side of the Atlantic—the word patriot has had many disastrous periods in its history. [Great applause and laughter.] It is a term that has been associated with some of not the choicest specimens of humanity, and with transactions of not the highest virtue and glory, and therefore a word of somewhat damaged reputation requires to be judiciously and tenderly handled. I was about to say there is a need of Christianizing throughout Christendom the somewhat heathen virtue of patriotism. For, as the records of the world plainly show, patriotism has been made up of a too large proportion of strong conceit of self, and a supreme contempt for the rights of others. How very sensitive the patriotism of nations has been in reference to their rights. Patriotism has been invoked to sanction almost every kind of injustice and wrong, emulating liberty itself in the crimes that have been committed in its names.

But for all that we may not throw our patriotism away, and ape the manner of those who cynically term patriotism a worn out thing. We will purge our patriotism of all base and evil elements, and instead of setting our hearts upon our nations' wealth, its military prowess, its numbers and population, we will toil and pray for our nation's growth in righteousness [applause], and growth not only in numbers, but in the virtus of its people. It matters not what elements of material greatness are at a people's command, if they are inwardly corrupt and base, no amount of skill can long delay their decline and fall from among the nations.

I sat a short time ago upon the broad embankment which guards our small but ancient river, the Thames, and I sat and looked upon the venerable but last visitor, the obelisk, the pillar of Cleopatra. It had been brought from the banks of the Nile and set up on the banks of the Thames. There it stands to keep watch over the city, making nothing of 2,000 years' sleep in the sand, waking up like a sentinel that has dozed for a minute or two, and waking up to watch over the nation's life. What has it seen since it was carved with those strange characters? It has seen the Pharaohs, Alexander, the Cæsar, the Mohammedans; it has seen Greece, Rome and Arabia pass like visions before it. Why, why do they pass? The Pharaohs were rich and the Greek had genius, and the Romans knew how to govern, and the Arabs had fiery valor, but they have followed one after another into the sepulchre where nations are buried, where moral corruption lays them low. They died for want of righteousness. [Applause.]

And no nation, whatever be its natural resources, shall survive the action of those divinely appointed laws by which righteousness is made to exalt a nation, and sin to be a reproach to any people.

O, sir, it is a joy to work not only for the saving of men in their individual capacity, but it is a joy to work for the life of nations, to seek to purge its life from all evil and vice, and intemperance, fraud, deception and corruption.

That is our toil, saving individuals by the way, until, at length, the kingdoms of the world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ. And to whom, in ancient or in modern times, has God given louder calls or fairer opportunities than to yourselves?

Rev. Dr. R. M. Hartfield introduced Rev. Wallace McMullen, the fraternal delegate from Ireland.

Mr. McMullen held the audience for half an hour, notwithstanding the lateness of the hour. We quote his remarks on the troubles of Ireland:

Before entering upon the proper subject to which my address shall be confined, I feel I must make a reference to another subject. I would ignore it if I could. I refer to the distress which has existed for some time in my own country. I have been asked again and again if the tales people have heard are true. I cannot tell ... I have heard. That the hand of God has been upon us in chastisement is an undoubted fact. But, if it be represented that ... famine is stalking over the land, and ... the government and the large landed proprietors are looking on without endeavoring to help, then it is unquestionably ... Those of us who remember the devouring famine and the terrible pestilence of ... 47, and who witnessed some of the most heart-rending sights in connection with that time of famine and pestilence, we stand utterly amazed at the utter disregard of truth which would report the distress of the present time as at all commensurate with that in extent or intensity. If any one talks of people dying by ... all over the land, and of charging this on the government and upon the landlords, ... that I can say is that they have been ... most arrant nonsense, and he has been exhibiting more zeal for the cause of ... than of humanity.

While Brother McDonald was speaking of patriotism, I could not help thinking that to love one's country is ... and to do and dare what one can ... defend one's country is most praiseworthy, but some kinds of counterfeit patriotism that is sometimes exhibited is to be condemned.

Men who rail at the great, and then take office under it; who put up their political shibboleth, and refrain from all legislation except to promote that shibboleth; ... who keep alive distraction and strife ... community, and the memory of ... long since passed away—these are the ... that sometimes claim to be the ... the Tells, the Hampdens, and the ... tons of the land. Alas for any country ... which such patriotism passes for the ... [Applause.]

There should be a distinction between what is to be put down to the account of Ireland, and what to Rome. [Applause.] If men write upon Ireland, let them try to understand the subject. We hear a good deal about the Irish question, and the discontent, and of Irish rebellion. The ... alty is Irish; the sedition is Romish. [Applause.] The warm heart, and the ... early help are Irish; the turbulence, discontent, the strife of angry passions, these are Romish. [Applause.]

The phrase, "Ireland is England's difficulty," has almost passed into a proverb. It is Rome that is England's difficulty. [Applause.] And is there no sense that Rome will become America's difficulty as well as England's?

The attacks upon your public schools and the turbulence in your large cities, come they not from the self-same ... from which the miseries of Ireland come? Come they not from Rome?

If the springs of your social and civil life be pervaded by Rome, then farewell to your liberty.

After the addresses E. O. Stanard, of St. Louis, presented the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That having received from the Rev. Wm. Arthur and the Rev. Fred'k W. MacDonald, the fraternal greetings of the British Wesleyan Conference, we ... the committee on Fraternal Correspondence to report resolutions expressive of our appreciation of the visit and addresses of these distinguished representatives, and of the great respect in which we hold the great body they represent; and that the papers presented by them be referred to the same committee, and printed in the Daily Christian Advocate.

F. S. Hoyt, of North Ohio, presented a similar resolution, with reference to Rev. Wallace McMullen, representative of the Irish Wesleyan Conference, which was adopted.

Strikes and Preachers.

Last week a labor strike occurred in Plaquemines parish. A prominent Democratic politician and planter of that parish sent to Gov. Wiltz an urgent request for troops to suppress alleged rioters. Major Strong, of the Governor's staff, and twelve militia men were ordered out at once. The civil authorities of Plaquemines were in no way impeded in the discharge of their duties; yet the militia brought twelve of the strikers to this city and lodged them in the parish jail. The supersedure of the civil by the military power is becoming a marked feature of Gov. Wiltz's administration. Says the Times:

"Maj. Will A. Strong, who, in his capacity as aid de camp to the Governor, has visited the scene of every strike at its inception, has obtained information which leads him to believe that the colored preacher has perhaps as much to do with instigating strikes as any other. He is almost invariably a non-producer who must be supported by his congregation, and when the weekly wages are disbursed for little luxuries and whisky, very little is left for spiritual sustenance."

If Major Strong will carry his investigation a little farther he may discover that the office seeker, supporter of Gov. Wiltz, who could never be elected in strong Republican parishes, is a little meddlesome also, and that the display of military force is intended to have considerable effect on future local and Presidential campaigns.

The colored strikers, although overpowered, are far from being content, and unless a more judicious policy be pursued by the White League government, they will seek homes elsewhere and seriously cripple the planting interests. The colored preachers will certainly appeal to the people in behalf of the churches they represent, and of the schools they assist in establishing where the State fails to provide them; and if the conditions in Louisiana are to be such as to prevent the material, moral, and educational progress of the colored people they will promptly proclaim that fact.

But it can be done if they resolve now to use their best efforts to have the right kind of men nominated, and if they determine to vote only for men of irreproachable character.

Christian men should vote as they pray, says Dr. Haygood, in the Wesleyan Advocate. You pray that the Lord would give us upright and God-fearing men for our rulers. Do all in your power, by voice, vote and influence, to answer your prayers. Don't sell your liberty as a Christian citizen to any individual, clique, party or machine under the sun. To your own Master you stand or fall. You are just as responsible to God for the use you make of your citizenship as you are for the employment of any other talent.

This article is not out of place even in the Advocate. Officers are to be chosen this fall into whose hands the moral and material, as well as the political well-being of the State will be placed. Otherwise this article never would have been written. The County Commissioners have power to grant or refuse licenses to retail liquor, except in incorporated towns or villages. The bar-room keepers must not be allowed to make the nominations. The machine politicians must not be trusted. South Carolina is a Christian, not a heathen State. She must be governed by moral and Christian rulers. We can serve God in the nominating conventions and primaries as well as in the prayer meeting.

And to all this we say Amen! We rejoice in your acceptance of the view which has always guided the SOUTHWESTERN. We hope the Methodists will exert their full share of influence in politics, and in behalf of right and justice—the assertion of a church militant. Vote against dishonest, corrupt or ungodly men at all times and in all places.

The New Bishops.

The New York Times gives the following short sketches of the bishops elected in Cincinnati last week by the General Conference, M. E. Church:

The Rev. Dr. Foss is a native of Kingston, Ulster county, N. Y., where he was born, January 17, 1834. He entered the Wesleyan University, at Middletown, Conn., as a student in 1850, after having pursued a preparatory course of study at Amenia Seminary. He was graduated in 1854, and passed the succeeding three years at Amenia Seminary as professor and principal of the preparatory school. On May 6, 1857, he was received into the New York conference at Newburg. His first charge was Chester, N. Y., a post which he held with satisfaction to himself and the society until 1859, when he was transferred to Fleet street, Brooklyn. After serving two years allotted by the rules of the Church, he was advanced, in 1861, to Hanson-Place Church, Brooklyn. In 1863-4 he officiated in St. John's Church, Williamsburg; in 1865-7 at St. Paul's, in this city; in 1868-70 at Trinity, in this city, and in 1871-2 a second time at St. Paul's. In 1873 he was appointed to the pastorate of St. James' Church, Harlem, and on July 28, 1875, he was elected president of the Wesleyan University, at Middletown, Conn. He was installed in his seat on October 26 of the same year, and has since filled that responsible position with satisfaction to his pupils as well as the trustees. His degrees of Doctor of Divinity, Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts were all conferred upon him by his Alma Mater. He was one of the delegates from this city to the General Conference held at Brooklyn, at which he received eighty-five votes for bishop. Dr. Foss made an extended tour across the Atlantic in the summer of 1867. In person he is above the middle height, of commanding presence, with a piercing black eye, dark hair, and dark complexion. Though naturally quiet and undemonstrative, he is a good conversationalist, full of anecdotes, and possessed of a remarkable memory.

The Rev. Dr. John F. Hurst was born near Salem, Md., August 17, 1834. He pursued a preparatory course of instruction at Cambridge Academy, and was graduated with honors in 1854. After teaching ancient languages for two years at Hedding Institute, New York, he went to Germany, and continued his theological studies at Halle and Heidelberg universities. Returning to this country in 1858, he entered the Newark Conference, where he continued for some time in the itinerant work. He was next appointed principal of the Theological Department of the Mission Institute of the Methodist Church in Bremen, where he remained for three years. He was appointed professor of historical theology in the Drew Theological Institute, in Madison, N. J., and was elevated to the presidency of the institute in 1873. He is a distinguished writer, and the author of many theological works. He is a man of great versatility, and is a recognized authority in nearly every [illegible] of literature to which [illegible] his attention. He is of [illegible] height, of light complexion, [illegible] noted for his genial and social [man]ners.

[illegible] Rev. Dr. E. O. Haven is [illegible] of the Syracuse University. He was born in Boston, November 1, 1820, and is a graduate of the Wesleyan University, at [Middletown], Conn. He held a professorship at Amenia Seminary [illegible] and was engaged in [illegible] 1848 to 1853, [illegible] While [illegible] Latin and [illegible] literature [illegible]

[illegible] igan. He resigned his office to accept a similar position in the Northwestern University, at Evanston, Ill., in 1869, and remained there for three years. In 1870 he was elected chancellor of the Syracuse University. He is also secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Church. Dr. Haven has been a member of five general conferences. He is the author of several works, chief among them being Haven's "Rhetoric." As a preacher and lecturer he is able and eloquent.

The Rev. Henry W. Warren is a native of Massachusetts, and was graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., in 1853. For two years after being graduated Dr. Warren taught the ancient languages at Wilbraham Seminary; and in 1855 he joined the New England Conference, filling the pulpits of various churches. The Massachusetts State Senate appointed him to preach the election sermon in 1864. In 1871 he became a member of the Philadelphia Conference, and was assigned to the Arch Street Church. He was transferred to the New York East Conference in 1874, and remained there three years. Then he returned to the Philadelphia Conference, and resumed the pulpit of the Arch Street Church. Dr. Warren has traveled extensively in Europe and the East. He has written many prominent articles for the church periodicals, and is the author of a popular work called "Sights and Insights," and a treatise on astronomy.

Statistics of the M. E. Church South.

The following was published a few days since by Thos. O. Summers, of the Publishing House of the M. E. Church South:

After much toil and travel I have edited the Minutes of the Annual Conferences of 1879. They are ready for the printer. Here is the numerical result: Traveling preachers (including supernumeraries), 3,549—increase, 92; superannuated, 318—increase, 12; local preachers, 5,833—increase, 72; white members, 814,301—increase, 31,090; colored, 1,202—decrease, 226; Indians, 4,923—increase, 225; total ministers and members, 830,126—net increase, 31,264. Infants baptized, 28,011—increase, 2,962; adults baptized, 49,798—increase, 11,727; Sunday-schools, 8,941—increase, 1,679; teachers, 58,528—increase, 3,661; scholars, 421,137—increase, 29,844; collected for Conference claimants, $66,883.62—increase, $6,407.91; for Foreign and Domestic Missions, as reported through conferences alone, $129,713.47—increase, $19,162.30. The preachers who are discontinued (37) and those who were located (63) are not counted; those who were admitted on trial (223) and those who were re-admitted (28) are counted among the traveling preachers, though many of them are also reckoned with the local preachers. Our colored members have been nearly all absorbed in the Colored M. E. Church, and other organizations.

Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, appointed by the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church to bear fraternal greetings to the General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, was formally received by a committee in St. Paul's African Methodist Episcopal Church, St. Louis, and by special order, May 6 was appointed for his presentation to the conference. He was escorted by the committee of reception, and introduced, Bishop Joseph Shorter presiding, and the conference standing and applauding. He presented the friendly greetings of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and delivered a very fraternal address, reviewing principal events in the history of both Churches during the past quadrennium, and touching in a most pleasing manner the relations and prospects of the two connections toward each other. The address was interrupted by frequent applause. Bishops Brown and Ward, also Drs. H. M. Turner and B. T. Tanner made short addresses full of Christian love, after which appropriate resolutions were adopted.

Says the Conference Daily Advocate: "Hon Alvin Hawkins, a lay delegate from the Central Tennessee Conference, was nominated for governor by the Republican Convention of that State, on Thursday. He was present in his seat in the Conference, and the nomination against strong competitors who were present in person seeking it, is a high compliment. Judge Hawkins served several years on the Supreme Bench in his State, and enjoys the respect of his fellow-citizens irrespective of party.

Prof. Sweney, at the request of Mrs. Cornelia A. Miller, of Waterloo, Iowa, has prepared a beautiful piece of music especially adapted for Children's Day. It has been published in cheap form, and may be ordered of Hitchcock & Walden, 57 Washington street, Chicago. Price, 50 cents per 100.

Hon. Eugene Schuyler writes from Rome that he has received proposals from Messrs. Joseph Seligman & Company, publishers at Stockholm, Sweden, for permission to translate and publish his life of Peter the Great, now running in Scribner's Monthly, in the Swedish language, and from the house of Schmitzdorff & Co., St. Petersburg, for permission to publish in the Russian language. It is probable, that, on its completion in Scribner, the work will be published simultaneously in at least five countries, and perhaps more.

It is refreshing to note that the Supreme Court of Tennessee has decided that the taxing district of Memphis is the successor of the city of Memphis, and is therefore liable for its contracts. It is another check to the schemes for repudiation of public debts, equal to Judge Billings and the State courts on the premium bonds of New Orleans.

Scribner's Monthly for May, containing Stedman's essay on Poe, with the frontispiece portrait engraved by Cole, De Vinne's article on "Wood Cut Printing," "The Younger American Painters," "The New York Seventh Regiment," etc., is already out of print.

The bill of Congressman Ellis, of Louisiana, to establish a government postal telegraph service between Boston, New York and Washington, is heartily approved by the New York Independent, which says the experience of Great Britain is entirely in favor of government telegraphs.

A petition, one hundred and eighty-eight yards long, was presented to the House by Mr. Brewster, of Michigan. It was signed by 34,000 women, who ask Congress to prohibit the making and selling of ardent spirits in this country.

Says the New York Independent, with reference to the commandant at West Point: "We recall that Gen. Schofield began his military career in Missouri with a detestable order repelling the colored refugees."

As the first step to breaking down the color-line at the West Point Military Academy, Commander Schofield should be removed.

Louisiana Republicans are almost unanimous in their purpose to elect Grant delegates to the national convention.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Rev. John Mathews, M. E. Church South, of this city, has been off to the country, and dedicated a church at Jeannerette, La.

—W. B. Fish, Esq., is mentioned as the probable successor of ex-Gov. Foote, in charge of the N. O. Mint. Mr. Fish would make an excellent officer.

—The U. S. Senate has confirmed the following appointments: Wm. Burwell to be receiver of public moneys at New Orleans; and Geo. Baldey to be register of the land office.

—James Sloan, Luling, Texas, aged 14 years, writes to the ADVOCATE about the fine Sunday-school at that place. May 2 the school recited 400 verses from the Bible, and one little boy, named Georgie Smith, recited 105. He must be a spunky little fellow.

—Hon. Henry S. Foote has resigned the office of superintendent of the New Orleans Mint, on account of ill health. He is now at home, near Nashville, and we regret to learn that he is suffering from a painful illness. He was an able and courteous official, and made many friends here.

—Edward Pinkett, of Cotton Plant, Ark., was pleased with Bro. P. G. Brown's letter on a colored bishop. He says: "Oh, the tottering child! When the Lord tells us black people to get in a bunch by ourselves, in order to get to heaven, then will be the time to be off, and there is no need of starting until he does. The chains are off. You know how you wore them. They are off now!"

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

L. C. Deshazo, Monte Vista: "My work is prospering. Money is scarce."

L. R Brown, Ripley: "We have received a number into the church who were convicted of their sins, and we believe they will be followed by many more."

W. McDonald, Starkville: "The church has been ceiled. Eighty attend Sabbath-school, but it will be stopped until the church is completed. We raised $40 to meet our debt."

J. Zerde, Hickory: "Rev. H. Wyatt is much beloved, and is doing all he can to supply this work. The dollar system has been instituted. The elder visited us March 27-28."

W. Jones, Crawford: "The elder held our quarterly conference April 4. The committee on pastor's salary reported $380, for the elder $20. All classes were found in good condition. Pray for us."

I. W. Davis, Mt. Salem: "The first quarterly conference was held on the 17th, Elder D. A. Williams presiding. He dwelt upon the importance of education and scriptural knowledge. Collection, $7."

Lee Clayton: "The first quarterly conference met at Drake Hill church, April 22, Rev. J. W. Dunn in the chair. One old man told the elder he had enjoyed the Methodist Episcopal Church for about eighty years."

J. W. Parks, Canton: "I commenced a protracted effort on the 19th inst. At this writing we have 4 converts and 45 mourners. We ask your prayers, and the prayers of the church generally, in our behalf."

B. L. Nevils, Prairie Station: "We held our first quarter on the 17th. Elder McLachlan presided. We are not doing much. We have about 100 pupils in Sabbath-school, and they are not able to purchase books and papers."

G. D. Wilson, Prairie Station: "We expect to organize our Sunday-school as a missionary society. We greatly need books and are poor. Elder McLachlan gave us a lecture during his visit. We have a good corps of teachers."

L. Boone, Marion: "In regard to my health I am recovering from my twelve months' affliction. Have not missed an appointment since conference. Elder J. W. Dunn held my quarterly meeting. Collection $8.20. Received in the church 13 full members."

I. L. Pratt, Corinth: "Our pastor, A. W. Wright, is doing good service. Our Sunday-school is larger than it has been for five years, with about 140 in regular attendance. Have put in a beautiful little organ costing $50. We are preparing for a celebration May 30."

J. D. Threat, Okolona: "Our Sunday school is progressing successfully, with an attendance of 75 or 80 pupils, and a large number of visitors. Brother Gaston, our pastor, is working with us very faithfully, and gives beautiful Sunday-school lectures, and is highly respected by both white and colored. The whole community is well satisfied with him."

N. Cannon, Moss Point: "At St. Paul's church a protracted meeting of three weeks resulted: 1 conversion, 2 backsliders reclaimed, 7 joined by letter and one from the Baptist church by recommendation. At Summerville there were 10 conversions, 3 backsliders reclaimed, 13 joined, and 9 adults baptized. So I have received in all 20, and baptized three children."

LOUISIANA.

G. Washington, Terrebonne: "We had a basket meeting on the 2d. Collected $18.79. The members will try to build a parsonage."

A. Luster, St. Martinsville: "My church is in a prosperous condition. We had a basket meeting last Sunday, and received $40. The Lord has blessed us with one convert."

Prince King, Mt. Zion church, New Orleans: "We have just closed a four weeks' protracted meeting. God has blessed us in our work. Eighteen were happily converted to the Lord and the church militant, with ten on probation. Rev. S. Priestley, of First Street Church, assisted us."

J. W. Hilton, Na[tchitoches]: "We had a basket meeting on the second Sunday in April, and took up $40, with which to paint the church. The people seem to be in good spirit, though the times are very hard. Have had two conversions. Our Sabbath-school is looking up."

C. W. Kershaw, Stony Point circuit: "I found the people scattered. I now have about thirty members. Growing slowly. Sunday night, March 7, Rev. R. T. Davis, of the M. E. Church South, preached for us, with a part of his congregation with him. It was a noble sermon. Our Sunday-school is a good one."

TEXAS.

P. Noble, Plantersville: "We have five converts and thirty on probation."

C. Hart, West Point: "The church is not harmonious here. The Sunday-school is good."

R. Roberts, Clarksville: "We have built a parsonage. I have taken in six members. Two Sunday-schools are greatly in need of books."

J. D. Dalton, Bryan: "The Bryan circuit is in a prosperous condition. About 25 attended first quarterly meeting. We were sorry to hear of the death of Elder Moore's child."

E. Hardeman, Luling: "One of my boys has been ill for some time. Meeting was held at Mt. Zion Church last Sabbath, conducted by Bro. E. Nesbit; assisted by F. Shular. Several joined the church, and we had a glorious time."

C. Young, Columbus: "We have had 17 conversions, baptized 13; membership 75. Elder Richardson held our second quarterly meeting, and the people praise him. Four Sunday-schools are in good condition. I am doing all I can for the paper."

G. Norman, Austin: "My people are poor, and we have no church, but we are going to try to put up a church building. We now worship in a government school-house. The trustees and teacher make us welcome. We gave a festival and bought a lot, on which we propose to build."

S. Allen, Wallisville: "I find it hard to get along here, because of the failure of predecessors to enforce the provisions of the church discipline. I do not believe in driving people, but the church should not be allowed to go to wreck for fear of hurting their feelings."

M. Henson, San Antonio: "The work of the district is being pushed with zeal and trust. Have visited Pleasanton, purchased a lot and had it deeded. Heard from Hondo and Boerne. That part of the district is not doing well. The people are few and poor. The church here is nearly out of debt.

G. W. Townsend, San Marcos: "A protracted meeting resulted in 7 conversions and 13 accessions. I had the powerful aid of Rev. A. R. Norris, of San Antonio, and of Rev. W. H. Davis, a grand young worker of the Lord. I want to give a camp-meeting in July, and desire brethren to come and help me."

J. K. Loggins, Galveston: "The second quarterly conference, presided over by Elder Cushman, was held March 27. The largest number for years, 167, appeared to partake of the sacrament. St. Paul church is building up. We have a good congregation, willing to work. We have taken in full membership 14; on probation, 12. Average attendance of Sunday-school 86."

W. Graves: "There has been a great mistake in the report of the number of members of the Mt. Zion M. E. Church in Waco. I have been hunting the members of that church, and I only find 15, of whom 3 can read. Ten are over forty years of age. It is hard that ministers should be punished by sending them to congregations that ordinarily number 20, and may at times reach 35."

H. Primm, Spring Hill: "We are holding our own on this circuit, but the people are going to Kansas or saving money to go. This makes it very hard on the preacher, but at our second quarterly meeting, 6th and 7th of March, 60 persons paid 25 cents. I have received 10 in full membership and 1 on probation, and expelled 2. I have three Sunday-schools numbering respectfully 35, 35 and 15. I am doing all I can, but I never saw class-meeting so dull. Pray for us."

V. M. Cole, Galveston: "The Tabernacle church has been under the embarrassment of debt for the past five years; that debt is over it to-day, and it will be some time before it is lifted. We are making arrangements to settle it as fast as possible. The claims against the church amounted to $1514.33. The Church Extension Society has a claim of $800, with interest to Jan. 1, 1880, or a total of $1014.33. The church needs all the help it can get to remove this dark cloud."

TENNESSEE.

D. S. Tanksley, Memphis: "Our Sunday-school is growing weekly. We have about 70 scholars and 20 visitors weekly. Rev. T. Woods has done good work in Memphis since the annual conference. The church is prospering, though Bro. Woods is absent from the city a good deal."

B. James, Lebanon: "We have gone to work to cancel the debt. In view of that my benevolent collections have fallen short; but we expect to bring them all up. In a revival of five weeks 12 professed a hope in Christ, and 11 additions to the church. Elder C. Pickett held our quarterly meeting April 20-4, and preached with power."

Benj. Anderson, Brentwood: "This conference year the Lord has blessed us with five conversions, and eleven additions. We commenced the work of revival at Brentwood, April 1, with a very good attendance. The meeting seemed to have been led by the Lord spiritually; the brethren and sisters were alive to the work, and very many of the people were interested about their soul's welfare. The second quarterly meeting was held at Mt. Pisgah, on this circuit. There was a glorious spirit for revival at this point. Two hundred partook of the Lord's supper. At this meeting we raised $44. The elder was paid. Pray for us that the work may still go on."

The attempt of Marshal Poole to execute writs of ejectment against the settlers on the land claimed by the railroad companies in Tulare and Fresno counties, California, resulted in six men being killed and two wounded.

Letter from Shubuta.

SHUBUTA, Miss., April 20, 1880.

MR. EDITOR—Last Sabbath was a great day with our people. Our congregation and many from the neighboring circuits were present at the dedication of the new house of worship. At 10 a. m. the Sunday-schools of Shubuta, Liberty Hill and Pleasant Grove assembled in the new edifice under Superintendent Henry House. Revs. H. Davenport, of Paulding circuit, and L. P. Brown, of Shubuta circuit, assisted in reading the dedication services. The building is a neat frame, 30x45, with wall of 12 feet. It was built in less than three months, and is equal to any on the district. On the 29th of February I made my first appeal for a house of worship, being a stranger here, and raised a subscription of $50. At the house of Bro. Jacob Jackson I told them we must have the money March 5, and we then received $35.35 to purchase the lumber. The lot was donated by Mr. Sanford, sheriff of the county, whose kindness we deeply appreciate. Our building is valued at $400. If we could do this much in hard times, what may we not do in good times? I conclude that when a congregation needs a place of worship, that is the time to build. Some are governed by seasons. In the winter it will be too cold to build; in the spring there are crops to plant; in the summer it is too warm. Let the preacher take the cause to his heart, and determine that it must be built.

On my first visit to Pleasant Grove, Feb. 29, I met the congregation in a private house, and they raised $2.80 for the pastor; on last Sunday they raised $16. People will be more liberal if the house of worship is comfortable, and I hope our pastors throughout the State will urge that point. Given a poor charge by the bishop, we should work to improve it. M. ADAMS.

Letter From Calvert, Texas.

CALVERT, April 30, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Our second quarterly conference, held on the 17th, was opened by Elder C. L. Madison. He manag[ed] [our] affairs with great earnestn[ess]. At the love feast, Friday ni[ght], fifty participated. Sunday morning Elder Madison deliv[ered] an interesting lecture on punc[tuali]ty and education. He ex[amined] the Sunday-school, and in the evening preached a glorious sermon. Several white brethren were present and appreciated it.

The exodus has nearly ruined us here. All tha[t] were well to do financially have gone to Kansas. About 75 left from our church. Only about 60 members remain to our support. I have dismissed about 25 by letter this year. Those who remain are in the extreme of poverty. I hav[e] [illegible] received about $10 on my [illegible] this year. Sunday-school [illegible] and it seems almost [impossible] to get the members to [illegible] it. Six have been take[n] [into] the church this year.

I hope the General Conference will weigh the colored bishop question carefully. I think we ought to have a bishop of our race. This is the universal sentiment of the West Texas conference. If our church has been organized over a century, and at this period can not find a colored minister able to fill the office of bishop, we had better close our schools and acknowledge the correctness of Gov. R. J. Coke's remarks. About three years ago, when running for Governor he said, "The negro is fit for nothing but the cotton and cane fields. You may spend thousands of dollars to educate him, and when you have spent the last dollar the negro will be a negro yet." Bro. P. G. Brown, in his letter to the ADVOCATE, makes those words appear true. Bro. Brown has slept about four years too long. Let us work up instead of working downward.

A. M. GREGORY.

Our Centennial Sabbath—May 30, 1880.

The following action of the General Conference speaks for itself. Let me plead with all preachers in charge for two special collections on Sabbath, May 30, in behalf of our Sunday-school Union. If you have already taken the annual collection in this behalf, give the cause the benefit of a new opportunity, and add to our resources. However you may modify the published Centennial programme, please do not omit the collection. Your servant in Sunday-school work,

J. H. VINCENT.

REPORT OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL COMMITTEE NO. 1.

[Adopted at Cincinnati May 10.]

Whereas, The year 1880 is the Centenary of the Robert Raikes's Sunday-school [illegible] ment; and,

Whereas, The Bishops and the [illegible] Managers of the Sunday-school [illegible] the M. E. Church have [illegible] day-school to observe [illegible] special memorial day [illegible]

Resolved, That this [illegible] heartily approves [illegible] joins in this request.

An Address.

The following address, by Mr. Judge Nelson, was delivered in the M. E. Church, Canton, Miss., April 18.

MR. SUPERINTENDENT, TEACHERS AND PUPILS OF THE METHODIST SABBATH-SCHOOL—What can be more appropriately addressed to a Sabbath-school than a few words on the importance of properly training those who are to succeed us in the management of all the affairs of life, and transmit to [illegible] that moral and spiritual in[illegible] upon which their eternal destiny [illegible]? I apprehend nothing to be more [illegible], and I shall proceed with such [illegible]

Moses, the man of God, in imparting the Divine Law to the people of Israel, gave very particular directives to them that they should teach them to their children, that they might teach them to theirs, that the generations to come might search them, and that thus the knowledge of the true God might, for all time, be perpetuated and handed down to an ever-succeeding posterity. [illegible] God saw that such was the only way that a proper knowledge of Him could be promoted among men. And why so? [illegible] if the parents of one generation [illegible] His revelation and the [illegible] of the divine government to their children, they not having such knowledge, nor appreciating its importance, would most certainly fail, on becoming parents, to impart it to theirs; and thus the knowledge and worship of the true God would, in a very few generations, be entirely lost. And, accordingly, such appears to have been the case, for it is certain that the whole world has been in the possession, if not of the whole of the divine revelation as we have it, of the worship of the true God [illegible] to Adam and his posterity, [illegible] what was called the patriarchal dispensation; and secondly, under [illegible] and his descendants, in both of which [illegible] worship of the true God [illegible] the world, being only [illegible] from the ante-diluvian world [illegible] through Noah; and [illegible] kept alive through a very [illegible] descendants until God revealed [illegible] in what we now call the [illegible] books of Moses. And although we [illegible], a promised [illegible], yet two-thirds [illegible] to-day without the knowledge [illegible] not more than one-third [illegible] revelation abounds are [illegible] our blessed Redeemer. [illegible] teachers and pupils, that the [illegible] before you, [illegible] social and [illegible] in our land, leading be[illegible] amongst man[illegible] good order and [illegible] You see, then, my [illegible] great work you have be[illegible] high responsibilities are [illegible] by your God to your children, to your religion, [illegible] the dissemination of these [illegible] and principles upon [illegible] to society—yes, even [illegible] temporal and [illegible] And how much better [illegible] and accom[illegible] than by and through [illegible] And how shall these [illegible] by a proper understanding [illegible] knowledge of the gen[illegible] principles of God's Word? [illegible] have an air of [illegible] a sense of awe and [illegible] the children [illegible] able—see Authorities cited in Louque's Dig. p. 245, sec. 4 and 5; Hennen's Dig. p. 584, sec. 1; see also sec. 360 of the Book of Discipline.

Let the claim of plaintiff be rejected at his costs.

A true copy of the original opinion of the Hon. F. S. Goode, Judge of the 19th. Judicial District Court, rendered in the above entitled suit on file in my office.

About a Criticism.

MR. EDITOR—I am aware that your time is precious just now, as well as your columns taken up, but I trust that you will grant me space to set myself right before your readers, by removing the error and correcting the mistake of C. L. Madison, P. E. of the Waco district, West Texas Conference, M. E. Church. There appears to be an incursion in your columns of April 8, directly upon me (I suppose). My name is not Pile, but Pyle. He states that by me his brethren of the General Conference were or have been styled "door-keepers." His statement is incorrect, and I do very unvindictively and mildly ask him to aim the blow where it belongs, for he will have a failure scrambling up to the "pisgah" on my shoulders; never conversed with him on the subject in my life. I see that in your paper many hard things are said of us, and the fact to be stated that many things—unpleasantness—that ought to be avoided, are kept in motion by the sailors on the larbord and starbord sides of the deck. I would have answered elaborately, but I think that ministers ought to be at this time better engaged than in newspaper wranglings. I will speak elaborately through the mouth-piece of our Church. Respectfully,

W. D. F. PYLE.

Letter from Shubuta, Miss.

MR. EDITOR—Presiding Elder J. W. Dunn preached two sermons and administered the Lord's Supper to 107 persons. Our Sunday-school is using the lesson leaves. The people are striving to improve their church property. The parsonage committee deserves credit for two months hard labor to make the pastor and his family comfortable. A set of furniture was provided, and an additional room is being constructed for the pastor's study. They have built a good fence all around the parsonage. The church is ceiled. The Sunday-school is raising money to purchase an organ.

The Pleasant Grove congregation are building a new house of worship 30x45 feet—a neat frame house which they expect to dedicate soon. Pray for us. Yours,

M. ADAMS, Pastor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

May 23, 1880.—THE JUDGMENT.
SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 25: 31-46.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but righteous into life eternal."—46.

TOPIC.—Warning Concerning Judgment.
(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Our lesson is not a parable. 1. There will be a final judgment. 2 It will come with the final appearing of the Lord at the end of the world. 3 It will consist, not of a trial, but of a public announcement of the divine judgment, founded upon the trial which life affords. 4 It will be public. 5. It will result in the separation of all men into two distinct classes. 6. This separation will be based, not on our creeds, our forms, our ceremonies, but on practical charity to our fellow men. 7. This is not inconsistent with the doctrine that we shall be saved by faith, and not by works (works are the fruit of faith). 8. The decisions will be final, unappealable, irreversible.

"They shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory." 24: 30. Then he shall have the glory that he had with the Father before the world was. The angels shall come with him, not merely to give dignity and glory to his court, but to carry out his decrees. "All that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." John 5: 28. There will be no escape from the scrutiny of that dread day. If anything is plain, it is that before him will be gathered all men—the elect and the non-elect for judgment and for separation. The two classes are very clearly indicated in the "sheep and the goats." The good and the bad no longer will remain together. Those who, like the goats, have proved themselves to be wild and intractable, unmindful of the shepherd's voice, will be separated from those who, like the sheep, have shown themselves to be gentle in their character and obedient to his call. They shall see that the lowly one of Nazareth, whom they have worshipped despite the humility of his birth and of his death, really is the King of kings and Lord of lords. No one is conscious, or can be conscious, of aiding the King, when, out of love and compassion, he helps some poor fellow whose rags and tatters and brutalized face are suggestive of anything but royalty. To live among men, and show no love for them by sympathy in affliction, or by help in distress, is the greatest of wrongs. No one can claim to love God when he thus shows his lack of love to men. Sin is as unconscious of its enormity as virtue is of its goodness. No one safely can turn away any meritorious applicant whom it is in his power to help.

Endless joy and endless misery are set over, the one against the other. The one should call forth all of one's energies to obtain—the other all of one's energies to escape. And either the beatitude or the curse lies enfolded in the choice of heart that one makes while here. Now is the deciding time for eternity.

Women Never Think.

If the crabbed old bachelor who uttered this sentiment could but witness the intense thought, deep study and thorough investigation of women in determining the best medicines to keep their families well, and would note their sagacity and wisdom in selecting Hop Bitters as the best, and demonstrating it by keeping their families in perpetual health, at a mere nominal expense, he would be forced to acknowledge that such sentiments are baseless and false.

MARRIAGES.

In Austin, Texas, March 25, by Rev. G. Norman, Mr. Henry Smith to Miss Katy Baker.

At Beech Grove Church, April 5, 1880, by Rev. H. Primm, Mr. Thomas Wody to Miss Texas A. Brook. May the Lord bless them with a happy life. The bride is a member of our church, and a good worker in the Sunday-school.

IT CANNOT be afforded, it would not pay after so much labor and capital has been expended to build up this medicine to allow it to depreciate. You can take Simmons Liver Regulator with perfect faith as it is made by no adventurers who pick up the business by concocting medicines, but by educated, practical druggists, who have made the study of medicine and its compounds a labor of a lifetime. The care, precision, neatness and perfection exhibited by the very appearance of Simmons Liver Regulator, proves that it is the best prepared medicine in the market, and J. H. Zeilin & Co. fully carry out their motto: Purissima et Optima (purest and best).

Okolona, Miss.

Sister Hannah Forrest died Feb. 15, 1880, aged 75 years. She was a faithful member and loved by all who knew her. She leaves an aged husband, children and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

TURNER JACKSON.

Sister Sallie Foote departed this life on the evening of the 14th inst., in the triumph of faith, aged 85 years. She was a member of the church for many years, and said that she was not afraid to die. She leaves children and grand children to mourn with us.

P. JEMISON.

Macon, Miss., May 15.

Bro. Isaac Edwards, aged 65 years, departed this life, leaving a son to mourn his loss. We trust he is at rest as he was a faithful worker in the M. E. Church, for the Lord; also Sister Lucinda Stocks, aged 65 years (in the Gospel near 18 years), leaving a son to mourn her loss. We trust she is at rest.

B. M. TAYLOR.

Huntsville, Texas.

Bro. Edward Wiggleton, a native of Virginia, was sold a slave in this State thirty-five years ago, and died on the 27th of April. He was a faithful follower of the Master up to the final battle with death. His remains were followed by a large concourse of friends, including children who had been gathered to the fold of the Good Shepherd by his teachings. He was about 60 years old, and had been a member of the church for 40 years. As a class-leader he was energetic, and he guarded those alloted to his care with sincerity of heart. His name is without blemish, and while the church has lost a pillar, Christ has gained a jewel. What a consoling thought—we shall meet again in the happy hereafter, where "Congregations ne'er break up

And Sabbaths have no end."

R. L. BEAL.

Cypremort, La., May 6, 1880.

George Taylor died April 21, 1880, aged 75 years. He professed religion a month before, and was baptized just before he died. He said it was all right with him and God.

A lady visited our city, under the treatment of a doctor. She was very sick when she came. She had been sick over two years. Her home was a hundred miles up the river. Her husband is a farmer. She died with strangers but in the house of a faithful brother and sister of our church (Bro. Johnson), who took care of her. She died happy on April 22d.

SEA SICKNESS. By Geo. M. Beard, M. D. New York: E. B. Treat, 757 Broadway. Price 50 cts.

HISTORY OF ENGLAND. By Charles Knight Vol. 6; price, 30 cents. I. K. Funk & Co., New York.

This marvelously cheap edition of this great work is approaching completion—but two volumes yet remain, including the extensive index. These will be ready in less than a fortnight. It is doubtful whether so extensive a publication has ever before been pushed to completion in so short a time, the whole occupying not more than forty working days. A perfect copy of "Knight's History of England" is within the easy reach of every man's purse.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

—David C. Cook, of Chicago, is reprinting 75 cts. to $1.50 Sabbath-school Library Books at a uniform price amounting to less than 5 cts. a piece. These reprints are published in what is called the Sabbath Library, issued weekly, one or more complete books being reprinted in each number, the Library costing $2.50 a year, or what is equivalent to less than 5 cents a number. The numbers are also sold separately. Forty-one numbers of the Sabbath Library, containing reprints of fifty library books, have already been issued.

—Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for June closes brilliantly the seventh volume. It is essentially a family magazine, and should be found in every household, for the contents can scarcely fail to exercise a beneficial influence. The leading article, "The Gospel in Africa," by Rev. Daniel Edwards, is replete with instruction, and profusely illustrated. Other prominent articles are, 'Birth Customs of the Orient," by Rev. Mr. Houghton; "Literary Progress in Madagascar," by James Sibree, Jr.; Ignatius Loyola," by Rev. John Tulloch, D. D; "Ahasuerus," by Herbert Lee; "Melanothon and the Reformation," etc. Those interesting serials, "Be, Be, the Nailmaker's Daughter," and "Little Hinges," are continued, and there are some short stories by popular writers, generally beautiful. The "Editor's Portfolio," is well filled. The number contains 128 quarto pages, and nearly 100 illustrations. The price of a single copy is only 25 cents, and the annual subscription $3, postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 33, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

GENERAL EFFECTS OF FELLOWS' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

"It is perfectly safe, and the taste pleasant."

THE first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations. Its effect on the mucous membrane is such that easy expectoration is produced, not only are the air passages easily voided of the secretion already deposited, but its collection is carried on in a healthy manner, while the formation of tubercle is retarded. The rapidity with which patients take on flesh while under the influence of the syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more efficacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened and the blood purified.

FELLOWS' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites

Speedily and permanently cures Congestion of the Lungs, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Shortness of Breath, Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Physical and Mental Depression, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Energy, Loss of Memory. It will rapidly improve the weakened functions and organs of the body, which depend for health upon voluntary, semi-voluntary, and involuntary nervous action. It acts with vigor, gentleness, and subtlety owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent.

Sold by all Druggists. $1.50 per Bottle.

YELLOW FEVER.

That this terrible disease has for [illegible] held a despotic sway, at certain seasons of the year, in portions of our own fair [illegible] and in other countries, is known by [illegible] and every one. As well known is it, that [illegible] cure, or even a preventive, has not been heretofore discovered.

Within the past twelve months our National Government has taken hold of [the] subject, have instituted a Commission composed of men high in the knowledge of [sani]tary matters and medicine, and [illegible] given them full power to devise and insti[tute] measures to prevent its recurrence. In [their] published report, they speak in detail of [its] action upon a patient after the fever is in, and yet have little to say of the [cause] and reason for the existence of so fatal a disease, and still less of the way to prevent [it]. They say that "In the pathology of Yellow Fever, it has been found by Dr. Blair, since verified by other observers, that [the] blood, the breath, vomited matter (at [cer]tain periods of the disease) are marked alkaline, owing to an excess of '[illegible] alkali." That albumen was found in [the] urine; that gastric irritation, and con[ges]tion of blood was prevalent. While [the] "National Board of Health" tell us of [the] condition of the afflicted one, when [illegible] with the fever, they make no suggestions [as] to a preventive. Seemingly, it is not inappropriate at this time to supplement [their] report, by asserting that which is known [to] every intelligent man and woman, that [the] reason for this fearful scourge is no more nor less than the malarial poison emanates from low marshy lands—adjacent to salt or fresh water—especially [in] certain stages of the drying process, under hot sun; as well are these familiar with [the] fact, that unclean cess-pools, insufficient drainage, unremoved filth of any kind [and] character, are generators of this same deadly miasma. Observations of ce[illegible] has made every person, blessed with [the] least faculty of discernment, acquainted with the effect of this subtile malarial [poison]. Each and all know that Typhus and [Inter]mittent Fevers are the lesser natural [conse]quences of an inhalation of this [illegible] exhalative, and that Yellow Fever is [the] greater.

It is admitted and definitely und[erstood] that malaria poison is not cognizable by [the] senses, nor can it be detected by [illegible] tests. It is known only by its affects [on] the system. Alkali in the blood (as mention of by the National Board [of] Health,) is a necessary ingredient in [main]taining the same in a healthy cond[ition]. When an unusually large quantity is pres[ent], a diseased condition of the vital [illegible] is apparent. That this acid is permitted [to] be in excess is because of an [in]action of the kidney and liver, and [which,] in excess, induces inflammation, and [brings] on a fever of some sort. Yellow [Fever is] the one secured in places where m[alaria is] present. After a careful reading and [study] of the Report of the National Board [of] Health, no other conclusion can be [drawn] than that if the blood is kept in a hea[lthy] condition, the birth, growth and spread [of] yellow fever is materially lessened, if [not] actually prevented. It is a matter [under]stood by all and every one, that if the [kidn]ey and liver—the organs that filter [and] cleanse the blood—are kept in a whole[some] and sound condition, this same vital [fluid] will ever be clear from all impurities. T[o keep] these organs, the kidney and liver, and [keep] them free from disease, and at all times [in] condition to well and faithfully p[erform] their duties, is a matter beyond dispute, cavil or argument, and equally it is [true] that a free use of Warner's Safe Kidney [and] Liver Cure, in connection with Warner's Safe Pills, will actually compel these organs to perform their allotted functions.

Testimonials by the thousands are in [the] hands of the proprietors of Warner's [Safe] Kidney and Liver Cure, vouching for [its] positive curative qualities in all diseases [of the] kidney and liver, and as a natural [conse]quence, a purifier of the blood. Walk about the streets, in hundreds of our cities and towns, are men, and women too, [who] have been raised from beds of sickness [to] perfect health by means of this same [medi]cine. These are ocular demonstrations [of] the efficacy of Warner's Safe Kidney [and] Liver Cure. The press spontaneously [and] cordially endorse it. The bench, the [bar,] the pulpit, men prominent in the councils [of] State and Nation, as well as citizens in private life, have their signatures attached [to] testimonials, affirming the almost miraculous curative powers of this Warner's [Safe] Kidney and Liver Cure, and that as [a] cleanser of the blood, and a preventive [of] yellow fever, we have no hesitation in offering it to the public.

Some Newspaper Figures.

H. P. Hubbard's Newspaper Directory [of] the World, says there 10,131 American (United States and Canada) newspapers; 899 dailies, 8,428 weeklies, tri-weeklies, semi-weeklies, 801 monthlies and [illegible] monthlies. The total circulation of a single issue of each of these papers (omitting 1,930 not given), reaches the enormous aggregate of 20,657,548 copies, divided as follows: Dailies 3,540,166; weeklies, tri-weeklies and semi-weeklies, 13,511,424; monthlies and semi-monthlies, 3,625,958. The[re is] an average of 2,041 to each paper for a single issue, and taking all issues of the [year] for one year, a grand total of 1,836,472 copies. Taking ordinary forty-[illegible] paper at its average measure of 4,000 s[quare inches] (solid) to the foot, one issue of all [would,] piled up would measure 5,150 feet—[or nearly] a mile in height, or for a whole year, 119 feet, over 57 miles high. C[ounting] them all at the average size of 27x41 in[ches] and placed end to end, one issue would extend 70,648,255 feet, or 13,380 miles; [for] one year, 6,274,618,106 feet, 1,188,374 miles, or over 47 times around the earth, and [illegible] times the distance from the earth to [the] moon. In a thousand ems of type there [are] nearly 2,000 different pieces, and in an [aver]age four-page, eight-column paper, set [in] solid brevier type, there are 145,000 ems, about 400 pounds, 296,000 types in [a] newspaper. To print one issue of the 10,131 papers of this average size, [there] must be handled nearly 3,000,000,000 type, or 2,985,176,000 types. The number of editions of all these [illegible] weeklies and monthlies for one year [would] make 724,796 and to print them requ[ires the] handling of 2,173,499,549,697,000 types.

In the column of over 6,000 of [the] 10,000 newspapers, an advertisement [is] found, that tells of a medicine that is a sure and certain cure for all and every [dise]ase of the kidneys and liver, Bright's [Dis]ease included, and is known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. Volumes [of] written evidence testifying as to the [merits] of this medicine, and of the curative [proper]ties of other of Warner's Safe Remedies are in the hands of H. H. Warner & [Co.,] the proprietors, and can be shown to [any] doubting mind.

Not Inaugurated March 4th.

Some discussion has been had as to [how] many Presidents of the United States [were] inaugurated on other dates than March [4th]. Below we append the list of such: [illegible] Washington was inaugurated April 30, [1789;] James Monroe, second term, March 5, [1821;] John Tyler, April 6, 1841; Zachary Taylor, March 5, 1849; Millard Fillmore, J[uly 10,] 1850; Andrew Johnson, April 15, 1865; [R.] B. Hayes, March, 5, 1877. The [illegible] medicine known as Warner's Safe [Kidney] and Liver Cure was inaugurated June [illegible] 1879. It now governs and regulates [the] world over, all and every disease of [the kidney] and liver, and reigns with perfect [illegible]

Coming Wheat Crop.

The Chicago Times published [on Sun]day 185 special telegrams from [the n]orthwestern States, giving an est[imate of] the yield of winter wheat this year. [The] figures are trustworthy, and if [the] fair weather prevail, the increase of yield over the large yield of last [year will be] about sixty per cent. [Th]is, however, on the weather of the next [illegible] as a severe frost on fields [illegible] might produce disastrous results. [In] weather or foul Kidney and Liver [diseases] are ever present. The remedy for [all] these is known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Georgia Healthy.

The "Times," Columbus, Ga., has [illegible] a cloud foreshadows the hereafter of [Geor]gia, neither will there be [illegible] suffering so long as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is to be found on sale [at] Drug Stores."

rainy season was coming on, when I must have a peck of rice ahead or suffer hunger. Indeed, many times I had nothing but a drink of the watery gruel off the boiling rice to satisfy my hunger, that I might leave the rice for my children. Sometimes when it rained many successive days a kind neighbor gave me work to do indoors; and often he hired me in planting and harvest time, paying me three cents a day and my food. When my boy was sixteen years old, he was no longer a child, and under the protecting care of the Mother Goddess; so with incense and thank-offerings, I carried to her another new pair of shoes, and also returned the old ones, placing them by her side, that some other unfortunate mother might carry them home with her.

"It was about this time that I first heard of Christianity. A missionary came to my village and preached the "Jesus doctrine" and two of my neighbors believed, and told me that this Jesus religion was what I needed, and I no sooner heard it, than I believed, and immediately took down and destroyed those worthless idols on which I had leaned so long in vain. Happiness came to my poor heart, and I was the first woman in the village to ask for baptism and admission to the church. That was fourteen years ago. I have had many trials since, but I have had the joy of the Lord in my heart all the time. Only about thirty adults of our village are Christians, and during my vacation I want to do all I can to get them to leave their idols and learn of Jesus.

"I am joyful in prospect of my heavenly home. I am trusting the Lord in everything, and trying to do all the good I can. My family all love the Savior."

"I don't want that stuff."

Is what a lady of Boston said to her husband when he brought home some medicine to cure her of sick headache and neuralgia which had made her miserable for fourteen years. At the first attack thereafter, it was administered to her with such good results, that she continued its use until cured, and made so enthusiastic in its praise, that she induced twenty-two of the best families in her circle to adopt it as their regular family medicine. That "stuff" is Hop Bitters.

ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, Pat'd Oct. 3, '71.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY PERFECT SELF-OPERATING WASHER IN THE WORLD.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers, and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow-grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. In cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 6 inches long by 5 inches wide and 1¾ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 10 inches high over that, and is 1¼ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 6 to 8 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 10 to 30 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7¾ inches wide, 1¾ inches deep, and weighs about 8 pounds. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER—ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fibres which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW,

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

* * * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

A motion, by T. H. Herdman, to limit reception of documents to May 10; and requiring committees to report by May 25 was tabled.

A resolution was referred relative to the marriage of divorced persons; to define and enlarge powers of church missionary societies; to exempt pastors in heathen and non-Protestant countries from four years limitation; relative to Sunday-school boards; recommending the continuance of the Freedmen's Aid Society; that no person be appointed or retained a class-leader who does not take some one of our church papers [received with laughter and applause]; to allow a presiding elder six years in the same district; requesting Committee of Arrangements for next General Conference not to engage an Opera House; directing committee on conference expenses to report a plan whereby the Church at large shall hereafter defray expenses of General Conference; to transfer young men denied admission in Eastern conferences to those of the West; to inquire into the expediency of increased educational facilities in Utah.

A. J. Kynett, of Upper Iowa, offered the following:

Resolved, That a committee, to consist of one minister and one layman from each General Conference district, together with two of the Bishops, be appointed on Church Benevolences, and that said committee be instructed to inquire and report as early as practicable as to the best method of disseminating information concerning the benevolent work of the Church, and of securing increased efficiency and co-operative action in every department.

A. J. Kynett said the General Conference of 1876 recommended the [illegible] of a monthly church [illegible] in which these reports [illegible] be made. But no provision was made for this action. REPORT OF THE FRATERNAL DELEGATES TO THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CONFERENCE.

The fraternal delegates appointed by the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church to bear the fraternal greetings of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church respectfully present the following report:

We reached St. Louis, Missouri, and presented our credentials on the 5th inst. The day following was appointed for our reception. As soon as we entered the General Conference rooms we were escorted by the committee to the platform and presented to Bishop Shorter, the presiding bishop, who introduced us to the conference, by whom we were most warmly received.

We then presented the greetings of your body and made an address expressive of your brotherly affection for them, and of your deep interest in their welfare, concluding with the hope of growing fraternity and a closer alliance between these children of a common parent.

Our address was most heartily applauded [illegible] beginning to end, after which Bishop [illegible], Rev. Drs. H. M. Turner and B. T. Tanner made brief addresses in reply.

after a second round the call for resolutions, memorials and petitions, J. M. Buckley said: To me it is not an unpleasant sight to see the delegates from all parts of our Church presenting petitions and memorials to this body. The glory of our Church is that in all our apparent rigidity and regard for rules, the humblest member of our Church, from the most unknown who teaches the small class in the remotest Sunday-school to the very highest and most important and influential layman, has a right to petition this General Conference upon any subject whatever. To stop the call would put the business in the hands of men with a sharp voice, who can jump up like a jumping-jack.

Mr. Reid's motion was tabled.

SEVENTH DAY—MAY 8.

Bishop Simpson presided. Worship was conducted by J. A. Miller, of Pittsburg.

On call for memorials, petitions and resolutions there were presented: A paper on boundaries; excepting to the bishop's ruling at Napa, Cal.; on German Sunday-school work; selection of a German to the office of bishop; modification of the manner of ministerial support; change in time of holding lay electoral conferences; action of the Pennsylvania lay conference on pastoral term and presiding eldership, Christian Advocate, and bishops, council; action of Chicago German Conference on election of a German bishop; Central Pennsylvania on profits of the Book Concern; Auburn, N. Y., on district conferences; on conference evangelists; Central New York on fraternity; Cincinnati preachers on missionary work; change of pastors; camp-meeting; unworthy members; Dayton, O., on boundaries; concerning the use of the hymnal; a Sabbath-school manual; the Pacific Christian Advocate; petition of Zoar Church, Delaware, signed by 400 for a colored bishop; Delaware Conference on same; Cambridge Station, on same; Detroit Conference on boundaries; local preachers; maladministration; contributions; action of annual conferences on boundaries; support of superannuates; boundary between Erie and Genesee; protest against change of boundaries by Genesee; asking for definition of status of members; on an index to the Quarterly; in respect to dress; for special arrangements to allow bishops more time in their visits (Germany and Switzerland); for division of conference, support of poor theological students; to prolong ministerial term in cases of necessity; concerning the work in the South; in respect to diocesan episcopacy; concerning a post graduate course.

The following order of the day was taken up:

To the Bishops and Members of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to meet in Cincinnati, Ohio, on the first day of May, 1880:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN: At the last session of the General Conference of our Church, held in Baltimore, May, 1876, the following resolution was adopted, namely,

"Resolved, That in order to remove all obstacles to formal fraternity between the two Churches (that is, the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church South), our Board of Bishops are directed to appoint a commission, consisting of three ministers and two laymen, to meet a similar commission authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, to adjust all existing difficulties."

We, the commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church, appointed in accordance with the foregoing resolution, beg leave to report, that pursuant to previous appointment, we met the commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Cape May, New Jersey, on the 16th day of August, 1876, all the members of both boards being present.

After a written communication from the commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church South was received and answered by us, both boards met in joint session, and continued their deliberations from day to day, by adjournments, for eight days.

Your commissioners are happy to say, that while all the important questions which claimed their consideration were fully discussed, and all differences of opinion thereon were freely expressed, the utmost harmony of purpose and feeling prevailed in all their joint deliberations, and they were enabled to reach complete unanimity in their final conclusions. These conclusions, which constitute the body of this report, can not be better stated than in the language of the address published by the Joint Commission immediately after their adjournment in August, 1876, as contained in the following extract, namely:

"At the beginning of our consultations one great question seemed to overshadow all others. It concerns the relation of the two Churches to each other and to Episcopal Methodism. To this important matter our most earnest thought and prayerful deliberation were best directed, and the result attained occasioned the interchange of rejoicing congratulations between the members of the Joint Commission.

The Commissioners adopted, without a dissentient voice, the following

DECLARATION AND BASIS OF FRATERNITY.

STATUS OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, AND OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH, AND THEIR CO-ORDINATE RELATION AS LEGITIMATE BRANCHES OF EPISCOPAL METHODISM.

Each of said Churches is a legitimate branch of Episcopal Methodism in the United States, having a common origin the [illegible] Episcopal Church organized [illegible] [illegible] summated in 1845 by the voluntary exercise of the right of the Southern annual conferences, ministers and members, to adhere to that communion, it has been an evangelical Church, reared on Scriptural foundations, and her ministers and members with those of the Methodist Episcopal Church, have constituted one Methodist Family, though in distinct ecclesiastical connections.

"It was next incumbent on us to consider the questions concerning conflicting claims to Church property, and some special cases that could not conveniently be referred to the operation of a general rule.

There were two principal questions to be considered with regard to the Church property in dispute between local societies of the two Churches.

First. As to the legal ownership of said property.

Second. As to whether it will consist with strict equity, or promote Christian harmony or the cause of religion, to dispossess those societies now using Church property which was originally intended for their use and occupancy, and of which they have acquired possession, though they may have lost legal title to it by their transfer from the one Church to the other.

We have considered the papers in all cases that have been brought to our notice. These arose in the following States: Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, Louisiana, North Carolina, and South Carolina. In respect to some of these cases we have given particular directions; but for all other cases the Joint Commission unanimously adopted the following RULES FOR THE ADJUSTMENT OF ADVERSE CLAIMS TO CHURCH PROPERTY.

RULE I. In cases not adjudicated by the Joint Commission, any society of either Church, constituted according to its Discipline, now occupying the Church property, shall remain in possession thereof; provided, that where there is now, in the same place, a society of more members attached to the other Church, and which has hitherto claimed the use of the property, the latter shall be entitled to possession.

RULE II. Forasmuch as we have no power to annul decisions respecting Church property made by the State Courts, the Joint Commission ordain in respect thereof,—

1. In cases in which such a decision has been made, or in which there exists an agreement, the same shall be carried out in good faith.

2. In communities where there are two societies, one belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the other to the Methodist Episcopal Church South, which have deversely claimed the Church property, it is recommended, that, without delay, they amicably compose their differences irrespective of the strict legal title, and settle the same according to Christian principles, the equities of the particular case, and, so far as practicable, according to the principle of the aforegoing rule.

But if such settlements can not be speedily made, then the question shall be referred for equitable decision to three arbitrators, one to be chosen by each claimant from their respective societies, and the two thus chosen shall select a third person not connected with either of said Churches; and the decision of any two of them shall be final.

3. In communities in which there are but one society, Rule I shall be faithfully observed in the interest of peace and fraternity.

RULE III. Whenever necessary to carry the aforegoing rules into effect, the legal title to the Church property shall be accordingly transferred.

RULE IV. These rules shall take effect immediately.

In order to further promote the peaceful results contemplated by this Joint Commission, and to remove as far as may be all occasions, and especially to forestall all further occasion for hostility between the two Churches, we recommend to members of both as a wise rule of settlement, where property is in contest, and one or both are weak, that they compose their differences by uniting in the same communion; and in all cases, that the minister and members recognize each other in all relations of fraternity, and as possessed of ecclesiastical rights and privileges of equal dignity and validity. They should each receive from the other ministers, and members in good standing with the same alacrity and credit, as if coming from their own Church and, without interference with each other's institutions or missions; they should, nevertheless, cooperate in all Christian enterprises.

We also beg leave to refer you, for an accurate and detailed account of our proceedings from the time of our appointment until the completion of the work assigned us, to the journal of your commissioners while in separate session, which accompanies and forms a part of this report.

We also deliver to you a copy of a pamphlet entitled, "Formal Fraternity," published by the order, and under the supervision of the Joint Commission, and containing all the proceedings concerning fraternity between the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South since the fraternal visit of Bishop Janes and Simpson to the bishops of the latter Church which met in St. Louis, Mo., in May 1869.

In conclusion, allow us to say, that in all our intercourse, public and private, with the commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Christian courtesy and brotherly love prevailed, and we separated pledged to each other to pray and labor for the maintenance of genuine permanent fraternal relations, between the two great bodies of Episcopal Methodism represented by us.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

M. D'C. CRAWFORD,
E. L. FANCHER,
E. Q. FULLER,
CLINTON B. FISK,
J. P. NEWMAN.

C. B. Fisk said that prior to meeting the Church South we requested information about church cases where property was claimed. In case No. 8 it was decided that property shall belong to the Church South according to Rule No. 1; also same action in case No. 14, referring to parsonage of Hillsboro circuit.

L. C. Queal, of Central New York, moved to refer to committee on State of the Church. Lost.

E. F. Phelps, of Virginia, moved to take up so much of the report as referred to the cases decided.

C. B. Fish raised the point of order that when the commission was appointed it was understood they had plenary power to adjust these difficulties. It was so understood by unanimous vote of the conference of 1876.

Bishop Simpson ruled that on that matter the Conference must decide for itself.

Dr. Curry said it was pretty evident that the last General Conference intended the action of its committee to be final.

After an extended discussion, during which Judge G. G. Reynolds, of New York, pointed out the binding character of the action of the commission, the following resolution was adopted by a very large vote:

Resolved, That we regard the action of the Commissioners on Fraternity, appointed by the bishops of the last General Conference, as a finality.

Reports received from the Freedmen's Aid Society and American Tract Society were ordered to be printed.

On motion of S. Hunt, of Genesee, it was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in consideration of the age and eminent services of Rev. D. D. Whedon, D.D., he be invited to a seat on the platform.

The committee who attended the funeral of John R. Goodwin, lay delegate Southeast Indiana Conference, reported.

The Committee on Ecclesiastical Code was granted further time to consider the code provided by the commission.

EIGHTH DAY—MAY 10.

Bishop Bowman presiding. Worship conducted by D. Curry.

James S. Payne, delegate from Liberia, was assigned a seat.

Rev. A. S. Hunt, secretary of American Bible Society, was invited to the platform.

On motion, the Bishops of the M. E. Church, South, were invited to take seats on the platform, and Bishops McTyeire and Doggett were introduced.

Tuesday, May 18, was set for memorial services for the deceased bishops and other officers elected by the General Conference, who have died during the four years past.

G. R. Palmer (East Maine) introduced the following, which was carried by a unanimous rising vote:

Whereas, The purity and exalted character of the family and social life in the White House, Washington, is not surpassed in the history of our country; therefore,

Resolved, That we, the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, assembled in Ohio, the State of the nativity of the President, Rutherford B. Hayes and Mrs. Hayes, hereby express our high appreciation of the personal worth and noble example of the President and his wife, and commend to all the women of America the heroic conduct of Mrs. Hayes in regard to Temperance, and specially the beautiful simplicity of her Christian life.

A resolution to pay expenses of the commission on lay representation out of Book Concern funds was referred to Committee on General Conference expenses.

The Address of the Wesleyan Society for abolishing the Regulation of Vice by the State was referred to a committee of five.

S. L. Baldwin (Foochow) introduced a resolution, "That it is the duty of all Christian people to use their utmost efforts to secure the just rights of the Chinese immigrants upon our shores, and the abolition of all statutes intended to annoy and oppress them. That it is the duty of our official press to 'cry aloud, and spare not,' on this subject until these wrongs are righted; and that the editors of papers under the control of the General Conference on the Pacific coast are instructed to press this matter upon the hearts and consciences of the people until a reform is effected," which was referred to a committee of five.

On motion the following was adopted by a unanimous rising vote:

Whereas, Pursuant to a request of the General Conference of 1876, the Board of Bishops appointed a committee to revise the Methodist Hymn Book; and,

Whereas, That committee has so accomplished its arduous task as to give us a Hymnal that has no superior; therefore,

Resolved, That we highly appreciate the valuable service that the committee has rendered the Church, and that we hereby tender to the members thereof our hearty thanks for the fidelity and ability with which they accomplished the work assigned to them.

Resolutions were referred to instruct the Committee on Itinerancy to consider the propriety of requiring ministers coming to us from other Churches to remain on trial two years before they are received into full connection, said probation not to affect the recognition of their orders; to consider the propriety of restricting the ordination of deacons and elders to members of annual conferences. A resolution that a committee of three be appointed by the bishops to review the condition of the chartered fund was adopted.

A resolution that the Discipline be so changed that the General Conference shall be composed of one ministerial and one lay delegate from every annual conference numbering eighty-five members or less; and two ministerial and two lay delegates from all conferences numbering over eighty-five members was referred; also one directing annual conferences to print and bind their minutes for each quadrennium into one volume, as a legal record to be brought to General Conference; to amend the Discipline, ¶ 352 "and the annual conference shall direct the presiding elders to apportion the same to the several districts. The amount apportioned to each pastoral charge for the support of these claimants shall be a pro rata claim with that of the stationed preachers and presiding elders, and no such preachers and presiding elders shall be entitled to his allowance except to the extent to which these claims are met by the station or district with which he is connected."

R. A. Caruthers (Kansas) presented the following, which was referred:

Resolved, That the Committee on Revisals be instructed to consider the propriety of changing the Discipline Part II., Chap. 3, paragraph 193, by striking out the words, "take an exact amount of all the money and other provisions collected for the support of the preachers in the circuit and station," and insert in their stead: "To provide by such methods as the Discipline may direct for the support of the bishop, presiding elder, preacher or preachers stationed among them, to collect and take charge of all moneys and provisions subscribed or otherwise set apart for such purposes.

At the annual banquet of the New York Chamber of Commerce, Secretary Sherman said: "Our country has entered upon a period of great prosperity. This may be tested in any way in which prosperity is indicated. Production in all branches of industry is greater than ever before. Our foreign commerce is increasing, with a balance largely in our favor. Our domestic commerce is so large that all modes of transportation by land and water are fully employed. Labor is fairly and profitably employed. Capital is hopeful and confident and freely seeks new adventures. Great crowds of emigrants come to better their condition while contributing to our wealth. Our population approaches fifty millions of people. The mineral resources of our country are greater than the wildest imaginings of a few years ago. Taxes that three years ago yielded barely enough revenue to meet current expenses, in March last yielded, without an increase in the rate, a surplus revenue of $14,000,000, and will no doubt during the present year yield over $100,000,000; our 4 per cent. bonds now sell at a higher rate than our 6 per cent. bonds averaged for a series of several years; our manufactures have during the last ten years more than doubled. No country in the world can vie with us in the production of food—in cheap transportation and facilities for its shipment. In the products of cotton, wool and cheap articles of food, we need not fear the rivalry of any nation."

As executive officers of the Church, the members of this conference must consider the cost of the episcopacy. He was sorry to talk of such a matter, but it had to be considered.

J. M. Buckley said he wished to wash his hands of all this low-toned debate with regard to the cost of bishops. Let me make two or three points with regard to our episcopacy. Let us suppose the Methodist Episcopal Church without the episcopacy having a life tenure. What then would we be? Methodists revere above the common level and average of their Church life the institution of the episcopacy, analagous to the Supreme Court of the United States, above the struggles and changing moods of the Church. The people have not supported the bishops for two reasons: First, because they see them so seldom. Second, because they have been supported in another way. Considering the panic which has swept over the country, and the exigencies of the Missionary and Church Extension cause, the people have done wonderfully, and Dr. Curry is in error when he tells us that that fund has diminished during the last year.

R. M. Hatfield (Rock River) said: "A great mistake was made eight years ago, when eight men were [illegible], at one time, to the Episcopal Board; $120,000 were taken out of the Book Concern that should have been in the hands of the poor widows and superannuated men of the Church. E. W. S. Hammond (Lexington) asked for the suspension of the rules for the purpose of bringing a matter before the Conference, in which all the colored delegates were interested, and which would not detain the Conference. The rules were suspended, and the paper referring to the election of a colored bishop was read. E. W. S. Hammond (Lexington) then spoke as follows:

Mr. President—In my opinion, the time has come for the Methodist Episcopal Church, through her representatives, to elect a colored man to the episcopal office. I am aware that a large class of the ministry and laity hold adverse views.

I assume that the great Methodist Episcopal Church is about pledged against a restricted episcopacy. All of her bishops, of any race whatever, must be full bishops, and possess full episcopal powers.

I assume that the Church, in the spirit of true progress and consistency, will not elect to that office a man who is not in every sense the equal of his colleagues in official prerogative.

I am glad to know that our honored bishops are known far and wide for their extensive culture, their deep and fervent piety, and their great executive ability.

It is affirmed that there are no colored men in our Church possessing the requisite qualifications for this high and important office. I would prove recreant to my trust, false to the conference that has honored me; derelict in my duty to my God and my race if I did not affirm with equal emphasis, that there are men of color in the Methodist Episcopal Church who could adorn this office with credit to themselves and to the Church of which they are honored members. Again, it is affirmed that prejudice against color in the Church is so strong that it absolutely renders the advancement of a colored man to that position an impossibility. In reply to that objection, I will frankly affirm that the statement is without foundation. In fact, I do solemnly declare in the presence of these witnesses, and before the ever living, ever loving Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, that I do not believe that the great heart of the Methodist Episcopal Church is polluted with such a foul stain. I do not, I cannot believe, sir, that you, her distinguished representatives, are worshiping at the shrine of a prejudice that finds its only excuse in the color of a man's skin. No, sirs; I anticipate your response. The immortal Wesley, a century ago, proclaimed the sounding aphorism, that human slavery was the sum of all villainies. That sentiment coming from the great founder of Methodism, electrified the Church, and its mighty influence descending upon her sons like an inspiration consecrated them to that heroic service, and from that time the freedom of the slave became the key note of Methodist progress and aggression. Must we believe now, after almost a century of the most wonderful progress in the annals of the Church, after almost a century of the illustrious achievements for God and humanity; after the establishment of thousands of enterprises for the diffusion of light and knowledge; after the overthrow of the most gigantic rebellion, ever known, in what by your prayers, your sermons, by the blood of your fathers and sons, and out of which came the emancipation of four millions of slaves; after reaching forth your hands to take hold of the very ends of the earth; after evincing your determination to belt the world with Gospel light; after your proud boast of solving the problem of human destiny; after planting your standard amongst all nations and kindreds, and colors, and tongues, are you willing for the Church to go upon the reverse with a practice which will tarnish her fair name and nullify the history of her illustrious dead? No, sirs; a million of her devoted sons and daughters, fresh from their closets of prayer, are ready with you to proclaim to all the world that a prejudice against a man because of the color of his skin or the texture of his hair, is the crowning villainy of the nineteenth century.

Men and brethren, hear me for my cause. I would not draw the color line; I would not draw the line of races; far be it from me. I would that there were no distinctions; what God hath cleansed I would not call common, for God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted with him. And, sirs, I believe you will say accepted with us.

Let us draw the line of righteousness. Let us erect a grand monument, towering above all and every prejudice. Let us cement it with the blood of our illustrious martyrs; garnish it with the noble deeds of the followers of Wesley. Let us write upon its base the inspired sentiment that God hath made of one blood all the nations to dwell upon the face of the earth. Higher up its towering shaft we shall write, There is nothing in race, color or previous condition, and upon the apex let us plant the standard of our glorious Methodism and inscribe thereon in characters of living glory, "God our Father, Christ our Savior, man our brother."

We have reached the crisis, the Rubicon is before us. It is easy to see the hand of God in selecting the Methodist Episcopal Church as the principal instrumentality in solving the problem which has almost baffled the wisdom of the nineteenth century. The discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, the voyage of the Mayflower, the landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock, have long since passed into history. They are regarded as providential events in the establishment of this mighty republic. The landing of that cargo of stolen Africans at Jamestown, their cruel enslavement for two hundred years was the problem of modern times, which the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the grace of God, was called upon to solve. She could not help interpreting the signs of the times. It was an outlook fraught with tremendous consequences. It was a hazardous undertaking. But with characteristic energy she assumed the task, and, marching in the forefront with pierced lances, she demanded from her altars, hallowed by the living sacrifices of a consecrated ministry, the freedom of the slave. [illegible] she demanded his complete elevation [illegible] to freedom. The more I [illegible] this great Church, the [illegible] of the divinity of her [illegible] the elevation of and the redemp[illegible]. You taught us a century [illegible], that we were sus[illegible] the highest development socially, [illegible]lectually and politically. You [illegible] us to-day that we are brothers, [illegible] of the same common mother, and [illegible] the highest possible advance[illegible] your power.

[illegible] we meet the issue? How shall [illegible] out the mandates of Divine [illegible]? What are you going to do [illegible] protege? Why, sirs, the best [illegible] of this nation, the life-long services [illegible] most eminent statesmen, the best [illegible] of her most eminent ministers, the [illegible] prayers of a progressive Christian[illegible] laid upon our country's altar, [illegible] to wipe out the foul stain [illegible], are the smoke of [illegible] had cleared away, you [illegible] to receive your gift, you [illegible] of four million chattels, [illegible] swamps, the bayous, the [illegible] the roar of battle, and [illegible] of the mighty conflict. [illegible] forth your hands—poor, igno[illegible] been back in [illegible] established [illegible] colleges, [illegible] the inspira[illegible] they have [illegible] glorious [illegible] conquest of the [illegible]

South may menace and push into servility the poor negro, and ostracize them who labor for his elevation; but, sirs, the black host is coming. God has decreed it, and the great Methodist Church says, Amen.

Mr. President, I find myself sometimes wishing that I could call back the years that have passed away since the memorable days of 1861. I would place on that platform with your illustrious colleagues a galaxy of the mightiest interests that the nineteenth century has produced. Could I call them back from the spirit land the immortal Lincoln would say, with malice toward none, with charity toward all, let there be freedom to the slave. The sainted Thompson would plead as of yore with that eloquence and power which once moved the multitude. Could he speak here to-day, I think he would say: The black, blind giant we have admitted into our temple of liberty, if educated may buttress its walls, but if left in ignorance may in some moment pull the fair fabric to the ground—and then in words that will never be forgotten, he would say: "Restore Eastern Africa her stolen sons." The great Charles Sumner would show you the record of a spotless public life, devoted to the interests of the colored man. Could he speak here to-day, I think he would say: "Do not let the civil rights bill fail."

The great apostle of Methodism, the now sainted Bishop Janes, would remind you of the pleasant moments he spent with the Delaware brethren, while he stood upon the threshold of the glory land. Could he be with us to-day I think he would linger a moment to behold the wonderful progress which the race had made, and ere he took his flight to the spirit land would say—"I am not disappointed." It seems hard to realize that the good, the gentle, the brave Bishop Haven is not here to take his place with you to-day. Grand soul! Champion of human rights. A nation mourns his loss. Could he speak here to-day he would sketch upon the altar of the Church a brief resume of his active life; he would tell you in words that burn, of his deep, thorough interest in the absolute elevation and advancement of the colored man in the Church and in the state. They are not with us in the flesh, but I find it quite reasonable to believe, that from the spirit land, they come to-day to wield a silent and unseen influence, and to witness an event which will signal the dawning of a new era in our grand Church.

May we not disappoint them. Thousands of our people are praying that the mantles of these good men may fall on you, and that like them you might lead on the host.

You have already granted us annual conferences, presiding elders, an equal share in your vast funds; institutions of learning have complimented some of us with honorary titles; and four years ago you elected a colored man to the editorship of one of our leading journals. (It is to be regretted that he did not stick.) The picture is nearly complete, one touch of the artist's brush—just a little coloring—and you have the picture of the times.

The great masses of our people take no stock in the much hackneyed argument, often made by other denominations, that the Methodist Episcopal Church, by her failure to elect a colored bishop, practically ignores our manhood. No, sirs, the Church has made us what we are, and, by the grace of God, we are willing to trust in her to make us what we will be. In looking over the official list of delegates to this General Conference, I see the names of some of our most eminent ministers, and among the laymen some who have and are now filling offices of public trust. In the pulpit, on the platform, by the fireside, in the sanctum, in legislative assemblies, and in the halls of Congress, you have spoken brave words for our race. You have stirred the hearts of this republic, you have dictated the national policy, you have demanded that legislation which would secure to all the inhabitants of this land equal political rights, and the nation, in obedience to your demands, has decreed, that henceforth freedom, justice, and equality, shall be the grand, underlying principle of this great political establishment; and when you saw the representatives of that race in the legislatures of several States of this Union, in the Senate and House of Representatives, in the consular and diplomatic service, at West Point and at Annapolis, the recognition of the race was complete. You felt that the triumph was yours.

Will you demand of the government more than you are willing to concede yourselves? No! A thousand times no!

Gentlemen of the General Conference, look upon these shadowy faces, look upon the vast army behind them. Look at the strong arms and warm hearts which are now holding them up to receive a mother's greeting. Let them remind you of what has already been achieved through your instrumentality.

Encouraged by your interest, they are aspiring to a higher, a nobler manhood. And now, sirs, I ask, in the name of the Lexington Conference, which has honored me with an election to your honorable body; in the name of two hundred thousand members; in the name of three thousand traveling and local preachers; in the name of the many friends who are interested in our welfare; in the name of our honored and illustrious dead; in the name of consistency, justice, and humanity; in the name of your prayers; in the name of the vast wealth you have consecrated to the cause of human amelioration; in the name of the blood you have offered upon your country's altar, and in the name of the Triune God, I ask, that you would wave every other consideration; that you would rise to the great importance of the occasion; and in the might and majesty of your Christian manhood, bridge the chasm and assist us in the election of a colored man to the episcopate. Not as a colored bishop. Not as a bishop for the colored people alone. Not as the bishop of Africa. I know I am putting the case strongly; but I prefer to let our memorial stand on its own merits. A bishop for the whole Church. A colored bishop for the whole Church. Mr. President, I am aware of the fact, that among the delegates representing conferences in part or entirely composed of colored members, there may be those who may differ with me. I hope if there is any difference between us, that it will be an honest one. But suppose they all favor the election of a colored bishop, or vice versa, what then? The colored vote alone could not elect, for we only compose about one-thirteenth of your voting power. Hence our impossibility to elect if we divide on the color line. This we can not afford to do. This we dare not do. The Church must take no backward step. Under the strong light of a well-trained public opinion, your action to-day will be submitted to the closest scrutiny, and the severest criticisms. Three mighty continents are looking upon you. The electric spark is waiting with restless anxiety to bear the news. This is, perhaps, the grandest opportunity in your lives. Forty-four years ago, in this very city, and almost within a stone's throw of this very spot, in the arbitrament of a question that involved the happiness of millions, and which caused nearly one half of your membership to secede, you severed ties that had bound you together for more than half a century. Notwithstanding, you covenanted with the Church to protect her dusky children, and the world will now say that you have not broken your covenant. You have fought nobly and well. It is, therefore, eminently fitting that in this great city of historic reminiscences that we erect an altar of thanksgiving, and in the great joy of our hearts let us unite our suffrages and bear in triumph to the ranks of our chief pastors the trophy of our victory.

Dear fathers and brethren, do not fear. We have the men—men of deep, fervent piety, broad liberal culture and ability. In the ranks of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion, and the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of America, will be found men of ability, of culture, of piety: they are well known to you. It would be a sad comment on our progress, that if the Churches just mentioned, with only one endowed institution of learning, could produce more talented and educated ministers than the great Methodist Episcopal Church with its four score institutions of learning, its great Book Concerns and its splendid literature. Yes, sirs, we have the men. They may not be titled, they may not be enrolled among the alma mater of your noble institutions, but they are God's noblemen. Heroes for God and the Church—following her not for the loaves and the fishes, but for Christ's sake. [illegible] whatever grace you show, will [illegible] me [illegible] to leave thee or to [illegible] after thee, for whither [illegible] where thou lodgest [illegible] shall be my peo[illegible]; where thou diest [illegible] will I die, and there will I be buried. The Lord do so to me and more also, if aught but death part thee and me."

A motion to extend the time of the speaker prevailed, and at the close the audience broke into a repeated round of enthusiastic applause.

It being stated that the Judiciary Committee had the matter under consideration, the whole subject was laid on the table.

Bishop Harris announced the letters. The call of the delegates for their votes for four bishops was then proceeded with. The tellers then retired for the count of the votes.

Bishop Simpson said that Dr. George, of the Ecumenical Council, had a report which it was desirable to have read to the Conference, and acted upon:

REPORT OF THE ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE COMMITTEE—NO. II.

To the General Conference of 1880:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN—We transmit herewith this form of a case for a Methodist Ecumenical Conference adopted by delegates and representatives of the different Methodist bodies herewith named, and we respectfully request the General Conference, in view of the facts and statements contained in said paper, to adopt the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That we concur in the recommendation to hold a Methodist Ecumenical Conference, in London, England, at the time suggested by the joint committee.

2. That we request the bishops to nominate to this conference two persons to act, together with Bishop M. Simpson as the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church on the General Executive Committee for which provision is made in said report.

3. That the bishops be authorized and instructed when the time of the proposed Ecumenical Conference shall be definitely determined, to appoint the delegates to which the Methodist Episcopal Church is entitled, selecting at least three of their own number; and also to appoint as many reserve delegates as they may judge necessary.

4. That the secretary of this General Conference be instructed to transmit a copy of these resolutions to the secretaries of such General Conferences as may meet during the calender year, and to the chief executive authorities of all other Methodist bodies.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed in behalf of the Committee on Ecumenical Conference.

Closing Exercises of the New Orleans University.

The New Orleans University, under the patronage of the Freedman's Aid Society of the M. E. Church, has just closed a most prosperous year's work. The attendance of advanced students has been unusually large. The school year has been one of perfect harmony among teachers and pupils. The students were greatly interested in their labor, and the year closes with the kindest feelings among all.

Prof. A. Johnson, of the theological department, preached the baccalaureate sermon, on Sunday, May 16, at First Street M. E. Church. A large audience was present, and well pleased.

On Tuesday night, at First Street Church, Rev. Alexander, D. D., President of Straight University, delivered the annual lecture to the theological class; subject, "The Divine Call." This is spoken of as a rare treat. With great eloquence and power the Doctor presented his theme in a most attractive and effective manner.

On Wednesday night, at Wesley Chapel, the Hesperian Literary Society gave their annual exhibition to a fine audience. The exercises were decidedly creditable, and heartily appreciated by all who witnessed them. The following was the programme:

Prayer; Duet—The Changes of the Bells, Joanna Sewell and Elizabeth Harris; Oration—Character, G. W. Wells; Piano Duet, Nellie Chapman and Richard Bradford; Recitation, Delia Duncan; Solo—Let me dream again, Camilla Landry; Select Reading—Thanatopsis, R. W. B. Gould; Piano Solo, Julia Chapman; Recitation—When I was Young, Emma E. Merritt; Duet—O'er the Hill, O'er the Dale, Virginia Riche and Joanna Sewell; Essay—Follies of the Day, Rosa A. Turner; Solo—Esmeralda, Virginia M. J. Riche; Oration—Perseverance the source of Accomplishment, Robert W. B. Gould; Song—Sweet and Low, Misses Turner, Sewell, Chapman and Mayo; Benediction.

The commencement exercises took place at Wesley Chapel on Thursday night. A class of four was graduated. Three young gentlemen received the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and one young lady the degree of Bachelor of Science. Dr. Newman, of the Baptist Church, made the opening prayer. This large house was crowded to its utmost capacity. Quite a number of white friends were present. The members of the class acquitted themselves nobly. All in the house manifested, by close attention, a very great interest in the subject of education. Mrs. Yarington furnished excellent piano music for the occasion. Showers of fine, large and costly bouquets were thrown to each member of the class. After the presentation of the diplomas by President I. N. Failor, the class sang their parting song, and Prof. Johnson pronounced the benediction. The following is the programme:

Prayer: Music: Oration—"The Seen and the Unseen," James T. Cottrell: Music: Oration—"Never too Old to Learn," Chas. G. Merritt: Music: Oration—"Tendency of the Age," George W. Wells: Music: Essay—"Female Heroism," Virginia M. J. Riche: Music: Presentation of Diplomas: Class Song: Benediction. The class of '80—James Thaddeus Cottrell, Charles Gamaliel Merritt, George Washington Wells, Virginia Margaret Jane Riche.

To all Methodist Episcopal Pastors and Sunday-School Superintendents.

A peculiarly appropriate feature of the Centennial services, May 30, would be the unveiling of a fine picture of Robert Raikes; and there is a new, elegant and life-like steel-plate engraving of the great philanthropist just issued. Order it at once, and sometime during the Centennial Service, on Sabbath, p. m., May 30, let it be exhibited to the school. It will be a perpetual memorial and a most admirable ornament for the walls of the Sunday-school room. The engraving is a most perfect likeness of Mr. Raikes, and ranks very high as a work of art. It may be ordered at once of Rev. J. C. Nobles, General Agent, No. 7 Barclay St., New York City, enclosing draft or money order with the application. Prices: For plain proof, $2; India proof, $5; Artist's proof, $10;

Should the picture arrive too late for May 30, it may with great propriety be unveiled on Children's Day, June 13.

Cor. Sec. S. S. Union.

I endorse the above.

The Order of Self-Helpers, H. Collins president, and J. W. Newton secretary, gave a festival in the M. E. Church at Paris, Texas. They cleared $20.95. The secretary writes that Paris is one of the best little towns in the State. It has from 3000 to 4000 inhabitants, one colored order of Good Templars, two societies of Self-Helpers, one L. S. C., a good school, and four churches.

"Lost Friends."

Rev. J. B. Robinson, President of Grand Prairie Seminary, Onarga, Illinois, writes us as follows:

ONARGA, Ill., May 20, 1880.

DEAR DOCTOR HARTZELL—I read your paper with great interest, and especially such items as furnish light and information about the colored man, struggling as he is, to be a good man and citizen and finally a saint.

No obituary column is half so sad to me as your column in which freedmen are calling aloud for friends severed by slavery. When one writes, "My mother was sold," it not only stirs the most profound pity for the poor children bereft by the inhumanity, but it also arouses mortal indignation at a barbarism that would claim right and even Bible for such infamy.

That column is an incidental bird's eye view of the awful crime of human slavery and the interminable character of its effects. When these children of a thousand tribulations cry out in the agony of social sorrow, revealing as keen a natural love as any one could, when they write: "Where, oh where are mother and father and brother and sister!" it appears too high a price for the mere sake of aristocracy. The misfortune of slavery does not result from color, but from power, imperiousness and sin combined. It is not to be the calamity of all ages and all time, but only of semi-barbarism in the past, and it never prevails in eternity, nor does the idea of caste or color which time time has associated. But the souls of eternity, if saved, are all white in the blood of the Lamb, and if unsaved they are spotted with sin forever, notwithstanding the antecedents of bodily color. Very fraternally, J. B. ROBINSON.

The city school board has decided, in view of the impossibility of borrowing money for the support of public schools, to close them after the end of June next, until October. This is one of the first fruits of the repudiation policy. The teachers have been months without pay, and are a most worthy class of employes. This condition of affairs is shameful, inexcusable, and almost wholly due to unfriendly legislation. The great majority of the people are eager to sustain the public schools, but are over-reached by White League government.

Henry Street, adjutant general under Gov. Kellogg, and others, brought suit for damages to person and property by the mob of Sept. 14, 1874, which captured the State House and police stations. The Supreme Court of Louisiana has just dismissed the case, on appeal from a lower court, on the ground that the men who took possession that day were "citizen soldiery" and not a mob. The court has, as a matter of course, sustained its source of authority.

Ex. Gov. Foote died in Nashville on the 20th. The employes of the New Orleans Mint assembled and drew up appropriate resolutions of respect. As Governor, and U. S. Senator from Mississippi, and a member of the Confederate Congress, he was an actor in not a few of the great historical struggles of this country.

Says the Mississippi Methodist, Church South: "In the choice of bishops, we believe that the General Conference has acted with great wisdom. They are all men of remarkable ability and culture, and it appears conservative also, three of them college presidents, one, Dr. Warren, from the pastorate."

The following gentlemen have been appointed members of a syndicate to liquidate the city debt of New Orleans: By the Governor: S. H. Kennedy and H. Gardes. By the Lieutenant Governor: E. A. Palfrey and A. J. Gomila. By Speaker Ogden: J. H. Oglesby and John Phelps.

In Scribner's "Bric-a-brac" for June, attention is called to the fact that the phonograph is not a new invention, but—if we are to believe Cyrano Bergerac, a French traveler—was in constant use in the moon two centuries ago. That wicked Edison!

Richard Jones writes us from Brewer's Hill, Texas, that colored people have been emigrating from there to Kansas very rapidly, but the movement has almost ceased, Sunday-schools are flourishing.

Says the Holston Methodist (Church South) of the new bishops: "They are all well educated, and men of marked ability, and all understood to be quite conservative in their views."

The Richmond Christian Advocate (Church South) says of the new bishops: "Four better men could not be found in the entire Church."

Boston has seven colored lawyers, six of whom are in active practice, one of them being a graduate of the Harvard Law-School.

The press severely criticises the pardon of criminals by Acting Governor Samuel McEnery, of Louisiana.

PERSONAL MENTION.

[Correspondents in Texas wrote to the SOUTHWESTERN that a Madame Louis, a native of Hayti, was delivering eloquent lectures on the subject: "The Negro—Past, Present and Future." The Texas press has praised it. We know nothing of the lady or her lecture personally, but certainly hope that she will be protected from violent assaults of the character Mr. Louis mentions in his letter.—ED]

A School Examination.

DE KALB, Miss., May 10, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—On the 8th we had a fine day, with a fine picnic and examination of my school. Exercises were opened by reading of scriptures, singing and prayer. Then we marched to a grove where six classes were examined. The opening address was by L. J. S. Bell, on the improvement of the colored race since its emancipation. It was followed by Rev. B. F. Penny, who gave us an eloquent oration on the subject of education. Bro. Wm. Grady also spoke approvingly of the school and its teacher. After speeches and a bountiful dinner we repaired to the school room, where an exhibition took place, the children reciting many pretty pieces.

TOPIC.—The Savior's Agony.
(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The Connection.—At least a part of the sorrow of Gethsemane must have been felt in the observance of the last supper. The fact that it was the last supper was enough of itself to give it a tinge of sadness, but to that was added the fact that the hand that should betray Jesus was at the table with him. Before the supper was over, Judas received full warning of the consequences of his contemplated act.

We wish the happy couples a joyous voyage through their pilgrimage. Miss M. Jones is a strict member of the M. E. Church, and we wish her much joy.

Women Never Think.

If the crabbed old bachelor who uttered this sentiment could but witness the intense thought, deep study and thorough investigation of women in determining the best medicines to keep their families well, and would note their sagacity and wisdom in selecting Hop Bitters as the best, and demonstrating it by keeping their families in perpetual health, at a mere nominal expense, he would be forced to acknowledge that such sentiments are baseless and false.

DEATHS.

Sister Louisa Jordan departed this life March 20, 1880, aged 38. Up to the day of her death she was talking about that heavenly land. A husband and daughter mourn her loss. C. L. CRUMP.

Goodman, Miss., May 4.

Sister Sarah Steward, a member of Thompson Chapel, New Orleans, died May 6, aged 32 years, in full triumph of faith. She leaves a daughter.

Sister Elizabeth Williams, of same church, died May 10, and is now at peace with God.

J. W. L.

Sister Ann Thornton died Jan. 9. She was willing to go at any time the Lord should send. Three children mourn her loss.

Sister Patsy Bradley died Nov. 12, 1879. We have good reason to believe she is at rest. A husband and child mourn her loss.

Sister Elizabeth Cox fell asleep in Jesus, Feb. 2, 1880. She leaves three orphan children, for whom she had cared while living. The church has lost a good member.

P. HARRIS.

Crystal Springs, Miss.

It is with profound regret that I announce the death of my co-elder's wife, sister Julian Wesley. After an illness of ninety days she fell asleep in Jesus on the 21st ult., at 1:30 a. m. She was born Dec. 25, 1854, and joined our church in 1869.

Mrs. Annie Ward departed this life, in full hope, on the 19th of March, leaving a husband and two children.

Mr. Geo. Lampport, who joined us last June, gave his heart to Christ, and lived as he died, a pure Christian, on the 12th ult.

The two last were members of my church. A. SPEARS, Pastor.

Bastrop, La., April 24, 1880.

The death of Sister Ellen Lee was a most triumphant one. It took place at her residence near this place on the ... inst. She was confined ... about four weeks. She was a devoted wife, a fond and affectionate mother, and an exemplary Christian. She leaves a husband, six children, and an old mother to mourn her loss; but their irreparable loss is her eternal gain. She now basks in the joys of that home which Jesus has gone to prepare for all His faithful servants. "She can't come to us, but we can go to her." It will be long, we fear, before her place will be filled in our church. Her funeral was largely attended. The services were conducted by myself, assisted by Rev. Major Reeves, pastor of A. M. E. Church at this place. Yours in Christ, GEO. LACY, Pastor Magnolia Church.

THE TRUE STORY OF THE EXODUS OF ISRAEL. Compiled from Dr. Brugsch; edited by F. H. Underwood. Boston: Lee & Shepard. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich. Price $1.50.

Dr. Brugsch, after thirty years of exploration and study, fixed the residence of the Israelites in Egypt, and the birth-place of Moses. Various proofs he has brought forward on this point. He takes up the Scriptural account, examines the names of places mentioned in Exodus, and traces the route of the Israelites. He shows that they never came near the Red Sea until some days after the catastrophe of the drowning of Pharaoh and his host. Having a thorough knowledge of the geography, ancient and modern, he shows the errors of the translators and commentators. This account Dr. Brugsch declares to be wholly in accord with Scripture. The book is valuable for the new light thrown upon the immense antiquity of the kingdom, its wonderful monuments and their wealth of historic inscriptions. It is illustrated with a map of Ancient Egypt.

—The June number of The North American Review contains "Popular Fallacies about Russia," by E. W. Stoughton, ex-Minister to Russia; "Divorces in New England," by Dr. Nathan Allen; "McClellan's Last Service to the Republic," by George Ticknor Curtis; "Has the Southern Pulpit Failed?" by Rev. Dr. F. A. Shoup; "Caste at West Point," by P. S. Michie, Professor of Philosophy at West Point; and "Some Interesting Publications," by M. W. Hazeltine. This number closes the 130th volume and 65th year of the Review. During the last few years this magazine has advanced in popular favor, and its permanent circulation has increased more than sixfold. The New York Sun says: "It is full of masterly disquisitions on the great questions that occupy the minds of the world." The Brooklyn Times: "It is the cream of the nation's thought." The Albany Journal: "It is the representative of the best American thought and culture." The Hartford Courant: "It is interesting from cover to cover." The Boston Journal: "It has not a page which an intelligent reader can afford to skip." The Troy Times: "It is endowed with unprecedented elements of popularity." The Cincinnati Times: "No other magazine has such a faculty for getting hold of live, fresh, interesting contributions." The London (England) Academy: "It seems to have no difficulty in keeping its position at the head of the periodical literature of the United States."

Unprecedented Success.

The MODEL WASHER, advertised in this week's paper, is having unprecedented success. It was patented December 9th, 1879; since then over 4,000 have been sold, and as yet not one complaint has been received—"more than satisfied" is the popular verdict. The manufacturers want a general agent for each county, and a local agent in each town.

From Eminent Dr. C. C. Clark, Oswego, N. Y.

I have made sufficient experiment of Colden's Liebig's Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator, to enable me to say it is by far the best of all the preparations of the kind (FOOD and TONIC) that I have ever used. To the sufferer from chronic diseases, or the convalescent, it is invaluable, being both nourishing and strengthening. I. L. Lyon's, druggist agent, New Orleans.

The New Louisiana Remedy is winning golden opinions from many who have tested its merits in the treatment of coughs, colds, etc. We recently examined some fourteen pages of signatures vouching for its effectiveness. Read advertisement elsewhere, and remember that this home medicine is well known, and finds sale throughout the country. A large order was received lately from Richmond, Va., where the Remedy had been tried, and thus commended itself.

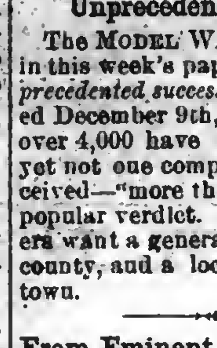
Walking made very easy with Lyon's Heel Stiffeners; they keep your boots and shoes straight.

GENERAL EFFECTS OF

FELLOWS'

Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

"It is perfectly safe, and the taste pleasant."



THE first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations. Its effect on the mucous membrane is such that easy expectoration is produced, not only are the air passages easily voided of the secretion already deposited, but its collection is carried on in a healthy manner, while the formation of tubercle is retarded. The rapidity with which patients take on flesh while under the influence of the Syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more efficacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened and the blood purified.

FELLOWS'

Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites

Speedily and permanently cures Congestion of the Lungs, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Shortness of Breath, Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Physical and Mental Depression, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Energy, Loss of Memory. It will rapidly improve the weakened functions and organs of the body, which depend for health upon voluntary, semi-voluntary, and involuntary nervous action. It acts with vigor, gentleness, and subtlety, owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent.

PREVENT

Yellow Fever

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventative. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventative and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents.

"I don't want that stuff."

Is what a lady of Boston said to her husband when he brought home some medicine to cure her of sick headache and neuralgia which had made her miserable for fourteen years. At the first attack thereafter, it was administered to her with such good results, that she continued its use until cured, and made so enthusiastic in its praise, that she induced twenty-two of the best families in her circle to adopt it as their regular family medicine. That "stuff" is Hop Bitters.

A nut once saved the life of a German count. A plot had been laid to murder him, and the murderer lay hid in his castle through the day. Before going to bed he drew some things from his pocket, and a nut fell on the floor, which he did not notice. That night the murderer entered the bed-room, but stepped on the nut, which in breaking cracked loud enough to waken the count, and the murderer fled.

YELLOW FEVER.—It is confidently asserted that this frightful disease can be prevented by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, in connection with Warner's Safe Pills. It is a blood poison; keep the blood pure, this disease will not exist. These Remedies keep the blood filterers—the kidney and liver—in healthy action.

Yellow Fever.

The National Board of Health,

IN THEIR PUBLISHED REPORT, SAY THE CAUSE OF THIS DISEASE IS

BLOOD POISONING,

So poisoned by breathing the vitiated atmosphere of malarial and infected districts.

All know the Kidneys and Liver are the cleansers of the blood, and that if these organs are kept in a healthy condition, Yellow Fever can, and will, be averted.

That these organs can be kept free from disease, and at all times in condition to well and faithfully perform their duties, is a matter beyond dispute, cavil or argument, and equally it is true, that a free use of

Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure,

In connection with

will actually compel these same organs to perform their allotted functions, and hence as a cleanser of the blood, and a preventive to yellow fever, we have no hesitation in offering it to the public.

UNPRECEDENTED

SUCCESS!

The MODEL WASHER

It affords us sincere gratification to be able to announce that we have succeeded in placing in the market a washing machine so simple in its mechanism that a child may use it, so durable that it cannot wear out, so cheap that the poorest may purchase it, so economical that no family can afford to be without it, and so effective that it is a pleasure to use it.

WHAT IT IS.

The MODEL WASHER is a small portable machine, weighing about six pounds, and can be used in any ordinary family wash boiler. It is composed wholly of iron, tin and brass, and hence one of its prominent qualities is durableness; and from the nature of the material entering into its construction, and the simplicity of its mechanism, it is impossible to get it out of order by use. In form it is a circular base, with a diameter of 7 inches, and a depth of 1½ inches. In the center of this base is inserted a horizontal tube, called the discharge pipe, which is 14 inches high, 1½ inches in diameter, and capable, when in full operation, of throwing out 15 gallons of water per minute. Within the base, which is hollow, is located a succession of tortuous passages, so arranged that, by a well-known principle of hydraulics, the hot water in the boiler is rapidly sucked up and continually forced from the bottom to the surface of the boiler through the discharge pipe. The above cut shows how the washer should set in boiler.

In simple language, by the operation of the machine all the water within the boiler is drawn by the irresistible force of suction through the soiled linen, until all the dirt is removed from it, leaving the articles after rinsing, thoroughly cleansed and purified.

The air chamber, an entirely new and original device, invented, patented and exclusively used by us is a special feature of the MODEL WASHER, and an invaluable adjunct to suction washers, by reason of the powerful additional force with which it drives the water through the fabrics of the goods, causing it to search out and eradicate every atom of dirt that lurks within them.

WHAT IT DOES.

It is not so well understood as it should be, that the energetic action of boiling water containing a small per centage of alkali (in the form of common soap) affords the only effective means of removing dirt from cotton and linen goods. It has long been erroneously assumed that nothing short of violent friction produced by hard rubbing in a strong solution of alkali was capable of cleansing cotton cloth. The fact is that the cleansing process consists not in rubbing the goods, but in forcing the water repeatedly through them after the alkali has loosed the dirt in them. The washer-woman of the past toiled hard to do just what the MODEL WASHER does without effort, viz.: force the soapsuds through the articles in the washtub, but with this difference, that she forced the water roughly through them by laborious effort, with the aid of the washboard, while the MODEL WASHER gently infuses the water through and through them, without the least impairing their value.

The MODEL WASHER is especially valuable, if not indeed indispensable, for washing all kinds of fragile fabrics, such as laces, lace curtains, fine lawns, cambrics, etc., which are of too fine a texture to be successfully subjected to the harsh treatment of the washboard. As all housekeepers are aware, it has hitherto been an expensive luxury to cleanse lace curtains, as it could only be done without injury by adepts, whose secret skill enabled them to charge exorbitant prices for their work. Happily, however, the MODEL WASHER has entirely revolutionized this state of things, and made it practicable for every family to perform the most delicate laundry work with the same facility with which they accomplish the ordinary washing of the household.

The MODEL WASHER leaves no longer any excuse for yellow and discolored clothes, which are so often a serious annoyance to families, and which usually proceeds from careless washing, and the use of water of too low a temperature. In washing with the washboard, of course the hands must be plunged in the water, and to render this possible, the water must be reduced to a temperature which the hands can bear; whereas these machines, being composed of metal, retain the heat, and do their work best in boiling suds, and only boiling suds forced through soiled linen will thoroughly cleanse and impart to it the pure whiteness which delights the heart of the good housewife.

Then there is the important labor saving feature of our machines to be considered. The family washing has ever been regarded the most irksome and slavish of domestic duties, and from time immemorial has inspired the whole household with dread. This terror, however, is fast becoming a thing of the past, for by the beneficent aid of our MODEL WASHER a young child or a feeble invalid can do the washing for a large family, in a short time, without fatigue. No rubbing whatever is required. The clothes are placed in the boiler of hot water, and softly pressed down at frequent intervals, to keep them entirely submerged, and subjected to the action of the water that continually passes through them. This is the only exertion required; and remember, the clothes are thoroughly cleansed without being rubbed threadbare on the washboard.

No chemicals whatever are required to be used with these machines. Clean, soft water, or water softened by borax, and a little soap only are necessary.

By the use of the MODEL WASHER at least one half of the soap required by the old process of washing is saved. This is an important item where a large quantity of washing is to be done.

What a Minister Says About the Model Washer.

The following is an extract from a letter received March 4, from a Baptist minister who has since then ordered over 20 washers for friends:—The 'Model Washer' sent me has been received and tested in two large washings. We are all delighted with it; my wife and our girl are as happy as if they had received a valuable present. I am convinced the principle on which it is constructed is the correct one. We loaned our washer to a friend yesterday, when it was thoroughly tested on some very dirty clothes, but the little unpretending washer undertook the task with confidence and came off victorious. The last test was on some large sheets that came from the meat market, that were returned with grease and covered with dirt, but the washer made them clean. Our friend, of course, wants one."

WHAT IT COSTS. ONLY $3.

We are anxious to introduce it at once, and so have reduced the price to $3. If you want a business that will pay you well, send for our terms to agents.

Full directions how to use sent with each machine.

We are sole agents for the South.

P. S.—As to our reliability, we refer you to any Express Co. or Newspaper in this City.

When cash is sent with order for sample Washer, we prepay the Express charges, if sent C. O. D. the receiver must pay charges. Address, BARTON & CO., No. 232 West Baltimore St., Baltimore, Md.

TESTIMONIALS.

Over 4,000 Sold and not One Complaint.

On March 10th we sent a letter to one party in each State to whom we had sold Washers, asking them, after having tried it, what they thought of the Model Washer. The following are the answers. The original letters can be seen at our office.

From Maryland.

"We received the Washer about ten days ago. It gives perfect satisfaction."

From Virginia.

"In reply to your letter, would say that we would not sell our Washer, for $100, if we could not get another one."

From West Virginia.

"We are more than satisfied with the Model Washer."

From North Carolina.

"Ours gives good satisfaction; and, as you are aware, my son is selling a great many, and they all give the same answer."

From South Carolina.

"I have made over $100 clear during past month selling your machines. Have not had a single complaint."

From Georgia.

"My wife says she don't see how she could get along without it."

From Mississippi.

"Yours of the 10th at hand. We like our Model Washer better and better every week."

From Florida.

"We like the Washer very much."

From Louisiana.

"I received your letter yesterday. My wife says that on her recommendation three of our neighbors have purchased the Model Washer. So, you see, we think it a good thing."

From Texas.

"Best thing out to sell I ever handled."

From Tennessee.

"My wife says that she would not be without it if she had to pay five times its cost."

From Kentucky.

"Yours of the 10th just received. I have been your agent for nearly six weeks, and, as you know, have ordered three times. Each lot has given satisfaction. I have not had one complaint. Last week I placed the last ten in as many different families, and so far eight have told me that they would keep them. I have appointed two sub-agents, and after next week I shall want the agency for the adjoining county."

One of our Agents writes:

"Ship me at once two dozen Washers. I enclose money order for amount. It is the best thing I ever sold. I have called on those that I sold to a week ago, and they say they would not part with it for $10."

An Agent writes:

"I have made a practice of canvassing every Fall and Winter. I never had an article that seemed to give so much satisfaction.

"Please send me at once 25 Model Washers. The dozen I bought last month I sold to my neighbors, and I am now going to commence canvassing the town."

The following letter from a Farmer speaks for itself:

"Now that I have got my spring work all done, I am prepared to give your business a thorough trial. The Washer I ordered for myself gives perfect satisfaction; three of my neighbors have ordered from me already, and I think I can sell at least one hundred in this vicinity."

$1000, REWARD

For any Washing Machine that will Wash Cleaner, Quicker, with Less Labor and Wear and Tear of Clothes than the

ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, Pat'd Oct. 3, '71.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY PERFECT SELF-OPERATING WASHER IN THE WORLD.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow-grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rolling of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure [illegible]. In cleansing thoroughly, [illegible] all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide and 1½ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 13 inches high over that, and is 1½ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 6 to 8 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 10 to 20 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7½ inches wide, 1½ inches deep, and weighs about 8 pounds. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER—ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the act of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fibres which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

TRUE KNOWLEDGE.

What is true knowledge?—Is it with keen eye
Of learning's sons to thread the mazy way?
Is it of civic rights, and royal sway,
And wealth political, the depths to try?
Is it to delve the earth, or soar the sky;
To marshal nature's tribes in just array;
To mix, and analyze, and mete, and weigh
Her elements, and all her powers descry?
These things, who will may know them, if to know
Breed not vain-glory: but o'er all to scan
God in His works and word shewn forth below:
Creation's wonders; and Redemption's plan;
Whence came we; what to do; and whither go:
This is true knowledge, and "the whole of man."

REPORT OF THE FRATERNAL DELEGATE TO THE EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION.

To the bishops presiding and to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in session in the city of Cincinnati, May, 1880.

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN.—The bishops having appointed me as fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Evangelical Association to meet in Chicago, October, 1879, I visited said General Conference October 16, 1879, and was received by the bishops and members of said body with great respect and cordiality. They fixed the afternoon of October 18, 1879, as the special order to receive your address and the remarks which, at their request, were made by your delegate in the German language were evidently received with favor and evidences of pleasure. My address you will find correctly, though abbreviated, with this latter translated into English.

Bishop Marrill had the kindness to accompany me, and his visit pleased the brethren of that noble body of Christian ministers very much.

Bishop R. Dubs responded to our remarks in the usual kindly resolutions, and they appointed a delegation of their Church to greet you, and am sure you will be very much pleased to hear from them. Very respectfully, J. W. FREUND.

New York, May, 1880.

J. C. Hartzell, of Louisiana, presented the report of Rev. Emperor Williams, fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of America, which was received and ordered to be printed, and is as follows:

REPORT OF DELEGATE TO THE COLORED METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF AMERICA.

To the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Assembled in Cincinnati, Ohio, May, 1880.

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN.—As your representative, to bear fraternal greetings to the General Conference of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of America, I beg leave to report as follows: I left my home in New Orleans, August 12, 1878, and reached the seat of the General Conference above mentioned, at Jackson, Tenn., the following day, and was accorded a most hearty reception. On the day after my arrival, at a special hour, previously fixed, I was formally introduced to the body, and delivered as well as I could my message of fraternal greeting. The response on the part of the Conference, by one of its bishops, was fraternal in spirit and gave evidence of a high appreciation of the kindly sentiment which I had the honor to express in your name.

The prevalence of the yellow fever epidemic in the region from which I had come and the excited state of public sentiment lest that dread disease might at any time make its appearance in Jackson, rendered it prudent that my stay should be brief.

I am sure the Lord is blessing the labors of our brethren of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of America, and that between our own Church and it there will only be kind and fraternal relations. Very respectfully your servant in the Lord,

EMPEROR WILLIAMS.

Bishop Simpson presented a communication from the fraternal delegates from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, inclosing the action of their General Conference, which was received and ordered to be printed, and is as follows:

Allow us to add, dear brethren, that your fraternal delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will receive a brotherly welcome. Praying God's blessing upon our Methodist brotherhood. We are very truly and fraternally yours, ATTICUS G. HAYGOOD, JAMES H. CARLISLE.

[illegible] DAY—MAY 15.

gions exercises conducted by L. Nippert, of Germany.

Dr. Woodruff, as a matter of privilege, read a communication from Rev. Wallace McMullen, fraternal delegate from the Irish Wesleyan Church. This letter returned thanks for kindnesses received, expressed appreciation of the work done by the Church here, and in touching words bade the Conference adieu.

The secretary read a telegram containing the greeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, in session at Evansville, Indiana. A courteous response was ordered.

On suspension of the rules the Committee on Boundaries reported, in favor of amending ¶ 388, chapter fourth, part fifth, by inserting the words "in which it shall be necessary for a majority of the five members respectively representing each of said conferences to concur."

On motion of J. W. Hoyt, the rules were suspended to receive a report from the Committee on Entertainment and Location of General Conference.

The report favored the future defrayment of the expenses of the delegates to the General Conference by a general fund provided for this purpose by the whole Church. To do this would cost from $35,000 to $40,000, which would be an average of about $6 per Church, leaving out of the estimate a large number of Churches not able to pay anything. To carry out this idea the Committee recommended the following plan:

1. The appointment of a Commission by the Bishops to take the matter in charge.
2. This commission to be composed of nine members representing the different sections of the work.
3. The Commission to estimate the expenses of the General Conference and apportion same among the annual conferences.
4. Each annual conference to have a Sub-Committee on this subject, composed of one minister and one layman.
5. The money apportioned to the different charges to be raised in yearly installments.
6. The location of the General Conference to be fixed by the Commission of nine, with the concurrence of the Bishops.
7. The Commission of nine to have power to constitute what Sub-Committees may be necessary.

On motion the report was ordered printed and the consideration of it made the order of the day for Monday at ten o'clock.

J. M. Walden, of Cincinnati, presented the memorial of the National Local Preachers' Association, which was referred.

The resolution of M. H. Mendenhall, calling for the publication in the Discipline of the decisions of the Bishops, was taken up, discussed at some length, amended and adopted, as follows:

Whereas, Many of the rulings of the bishops have never been given to the Church at large; and,

Whereas, Such decisions are of very great value as guides in the interpretation of the Discipline, though not always final; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on the Episcopacy be instructed to inquire into the expediency of requesting the bishops to furnish to the Committee on Episcopacy for review, to be submitted to the General Conference for confirmation, and when confirmed to be published in the appendix to the Discipline, such decisions of law questions, made in the course of their presidencies over the annual conferences as relate to the administration of the Discipline by presiding elders and pastors.

On motion of T. J. Ferrill, of Missouri, the Conference proceeded to the election of editor for the Central Christian Advocate. Benjamin St. James Fry, W. R. Goodwin, and J. C. W. Coxe were nominated.

Dr. Woodruff announced that Rev. Wm. Arthur, fraternal delegate from the British Wesleyan Church, was about to leave the Conference, and he moved that he be asked to say a few parting words.

Mr. Arthur, being introduced, in behalf of himself and his colleagues thanked the Conference for its kindness. The days he had spent here had been days of great interest and of some instruction. He had been thinking, he said, how how much would be accomplished if as much Christian effort were put forth by the people of God in the next hundred years as in the hundred years just passed. F. W. McDonald also made a few remarks.

O. H. Warren was the only nominee for the editor of the Northern Christian Advocate, and the Secretary was instructed to cast the vote of the Conference for him.

Amos Shinkle, Esq., presented Report No. 1, from the Committee on Book Concern. This report made four recommendations, as follows:

1. That the deficiency in the Episcopal Fund be charged to profit and loss in the accounts of the Book Concern.

This was amended so as to include the exact amount of the deficiency up to Jan. 1, 1880 and adopted.

[illegible] Hunt, of Genesee, stated the deficiency to be as follows: Eastern Book Concern, $87,645.95; Western Book Concern, $32,665.29; Total, $120,311.24.

2. That the publication of the National Repository be dispensed with at the close of the present year.

Laid upon the table.

3. That the publication of Golden Hours be also dispensed with at the close of the year.

Laid upon the table.

4. That the election of editors for the Church papers in California and in the South be deferred for the present.

The editor of Christian Apologist excepted, this was adopted.

The ballot for editor of Central Christian Advocate was announced as follows:

Whole number of votes cast	352
Necessary to a choice	177
Benj. St. Jas. Fry	251
W. R. Goodwin	52
J. C. W. Coxe	45

and Benjamin St. James Fry declared duly elected.

Dr. J. M. Walden then presented the report of the Committee on the time and place of holding the ordination services of the bishops elect. The Committee reported in favor of holding the services in Music Hall on a week from Tuesday.

Dr. Lanahan moved to amend the report of the Committee so as to have the services held in St. Paul's Church at the time already fixed, next Wednesday.

The substitute being accepted by 186 to 131, the vote was then taken on its adoption. It was adopted by a vote of 181 to 136.

FOURTEENTH DAY—MAY 17.

Bishop Wiley presiding. G. Cummings, of Philadelphia, led in the devotional exercises.

J. W. Willett, of Providence, presented the following, which was put upon its passage:

Resolved, That in rejecting the resolution relating to the status of a bishop elect presented by Dr. Wentworth, of the Genesee Conference, on the 13th inst., this General Conference did not express approval of the doctrine of three orders in the ministry. It simply declared that a bishop elect is not divested of his rights and responsibilities as a member of an annual conference and of this body, nor is be invested with the authority and responsibility of a bishop until he is formally inducted into that office.

Resolved, That the episcopacy of our Church is not an order but an office.

J. P. Wentworth, of Genesee, moved a substitute.

W. H. Ferris, of New York, moved to refer the whole matter to the committee on episcopacy. Adopted.

The secretary announced that Brother Darrow has charge of the box for the reception of the memorials, and desired that the members of the General Conference should hand their memorials directly to him.

A. J. Kynett, of Iowa, offered the following:

Resolved, That when no action has been taken in fixing the quorum of a deliberative body no number less than a majority constitute a quorum.

Resolved, That when the chairman has decided that a quorum is not present, it is not competent for a non-quorum to overrule his decision.

J. Smart, of Detroit, said: Quarterly conferences are deliberative bodies, and a quorum consists of the parties who are present. I suppose this resolution does not propose to change that. Many of the committees might find it impossible to get a majority. There are so many sitting at the same time, and then most of them have voted that those present shall constitute a quorum. I move that the resolution lie on the table.

The resolution was read, and by a count vote of 167 to 58 it was laid on the table.

J. R. Thompson, of West Virginia, offered the following:

Resolved, That in organizing the general committees twenty-five shall constitute a quorum.

On motion of K. P. Jervis, of Genesee, it was laid on the table.

W. Hamilton, of West Wisconsin, presented the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the petition of Rev. Alfred Brunson, D.D., now in the hands of the Committee on the Book Concern, be printed in the Daily Advocate.

The petition was for an equitable division of the proceeds of the Book Concern.

A. W. Milby, of Wilmington, presented the following, which was referred to the Committee on Episcopacy:

Whereas, The question of a colored bishop is with great persistency urged upon the attention of the General Conference;

Whereas, It is a question to be determined, not by appeals to sentiment, but by arguments and facts addressed to the reason and the understanding; and,

Whereas, We believe that the records of the benevolent societies, and the statistical reports of the several annual conferences composed of colored preachers, will furnish the best data for a wise and godly judgment; therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Episcopacy be and are hereby instructed to inquire into and report to this Conference, at an early day, the following items in respect to the conferences composed, in whole or in part, of colored preachers, to-wit:

1. The amount of money contributed by said conferences to the episcopal fund during the last quadrennium.
2. The amount contributed to the missionary cause.
3. The amount to the Church Extension Society.
4. The amount given to the Freedmen's Aid Society.
5. The amount received by said conferences from the Missionary Society during the quadrennium.
6. The amount received from the Church Extension Society.
7. The amount received from the Freedman's Aid Society.

A. W. MILBY,
CHAS. HILL.

J. W. Dunn, of Mississippi, presented the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That we recommend to the General Conference of 1884 that the time for the reception of fraternal delegates begin with the evening of the fifth day of the session.

Also the following:

Whereas, Two-thirds of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church are women loyal to her doctrines and Discipline, and whose prayers for this General Conference are unceasing and who abound in every good word and work, and yet have no voice or representation on the floor of the General Conference; and,

Whereas, The women of our Church in common with their sisters of America have undertaken organized efforts to combat the stupendous evil of intemperance that invades almost every household and association; and,

Whereas, The Woman's National Christian Temperance Union has for its president one of the elect ladies of our Church whose presence we are glad to observe here to-day; therefore,

Resolved, That the sympathies and prayers of this General Conference are and ever will be with these noble women, and that we bid them God speed in their great and good work; and the president of this General Conference be requested to invite Miss Frances Willerd, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union to the platform and request her to address this General Conference for ten minutes.

L. A. Belt, of Central Ohio, moved to suspend the order to hear Miss Willard.

J. M. Buckley, of New York, believed the paper contained several grave errors, and opened the door to invasion of time which would cost the General Conference more than it would come to. The paper made the monstrous assumption that two-thirds of our members, who are women, are without representation on this floor. This he declared untrue in nature or in spirit. The delegates here represent the whole church—men, women and children. He was opposed to the assumption, which, if true, declared upon this floor that the Methodist Episcopal Church and every other church from the time it was founded by the Divine Lord, has been a despotism not less terrible than that exercised by the Czar of Russia. If the Church be the Church which came to us from the apostles in Jerusalem, then those who are here to-day, the delegates who pass its laws, represent all the members of the Church — men, women and children. So much for that. He regretted the assumption that this General Conference needed any stimulus on the subject of temperance. The Methodist Episcopal Church was a total abstinence church from top to bottom. A week's time was saved by putting off reception of fraternal delegates until evening. If Miss Willard was admitted, it must not be because she is a woman, but because she has a cause, and if so, why should not the representatives of other causes be admitted. Let us stick to our own business.

T. L. Flood, of Erie, insisted that women were not represented as the men were. No woman has cast a ballot in the quarterly conferences, nor has any woman occupied the seat of a delegate upon the floor. While the men represent the churches, it is not even accorded the women that the president of their Union may speak ten minutes before the Conference. Miss Frances Willard speaks for the Union and for the nation. Let us hear her, and hear her now.

B. Kelley, of South Kansas, moved that the Conference hear Miss Willard ten minutes, as did also C. H. Payne, of Cincinnati.

R. M. Hatfield, of Rock River, moved to amend so that the same courtesy be extended to other temperance bodies.

A. J. Kynett, of Upper Iowa, said: We could have heard that ten-minutes speech and saved three-quarters of an hour while we have been discussing this subject.

R. M. Hatfield's amendment did not prevail.

On motion, the previous question was ordered.

J. M. Buckley, of New York East, called for the yeas and nays upon the adoption of the substitute of C. H. Payne for the original motion, and the call was sustained.

The roll-call showed 218 yeas, and 118 nays.

The question then recurred on the motion as substituted, and it was adopted.

FIFTEENTH DAY—MAY 18.

Bishop Simpson presided. S. F. Upham, of New England, conducted the religious exercises.

The bishops elect were excused from further service on the floor as delegates, and invited to seats upon the platform.

Dr. Gillett, the mover of the resolution asking Miss Willard to address the Conference yesterday, presented the following note from Miss Willard, which was read from the stage, and was received with applause:

PIKE'S OPERA HOUSE, TUESDAY MORNING.

To the General Conference:

HONORED BRETHREN—It is the judgment of many of your members who championed the cause of women in yesterday's debate (in whose judgment I concur) that I had better state to you, with my hearty thanks for the final vote, that I decline to use the hard-earned ten minutes allotted me.

Suffer me, however, to explain that having been sent here as a fraternal visitor by our Women's National Society, and moreover, having so often spoken before ecclesiastical bodies upon their earnest solicitation, and never having attended a General Conference before, I had no idea of the strong opposition that would be manifested, or I would not have listened to the generous friends who urged the matter on your attention.

Your sister in Christian work,
FRANCES E. WILLARD,
President Women's National Christian Temperance Union.

J. M. Trimble, of Ohio, said that the Committee on Episcopacy had instructed him to present their report, with the request that it be read, and he be allowed to make a few remarks. The report was read:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EPISCOPACY, NO. III.

The Committee on Episcopacy, having considered the memorials and petitions referred to it on the election of a bishop of African descent, adopted each of the following resolutions by a vote of thirty-nine to eight:

1. Resolved, That the best interests of our Church in general, and of our colored people in particular, require that one or more of our general superintendents should be of African descent.

2. Resolved, That we recommend that this General Conference elect one bishop of African descent.

J. M. TRIMBLE, Chairman.
BENJ. ST. JAMES FRY, Secretary.

Dr. Trimble said that in view of the order of the day, he would move that the report be received and made the order of the day for next Thursday, and the motion prevailed.

Bishop Simpson introduced to the Conference the following fraternal delegates: Rev. Dr. J. J. Smith and Rev. Dr. David Wilson, of the Methodist Protestant Church; Rev. Elias Kepplinger, of the Evangelical Association of North America.

J. Cummings, of New England, on behalf of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates, announced that they had arranged for the reception of delegates from the Methodist Protestant Church and from the Evangelical Association, and moved that when we adjourn it be to meet to-night at St. Paul's Church, at 7½ o'clock.

Bishop Simpson said that no particular time had been fixed when determining the place and the day for the consecration of the bishops, and suggested the hour of eleven.

It was ordered that the consecration take place to-morrow at 11 o'clock, in Pike's Opera House.

The order of the day, memorial services of the deceased bishops, and other deceased General Conference officers was taken up.

W. H. Hunter, of Central Illinois, read the 982d hymn.

D. W. Bartine, of Newark, offered prayer.

F. S. Hoyt, of North Ohio, read as scripture lesson, the 90th psalm.

J. M. Thoburn, of South India, read the second lesson a part of the 15th Chapter of 1st Corinthians.

J. W. Joyce, of Northwest Indiana, read the 1002d hymn.

The memoir of Bishop E. S. Janes was then read by Cyrus D. Foss, D.D.; of Bishop Edward Raymond Ames, by C. H. Fowler, D.D.; of Bishop Gilbert Haven, by Rev. W. P. Mallallen, D.D.; of Rev. Reuben Nelson, D.D., book agent, by Rev. Daniel Curry, D.D.; of Rev. R. H. Dashiell, D.D., missionary secretary, by Rev. J. M. Reid, D.D.

Resolutions respecting the death of John R. Goodwin were also read and adopted.

A. S. Ladd, of Maine, offered the following, which, on motion of S. L. Baldwin, of Foochow, was adopted by a unanimous rising vote.

Whereas, Our beloved Bishops Scott and Bowman have been greatly afflicted in the loss of their companions during the last quadrennium; therefore,

Resolved, That we extend to them our profoundest sympathy, and give them an assurance of our earnest prayers, that the God of all grace may constantly and abundantly comfort and support them.

Passed by a rising vote.

The triumphs of the gospel in the Island of Samoa are remarkable. Only thirty-six years ago the people were barbarous, without a written language. The whole population—34,000—are now professed Christians, church-going, Bible-reading, earnest in prayer and effort, sending the gospel and missionaries to other islands, with sixty students in their Theological Seminary, from which they send out some twenty yearly, and, in their poverty, give more than $5,000 a year.

A fire at Dunslow & Bush, oil works, New York, midnight of the 25th, spread rapidly. The oil tank exploded. The flames extended to several vessels and to Adams' lumber yard. The schooner Chas. Connelley was burned. The explosion destroyed two buildings.

A special from Port Washington, Wis., says: A farmer named John Conrad, living near this place, came home drunk Monday, and after beating his crippled and bed-ridden son, ended by throwing him down stairs and breaking his neck. Conrad concealed the murder and started East with the intention of going to Europe, but was arrested at Buffalo and is now on his way back.

The Sibley Cotton Mills board organized at Augusta, Ga., by election of Wm. C. Sibley as president. Among the directors are Samuel Keyser, of New York, and Walter Smith, of Cincinnati. The authorized capital of the company is $1,000,000. The amount subscribed is $600,000. The erection of a factory will proceed at once. This will be one of the largest factories in the South. The cotton mills in Augusta have paid since the war from 8 to 20 per cent per annum.

The road is a French enterprise, connecting with the French possessions in Algeria. Its political importance seems to be greater than its commercial. It gives to France the control of North Africa. Editorial Correspondence.

FOR FOUR YEARS.

By a unanimous vote the General Conference on the twenty-[illegible] of May returned us to the [illegible] of the SOUTHWESTERN [illegible] next four years. We can[illegible] less than express our profound gratitude for so splendid an [illegible]. Seven years ago the [illegible] was begun, and [illegible] three years as a private enterprise we assumed all risks and did [the] entire work of editor and business manager. For this work we [illegible] no pay. A debt of $1,000 [illegible] is still carried by us personally. During the past four [years] the paper has been an official [illegible] of the church, and we have [done] the best we could to make it [illegible] to our church work in the [illegible]. The steady growth in the [illegible] of our subscription list, and [the] hearty co-operation of the ministry in the patronizing territory, [illegible] indicated that our work was [illegible]. Our policy has been, [illegible] continue to be, to express [illegible] convictions on all questions [illegible] the religious, educational, [illegible] industrial or political interests of our people. Without at all [illegible] perfection in judgment, it [illegible] us a great satisfaction [illegible] during the years past [illegible] critics have almost [illegible] from the ranks of the [illegible] enemies of our church [illegible] or from those whose [illegible] of that work has entitled [illegible] as a matter of charity to [illegible]

[illegible] brethren and friends, [illegible] preachers and people of [illegible] the great Southwest, [illegible] dedicate ourselves [illegible] of the Master afresh, [illegible] within our power [illegible] to the end that [illegible] may increase in [illegible]

Dr. J. H. Vincent remains at the head of the Sunday-school and Tract Societies, and will be assisted as before by Dr. J. M. Freeman.

BOOK AGENTS.

J. N. Phillips, Esq., and Dr. Sandford Hunt were returned to the Book Agencies at New York by a practically unanimous vote. Considerable interest centered on the election of the Western Agents. On the first ballot Dr. J. M. Walden was elected by a large vote. Rev. Wm. P. Stowe, of Wisconsin, was elected his associate. This brother brings to his important work a vigorous body, an active mind and considerable business experience. He will succeed. The retirement of Rev. Dr. Hitchcock from the Book Agency was a source of regret to many. For twenty years he has held this important work in hand, and has stood ready to champion the interests of every enterprise necessary to establish the publishing interests of the Church throughout the West and South. Dr. Walden, on behalf of himself and all the employes of the Western Concern, on last Thursday, presented Dr. Hitchcock with a splendid watch and chain, and a fine gold-headed cane.

EDITORS.

But two changes were made in the editors of the church papers.

Dr. Whedon remains at the head of the Quarterly Review. But few, if any, questions his right to that place while his vigor of mind remains. Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley takes the helm upon the editorial staff of the New York Advocate. He is from the pastorate, and so is fresh from the people. He is a man of large experience in church matters, a vigorous writer, and a clear and strong thinker. He speaks with great fluency and power. He will make, we predict, a successful editor. Dr. O. H. Warren, the scholarly and successful editor of the Northern Christian Advocate, was retained. So also was Dr. A. Wheeler, of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate, and Dr. F. A. Hoyt, of the Western, at Cincinnati, and Dr. Arthur Edwards, of the Northwestern, at Chicago, and Dr. B. St. J. Fry, of the Central, at St. Louis, and Dr. E. Q. Fuller, of the Methodist Advocate at Atlanta. Rev. Dr. B. F. Crary was elected editor of the California Advocate at San Francisco. The Advocate at Portland, Oregon, was discontinued, with the understanding that it would hereafter be published as a private enterprise.

OUR PAPERS IN THE SOUTH.

One of the sharpest contests of the Conference was over our papers in the South. The Book Committee presented majority and minority reports. The majority report recommended that both papers be continued with a subsidy of $2000 each, as during the past quadrennium. The minority report was as follows:

To the General Conference in Session.—We, members of your Committee on the Book Concern, desire to present a report dissenting from the action of the majority at a meeting of said committee, which voted to recommend the continuance of the two papers at the South on the same basis as they have been during the last four years, which is at a loss of sixteen thousand dollars.

The Methodist Advocate, published at Atlanta, Georgia, after twelve years' continuance, at a loss of $68,770.30, has now [illegible] 3,720 subscribers. It sank $10,296.34 of [this] amount during the past four years, [while] the increase in its subscription list was only [illegible].

That is, for two dollars (its subscription [price]) the Book Concern furnishes a paper [that] costs to produce it within a fraction of three dollars. In other words, it pays a bonus to each subscriber of about one dollar per annum for taking the paper.

[This] strange business transaction has been continued for twelve years, and without [any] promise of better results the majority report proposes to continue it.

The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, published at New Orleans, the commercial center of the South, is reported by [illegible] agents to have now a circulation of [illegible] four thousand copies. It has, by [illegible] of the last General Conference, [illegible] annual subsidy of two thousand [illegible] eight thousand dollars for [illegible] years which, we understand, [illegible] by the Book Concern.

[illegible] earnestly recommend as a [illegible] Methodist Advocate and the [illegible] CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be con[illegible] the paper be hereafter [illegible] place as they direct under [illegible] the book agents at New [illegible] they put all their other op[illegible] strictly paying basis as soon [illegible] and the General Conference to transfer Ames Church to the Austin or some continuous white conference, or else to create "Ames," the three German Churches, together with such white presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference or resident ministers connected with the New Orleans University, etc., as may so elect, into a White Mission Conference of Louisiana.

The matter was duly considered and the following action taken:

Resolved, That the Memorial from Ames Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, asking to be connected with the Austin Conference, etc., be returned to that church with the statement that in the judgment of the Committee on Boundaries, which has full power to act in the premises, the memorial cannot be entertained, because of the law expressed in Paragraphs 386 and 387 of the Discipline.

[Signed.] W. L. HARRIS, President.
J. S. BINGHAM, Secretary.

The paragraphs referred to make it the duty of any one proposing change in conference boundaries to first give notice to the annual conferences to be affected. The relations of Ames Church to the Louisiana Conference have, until very recently, been pleasant, and there in our judgment no just reasons why those relations should not be resumed and made perpetual. Whatever difficulties may exist because of prejudice in the congregation on account of the few colored people who may desire to worship with them, these difficulties cannot be removed or avoided by belonging to any other conference.

THE NEW ORLEANS GERMAN CHURCHES.

The petition of the New Orleans German Churches asking to be connected with the Southern German Conference has been granted, and hereafter the Southern German Conference will include the work among the Germans in Texas and Louisiana. J. C. H.

The Public School Teachers.

A subscription list is being circulated, headed as follows:

The failure of the State and City to pay the Public School Teachers of New Orleans the salaries to which they are justly entitled for valuable services faithfully rendered, has caused them great distress and actual suffering; and their condition is such as to call for some action in their behalf. In order, therefore, to relieve their immediate and pressing necessities, it is proposed to raise a fund by subscription, which shall be applied to the payment in full of all Certificates of Indebtedness held by the Teachers. The Certificates thus paid to be transferred to and divided among the subscribers in return for their contributions, who shall hold and collect them from the State or City, as the case may be. In other words, it is proposed to negotiate a loan without interest from the citizens, but secured by School Certificates as collaterals. We, the undersigned, do hereby subscribe the following amounts, in order to carry out the movement as above proposed:

What next!

The gutters are being cleaned by subscription. It is now proposed to pay the public school teachers by the same method. Meanwhile the city authorities go into the courts to assist the ruinous policy of repudiation by which this condition of affairs is brought about.

We deeply sympathize with the outraged teachers, and all other innocent parties upon whom the burden of repudiation must inevitably fall, but we cannot advise that assistance be tendered them from motives of public charity. It is simply to add insult to injury. Better close the schools. This subscription plan is delusory, and temporary in the relief it may afford. It is the duty of the city and State to maintain public schools, and provide the salaries of the teachers. When tax delinquents are forced to a settlement, and repudiators repudiated there will be money in the public treasury to pay school teachers. Until that time it is idle to ask citizens to doubly tax themselves to remedy the deficiencies of incompetent and blundering administration of public affairs.

The June number of the International Review, delayed until the 25th of May, includes Wilkie Collins' "Considerations of the Copyright Question." The table of contents is if anything more varied than usual. It presents nine essays from as many contributors in America, England and France. Professor Lounsbury, of Yale College, writes on the English Language in America. M. Auguste Langel, of Paris, sketches Chateaubriand. Robert P. Porter gives some valuable statistics as to "Our Goodly Heritage." Mr. Hamerton practically considers certain phases of art. The recent English elections receive learned attention, and there are articles in science and history.

The question of improving the lighting and ventilating of our churches and public halls is one that comes home to every citizen, wherever living, in city, town or village. The most recent appliance, and one that possesses greatest merit in its line, is the Frink Patent Reflector. This economizer and concentrator of light is now in use in thousands of public buildings. It saves its cost in any building in which it is in use in a short period. See advertisement.

GENERAL CONFERENCE PROCEEDINGS.

SIXTEENTH DAY—MAY 19.

Bishop Bowman presided. J. P. Newman, of New York, conducted religious exercises.

An invitation from the Young Men's Christian Association, of Cincinnati, to use their rooms, was accepted with thanks.

J. W. Hoyt, of New England, moved to take up the report of the Committee on Place and Entertainment of the General Conference.

It was, after some debate, indefinitely postponed, by a vote of 205 to 114.

The rules were suspended to receive the report of the committee on John Street Church, which was adopted, and trustees confirmed.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON JOHN STREET CHURCH

The Special Committee on John Street Church, in the city of New York, beg leave to report that in examining the papers of conveyance by which this old historic church, the first in American Methodism, was placed in the custody and under the supervision of the General Conference, we find the Legislature of New York State, March 24, 1866, passed an act creating a corporation through which this church could be legally placed under the supervision and in the care of the General Conference, providing in such act against the sale or mortgage of the church property without the consent of the General Conference and the order of the Supreme Court of the First Judicial District of the State. Your committee also find that the special corporation so created did, at the General Conference held at Chicago, May, 1868, petition said Conference to accept the care of said John Street Church, under the title of "The First Methodist Episcopal Centennial Church of the city of New York;" under the conditions of said special charter, and the further provision that the nomination of trustees should be made by the last quarterly-meeting conference, of said John Street Church, immediately preceding the session of the General Conference.

Your committee further find that the General Conferences of 1868, 1872 and 1876 did elect such trustees, and that the trustees so elected have protected the temporal interests of the Church to our satisfaction.

Our investigations have also convinced us that to make this old and honored Church efficient or even to preserve it from a forced enfeeblement, speedy and vigorous efforts should be made to secure such an endowment as will in part provide for the great work demanded on every side, but which the removal of its more wealthy members from the lower part of the city has destroyed the ability of the Church to do.

"Excepting Trinity and St. Paul's Episcopal Churches, the Methodists are the only denomination of Protestant Christians that sustain religious services in a church edifice in the large district lying South of of Chamber street, in a direct line from the North to the East rivers, containing a population of over thirty thousand souls, including more than six thousand children, between the ages of five and fifteen years."

In view of the vast opportunities for missionary work in the lower part of the city of New York, the actual removal of other Protestant Churches from this part of the city, and the certainty that the self-support of this Mother Church of Methodism is becoming impossible, by reason of the same facts which have driven Protestant Churches from this field, we recommend the pastor and officiary of John Street Church to immediately adopt some method for securing suitable endowment for the efficient working of Church agencies in saving men, and the perpetuity of the Church edifice through all of future time.

As the centennial of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church will occur in 1884, we suggest, without entering into details, that it may be feasible to interest the entire Methodism of our own country, as well as that of the mother country and the Canadas, perpetuating this old historic Church, planted more than a hundred years ago, to evidence on this continent the truth of John Wesley's maxim, a maxim we, his children, hold as our own: "The world is our parish." We also recommend the editors of our papers to render such aid as may be necessary to carry out the suggestions of this report.

Nominated by the quarterly conference of the First Methodist Episcopal Centennial Church of the City of New York (John Street), we approve and offer the following names for this General Conference to elect as trustees of said Church: Benjamin Weymouth, Edward Allen, John Bentley, Benjamin W. Tilton, William Collins, Jas. Wright, Walter B. Bailey, Frank E. Trowbridge, Reece B. Gwillim.

J. Evans, of Colorado, moved to proceed to the election of the editor of the Christian Apologist. Adopted.

L. Nippert, of Germany and Switzerland, nominated Wm. Nast, and this was seconded by C. B. Fisk, of New Jersey.

No other nomination being made, it was ordered that the secretary cast the ballot for William Nast, and he was declared elected.

Report No. 1 of the Committee on Itinerancy was adopted, as follows:

1. That having considered the proposition asking for the establishment of some regulations whereby the superabundance of young ministers in the East may be transferred to the West, they deem it impracticable to devise any system for such transfers as are contemplated in the paper, submitted to them, and think that such transfers must depend upon the exercise of the discretion of the bishops.

2. They have also considered the paper relating to requiring the consent of an annual conference to the transfer of preachers to its body. Such a regulation would be an infringement upon the constitutional authority of the bishops to make the appointments of all traveling preachers; and the committee deem it inexpedient to take any action upon the subject.

D. A. WHEDON, Chairman.

Report No. 2, of the same committee, was adopted as follows:

They have considered the question submitted to them respecting the number of preachers necessary for the proper organization of an annual conference; and they respectfully recommend that no annual conference, other than those in foreign mission fields, should be organized with less than fifteen effective members.

D. A. WHEDON, Chairman.

The Thanksgiving memorial of brethren in Norway was ordered to be printed in the Daily Advocate, and the secretary instructed to send a suitable reply.

The order of the day, the consecration of the bishops, was then taken up.

Bishop Scott took the chair.

The 815th hymn was announced, commencing:

"Draw near, O Son of God, draw near,
Us with thy flaming eye behold."

During the singing of this hymn the board of bishops accompanied by the candidates and eight elders came in procession upon the platform, arranging themselves on either side, with the four bishops elect in the center, facing the congregation.

Bishop Bowman read the collect, commencing:

"Almighty God who by thy Son Jesus Christ," etc., while all remained standing.

W. H. Olin, of Wyoming, read the "epistle," as found in Acts xx, 17-35.

L. Hitchcock, of Rock River, read the "Gospel," from St. John xxi, 15-17.

A. K. Sanford, of New York, and J. M. Reid, of Michigan, presented bishop elect H. W. Warren.

Wm. Butler, of New England, and W. J. Paxson, of Philadelphia, presented bishop elect C. D. Foss.

Wm. Nast, of Central German, and J. N. Fitzgerald, of Newark, presented bishop elect J. F. Hurst.

G. W. Woodruff, of New York East, and O. H. Warren, of Central New York, presented bishop elect E. O. Haven.

Bishop W. L. Harris called the congregation to prayer, after which Bishop Foster offered the prayer of consecration.

Bishop Simpson presented the usual disciplinary questions, appropriate to consecrations of bishops, which were distinctly answered by the candidates.

Bishop Wiley said it was the custom to invite all the congregation to join with them in silent prayer, and after a few moments thus spent the bishop offered the form of prayer laid down.

Then "Veni Creator Spiritus" was repeated in alternate unison, Bishop Merrill leading, and the bishops and ordaining elders facing the candidates, all kneeling, after which Bishop Andrews offered the appropriate prayer, and all rose to their feet except the candidates, who remained kneeling.

Bishops Scott, Simpson and Bowman, together with Wm. Butler and W. J. Paxson, laid their hands upon the head of Bishop-elect H. W. Warren, and Bishop Simpson read the consecration service.

Bishops Scott, Harris and Foster, together with A. K. Sanford and J. M. Reid, laid their hands upon the head of Bishop-elect C. D. Foss, and Bishop Harris read the consecration service.

Bishops Scott, Wiley and Merrill, together with Wm. Nast and J. N. Fitzgerald, laid their hands upon the head of Bishop-elect J. F. Hurst, and Bishop Wiley read the consecration service.

Bishops Scott, Andrews and Peck, together with G. W. Woodruff and O. H. Warren, laid their hands upon the head of Bishop-elect E. O. Haven, and Bishop Andrews read the consecration service.

Bishop Foster presented the Scriptures, and administered the charge to Bishop H. W. Warren; Bishop Bowman to Bishop C. D. Foss; Bishop Merrill to Bishop J. F. Hurst; and Bishop Peck to Bishop E. O. Haven.

Bishop Peck read the closing prayer.

The newly-elected bishops then arose and were presented with their credentials by Bishop Harris.

The doxology was sung and the service concluded with the benediction by Bishop Scott.

At the close of the services many ladies and gentlemen friends of the new bishops came upon the platform to offer their congratulations.

SEVENTEENTH DAY—MAY 20.

Bishop Harris presided. W. W. Evans, of Central Pennsylvania, conducted the devotional exercises.

J. M. Reid, of Michigan, moved that the matter of nomination and appointment of the Boards of our Benevolent Societies be attended to, and the rules being suspended, on his motion, the bishops were requested to nominate the boards specified.

J. P. Newman, of New York, moved the suspension of the rules, to admit Report No. 1, of the Freedmen's Aid Committee. Rules were suspended and report read:

Your Committee on Freedmen's Aid and Southern Work respectfully report:

1. That in its judgment the present organization of the Freedmen's Aid Society should remain unchanged.

2. That under the phrase "and others," of article 2, in the Constitution of the Freedmen's Aid Society, we see the way clear to aid the schools which have been established by our Church in the Southern States, among the white people, and hereby ask the General Conference to recommend to the board of managers of the society to give such aid to these schools during the next quadrennium as can be done without embarrassment to the schools among the freedmen. Signed,

J. P. NEWMAN, Chairman.
J. C. HARTZELL, Secretary.

J. P. Newman said: This report is in the interest of schools among the white people of the South. After an earnest discussion the committee concluded that the Freedmen's Aid Society should remain as it is, and then, interpreting the clause in the second article, "and others," as including the white people in the South, that is, under our ecclesiastical jurisdiction, call upon the General Conference to sanction that interpretation, so that a portion of the funds of the Freedmen's Aid Society might be appropriated for schools among white people. And it seems to me, Mr. Chairman, as it appeared to the members of the committee, that this is a question of vital importance to our work there. And, by this interpretation, we can sanction the action of the secretary, and also of the board of managers; and, while we may not diverge, yet we may constitutionally apply the funds necessary for this important object.

J. F. Spence, of Holston Conference: I desire to substitute for the second clause of the report the following:

Resolved, That in accordance with the spirit and letter of Article II, of the Constitution of the Freedmen's Aid Society, the whites of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South shall hereafter have recognition before the Church.

Resolved, That in presenting to our various congregations the educational interests in the South, the white and colored work shall be placed on a like basis, and twenty-five per cent. of the money so raised shall be appropriated (under the direction of the board) to the whites.

J. F. Spence said that during twelve years the whites had been ruled out. We want to know whether we are recognized or not. The Freedmen's Aid Society has given nearly a million of dollars for the educational work of the colored people in the South—scarcely anything for the whites. We have labored under the same difficulties of poverty and prejudice through all that Southland. Now the question is, can the Methodist Episcopal Church afford to legislate on the class line? If so we desire to know it. All we ask is (when money is raised by the Churches during the next quadrennium) for the whites and colored to share alike. We do not ask much, but we desire it to be distinctly said whether we can have anything. In that report there is nothing settled. If a certain amount be raised by the Churches, and that amount should not be sufficient to meet the wants of freedmen, we must be cut down. Money raised, it may be for the white work, would be turned over to that side of the question where it was not intended. And we cannot go before the Churches and raise money under false pretenses. All we ask to-day is that we be recognized by the General Conference, and that portion of the constitution be so construed or interpreted that there be no mistake, no turning aside, and with that our people will be perfectly satisfied. I hope the General Conference will agree in this matter.

J. Lanahan, of Baltimore, said: I think, Mr. Chairman, that the interpretation put on the constitution of the Freedmen's Aid Society is entirely incorrect. Very evidently the words 'and others" were intended to apply to persons who were not freedmen, who had not been in slavery, colored people. The Freedmen's Aid Society is a specialty in the Church. The very moment you introduce this white element into it you kill it. I move to lay that paper on the table.

The vote being taken, the substitute was laid on the table.

E. Q. Fuller, of Georgia, spoke in favor of the report that recognizes our work in the South among the white people. He said: "I believe that it is entirely consistent with the work of the Freedmen's Aid Society to look after these interests as well as the others. I believe money can be raised among our friends to carry on this work, and I believe the money, when raised, can be administered by the Freedmen's Aid Society with economy and success. I believe the best thing for the Freedmen's Aid Society itself is to keep these interests in its hands. The secretary of the Society knows the entire field. He is in sympathy with our work in this direction as well as the other. The Freedmen's Aid Society, as known by that name, ought to reach out its hands in that direction. It should come to be, before many years have passed, the educational society of our Church in the South. I has a tendency to draw these two people into harmony more and more. I believe that the interests of the Society itself, and the interests of the colored people in our Church will be promoted by the adoption of this report, and acting in harmony therewith."

H. W. Key, of Tennessee, said: Can the Methodist Episcopal Church afford to cherish caste, and organize two schools in the same territory to educate the members of the Church? I say it will drive the two people apart. We who are down there understand this thing and know all about it. I know that there has been money collected in the North, with the understanding that it should be given to white and colored schools together, and there has never been a colored student in the schools as yet. I know that. The Freedmen's Aid Society has a specific work, and that is the education of the colored people of the South. I have talked with those who have given money in the North, and they say they have given it for the freedmen. Some of them are now within the sound of my voice. I have no objection to the whites of the South being educated, but don't do it at our expense. [Laughter and applause.] We have no prejudice. Central Tennessee College stands with her doors open, and she will admit any class. White men may come there. White boys have been in Central Tennessee College, and white girls, too. Must we set up this objection and keep up this prejudice? The Methodist Episcopal Church is not ready to do that. I do not believe the Methodist Episcopal Church will foster prejudice and bull-dozing. If the secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society can do anything for the whites, we have no objection, but we do not think the Freedmen's Aid Society gives him that right. We believe the money is collected for the freedmen. When you put another car on the train you stop the train. Now, Mr. President, we, down there, say the Freedmen's Aid Society has done a noble work. We say that nine-tenths of the people in the North have given their money for that society. And must we, at this late hour, attach something else, and with false colors collect it for the poor whites of the South? They got down there because they went down. We were forced down. Give us fifty years and we will take our chances with the other educational societies of Church. Now, Mr. President, we say you may help the whites of the South, but do not retrench on us. I believe that if every nine men out of ten of the founders of the Freedmen's Aid Society could speak on this floor to-day, and if ninety-nine out of every hundred of the people of the North could speak on this floor to day, they would say, "We organized this society for the specific purpose of helping these people that were down-trodden by our government." And when you go to present the collection of the Freedmen's Aid Society to the people of the North they will say, "If you have taken up the whites of the South we don't propose to give our money for it." I am satisfied that nine-tenths of our innocent people in the North would say they did not want to foster caste. Our parish is the world, with no distinction. I am proud of a Church with such a record as the Methodist Episcopal Church. And must we put a distinction and organize other schools in the same territory? Must we make such a record as that here to-day? I say we are not ready to do it, and I believe I am backed up by this General Conference in the assertion.

O. H. Warren, of Central New York, said: The question is, shall we do anything for the white people of the South, and if we do, through the instrumentality of what society shall we do it? Shall we do it through the Freedmen's Aid Society, or what society? It is the instrument in the hands of the Methodist Episcopal Church to-day for doing this work. Now we do not ask that the work among the freedmen shall be crippled. We do not ask that their efforts shall be crippled or hindered in their operation or their efficiency, but we do ask that a beginning be made among the white people of the South. Another thing we do not ask: We do not ask that schools for the whites be established side with the schools for the blacks. I do not say that even that might not be done, for there is prejudice against color in this wide world, and we are not legislating here on the basis of an ideal perfection, and we are not going to wait for these whites to cry to us until that prejudice has died away. That education will be most fatal to the color prejudice on caste. I say we are not asking that schools for the whites be established side by side with schools for the blacks. There are large sections of the country where there are poor whites and scarcely any blacks. And what are we going to do in this state of facts? I hope this General Conference will not refuse to pass something like that before us. I am sorry that we did not specify the amount in the resolution, but let us at least pass this majority report and begin our work in the South.

On motion of W. Lawrence, of Central Ohio, the order of the day was taken up, the Report No. 3, of the Committee on the Episcopacy, recommending the election of a colored bishop. The report was read.

J. S. Smart, of Detroit, moved the adoption of the report.

A. Wheeler, of Erie, presented the minority report of the Committee on Episcopacy, which was read as follows:

A portion of your Committee on Episcopacy differing widely from the majority, both as to the necessity and expediency of electing a colored bishop at the present time, feel constrained to express our dissent by filing a minority report. After listening attentively to prolonged discussions upon the subject, and giving due weight to the arguments urged with great warmth in its favor, and to full representations of the state of our religious work among the colored people of the South, representations made by themselves as well as by their white colaborers, we are convinced that a sound policy forbids the adoption of the recommendation of the majority; therefore,

Resolved, That we deem it inexpedient to elect any more bishops at this General Conference.

And twenty-seven others.

J. S. Smart, of Detroit, said: In welcoming to this city, after citing the infamous resolutions passed by the General Conference of 1836, censuring the noble men who dared to raise their voices in behalf of the slave, Bishop Wiley eloquently exclaimed: "How has all this changed, as to-day we meet in the same city, with every vestige of slavery swept from our whole land, every sentiment of pro-slaveryism swept from our Church, two hundred thousand bondmen, and the sons and daughters of bondmen, gathered into our Church and thirty of their own representatives assembled with us, and with equal rights and powers to deliberate with us on the best interests of that Church that has had so large a share in their emancipation and uplifting." This is a grand climax, sir, which lacks but a single element to make it perfect, namely: And now with open arms we welcome to this platform and to our episcopacy to share our councils and our work as a peer with us forever one of the noble sons of this long oppressed and despised race. The Methodist Episcopal Church has never been a gainer by resisting the advancement of the colored man, and let me tell you that if to-day we grant this people a bishop of their own race it will not only be a blessing to them, but will meet with the approbation of the civilized world. Thousands and millions of benevolent Christians in this and other lands whose hearts have warmed toward this race, and whose prayers are still uplifted, and whose benefactions are poured out in their behalf, will rally to us as never before.

We believe in colored bishops. We even suspended our Restrictive Rules to make one for Liberia. We never doubt that the bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal Church are true apostolic bishops. Even the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, believes in colored bishops. The Southern bishops who have been introduced to this Conference and have shared this platform with our Scotts and Simpsons, have laid their hands on the heads of colored men to consecrate them to the office of a bishop. Shall our bishops be outdone in this line by those of the Southern Church? They all hold that the colored bishops of the South are as truly bishops in the Church of Jesus Christ as themselves. We must not only do as much as the Southern Church has done, but we must do more. We are in a position to do more. We have poured out our treasure like water to give them schools and churches. We have poured out our blood to emancipate and enfranchise them. We have received them into our Church and given them a seat in all our councils, except in that of the episcopacy. They sit by our side as our peers. If good enough to sit with us they are good enough to sit with bishops. Putting them in this position will put us in the lead of all other Churches as the friends of this race.

This will open a sublime mission to us in the South whose conquests will never end. This will give us more influence over the race than any other Church can ever obtain until it comes to our ground. But we are asked, Have we the man for the place? We think we have many. It would be strange if we had not. The Southern Church found men among their people whom they considered fit to be bishops immediately after the war, and the men they ordained have not dishonored their judgment. Who doubts that we have men as good as they? We do not claim that we have colored men equal to the most able of our present bishops. But we do claim that, all things considered, we have colored men better adapted to minister to their own race than any white man.

It will be said that a colored bishop can not preside in white conferences. Why should he, unless the whole conference desire him? Some white conferences, we are told, are already prepared to invite him. But there are fourteen colored conferences, more than any one bishop ought to superintend. Elect a colored bishop, give him five conferences a year to attend among his own people in the South, attending district conferences, dedications, college commencements, and other great occasions. Let him with our other bishops attend the anniversaries of our great benevolent associations, and if any time is left let him come with our Northern conferences, not to preside, unless invited, but to plead for his race in behalf of the Freedmen's Aid, Church Extension, and Missionary Societies. And with all due deference to the rest, I undertake to say he would be the most useful member of the board. With this arrangement he would attend the colored conferences about one-third of the time, and our other bishops about two-thirds. This certainly would give sufficient oversight to the general board. But it is urged if he is a general [illegible]

[illegible] he would be eligible [illegible] conference, and would be [illegible] himself in where he was not wanted. Our bishops are all general superintendents, and they do not attend all conferences. Bishops Thomson and Kingsley and Haven and Andrews and Peck have never attended the Detroit Conference. It is impossible for any one bishop to attend all the conferences in an ordinary lifetime. They divide the work among themselves, and give to each the conferences which they deem best for them. Our bishops are wise and discreet men, and if we elect a colored bishop, there will be twelve white and one colored in the board. Is it feared that the one will outvote the twelve in fixing their appointments? If not, it will be perfectly safe to leave this matter with them. I am willing frankly to say that while the colored member of this board will be every inch a bishop, eligible to any place, yet practically he will doubtless be a colored bishop for the colored people, and as such I am prepared to vote for him.

A. Wheeler, of Erie, said: I suppose that there is no man on this floor that will for one moment question the closing utterance of Dr. Smart. He said this was one of the most important questions that had, or would, come before the General Conference. If any man questions [illegible] you must go to find him outside of the minority. We have felt from the commencement that it was an important question, and I think I express the feeling of every member of the minority when I say that it was with great reluctance that we determined to present any minority report at all, and that we have felt disposed, so far as expe[illegible] and the law of the Church would allow, to accommodate the wishes of the colored people of the [illegible]. I will read the two following resolutions, to show this, that [illegible] presented to the Committee on Episcopacy. I will give the two [illegible]:

Resolved, That we recommend the election of a bishop of African descent for Liberia [illegible] by the law of the [illegible] have authority to preside [illegible] conferences elsewhere as shall [illegible] with all the prerogatives [illegible] the duties of his office. [illegible] we recommend such a [illegible] Restrictive Rules as will [illegible] in the above resolution.

[illegible] we were disposed to [illegible] could. We have some [illegible] which we think to be [illegible] unanswerable against [illegible] of the major[illegible] that we have already [illegible] as the [illegible]. There was a very [illegible] was in favor of [illegible]. A majority [illegible], and four will an[illegible] ship as well [illegible]. Why should another [illegible] has occurred [illegible]. Has any one of the [illegible] superannuated? [illegible] of the Church [illegible] since that day? [illegible] occurred since [illegible] has I am not [illegible]. If on yesterday [illegible] was enough, [illegible] of five [illegible]

[illegible] is the [illegible] irregu[illegible] come to [illegible] of the [illegible] we [illegible] law and [illegible] a man [illegible] the [illegible] elected by ballot. You cannot do it in any other way, except by the despotism of a majority. And I trust no one desires to practice that here. You must do it by ballot. But can you compel me to vote from the way I desire? Suppose you take a ballot, I can vote in spite of that as I choose, and so can you; and I will, and so will you. You cannot disfranchise me by rule, or resolution, or any other way. I come to represent a constituency, and I have a right to vote, and there is no power in the General Conference to dispossess me of my prerogative.

But to come again upon practical ground. Says Dr. Smart, they want a man to preside over them. This is what they repudiate—they want a man to go over the whole territory. But, says Dr. Smart, in the practical working of it he will go to the colored conferences of the South. I venture to say that will not be the practical working of it. Those conferences are where they demand skillful guides. They demand the presence of the most experienced members of the Board of Bishops, and those bishops would be derelict to their duty if they did not send their most experienced member, and should send one not used to preside. The practical working will be that the colored men will go to the conferences at the North, while the experienced men will go to the conferences at the South.

Can any one say these colored men are not treated right? Contrast their claim with the Germans, if you please. For forty long years they have been laboring with us, under the disadvantages of a foreign tongue, but their modesty has been such that they have never come to this body and asked for a bishop. They do not seek to determine who shall be their bishops. They will receive any of you, and rejoice at your coming, and if they need to have an interpreter, because the bishop does not understand their language, they will get an interpreter, and transact their business under all the disadvantages of that fact. And four years from now they will not come up and ask a man to be made bishop, that is a German, because he is a German, but because he is a man, and qualified for his work. And any other principle of electing bishops in our Church will be so revolutionary that [illegible] at last in the destruction of our economy.

Have these men lacked for oversight and supervision? They have answered, when their conferences have been called in the committee on Episcopacy, and the question was asked if there were any complaints. They have all answered with one voice, "Not any; we have received the oversight we need, and the supervision that was necessary." They have had care. They have been fostered by the Methodist Episcopal Church as no other people on the face of the earth has ever been fostered, and now I think it is ungracious for them to make this demand.

J. B. Wentworth, of Genesee, said: To try to force the election of a colored bishop will not be best, either for you or the Church. And the election of one at this Conference would be a forced affair. You have no candidate whom you yourselves can agree upon, or whom you regard as pre-eminently fitted for this office. Else why, at the instigation of your Circassian friends, to whom I have before alluded, was it deemed necessary to appoint a committee to search the streets with a lighted candle by daylight to hunt up a candidate? And the election of an unsuitable candidate, simply because of his color, would, under present circumstances, be the most disastrous "recognition" you could possibly receive at our hands. It would serve to revive the prejudice against [illegible] race, once so strong among [illegible] that which is now, happily, fast [illegible] out in every section of our [illegible]. It would serve to stir up [illegible] and denunciation, and [illegible] throughout our now [illegible], and interrupt [illegible] feeling and [illegible] in behalf of your [illegible]. Nay, my colored [illegible], the opportune moment has not yet arrived for clothing [illegible] member with the [illegible] of the episcopacy. Do [illegible] because you do not [illegible] of the lad[illegible]. But be ye [illegible] and always [illegible] of the Lord, [illegible] come, at [illegible] progress, [illegible] prime[illegible] than we can now perceive. I, as one man, ask the world what the old Church has done for the colored people, and what is it doing now? I say that it is doing more to lift them up than any other Church that I know of in the land; and now, just because the General Conference don't think, in its godly judgment, that they ought to have a bishop of African descent, the whole world is up in arms about it; and I would like to know what has this to do with the old Church. My dear brethren and friends, as a member of the Committee on Episcopacy, I did all that I could to elect a man of my race; but failing to do so, then I ask, in the name of the great Head of the Church, ought not this to satisfy us as a body of Christian ministers? Dear brethren, if the old Church had not led the way, what would have become of us? When we were without schools she brought them to us; when we were without preachers she sent them to us; when we were without churches she built them for us. May I ask you to turn your attention to the Freedmen's Aid Society, and behold what she is now doing? May I pause a moment and ask you to look at the Missionary Society of the old Church, and see what she is now doing? They meet on the 10th of November of each year, and give us many thousands of dollars to aid the poor. I have made it my business to see many of the brethren, and said to them if this General Conference fails to give us a man of color, I think that the Conference knows best what to do, and I will be satisfied. It is time enough for us to secure our desire at the end of the next four years.

Graham Bell, of Louisiana, said: This is something like a wheel, and Bro. Louis is one of the cogs that has dropped out, and that irregularity has jostled my speech out of place. I am reminded of that part of the Scripture uttered by the blessed Jesus when he said, "Father, I have kept all that thou hast given me, but the son of perdition:" I've lost him. I do not ask the privilege of speaking before you as a man of African descent, but I shall change the term and prefer to speak as a freedman. It is true that I was taught long ago that when a man to whom the Lord, the Christ of power, had come with a message, and then opened his ears, that message should be heard. In the year 1866 the Churches in the South, i. e., the Methodist Episcopal in the southern part of our country, were very weak. But they have come up in thirteen years to be quite strong. You say that you will give us a man if we will name him, a man of the right kind and filled with the Holy Ghost.

Now you will remember when Abraham took his son Isaac and carried him up the mount, the son said: "Here is the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for the sacrifice?" So we say, if you will elect by your ballot a man for us we will present the sacrifice. It is easy to speak with the tongue of an angel here on this floor, it is very easy; but in the South, where the work is hard, all that talk is "only as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal." It would not last for a day, and would amount to nothing there. He would have to change, not only his heart, but his feet would be changed; and he would not talk as he does here, nor walk as he does here, but would have to shape his course very differently. I do not want a bishop just to say that we have got one, but I stand in sympathy with the Church. We in the far South have to run by faith. We have enjoyed a great deal from the Church, and she has been good to us with her help in schools and in money, and my great desire is to save our membership, and instead of having 150,000, we think that with a bishop we can have 500,000. It has been said that we want him only because he is a black man. This is not so, but in the South we have every weapon to carry forward the Methodist Church with but the main lever, and that is what we are trying to get to-day. The African, or colored, Church of America has taught this lesson to us, that the time will come, and is almost here now, when the Church shall give us a black bishop, as the Church South has given to their black people. We want this weapon in order to turn the tide against our enemies, who boast to us that they have a bishop of their own color.

Mr. President, I came here with my speech all prepared and in my pocket; but I am entirely thrown off my guard and confused by the fact that one of our number on this floor has turned away from us and gone to the other side.

J. Lanahan, of Baltimore, said: In the year 1844 when a demand [illegible] for a Methodist Episcopal [illegible] was then holding slaves [illegible] continued, and [illegible] that five or six [illegible] the public [illegible] who are now in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, would leave unless their wish was gratified, the five or six hundred thousand were allowed to depart rather than have a slave-holding bishop. The Methodist Episcopal Church has been the friend of the colored man from the days of its organization down to the present. It has spent millions of her money in the South, advancing the interests of the colored race, and now, when they are scarcely on their feet, and while they are yet in their infancy, they come here and under some influence which I will not attempt to describe, demand one of the highest offices of the Church. And we are told if that demand is not granted they will leave. I doubt whether the Church which refused to concede to the demand of 1844, will make the concession demanded now. These friends should learn from the past that when a demand is made with a threat, the demand is not likely to be granted. And if there be another way or Church which the colored members prefer, it is their right to seek it. They came into a Church where there was no colored bishop, voluntarily, and they are not now required to remain in it longer than they desire. One of the influential advocates of this measure said to me: "I want them to get a colored bishop." I request these colored delegates to listen, and if it were proper I would give the speaker's name. I repeat what one of the advocates of this measure said: "I am in favor of a colored bishop, for that will be the first step to getting rid of them." Do you understand that? I know what belongs to this place. I am not going to violate the rules of this place, but I am responsible for the statement. Mr. President, there are twenty men on this floor who desire to be heard. We canvassed this question before we came. We have canvassed it in private and social intercourse. We have canvassed it in committee. We have canvassed it this morning in debate, and I was prepared to vote before I heard the discussion, and I think this body is prepared; therefore I move the indefinite postponement of the whole question.

On motion the ayes and nays were called for. This motion was carried by a vote of 229 yeas to 141 nays.

Louisiana Republicans.

The State Republican Convention met on the 24th inst., at Exposition Hall, at 12 m. It was called to order by A. J. Dumont, chairman of the State Central Committee, who directed Secretary Vigers to read the call. A discussion on points of order ensued, and before the secretary could read the call a motion was made that Delegate Demas should be temporary chairman.

A contest between the friends of Dumont and Demas indicative of the presidential preferences of delegates terminated in the withdrawal of almost all Grant delegates to another room in the building.

Those who remained came to order, a committee of credentials was appointed, a roll submitted by it was called, and permanent organization was effected, with ex-Governor Warmoth as President.

A committee to select delegates to the Chicago Convention was appointed by the President, of which George Williamson, of Shreveport, was chairman. Gen. W. L. McMillen was chairman of the committee on resolutions.

The following delegates and alternates were chosen:

H. C. Warmoth, James Lewis, H. T. Ludeling, A. J. Dumont, Wm. P. Kellogg, Richard Simms, A. S. Badger, Samuel Wakefield, A. H. Leonard, Don. A. Pardee, Wm. Harper, J. S. Matthews, W. L. McMillen, David Young, J. Henri Burch, Jack Wharton. Alternates—Geo. T. Ruby, C. H. Cripps, Pierre Landry, Geo. L. Norton, R. O. Herbert, Chas. Gordon, J. P. Coates, Morris Marks, Raford Blount, J. A. Gla, R. V. Barranco, Noah Nelby, R. H. Lamar, John W. Cook, E. Gant, J. D. Kennedy.

In was said that seven of the delegates were for Sherman, seven for Grant, one for Blaine, and one "uncertain."

A platform was reported and adopted.

President Warmoth was authorized to appoint presidential electors and a State Central Committee. He named A. J. Dumont as chairman of the State Committee.

The Grant division of the party were called to order by Hon. Henry Demas, who ordered the call of the roll by George W. Drury, secretary.

The chairman announced that thirty-five parishes and twelve wards of New Orleans had responded, representing 115 delegates out of the 185 on the original roll, and that all contestants had been called.

L. A. Martinet was appointed chairman of committee on credentials and ex-Governor Hahn chairman on permanent organization. J. R. G. Pitkin was appointed chairman of committee on resolutions.

The convention was permanently organized with Judge Taylor Beattie as President.

The resolutions reported by the committee to select delegates to the Chicago Convention reported, through Governor Hahn, the following names, unanimously adopted:

At Large—Taylor Beattie, P. B. S. Pinchback, T. T. Allain, W. P. Kellogg.
Congressional District Delegates—Cyrus Bussey, J. R. G. Pitkin, Dr. H. A. Duperrier, J. R. Beckwith, A. A. Maurice, J. S. Davison, Dr. B. Y. Kenney, Octave Ray, Gov. Hawkins, Thos. A. Cage, Henry Demas, J. B. Gaudet.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Rev. Reason Ennis is now living in New Orleans. He reports that many colored families have left the vicinity of Springfield, and the congregation is about broken up by "regulator."

—Rev. B. L. Nevils writes us from Kosciusko, Miss., that his wife has been placed in jail, and is soon to be placed in an asylum for the insane. Her trouble was of four or five years duration.

Day of Prayer.

In June three Conventions will assemble—one in Cleveland, Ohio, (the National Prohibition Convention), on the 17th inst., one in Chicago, and one in Cincinnati—for the purpose of nominating candidates for the Presidency of the United States.

The Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, deeply realizing the influence possessed by the Chief Magistrate of the Nation and the power of his example, calls upon the Woman's Christian Temperance Unions of the land to unite in prayer, on Tuesday, the first of June, for the nominees of these Conventions.

Let us pray God to direct these nominations, and that he will cause Temperance sentiment to increase and spread so rapidly that ere many years the office of President shall be filled by one fully committed to prohibitory principles.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

June 6, 1880.—THE CRUCIFIXION.
SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 27: 35-50.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree."—Pet. 2: 24.
TOPIC.—The Savior's Crucifixion.
(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The Connection.—The trial of Christ was a farce. It was hurried with indecent haste to a conclusion, for fear that the unresisting Savior might be rescued by the people. He was tried, condemned and executed before the populace fairly knew what was going on. He was adjudged guilty, before the Sanhedrin, of blasphemy; but, because such a charge would have had no penal weight before Pilate, he was accused before him of sedition, and though declared innocent by his judge, nevertheless was given over to the demands of his infuriated persecutors to be crucified. Never was justice more of a mockery.

With impatient, wolfish appetite for his blood, his persecutors, beginning a little after mid-night, had hurried the Savior from one tribunal to another, until, at last, they had compelled a sentence from an unwilling judge, and had been permitted to lead him forth as a lamb to the slaughter. And, all the while, as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so opened he not his mouth. But though in their vindictive malice they thus made haste, yet they were none too soon—for when they led him forth, it was just the hour of the morning sacrifice! His sacrifice began just at the time when the morning offering was laid upon the altar, and his death took place at the time for the offering of the evening sacrifice. He refused to partake of the stupefying drink, that always was offered to those about to suffer this horrible death. So great were the tortures of crucifixion, that men who were able often bought with large bribes the privilege of being executed some other way. No vital organ directly was touched. The nails passed through the feet and the hands, and the depending of the weight of the body upon these frail and wounded members was the only assault upon the citadel of life. Its great cruelty consisted in its remote beginnings and in its slow approach to the centers of existence. His first word of agony was an appeal for his murderers: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." His outer garments were easily divided among the soldier executioners, whose perquisites they were, but the inner garment or tunic, John tells us, was without seam, and, hence, characteristically of their class, this they gambled for. God had promised to the Jews a King who should sit upon the throne of his father David. The title derisively was placed above his head as a stigma upon the Jews. Seeing it there, the chief priests tried to get Pilate to write in its stead: "He said I am King of the Jews." He gave the surly answer: "What I have written I have written." And thus, though it was in mockery, Christ died with his rightful title over his head. Placing him between two thieves, or robbers rather was done with the intention of adding even to the shame of the cross. On every side, nothing but scoffing the most malignant assailed his ears. He had the consolation of forgiving the penitent robber and of assuring him that that day he should be with him in Paradise, and he had the satisfaction of placing his mother in charge of the loved disciple whom he knew would be to her as a son. From noon until three o'clock there was darkness "over all the land." The mockery of the Jews was interrupted by three hours of gloom and consternation. His death took place just at the hour of the evening sacrifice. It was marked by the rending of the veil of the temple—from the top to the bottom—a sign that the way into the holy of holies now was made open to all. Rocks were rent and the dead were raised—symbols of the way that his own tomb should be opened and of his resurrection therefrom. And, at the same time, the darkness was lifted—the Savior died in unclouded light.

Intoxicating liquors produce diarrhœa or constipation and a torpid condition of the liver, resulting in general debility and inertness of mind. To overcome this prostration, appeal is again made to the liquor as a stimulant, only to increase the gastric disturbance. The judicious application of such a tonic as Simmons Liver Regulator would strike at the very root of the evil by correcting the condition of the liver, exciting the bowels to action, or correcting their looseness, stimulating the kidneys and removing the feeling of general depression and with it the craving for liquor.

"This is to certify that I suffered with the Gastritis for four months, and could not be relieved until I procured Dr. Simmons Liver Regulator, and was entirely cured in a short time. "E. T. THORNTON,

PREVENT Yellow Fever

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventative. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventative and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price [illegible]

DR HARTER'S IRON TONIC

W. P. HILL, Crockett Station, Tenn., writes: "DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC has done wonders here. A lady who had been doctored nearly to death for several years, has been cured of Debility and Great Prostration by the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, which raised her from her bed, where she had been lying for many months."

Dr. Harter:—Mr. James Brown of our county, has requested us to tender you his grateful acknowledgments for the great benefits his wife received from the use of your IRON TONIC. He tells us that, after having paid three or four hundred dollars doctors' bills, two bottles of your IRON TONIC did her more good than all other medicines she ever used. She was troubled with Derangement of the Womb, Whites, etc., from which she is much relieved.

Yellow Fever.

The National Board of Health,

IN THEIR PUBLISHED REPORT, SAY THE CAUSE OF THIS DISEASE IS

BLOOD POISONING,

So poisoned by breathing the vitiated atmosphere of malarial and infected districts.

All know the Kidneys and Liver are the cleansers of the blood, and that if these organs are kept in a healthy condition, Yellow Fever can, and will, be averted.

That these organs can be kept free from disease, and at all times in condition to well and faithfully perform their duties, is a matter beyond dispute, cavil or argument, and equally it is true, that a free use of

Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure,

in connection with

Warner's Safe Pills,

will actually compel these same organs to perform their allotted functions, and hence as a cleanser of the blood, and a preventive to yellow fever, we have no hesitation in offering it to the public.

MUSTARD PAPER.

YELLOW FEVER.

That this terrible disease has for years held a despotic sway, at certain seasons of the year, in portions of our own fair land, and in other countries, is known by each and every one. As well known is it, that a cure, or even a preventive, has not been heretofore discovered.

Within the past twelve months our National Government has taken hold of the subject, have instituted a Commission composed of men high in the knowledge of sanitary matters and medicine, and have given them full power to devise and institute measures to prevent its recurrence. In their published report, they speak in detail of its action upon a patient after the fever is set in, and yet have little to say of the origin and reason for the existence of so fatal a disease, and still less of the way to prevent it. They say that "In the pathology of Yellow Fever, it has been found by Dr. Blair, and since verified by other observers, that the blood, the breath, vomited matter (at certain periods of the disease) are marked by alkaline, owing to an excess of 'volatile alkali.'" That albumen was found in the urine; that gastric irritation, and coagulation of blood was prevalent. While this "National Board of Health" tells us of the condition of the afflicted one, when down with the fever, they make no suggestions as to a preventive. Seemingly, it is not inappropriate at this time to supplement their report by asserting that which is known to every intelligent man and woman, that the reason for this fearful scourge is neither more nor less than the malarial poison that emanates from low marshy lands—whether adjacent to salt or fresh water—especially in certain stages of the drying process, under a hot sun; as well are these familiar with the fact, that uncleaned cess-pools, insufficient drainage, uncared filth of any kind or character, are generators of this same death-dealing miasma. Observations of centuries has made every person, blessed with the least faculty of discernment, acquainted with the effect of this subtle malarial poison. Each and all know that Typhus and Intermittent Fevers are the lesser natural sequences of an inhalation of this poisonous exhalation, and that Yellow Fever is the greater.

It is admitted and definitely understood that malaria poison is not cognizable by the senses, nor can it be detected by chemical tests. It is known only by its effects upon the system. Alkali in the blood (as made mention of by the National Board of Health,) is a necessary ingredient in maintaining the same in a healthy condition. When an unusually large quantity is present, a diseased condition of the vital fluid is apparent. That this acid is permitted to be in excess is because of an inefficient action of the kidney and liver, and when so in excess, induces inflammation, and brings on a fever of some sort. Yellow Fever is the one secured in places where malaria is present. After a careful reading and study of the Report of the National Board of Health, no other conclusion can be drawn than that if the blood is kept in a healthy condition, the birth, growth and spread of yellow fever is materially lessened, if not actually prevented. It is a matter understood by all and every one, that if the kidney and liver—the organs that filter and cleanse the blood—are kept in a wholesome and sound condition, this same vital fluid will ever be clear from all impurities. That these organs, the kidney and liver, can be kept free from disease, and at all times in condition to well and faithfully perform their duties, is a matter beyond dispute, cavil or argument, and equally it is true, that a free use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, in connection with Warner's Safe Pills, will actually compel these same organs to perform their allotted functions.

Testimonials by the thousands are in the hands of the proprietors of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, vouching for its positive curative qualities in all diseases of kidney and liver, and as a natural consequence, a purifier of the blood. Walking about the streets, in hundreds of our cities and towns, are men, and women too, who have been raised from beds of sickness to perfect health by means of this same medicine. These are circular demonstrations of the efficacy of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The press spontaneously and cordially endorse it. The bench, the bar, the pulpit, men prominent in the counsel of State and Nation, as well as citizens in private life, have their signatures attached to testimonials, affirming the almost miraculous curative powers of this Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and that as a cleanser of the blood, and a preventive of yellow fever, we have no hesitation in offering it to the public.

Some Newspaper Figures.

H. P. Hubbard's Newspaper Directory of the World, says there 10,131 American (United States and Canada) newspapers—899 dailies, 8,428 weeklies, tri-weeklies and semi-weeklies, 801 monthlies and semi-monthlies. The total circulation of a single issue of each of these papers (omitting 1,900 not given), reaches the enormous aggregate of 20,697,548 copies, divided as follows: Dailies 3,540,166; weeklies, tri-weeklies and semi-weeklies, 13,511,424; monthlies and semi-monthlies, 3,625,958. This is an average of 2,041 to each paper for a single issue, and taking all issues of the whole for one year, a grand total of 1,836,473,562 copies. Taking ordinary forty-lb. newspaper at its average measure of 4,000 sheets (solid) to the foot, one issue of all these piled up would measure 5,170 feet—nearly a mile in height, or for a whole year, 469,119 feet, over 87 miles high. Counting them all at the average size of 27x41 inches, and placed end to end, one issue would extend 70,648,256 feet, or 13,380 miles; for one year, 6,274,618,106 feet, 1,188,374 miles, or over 47 times around the earth, and five times the distance from the earth to the moon. In a thousand ems of type there are nearly 2,000 different pieces, and in an average four-page, eight-column paper, set in solid brevier type, there are 148,000 ems, or about 4 0 pounds, 296,000 types in one newspaper. To print one issue of the total 10,131 papers of this average size, there must be handled nearly 5,000,000 pounds of type, or 2,998,576,000 types. The total number of editions of all these dailies, weeklies and monthlies for one year would make 724,796 and to print them occasions handling of 2,178,480,849,697,000 types.

In the column of over 6,000 of these 10,000 newspapers, an advertisement can be found that tells of a medicine that is a safe, sure and certain cure for all and every disease of the kidneys and liver, Bright's disease included, and is known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. Volumes of written evidence testifying as to the value of this medicine, and of the curative qualities of other of Warner's Safe Remedies, are in the hands of H. H. Warner & Co., the proprietors, and can be shown to any doubting mind.

Not Inaugurated March 4th.

Some discussion has been had as to how many Presidents of the United States were inaugurated on other dates than March 4th. Below we append the list of such: George Washington was inaugurated April 30, 1789; James Monroe, second term, March 5, 1821; John Tyler, April 6, 1841; Zachary Taylor, March 5, 1849; Millard Fillmore, July 10, 1850; Andrew Johnson, April 15, 1865; R. B. Hayes, March, 5, 1877. The valuable medicine known as "Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure" was inaugurated June 10, 1879. It now governs and regulates the world over, all and every disease of kidney and liver, and reigns with perfect success.

Coming Wheat Crop.

"The Chicago Times published on Saturday 185 special telegrams from eleven Northwestern States, giving an estimate of the yield of winter wheat this year. If the figures are trustworthy, and if reasonably fair weather prevail, the increase of the yield over the large yield of last year will be about sixty per cent. This depends however, on the weather of the next month, as a severe frost on fields bare of snow might produce disastrous results." Fair weather or foul. Kidney and Liver diseases are ever present. The remedy that cures these is known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Georgia Healthy.

The "Times," Columbus, Ga., has it: "Not a cloud foreshadows the hereafter of Georgia, neither will there be sickness nor suffering so long as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is to be found on sale at all our Drug Stores."

For any Washing Machine that will Wash Cleaner, Quicker, with Less Labor and Wear and Tear of Clothes than the

ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, Pat'd Oct. 3, '71.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY PERFECT SELF-OPERATING WASHER IN THE WORLD.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow-grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, basting, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rolling of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. In cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide and 1¾ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 13 inches high over that, and is 1¾ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 6 to 8 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 10 to 30 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax; which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7¾ inches wide, 1¾ inches deep, and weighs about a pound. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive then in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER—ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fibres which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

DE PROFUNDIS.

Out of the Deep, my child, out of the Deep!
Where all that was to be is all that was Whirled for a million æons thro' the vast Waste dawn of multitudinous eddying light—
Out of the Deep, my child, out of the Deep!
Thro' all this changing world of changeless law
And every phase of ever heightening life,
And nine long months of ante-natal gloom,
With this last moon, this crescent—her dark orb
Touched with earth's light—thou comest, darling Boy;
Our own; a babe in lineament and limb
Perfect, and prophet of the perfect man;
Whose face and form are hers and mine in one,
Indissolubly married like our love.
Live and be happy in thyself, and serve
This mortal race thy kin so well that men
May bless thee as we bless thee, O young life
Breaking with laughter from the dark; and may
The fated channel where thy motion lives
Be prosperously shaped and sway thy course
Along the years of haste and random youth
Unshatter'd—then full current thro' full man;
And last in kindly curves, with gentlest fall,
By quiet fields, a slowly dying power,
To that last deep where we and thou are still.

with all their advantages are open to the whites—some say that they are open to people of color, but this is not true in the same degree as to the whites, and we have had some demonstration of how they are open to the people of color, and now after our Aid Society has raised large sums of money it is proposed that this money be turned over to the whites.

F. B. Riddle, of Central Pennsylvania, said: The master and slaves were mutually corrupted by slavery, but by this power the poor whites were degraded. On account of slavery they were deprived of the advantages of schools, and of churches, and the means of social elevation, and of culture. Since the war they have not had free schools like those of the North. There are large territories in the South where there are no free schools. These are a great favor to all who enjoy them, and one that should be given to all the races, as a help to raise them up. But white people need our help; they stretch forth their hands, but no provision is made for them. We propose to help the colored people; but while they have been provided with funds and help, the poor and needy white people are not to be neglected by us. They should have equal opportunity for education and advancement.

W. Rule, of Holston, said: The white people of the South who are now members of the Methodist Episcopal Church were not slaves prior to the late war, and did not suffer the direful consequences of slavery to the same extent and in the same way as did their colored brethren, but they were victims to its bad influences just as emphatically and as surely. Before the war the State governments of the South were controlled by a slave aristocracy, the open advocates of caste and the avowed enemies of popular education. Free schools in some of the States were unknown, and were effective in none. In the most populous of the rural districts in my own State such schools were kept on an average of less than twelve weeks in the year, while in the more sparsely settled localities they did not average more than fifty days in 365, and in the majority of instances were kept by teachers poorly qualified for their vocation. School houses generally were uncomfortable log cabins, the whole furniture of which consisted in a few benches made of rough boards. * * * Other churches are educating their ministers and their people, and so must we. Our brethren of the Church South have their great Vanderbilt University munificently endowed with Northern capital, besides several other institutions of high grade. Our Presbyterian brethren have their colleges in the South, the Baptists theirs, and the Episcopalians theirs. The Methodist Episcopal Church has but a single college for the whites in all the late so-called Confederate States, and that has been kept alive by scanty gleanings from fields already harvested, and not by the Church as a church. We appeal to you whose families enjoy the pleasures and advantages of an educated ministry, to put yourselves in our place and then remember the divine precept contained in the Golden Rule. We appeal to you for the youth of our country and not for ourselves. In the interests of our Methodism and of an enlightened Christianity, we come and ask you to aid us in establishing ourselves as a stronghold in Zion, against which caste and prejudice will not prevail. Lend us of your strength, aid us a little with your means, and the time will come when you will rejoice at the prosperity of your own Christian enterprise. The surest and speediest way to break down prejudice on account of color is to [illegible] the white work in the [illegible].

D. Curry said: I do most decidedly object to this matter of dividing the funds of the Freedmen's Aid Society with any other claim, however important. There are two [illegible] of whites, but there are [illegible] of blacks who demand [illegible]. The society has [illegible] placed, not for white [illegible], but for the [illegible] has been the [illegible] Aid Society [illegible] years [illegible] can but be unfortunate. If, therefore, the board shall determine this, there will be a falling off in receipts of this fund. I make this appeal against such division, not wishing to injure anyone. And I should think it wise that the money raised for the Freedmen's Aid should not be diverted from that specific beneficence.

A. J. Kynett said: I agree fully with all that Dr. Curry has said, and yet I believe that provision for the poor whites in the South is an imperative need and a duty that devolves upon the Methodist Episcopal Church. I desire to offer this substitute for the second item of the report:

Resolved, That the Board of Education be and are hereby instructed to make such provisions as may be necessary and practicable for the aid of our educational institutions in the South not aided by the Freedmen's Aid Society.

A. J. Kynett continued: It seems to me, Mr. President, that the provision needed for our white people in the South properly belongs to the Board of Education, and not to the Freedmen's Aid Society. It seems to me that our educational work in the South would be embarrassed rather than helped by being put in as a part of the work of the Freedmen's Aid Society—on the very face of it.

O. H. Warren moved that the substitute and all amendments to the paper lie on the table. Adopted by a vote of 149 to 144.

G. L. Curtiss, of S. E. Indiana, offered the following as a substitute for the whole matter before the house in regard to the second item:

Resolved, That in the judgment of the General Conference the present organization and purposes of the Freedmen's Aid Society should remain unchanged.

J. M. Walden said: We desire to strengthen and uplift the work in the South. The schools that have been established among the freed people cannot come under that privileged class of schools which we have been or may be establishing among the white people. I desire to indicate that the recommendation of your committee will accomplish that end in a wise discrimination. In the first place, I may state here a fact which may aid in the interpretation of the constitution of the Freedmen's Aid Society. I was one of the committee who framed that instrument, and at that time the question came up distinctly as to the three classes of persons in the South: Those who became free as a result of the war; the colored people who never had been enslaved; and the whites who might be reached through the society; and instead of saying, "other colored people," the words, "and others" was preferred so as to purposely include in its broad use the other two classes in addition to the freedmen. I admit that up to this time the collections for the Freedmen's Aid have been applied to the organization and sustainment of schools among the colored people. That was the Christian disposition of the funds which the exigencies of the case demanded. They were most numerous; their condition most pitiable; we reached them most readily, so that they seemed to have the first claim upon us. But I do not think that at any time it has been in the thought of those who established the society, that we could not with the greatest propriety help the others if we had the means to do so. So much for the constitution and the character of the work carried on under that constitution. Now what is proposed is that under this constitution the society may reach its broadest aims. The time has come when all the claims of the South can be presented as one claim, and when those who represent the claims of the South can emphasize them as strongly as they were ever set forth because of new wants pressing upon us, and show what the Church is doing there to reach the whites as well as colored. They may show how God in his providence is opening up doors to that people. I do not believe if we go to our congregations in behalf of this work, and present it in this broad and general way, that it will diminish their interest in the work of the Freedmen's Aid Society. On the other hand, I am confident their interest will be increased by our plan of distributing aid among the necessitous whites. These interests are side by side, and cover the same territory. Why should a part of this work be presented by the Freedmen's Aid Society, and the other part by the Educational [illegible] the very contingency [illegible] was anticipated [illegible] was organized.

We will save by having but one collection. It is claimed here that we cannot divide the collections. We do not propose to do that. We will bring this matter clearly and fairly before our people, and we will make an appeal, not only for the freedmen, but also in behalf of the white people of the South, and they will give intelligently, just as people give now to the Missionary Society. In that organization we have a home work and a foreign work, and yet our people understand in giving that their bestowments include both forms of the work, and I have no doubt that our Missionary Society has realized more by presenting this as a unit than if the claims of the home and foreign work had been presented separately. I want the claims of both the colored and the whites in the South as one work, covering one field, administered by one society. Then I believe that the receipts will be so far augmented that all the present exigences would be met, and the institutions established provided for. If you go before our people with two separate interests in the South, you would distract them, and they would ask you why do you ask for two collections for the Southern work.

The motion being to strike out the second item of the report to give aid to schools of white people in the South, J. A. Price, of Baltimore, called for the previous question.

J. C. Hartzell, of Louisiana, asked if the chairman presenting the original report could have ten minutes to close the debate before the motion should be taken.

Bishop Foster said: This is the final vote, and of course Dr. Newman is entitled to the floor.

J. P. Newman then said: So far as this report goes, I concur therein; but it has not my full approval. We are called upon to interpret the constitution of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and especially the phrase "and others." I believe it is generally conceded that the framers of an instrument are good interpreters of that instrument; in other words, that we must take the intention of the framer. And so, Dr. Walden being one of the framers, has given his opinion that the term "and others" includes three classes, the freedmen, the free colored people, and the white people of the South. Very well. We are called upon to sanction that interpretation, and if we sanction that interpretation, therefore, the board of managers of this society will be justified in doing just what this report requests to be done, to make such appropriation of the funds as shall not, however, embarrass the work of that society in behalf of the education of the freedmen. That is the great thought, it seems to me, on which we are to sit in judgment this hour. The other point, Mr. President, is this, time will soon render the "Freedmen's Aid Society" a misnomer. It is rapidly doing that now, and within sight of the decade (perhaps of three lustra) it will be a mishomer. What then shall be the mission of this society, that has crowned itself with glory? Shall it confine its educational work to the colored people, or embrace both races? Shall it perpetuate the iniquitous color line, or shall it stand on the great thought of the unity of the human race, and open the doors of schools of learning to all branches of the human family, under the sunny sky of the South. That, sir, is the far reaching thought necessary to the interpretation of the constitution. I beg, therefore, of these, my brethren, who have the interest of the white people in the South, as well as the colored people, at heart, to grasp the future in anticipation, and thus provide. I hope, Mr. President, that this, my recommendation by the Committee of the Freedmen's Aid Society, will be approved by this General Conference, for, while both parties are not satisfied, it is a compromise which anticipates a better future.

On taking the motion to strike out "Item No. 2," it was not stricken out.

The motion recurring on the adoption of the paper as a whole, it was adopted.

The rules were suspended and the secretary read the REPORT OF THE WOMAN'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

To the Bishops and Members of the General Conference:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society for the last eleven years has been known to the Churches at home and among the missions abroad. It has steadily adhered to its first purposes and permitted no other cause, however brilliant in its promise of favor or success, to divert its energies or divide its [illegible]. Limited as it has been to voluntary [illegible] and restricted in its source of supplies, its steadfast adherence to its original aim, the conversion of the women of foreign lands, has doubtless been a chief element in the success it has achieved. With the advice and consent of the parent board it has undertaken the support and supervision of all work for women within the missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and on each return of our bishops from their annual visits to distant fields, the society is called to enter new openings that need the labors of its missionaries.

This younger sister of the Church family was called into existence by the necessity for entering the doors opening into the zenanas of India, and since its inception in 1869, has built, purchased and sustained three orphanages, three hospitals, ten dispensaries, thirteen boarding schools and eight homes for missionaries. Fifty-two single ladies have gone out as missionaries, nearly two hundred native teachers and Bible women have been employed in disseminating Christian truth, and numerous day and Sunday-schools, superintended by the wives of missionaries, have been established and supported in all fields. For the maintenance of these enterprises, $590,960.36 have passed through the treasury. The society comes before the General Conference for the third time to present its quadrennial report. Since May, 1876, $278,874.54 have been raised through the efforts of this organization, $31,000 of which have been used in buildings, for construction, additions, or purchase; twenty six single ladies have been sent to foreign fields, and it is now supporting the work of twenty-four members of the parent board among the heathen women. Two thousand two hundred and ninety-one auxiliary societies, comprising 60,269 members, attest the vigor with which the interest in foreign missions has been extended among the women of the Methodist Church. The organ of the society, the Heathen Woman's Friend, has a circulation of 15,556 subscribers, and has met all expenses from its own revenues, no contribution from the funds of the society having been applied to it in the eleven years of its existence. The first work adopted by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was the Girl's Orphanage, in Bareilly, India, and this institution now gives entire support and education to 300 girls, of whom 130 are under eight years of age. The most impressive record of the Orphanage is that nearly all the Bible women employed in the North India Conference were taught and nurtured here. The hospital in Bareilly was the pioneer of women's medical work in Asia, and is one of the most important factors in the elevation of women in India. Dispensaries in the larger towns, normal schools in Lucknow and Cawnpore, two houses of refuge, another orphanage in Paori, seven boarding schools more than 100 day schools in the cities and villages, and numerous Sunday-schools, are the agencies by which more than 2,000 girls are brought under Christian instruction. Besides this work, 300 zenanas are more or less visited, reaching at least 3,000 women. This large number of women under religious influence and teaching can not fail to make a profound impression upon the future of any country.

In China, the society employs eleven missionaries. Two are declaring the Gospel of love through hospitable ministrations at Foochow, and two others have labored for many years at the boarding school, from which about thirty girls have gone out as Christian wives and mothers into Chinese homes. Besides the day-schools, in the different districts, a training school for Bible women has been recently started to secure the greater efficiency of native workers. In the city of Pekin, the hospital built seven years ago by this society is still in operation, and a large boarding school and two day-schools are scattering the light. In this North China Mission has occurred, in the woman's work, one of the most remarkable openings in the modern history of missions. The viceroy of China, the second person in rank in the empire, resides in Tientsin, and in a recent illness of his wife, Lady Li, Miss Dr. Howard, the medical missionary at Pekin, was sent for. She remained five weeks in the palace in attendance upon Lady Li and the wives of other government officials, and has now taken charge of the woman's department of the hospital, built by the viceroy originally as a temple in memory of his predecessor, but now turned over by him to Dr. Mackenzie to be used for the above purpose. There is great need of reinforcement in the woman's work in China. Kiukiang in Central China, has, under the auspices of the woman's foreign work, one of the most successful schools in the empire. Fifty girls are under instruction, and a lady physician has charge of a dispensary. In the city of Mexico the orphanage has fifty children under training, whose improvement in morals, manners and intellect evinces the faithful care bestowed upon them. In Pachuca more than seventy girls are gathered in a school built by this association, and Bible women in Guanajuata, Puebla, Amecca, Mecca, as well as in Mexico City and Pachuca, are carrying the Scriptures from house to house. For five years two missionaries have labored in a large and influential school in Rosario, South America, and a Christian Spanish woman has been employed for two years as a teacher in Montevideo. In Japan, three stations are occupied by the agents of this society, Tokio, Hakodati and Nagasaki. In Yokohama, since the death of the missionary, the school has been under the supervision of a member of the parent board. In Nagasaki the ladies have been established so recently that they are chiefly engrossed in the study of the language, though a few pupils are receiving instruction. In both Hakodati and Tokio fires have devastated the cities, and greatly retarded the progress of the schools. A new addition to our beautiful school house in Tokio had been used less than a year, when in a few moments the whole was laid in ashes, school property, furniture, personal effects, everything destroyed. But with a cheerful courage rarely surpassed, the ladies found another house in the Japanese quarter of the city, where they gathered the children, and are maintaining the school until the completion of another building upon the former site.

In Africa the woman's work of the Methodist Church for several years was confined to a girl's school in Bassa; but in the last fourteen months two lady missionaries have sailed for Liberia, and a native school is in operation among the Kroos in one of the suburbs of Monrovia. In Bulgaria and Italy from eight to ten native Bible women are supported, who go from house to house reading the Scripture, holding religious services, and gathering the children into Sunday-schools. The efficiency of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society is due largely to the care taken in the selection of candidates; for, although not resulting with equal satisfaction in all cases, yet nearly all the women sent out by the society have been of exceptional ability, and the Methodist Episcopal Church has taken the highest rank in woman's work in the East. In thorough harmony, and under supervision of the parent board, finding its supplies in the corners and by the hedgerows in the home fields, it has shown itself capable of adjustment to all the exigencies of mission work in foreign lands; while the success which has attended its efforts in aiding and enlarging work already established, as well as the efficiency which has characterized operations peculiarly its own, attests the wisdom of the system given it by its originators. Not only in heathen lands has the influence of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society borne fruit, but the Church in America is richer to-day in broad and intelligent women, capable and ready to carry forward the various benevolences which in increasing numbers are every year committed to their charge. There has been developed an administrative ability, an acquaintance and sympathy with the requirements of the kingdom of Christ, an understanding and grasp of all moral and religious interests of great importance to the Church. The summons to this work came to those who recognized that it meant for them a wide departure from established customs, but the lessons of sacrifices and obedience learned in its duties have brought into active service some of whom perhaps Jesus will not be ashamed to say: "Behold my mother and my brethren, for whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother and sister and mother." On motion of J. M. Buckley, of New York, the report was accepted and the work done by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society approved.

On motion of A. Shinkle, of Kentucky, the report of Committee on Book Concern and the election of editors was made the order of the day for to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

On motion of J. Lanahan, of Baltimore, the rules were suspended to allow him to introduce the following resolution, which was read and adopted:

Whereas, The opinion has obtained that large sums of money are unnecessarily expended in the expenses of fraternal delegates to corresponding bodies, when fraternal letters might answer every desirable end:

Whereas, It is also thought unnecessary expenses are incurred in having large standing Committees to oversee the Publishing, Missionary, Church Extension, and Freedmen's Aid Societies, therefore,

Resolved, That the book agents, the treasurers of the Missionary Society, Church Extension Society, and Freedmen's Aid Society, be instructed to furnish this General Conference, at an early a day as possible, a detailed statement of the amounts paid during the last quadrennium on these several accounts.

By consent, W. F. Mallalieu, of New England, introduced the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That we congratulate the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society on the achievements of the past four years, and assure them of our heartiest sympathy and continued co-operation.

Report No. 1 of the Committee on Education was read, and put on its passage:

Your committee have carefully considered the memorial of the Educational Convention, asking for the appointment of a centennial educational commission, and would respectfully recommend:

That the General Conference provide for and order a general centennial effort to be made by all our people during the coming quadrennium, in commemoration of the approaching close of the first century in the history of our Church, to promote the cause of education, and that the enterprise embrace the following particulars:

1. To secure proper control of all the schools of every grade that shall be recognized as belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church.
2. To secure a liberal endowment of all these institutions.
3. To guard, as far as possible, against the loss or pecuniary embarrassment of any such institutions.
4. To enlarge the funds under the charge of the Board of Education, devoted to the assistance of needy students.

To carry out these provisions we would further recommend that the bishops appoint a "centennial commission," to consist of two of their own number, and one minister and one layman from each General Conference District, and that this commission have full power to provide plans and means for the above purposes, and to carry them into execution.

In behalf of the committee.
GEO. S. HARE, Chairman.
F. D. HEMENWAY, Secretary.

J. M. Buckley said: It strikes me it would be better to have a great centennial movement, to say to all our people—"This is an hundred years of the Methodist Episcopal Church. We have a great many causes—Education, Church Extension and everything else. Fill up your hearts with love and praise, and say where you will have your money go." The sum total will be far greater. Education will not lose anything, if the members of this Educational Convention do their duty through the papers. The sum total will be far greater if you do not restrict this thing. I wish to say that there are some other causes which are better qualified to promote a great, immediate, practical result than education. Education appeals to men of wealth, to men of culture, to men of intelligence, who have been lifted above the ordinary average of our Methodist life. But there are other causes which would bring dollars and tens of dollars from the other class of people who cannot be restricted by one movement.

C. W. Bennett, of Northern New York, said: Let us look at some of these facts for a moment pertaining to this question. We know that statistics do not measure spiritual forces, but they tell some plain and legible facts that we ought to attend to. You examine the reports that have been made to our Commissioner of Education at Washington. Look at the theological schools that are reported. There are 817 reported as being graduates in 124 theological schools of this country. Of these 114 are Roman Catholics, leaving 703 Protestants. Of these graduates from Protestant schools, 59 were from the Congregationalists, that is one to 5,450 of their communicants. Of the Protestant Episcopal there were 61, or one to every 5,245 communicants. From the Baptists there were 135, or one to every 13,333 communicants. Of the Lutherans there were 84, being one to every 7,142 communicants. Of the Presbyterians, of all branches, there were 249, or one to each 3,140 communicants. Of the Methodists there were 75, or one to 35,000 communicants. Reducing this to general proportion, the Baptists have more than 2½ times, the Lutherans almost 5 times, the Congregationalists more than 6 times, the Protestant Episcopalians more than 7 times and the Presbyterians more than 11 times as many theological graduates in proportion to the church membership as the Methodist Episcopal Church. We are, in the third place, giving an average training to an insignificant fraction of our ministers. Look at it for a moment. These facts are not generally known, unless you investigate them. First, we must remember that the average ministerial life in the Methodist Episcopal Church for the last fifty years has been but twelve years. Second, we must remember that we have over eleven thousand traveling preachers, and to keep the number even good we must annually pour into the ranks over 8 per cent., or over nine hundred ministers. We had last year about thirteen hundred probationers in the annual conferences. The plain fact appears, therefore, that we are theologically educating only one in twelve of those who enter our conference ranks. We do not now speak of the graduates of colleges who enter our work, or of that larger and honorable class who are not permitted to receive a liberal training, but who have been called of God to do such heroic work.

If we retain in our church the best thought of the age, we must educate the best thought. This is plain. There is no such thing as men gravitating from the higher to the lower position. Men in other denominations do not come to us unless there is something to their enlargement. To keep control of the best thought, we must educate and control the best thought of the country.

After speeches by D. Curry, J. Lanahan and others, the report was made the special order of the day for Wednesday.

Report from the Committee on Education—No. 3, was put upon its passage and adopted.

Your committee have had under consideration a paper asking for the consolidation of the Freedmen's Aid Society with the Board of Education, and would recommend the following resolution:

Resolved, That inasmuch as the Freedmen's Aid Society has a specific field, we do not consider it advisable to unite it with the Board of Education.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO. S. HARE, Chairman.
F. D. HEMENWAY, Secretary.

While we have, necessarily, been called upon to decide questions suddenly, and while we have not always been able, possibly, in giving the floor to recognize brethren, who, possibly, should have been recognized, we have endeavored to act kindly and impartially, and we thank you for your forbearance, and for the very kind expressions you have made in reference to us. Our prayer is that God may go with you to your homes and fields of labor, that you may have great success in the various charges which you occupy, and that, through your work at this General Conference, the blessing of God may rest upon the Churches, and great peace and prosperity may be in all our borders. It has afforded us great pleasure to meet our brethren here, and to be with them in their deliberations, to listen to their thoughts; and we shall be pleased to meet you, if Providence spare us, in your different localities and different appointed spheres; and our prayer is that God may so enable you and us to fulfill our varied duties that we may have a meeting by and by in the general assembly of the Church of the first born on high. [Amen.] And that we may be there without the loss of a single one, and that all of you may come rejoicing bringing your sheave with you. We will unite in singing a couple of verses of the usual parting hymn that we use at our conferences:

[816TH PAGE OF HYMNAL.]

O that our heart and mind
May evermore ascend,
That haven of repose to find,
Where all our labors end.

Where all our toils are o'er,
Our suffering and our pain!
Who meet on that eternal shore
Shall never part again.

Bishop Simpson led the Conference in prayer as follows:

Let us pray: We bow in thy presence, Almighty God, in closing the deliberations and duties of another General Conference. We thank thee that thou hast permitted us to share in these responsibilities and to be present in these deliberations. We bless thee for the health and strength which thou hast given us, and for that intense interest for the welfare of thy Church, which we believe all our brethren have shared and felt from day to day. We bless thee for the influence of thy Holy Spirit, which we believe they have felt in the public ministrations of many of these brethren, and for that spirit of wisdom, which, we trust, has guided in all these deliberations.

And now we come before thee, Almighty Father, to invoke thy blessing to be upon the results arrived at by this General Conference. [Amen. Amen.] May thy blessing attend every measure adopted. May thy personal presence be with every brother on whom special trusts have been placed, and may each and every one have thy divine Spirit to guide and direct in all their future career. If any thing has been done contrary to thy holy will, O do thou forgive; and may that blood which takes all the stains away be applied to our hearts. And may we have peace with thee and all mankind. And we pray thee in thy gracious providence to overrule every thing which may not be in harmony with thy divine pleasure. Thou, who hast all agencies in thine hand, and canst rule and overrule, directing and controlling, do thou so order that every thing done shall advance the interests of thy kingdom, and the glory of thy great name. [Amen. Amen.]

And now we invoke thy blessing upon these, thy servants, as they journey to their personal abodes, and preserve them from accidents. May their lives and health be precious in thy sight. Watch over their homes, we pray thee, and supply prosperity to their various charges; and may the quadrennium upon which we are now entering be one remarkable for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Our blessed Savior, we pray thee, send the Holy Spirit upon all the Churches. May there be revivals in every locality. May millions be gathered into the Church of those who shall be eternally saved; and in all the enterprises for the extension of thy cause, for the promotion of education, for the uplifting of thy people, for the upbuilding of Zion in all its departments. O, may prosperity be in all our borders. [Amen.] Should it please thee in all thy gracious providence to spare us for future years, do then give us strength and wisdom according to our day. But should it be thy holy will that some of us on this floor, or some of us on these seats, should like those of whom we have spoken and felt with sorrow be called away during this quadrennium may our work have been well and wisely done. [Amen.] And may we have a peaceful hour in which to die, and then may we join that blessed company of the prophets and apostles and martyrs now at thy right hand, so that we shall pass from the Church militant to the Church triumphant in glory.

Hear us while we pray, as thou hast taught us, saying: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory, forever. Amen. [Amen. Amen.]

Bishop Simpson said: Let us unite in the doxology:

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

which was sung most heartily by the entire audience, standing.

Bishop Simpson then pronounced the benediction: The peace of God which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord, and the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be among you, and remain with you always. Amen. [Amen, by many voices.]

The Republican National Convention met in Chicago on Wednesday, June 2. Judge Hoar, of Massachusetts, was chosen temporary and permanent chairman. Considerable time was consumed in disposing of contests. The unit rule was broken, and free expression allowed to the delegations from each Congressional convention. This ruling set aside the action of Illinois and Kansas conventions, in ignoring the districts, and admitted anti-Grant delegates from Illinois and Grant delegates from Kansas. The Louisiana contest was decided by the rejection of the Beattie and the admission of the Warmoth convention delegates by a unanimous vote. The excitement is described as intense. A large number of the active political leaders of the country were on hand to warmly champion the cause of their favorites, and the city of Chicago was thronged by thousands of visitors attracted by the great contest between the candidates. Organization effected, and rules adopted, it was not until a late hour on Saturday that nominations were made, and an adjournment postponed a vote until Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The nominees were Gen. Grant, Senator Blaine, Secretary Sherman, Senator Windom and Hon. E. B. Washburne.

Decoration Day was appropriately observed throughout the country. In some places the exercises were held on Saturday, in others on Sunday, and in others still on Monday. The parade in New York on the latter day was the largest ever held there on a similar occasion. In New Orleans the Mower Post, G. A. R., chartered the steamboat R. E. Lee, and on Sunday thousands visited the Chalmette cemetery. Appropriate ceremonies were conducted under Commander Wm. Roy. Judge Whittaker delivered an oration, Col. Eugene Tisdale a poem. Floral offerings elegant in design were heartily welcomed from the Continental Guards, Washington Artillery, Army of the Tennessee and other Confederate organizations.

The Methodist notes as an evidence that the prejudice against color is passing away, that Rev. B. A. Jones, a talented colored student of Oberlin Seminary, is occupying a pulpit at Clarksville, Ohio, to the general satisfaction of the community.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has decided that a law enjoining the observance of Sunday as a day of rest is constitutional, it being a social and political regulation, giving preference to no religious establishment or mode of worship.

The decision of the Supreme Court of Louisiana sustaining the validity of the premium bonds of New Orleans is regarded as a final victory over the repudiationists, and a blessing to commercial interests.

We have received the sixteenth annual catalogue of Grand Prairie Seminary, Onarga, Ill., Rev. J. B. Robinson, President.

The Supreme Court of California released Dennis Kearney, and he again prominently appears as a political leader.

The American Society of Civil Engineers at St. Louis elected Jas. B. Eads President.

Letters of inquiry should be accompanied by stamps for the replies desired.

Henri Rochefort has been severely wounded in a duel by M. Koechlin, of Paris.

The supervisors are at work taking the United States census.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Bishop Simpson has been elected President of the Pennsylvania Bible Society.

—Rev. J. F. Marshall returned from Cincinnati with pleasing impressions of the Conference.

—Rev. A. E. P. Albert has returned from the General Conference, in Cincinnati, and will be pleased to have his correspondents address as usual to No. 354 Customhouse St., New Orleans, La.

—Rev. A. J. Witherspoon called to say that he had read a letter of inquiry in our "lost friends" column, and would like Mr. J. H. Witherspoon, of Caledonia, Miss., to know that after some inquiry he had learned that Calvin Dobbin was now at Hope, Hempstead Co., Arkansas.

—L. S. Deckard writes from Brenham, Texas, reporting that Sister Martha Fletcher had heard from a sister in Virginia through a letter published in the "Lost Friends" column of this paper. He urges pastors to be careful to read all such letters to their congregations, that friends may be brought together again.

—Bishop Scott accepts, in his seventy-eighth year, the much-needed rest from official labor, and retires to his home in Odessa, Del. Fifty-four years ago he entered the itinerant ministry; thirty-two years ago he became a Book Agent at New York; and twenty-eight years ago a Bishop. His whole official career has been such as to secure to him the confidence of an appreciative Church.

—J. M. Buckley, D.D., has entered upon his duties as editor of the Christian Advocate at New York. His name appeared with the issue of June 3. Dr. C. H. Fowler begins his work as Missionary Secretary. Says the Advocate: "During his career as editor of this paper its circulation greatly increased, and it retained all that it had gained under the stimulus of valuable premiums. Every interest of the church was safe in his hands, and he was ever ready to defend it."

—Says the New York Advocate: "Bishop Simpson will visit our Missions in China and Japan, presiding at the Japan Conference at Yokohama Aug. 12, at the North China Conference Sept. 16, at Central China Conference Oct 13, and at Foochow Conference Oct 28. Bishop Merrill will preside at all our Conferences in Europe and India. Bishop Foster takes our Conferences in the South, Bishop Haven those in the Southwest, Bishop Wiley those on the Pacific coast, Bishop Warren those in the Northwest, while the remaining Conferences are divided among the other Bishops.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

A. Jackson, Rosedale: "Six souls were converted last Sabbath, among them Mr. Charles Taylor, a promising young man."

A grand exhibition of tableaux is announced to take place in Thompson Chapel, Rev. J. Lewis pastor, on Monday evening, June 14th. It will be given by the Sunday-school of that church, which is officered as follows: F. Bowers, Supt.; P. Corne, Ass. Supt.; E. A. Roberson, Librarian, Miss Mary Andrews, Treasurer.

TEXAS.

G. W. Smith, La Grange: "On Sunday, May 30, we had the pleasure to observe Centennial Sunday. The attendance through the entire day, was larger, and marked by best of order. Notwithstanding the stringency of the times the people responded with a liberal collection to aid the noble work of our Sunday-school Union."

MISSISSIPPI.

P. E. Kirkland, French Camp: "Our Centennial will be remembered a long time in Choctaw. Three schools united with New Hopewell in the services. G. W. Williams, the manager, gave a sketch of the up-rising of the Sunday-school throughout the world. Mr. Joseph Kennedy led in singing. After Rev. G. Thomas and myself preached to a large audience, Mr. Kennedy led the choir, and it was a joyful time for every one present."

Letter from Luling.

LULING, Texas, May 16, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to say a few words about our situation. Within 12 miles in our vicinity there are 2 schools and 2 benevolent associations. The Sabbath-schools contain about 275 pupils; one of them is composed of Baptists. I visited it last Sunday, and found about 37 pupils, and the grown people active participants.

Our colony would now be in a more prosperous condition had our people cared more for their ministers, and paid less attention to strangers and ticket agents. Our benevolent association that once numbered 50 members, now has only 27. I am a friend to the exodus movement, but we will have to look better for ourselves than our friends did, who have made a sacrifice of between $2500 and $3000 in this vicinity. They went no farther than Red River. We would prosper by dropping some of our young professional orators and cleaving more closely to the old. REED.

Letter from Batesville.

BATESVILLE, Ark., May 6, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to give a short sketch of the work on my circuit this year. The elder held my first quarter in March. Forty-five communed at the altar, and there were five accessions. The people were deeply interested in the elder's sermon.

On the third Sabbath of last month one of my local preachers, Bro. Wm. Pope, with Rev. William Henderson, of Pocahontas, preached at Greenbrier. Ten came forward, and two were converted. I continued the meeting all that week, and received 16 more, with 26 accessions.

I have a good board of stewards, who delight in the performance of their duties. Preacher's salary was fixed at $400. The people have bought a horse for the pastor's use. A church has been started at Greenbrier, which we expect to finish this year.

W. H. HIGGINS.

[illegible] Condition of the M. E. Church Among the Colored People of the South.

The colored preachers of the M. E. Church are a generation of revivalists. We need Wesleys in this new work, not Whitefields. We have many old preachers who have had hundreds and some thousands of converts, who never got a church [illegible] or built a church. They have done their work in brush arbors and [illegible] buildings. Some of them [illegible] know how to organize, and [illegible] know what the doctrines of the M. E. Church are, nor how its doctrines and usages differ from those of other churches. The old plantation style still prevails— [illegible] have a general jump, shout and jubilee, and then go home. [illegible] many there is no building nor improving of churches. Many old [illegible] have no church property— [illegible] but brush arbors, or old abandoned and dilapidated houses on some plantation. Our young preachers are following the weaknesses of the old ones. They get their sermons from the experiences of Christians, not from unfolding the word of God. It is not uncommon to hear them say, "I have no use for the written word, I have the word in my heart." They groan, and moan, and shout, and scream, and spit, and make all kinds of manifestations of suffering and danger to move the hearts of sinners. This revival preaching is turned into the lowest kind of preaching or exhorting. A few dreams about the fiery serpent tormenting the wicked in hell will make many a sermon, and is all they feel the need of. They catch every new thought that will awaken and arrest the sinner. Members are taken into a certain church on relating their experience, and on confession of faith. One said: "Before I was converted I was suspended over hell by a hook through my tongue; a trap door was lifted under me, and I saw the fires of hell roll up, and down in the fire and blinding smoke I saw men walking with the fire flying out of their mouths, and noses, and ears; and the devil was punching them with a spear, and they were always groaning and sighing, and could never find rest from their [illegible]." A few experiences like the above would make the capital [illegible] great amount of revival preaching, throw congregations into a [illegible] excitement and bring many [illegible] to the mourners' bench.

[illegible] preacher has his stock of [illegible] experiences, and when [illegible] his power is gone. [illegible] preacher of another [illegible] preaches near him [illegible] is moved, he takes all [illegible]. In the present [illegible] of things, the young [illegible] has very little use for [illegible] feels no pressing need [illegible]. He is hard to [illegible] to our schools. They [illegible] through our conference [illegible] study, no matter how low [illegible] even the modified course.

The M. E. Church is the highest [illegible] not in ministerial [illegible]. I have seen [illegible] and exhorters who [illegible] Bibles, and, of course, no [illegible]. One Bible or testament [illegible] of eight or ten is [illegible] be sufficient. The [illegible] at nothing but gain. [illegible] It is not uncommon [illegible] where we have [illegible] years of labor, and [illegible] property. The [illegible] of nothing but [illegible] converted, and after [illegible] for want of [illegible] and care, [illegible] other denominations [illegible] want for other denominations. When a better condition of things comes, we will have to throw away all our church property beyond the city limits and on the outskirts, and buy in the center of the towns and cities, and build anew at greatly advanced prices for property. We lose the result of our labors, and do not build up to be comfortably self-supporting. Tens of thousands of the members now in the Baptist Church were converted through the labors of M. E. preachers, and so with many in other churches. The Baptists and others I might mention are not revivalists. Their doctrines of election, predestination and fore-ordination cripple them. They are organizers and church builders. In many places they depend on the Methodists, preachers and members, to commence and carry forward their revival meetings for them, with their free salvation doctrines and free labor, and they only superintend and gather in the results. The few revival preachers who do belong to the Baptist and other churches have gone over from the M. E. Church and carried with them the Methodist Discipline, doctrines and usages. More at another time.

Letter from Woodlawn.

DEAR EDITOR—When I went on my work there was but one church in condition to hold service in. The people were sorely disheartened, and they said they could not build, and they "would not try;" but I stood firm in the belief that they could build if they would make an effort to do so. I encouraged them to try to build. We have tried, and thank God we have succeeded well, and by the opening of the fall we will have two good comfortable churches built. Prof. T. W. Lincoln was with us on last Sabbath. We had a pleasant time. He preached an interesting sermon, and administered the sacrament; sixty persons communed at the Lord's table. Prof. Lincoln is a man worthy of note, and I wish there were a hundred such men in Texas. He possesses great intellectual ability, and as a teacher of Wiley University, at Marshall, Texas, he gained many warm friends among the white and colored people. I might say here that Prof. L. is a man that looks deeper than the skin to see a man; and that is the kind of men we want, of the white brethren, to work among us. Dr. Carhart, in his letter printed in the SOUTHWESTERN a few weeks ago, states that we need educated preachers as pastors among the colored people, and he said that if they could not be found among the colored preachers, that there ought to be six or eight more white preachers appointed to charges, and to be kept only one year at a place, so as to keep them rolling, until good discipline was established among the colored people. Yes, it ought to be done, if we could not find men of piety and education among our people; but I can say thank God they can be found among the younger class of preachers if they were allowed to come to the front by presiding elders and older preachers; but there seems to be a local prejudice against young preachers in our colored conferences. While at the Texas Conference last winter I saw ten or fifteen young men well informed join the conference. If the presiding elders would compel these young men to take the full four years' course of the conference studies they would be a power in this work of redeeming the colored people from their ignorance and superstition.

Visit of the Financial Agent.

I lectured at Davilla the 26th of March. Rev. C. C. Robinson is pastor. Here I raised $5.35. Mr. W. B. Patterson, one of our grand young men signed for $5. At Calvert on the 27-28, I raised $12.05. The 3d and 4th of April found me at Bremond, Rev. Jas. M. Hall pastor. The people gave $5.10. On the Marlin circuit, Rev. J. W. Mitchell pastor, the 5th and 6th of April I raised $1.15. The 17-18th of April found me at Dallas, Rev. [illegible] Swann pastor. This is one of our best young men—the people of all sects love him. I took the people here by surprise by coming earlier than I was expected. I raised $12.05. Sisters Sally Cooper, [illegible], Mary Henry and [illegible] Williams all contributed [illegible]. Sister Cooper is a [illegible] forward Christian. I [illegible] Milford and Grand [illegible], Rev. R. Henderson [illegible] not present the col[illegible] the 25th of April [illegible] work, Rev. I guess by the time the Grand Jury is through with that mob they won't disturb another meeting. On the work I raised 95 cents. On the 1st and 2d of May I was on the Groesbeck mission, Rev. D. Humphries, pastor. I raised $1.50. Inclement weather prevented my reaching the people on Sunday. May 8-9th, at Waco, the people did well. Rev. B. F. Smith is pastor, and is doing a good work. The people all love him. The Sunday-school is doing finely. At Waco I raised $17. I visited Belton on the 15-16th of May, Rev. G. Sawyers pastor, and collected $8.25. At Taylorville, May 21st, I raised $1.

United States Christian Commission Day at Chautauqua, New York.

George H. Stuart, Esq., of Philadelphia, Dr. John H. Vincent, of New York, and a Working Committee at Chicago, Illinois, consisting of Dr. E. P. Goodwin, John A. Cole, Esq., Rev. B. F. Leavitt, Rev. E. F. Williams, and Rev. John O. Foster, hereby request all delegates of the late U. S. Christian Commission, to meet for a Reunion at Chautauqua Lake, New York, August 7, 1880.

General Clinton B. Fisk and the Fisk Jubilee Singers will be there. Philip Phillips, who sang "Your Mission" at a wonderful gathering in Washington, and was requested by President Lincoln to repeat the song, will be present and sing as of yore.

The history of the Christian Commission is wonderful.

The annals show that over 5,000 persons shared the exposure and hardships of this benevolent work. The total value of supplies handled was $5,478,280, not including the estimated services of the delegates. "Each delegate labored, on an average, thirty-eight days, at a cost for incidental expenses of $36.10. The field service of delegates was equal to the continuous labors of one man for five hundred and eighty years, or, with the added services of the permanent agents, six hundred and fifty-eight years."

At this first reunion delegates will be present to represent the different departments of the field.

The facilities for reaching Chautauqua, and the accommodation there for boarding, cannot be surpassed in the land.

That a full list may be made of those expecting to attend, let all residing east of Pittsburgh, Pa., send a card to Dr. John H. Vincent, Plainfield, N. J., and all residing west of Pittsburgh, a card of notification to the Secretary, who will answer from Chicago, as to excursion rates, time-tables, expenses, etc., so far as possible.

Bring your U. S. Christian Commission badges.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

June 13, 1880.—AFTER THE RESURRECTION.
SCRIPTURE.—Matt. 28: 8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—20.
TOPIC.—The Savior's Resurrection.
(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The death of Christ brought two of his secret lovers to the light. Nicodemus, who came to him by night, was one, and Joseph of Arimathea, who was a disciple, "but secretly for fear of the Jews," was the other. The latter, upon the death of the Savior, came boldly to Pilate, throwing off all disguise, and begged the body of Christ that he might give it interment. Nicodemus brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds weight, for the purpose of embalming it. In the depth and sincerity of their grief, the two no longer stopped to take counsel with their fears of the consequences of identifying themselves with the one upon whom the wrath of the chief priests and rulers so fearfully had been wreaked. Pilate marveled when Joseph of Arimathea communicated to him the fact of Christ's death. A death so soon after crucifixion was a thing so unusual that he called to him the centurion, in order to make sure of the fact, thus giving the weight of his incredulity in the matter to the theory which Christians hold, that the Savior died, not from physical suffering, but from a broken heart. Usually men lingered from two to four or even five days. Christ, from the pangs of rejected and wounded love, lived but six hours! As became royalty, the body was placed in a new tomb, hewn out of the rock, "wherein never man before was laid." The body was wrapped in clean linen with spices, the more elaborate task of embalming being put off on account of the near approach of the Sabbath. Even in the midst of their grief and des[illegible] gave that day its [illegible]. Not so, however, their enemies. They went to Pilate and begged of him that the sepulcher might be made sure. Their request was granted, a seal was set upon the stone that closed its entrance, to interfere with which was death, and a guard of soldiers was placed over it besides.

The women, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, Salome, Joanna, and others, impelled by their affection soon to proceed in their work of love, had gone very early to the sepulcher—"as it began to dawn." But they found the stone rolled away, and saw two angels who told them that Christ was risen, showed to them the place where he lay, and gave them a message to the disciples to go into Galilee, where they should see the Lord. Wonder and ecstacy and holy awe were their emotions, but to the soldiers had come a different experience. First an ominous earthquake made the ground tremble beneath their feet, then an angel descended, whose countenance was like lightning, and whose raiment was white as snow, and he rolled back the stone and for fear of him the guard became as dead men. It would seem that by the time the women arrived, they in terror had departed. The sight which they had beheld and the message which they had to bear, impelled them to haste. Their great joy at again seeing him could not be restrained to mere sight. It was Jesus before them, gracious and loving as he was but a few days before, but it was Jesus risen from the tomb—panoplied with a new power, and moving in a new and awe-inspiring mystery.

While the women were going on their errand of joy, the soldiers were going upon one of humiliation and of fear. The national council was called to take action with regard to this national calamity! The power of money for evil is wonderful. That morning those men had seen the face of an angel with a countenance terrible as the lightning, and had felt the solid ground under them heave in token of the divine presence hidden in the ground, and yet before noon possibly they had taken a bribe to falsify concerning the whole matter.

To his more intimate disciples, the apostles and their friends, there had been granted many manifestations of the Savior's resurrection. Thomas would not believe until he had tested the rents made by the nails and the spear, and the apostles only were convinced when the Lord himself stood in their midst and challenged them to handle him and see for themselves that he was not a spirit. The command was given to all of the disciples who had there congregated. In obedience to this order the disciples, as well as the apostles, "went everywhere preaching the word." "Unto the end of the world." At the end of that "age" he will come again in great power and glory. He is with us now—then we shall be with him.

There is perhaps no tonic offered to the people that possesses as much real intrinsic value as the Hop Bitters. Just at this season of the year, when the stomach needs an appetizer, or the blood needs purifying, the cheapest and best remedy is Hop Bitters. Waco, Texas.

Willey Jarmon, son of Rev. James Jarmon, died after a protracted and painful illness May 27, 1880. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of their many friends and of our church in these hours of affliction. May they find solace at the feet of the Savior who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

"Yes, Willey's pilgrimage was shorter
And his triumphs sooner won.
Oh, how lovingly he'll greet us
When the toils of life are done."

GEO. W. SMITH.

At his residence in this city, on June 1st, Bro. Isaac Branch, aged 35 years, a faithful member of Union Chapel M. E. Church, New Orleans, La. He leaves a wife and three small children to mourn his loss. Faithful until death, he now rests in peace.

A. E. P. ALBERT, Pastor.

Bro. Daniel Drain, aged 50 years, and a member of the church for 30 years, died in the triumph of faith April 13. Bro. Pinkney Greenleo died Feb. 4, and is at peace. Bro. Edward Yeates, superintendent of the Sabbath-school, departed this life April 17, after exhorting his wife to raise his children in the fear of the Lord.

JOHN EVANS, P. C.

Bellefontaine Circuit, Miss.

Bro. Green Stingily died at his residence in Morton, Miss., Feb. 16, aged 74 years. He leaves a wife and family. It affords me great pleasure to bear testimony to the exemplary life and character of this aged Bro. His end was peace. He was respected and loved by all who knew him, especially by both white and colored, who had great faith and confidence in his integrity. In his last dying hours, he called his friends around him and said, it is all well with me, don't grieve after me for I am going to rest.

Strange that people will suffer so much from dull feelings, the blues and debilitated body, when they can be so surely cured by simply taking a few doses of Simmons Liver Regulator. It will impart new life and vigor to the whole system by purifying the Stomach and regulating the Liver. Could our readers be brought into contact with the host of respectable witnesses who regard Simmons Liver Regulator as the safest and best family medicine for Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Colic, Sour Stomach and Malarious Fevers, they would no longer wonder at the great fame it has acquired throughout the country.

"As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

NEW BOOKS.

ALFRED THE GREAT. By Thomas Hughes. No. 26 Standard Series edition, manilla cover. New York: I. K. Funk & Co. Price 20 cents.

As the author says, "Of all that early history, the life and times of Alfred are, beyond all question, the most absorbing in interest." This book is as entertaining as a novel. The world has very few writers who have Mr. Hughes' ability in gaining and holding the attention of readers.

IS DAVIS A TRAITOR? or Was Secession a Constitutional Right Previous to the War of 1861? By Albert Taylor Bledsoe, LL. D. St. Louis, Mo.: The Advocate Publishing House.

The volume before us is of the second edition issued from the publishing house of the M. E. Church, South, at St. Louis. Dr. Bledsoe, as editor of the Southern Review, published his views on the war and secession, and they are now revised and embodied in this work. The points raised are familiar to all general readers, but they are here presented in a scholarly style, and in that respect are superior to the newspaper discussions current at the time. It is an impassioned defense of Davis and the Lost Cause by an able writer.

EASTWARD, Ho! or Adventures at Rangeley Lakes. By Capt. Charls A. J. Farrar. Boston: Lee & Shepherd. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich, 130 Canal St.; price, $1.50.

A guide, skipper, pilot and author of several books, known as the "Lake and Forest Series," gives some amusing experiences and startling adventures. This book will enable many to become acquainted with a veritable paradise for fishing and gunning; the waters teeming with trout and salmon, and the woods with every variety of small game, as well as bears, deer, caribou and moose, and which is every year becoming more and more frequented by health and pleasure seeking parties.

HISTORY OF ENGLAND. By Charles Knight. Vol. 6. Price, 30 cents. New York: I. K. Funk & Co.

This great work is approaching completion, but one more volume remaining to be issued. English statesmen and critics speak in high terms of it, and eminent students in our country pronounce it unequalled. Lord Brougham said of it that "nothing has ever appeared superior, if anything has been published equal, to the account of the state of commerce, government and society at different periods."

FEVERS.—Sections of territory where fevers are and have been brought on by reason of a malarial infected atmosphere, are using, and with complete success, in keeping off such afflictions, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and Warner's Safe Pills. Parties down sick with diseases of such a character are cured by the use of same.

The New Louisiana Remedy is winning golden opinions from many who have tested its merits in the treatment of coughs, colds, etc. We recently examined some fourteen pages of signatures vouching for its effectiveness. Read advertisement elsewhere, and remember that this home medicine is well known, and finds sale throughout the country.

Another first-rate story is "How Patty Curtis Learned to Sweep." "Daisy's Bust" is an account in detail of how a bust is made. Wm. H. Rideing gives "The Language of Ships," and Mr. Benjamin writes of the popular artist J. W. Champney. —Harper's Magazine for June, is probably, the most beautiful number ever issued of that periodical. The opening article, by Mrs. John Lillie, a Devonshire Moorland Village—is illustrated with nineteen remarkable pictures. William H. Gibson contributes a paper on "Spring-Time," which he illustrates with sixteen drawings, exquisitely engraved. Mr. Rideing's "The Working-Women in New York," is finely illustrated. A timely article—apropos of the monument to Andre—is devoted to a biographic sketch of Captain Nathan Hale, by Henry P. Johnston, with seven illustrations. Sherwood Bonner contributes a side-splitting story, entitled "Hieronymus Pop and the Baby," with nine characteristic pictures. The Editorial Departments are full of timely and entertaining matter.

—Good Company, No. 9, has its usual full complement of stories by Miss Sarah O. Jewett, Sidney Hall and others. Lord Beaconsfield's recent defeat at the polls lends special interest to Mr. Geo. M. Towle's graphic sketch of his career. Science in High Latitudes has also a particular timeliness in connection with the Howgate Arctic expedition. Country Schools and State Needs, by W. M. Bicknell, urges the want of an enlivening and energizing influence from a central State board in country schools. President Bascom, of Madison, Wis., University, talks about names; Octave Thanet has The Canada Thistle; and there is a sketch entitled A French Home. In the Editor's Table there is an assault on that growing public nuisance of feeing servants, a graft from foreign toadyism.

Beatty's Pianos and Organs.

We are reliably informed that the sales of Mayor Beatty's Pianos and Organs were never larger than now. He is receiving thousands of testimonials in favor of his celebrated instruments, and we take pleasure in publishing the following: F. M. Webster, Esq., Newport, Ky., after purchasing three of Beatty's celebrated Pianos, writes as follows: "I deem it perhaps due to you to say that the Beatty Piano I purchased from you last summer has greatly improved in tone, and we are highly pleased with it. The two Pianos I purchased previously for my daughters continue to give entire satisfaction." Rev. Chas. Wheeler Dennison, Washington, D. C., writes: "I have great pleasure in informing you that the Beatty Piano and Organ have been received, and that they both give us the highest satisfaction. Anything further I can do to serve you shall be cheerfully and promptly done by your obedient servant,

A Memorial Service.

To the memory of Mrs. Mary Ann Harvey, an eminent Christian woman and an acknowledged licensed preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church, who, during the last ten years of life did effective work in the cause of her divine Master. Many hundreds now living within the Christian church can trace their first thoughts of reformation to the soul-stirring sermons of this wonderful woman. Mrs. Mary Ann Harvey was loved and respected by all who knew her truly. Christian piety won for her the admiration and respect of thousands who heartily condemned the idea of a woman being called to preach the gospel. Memorial service will take place at the Methodist Episcopal Church in the city of Kosciusko, July 18, 1880, at three o'clock, p. m. The ministry of the Church of Christ and the many friends of the deceased are expected to be present. Fraternally,

PREVENT Yellow Fever
It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventative. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventative and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents.

IT IS SWEET TO BE REMEMBERED.

It is sweet to be remembered,
Even when life's sky is bright.
It adds new fragrance to the pleasure,
New radiance to the light,
And birds among leafy branches,
Sing with sweeter tone—
Hope's softer fire it kindleth,
To know we're not alone.

It is sweet to be remembered,
When skies are dark with gloom,
And tried and trusted friendships,
Are buried in the tomb.
[illegible] our hearts grow lighter,
[illegible] is growing dim,
[illegible] our spirits heavenward,
To trust and lean on him.

It is sweet to be remembered,
By the loved ones far away,
And the kindly words they said to us
Shed a gentle, cheering ray.
Oh! are we still remembered,
[illegible] through our tears?
Do they keep our memory sacred,
Through the weary toilsome years?

It is sweet to be remembered,
When the dying hour is near,
And the prayers of our beloved,
Make our faith more pure and clear,
And to death's dark shadowy angel
A lonely smile is given;
Ah! it is blessed to be remembered
By that better Friend in heaven.

Splicing the Ladder.

One night the large and splendid [illegible]'s Home in Liverpool was on [fire] and a vast multitude of people gathered to witness the conflagration. The fury of the flames [could not] be checked. It was supposed that all the inmates had left the burning building. Presently, however, two poor fellows were seen stretching their arms from an upper window, and were shouting for help. What could be done to [save] them?

A stout marine from a man-of-war [lying] in the river said, "Give me a [long] ladder, and I will try it."

He mounted the ladder. It was [too] short to reach the window. "[Pass] me up a small ladder!" he [shouted].

[It was] done. Even that did not [reach] the arms stretched frantically [out] of the window. The brave [man] was not to be balked. He [lifted] the short ladder upon his [shoulders] and holding on by a [illegible] he brought the upper [end] within reach of the two [men who] were already scorched by [the flames].

[Out] of the window they clambered, creeping down over the [illegible], and then over the [illegible] they reached the [ground] amid the loud hurrahs of [illegible].

ty-one he knew as much as the young squire did. Now, let us see how much time he had to read in, in seven years, at the rate of one hour a day. It would be 2,555 hours, which, at the rate of eight hours a day, would be equal to 310 days; equal to forty-five weeks; nearly a year's reading. That time spent in treasuring up useful knowledge would pile up a very large store. I am sure it is worth trying for. Try what you can do. Begin now. In after years you will look back upon the task as the most pleasant and profitable you ever performed.

Woman's Wisdom.

"She insists that is of more importance, that her family shall be kept in full health, than that she should have all the fashionable dresses and styles of the time. She therefore sees to it, that each member of her family is supplied with enough Hop Bitters, at the first appearance of any symptoms of ill health, to prevent a fit of sickness with its attendant expense, care and anxiety. All women should exercise their wisdom in this way."—Ed.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

Dr. Harter:—Mr. James Brown of our county, has requested us to tender you his grateful acknowledgments for the great benefits his wife received from the use of your IRON TONIC. Yellow Fever.

The National Board of Health,

IN THEIR PUBLISHED REPORT, SAY THE CAUSE OF THIS DISEASE IS

BLOOD POISONING,

So poisoned by breathing the vitiated atmosphere of malarial and infected districts.

All know the Kidneys and Liver are the cleansers of the blood, and that if these organs are kept in a healthy condition, Yellow Fever can, and will, be averted.

That these organs can be kept free from disease, and at all times in condition to well and faithfully perform their duties, is a matter beyond dispute, cavil or argument, and equally it is true, that a free use of

Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure,

in connection with

Warner's Safe Pills,

will actually compel these same organs to perform their allotted functions, and hence as a cleanser of the blood, and a preventive to yellow fever, we have no hesitation in offering it to the public.

ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, Pat'd Oct. 3, '71.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY PERFECT SELF-OPERATING WASHER IN THE WORLD.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS

is yet but imperfectly understood by thousands of good housekeepers. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam washboilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, namely: The saving of labor, wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration, all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask washerwomen and housekeepers and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow-grease," or in other words, laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No: to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric, again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking, and house-work are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking, while the house-wife does her house-work.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is so much greater.

All who have tried steam wash-boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water force is what removes dirt from the fibre of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution. While steam will not remove dirt, it is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way, unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove the dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature it causes the fabric to contract, which "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which, after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which produces a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. It cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are two sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants and barber shops, boarding houses, etc.

The Washer is composed of metal and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 pounds, and is only 8 inches long by 8 inches wide and 1½ inches deep.

The discharge-pipe is 13 inches high over that, and is 1½ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid, unbroken stream at the rate of 6 to 8 gallons per minute. It will work in any flat-bottomed boiler. It takes only 3 or 4 ounces of soap in 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed or table linen, a boilerful in 10 or 15 minutes, wearing apparel in from 10 to 30 minutes, and will remove streaks without rubbing; requires no previous preparation of the clothes, such as soaking over night. Take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets through its work, fill the boiler as full as it will hold by gently pressing them down with a stick. Use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

FOR LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

No. 2, or small hotel size, is 8½ inches long, 7½ inches wide, 1½ inches deep, and weighs about 8 pounds. It will work in a flat-bottomed boiler holding from 15 to 25 gallons, and wash, of average pieces, from 1500 to 2000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler that has a flat bottom large enough for it to rest upon.

For hospitals this Washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabrics pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics, and scientific men generally, it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics, or water force, ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics ever known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER & BLEACHER IS THIS:

We have 5 pounds of metal, which attains a greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube, thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of which prevent its flowing backward, and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible, until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes, through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus we get a combination. FIRST, WE HAVE THE DESIRED HEAT. SECOND, PERFECT CHEMICAL ACTION OF THE SOAP. THIRD, FORCE OF WATER—ALL OF WHICH ARE REQUIRED TO THOROUGHLY CLEANSE AND PURIFY ANY FABRIC.

THE IMPROVED WASHER

has a perfect-fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler just as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting vegetable or animal matter and discoloration from the various fibres which constitute our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solution of chloride of lime; third, a solution of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water, then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now the question arises: Can these fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt, or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

per cent. per annum upon a communion of one and a half million of members. How great is the contrast between this result and the "thirty, sixty, and an hundred-fold" spoken of in the parable of the kingdom of heaven.

Thousands of co-laborers with us are toiling constantly to cultivate Immanuel's land. If miracles of power are not always witnessed, wonderful works are in many places. Faithful women not a few are achieving, instrumentally, great things toward the redemption of man. Through their agency, in union with the pastors, and also by special efforts as preachers of righteousness, God is moving through the Churches with great awakening and converting power. The Missionary cause, too, has received a powerful impetus at the hands of the women of our Church, before whose path new doors are opening into wider fields of whitening harvest, and a richer fruitage of success is gathered year by year. And the temperance cause as well has begun a new era of great promise, in which are employed the eloquent voices and pens and personal efforts of pious, Christian women, among whom some of our own elect ladies are distinguished as active and efficient co-workers.

With great satisfaction we remind you that our schools of learning continue to be divinely recognized by the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. Gracious revivals have been developed within their halls under the guidance of our devoted Christian educators. God has opened the hearts of some of our good and wise men, whose generous gifts have flowed into the treasuries of a few of our colleges. We hope that many others will emulate their example, and that there shall be secured speedily a liberal endowment of our institutions of every grade in this country and in other lands. We commend to you earnestly daily prayer for colleges and seminaries. Ask God for their highest prosperity, that learning and godliness may everywhere be combined, and that all our institutions may take rank among the chief instrumentalities for evangelizing the world.

A few only of many personal duties can have even brief mention made in the address. Daily Bible [illegible] of the family altar and in [illegible] worship, should be a universal habit. For lack of it very little is known of many of God's most precious truths. "My people perish for lack of knowledge." The protection and profit and pleasure of having the memory stored therewith cannot be overestimated. "O, how I love thy law! It is my meditation day and night," should express the sentiment and practice of every child of God.

"That men ought always to pray and never to faint," are the words of Jesus. Do not restrain prayer before God, nor neglect the Savior's special admonition: "Enter into thy closet," and "pray to thy Father which is in secret." In the times of Bishop James there was a chair at which the Bishop kneeled [illegible] hours nightly in private prayer. Both our "Father which seeth in secret," or his angels who minister unto us, know where that chair is in our house! Alas! alas! too many homes have no family altar.

And the closet door, we fear, is not opened and shut so frequently and faithfully as the door of the counting-room or the work-shop, among our people. Be instant in [illegible] prayer brings in [illegible]. Prayer opens heaven and [illegible] down glory like a flood upon the consecrated place and hour—sweet hour of prayer.

The damp of spiritual life begins [illegible] prayer ceases, and [illegible] of the life that now is [illegible] absorbing pursuit. [illegible] worldliness. Keep the [illegible] between the narrow [illegible] for Christ's sake [illegible] broad way of conformity [illegible] world, remembering the [illegible] "If any man love the world, the love of the [illegible] in him." In this [illegible]

All this may be performed as religiously as the duty of prayer, with an eye to the glory of God, the maintenance of good order in society, and the elevation of man.

Parental oversight of the literature of childhood and youth is of equal importance, with jealous watchfulness over the companions allowed to them. We fear that thousands of parents know very little of the reading of their children, and they allow unchallenged loose, and even licentious, literature the freedom of their homes, which poisons the thought, perverts the imagination, and depraves the heart and lives of the children of the Church. We should know what they read by providing freely the choicest publications at our command. Money expended thus is money saved, with purity retained and integrity added. Our own publishing houses will amply supply this demand. The duty assigned to our pastors, superintendents, and Sabbath-school committees to decide what books shall be used in our schools, if faithfully performed, would protect our libraries; and yet we fear, that a neglect of this supervision has admitted improper reading thereto in some instances. Special attention is asked to this important regulation, and also to the manifest advantage of using the Hymnal in our Sunday-school to promote a more intelligent spirit of devotion among the children.

The Missionary zeal of the Church needs greater quickening. Feeble Churches at home; heathen people abroad, and in our own land as well; enfranchised millions, and other impoverished, struggling communities in the South; with the numerous rapidly growing towns on the lines of Western emigration, call in vain for help, because our Missionary funds are so limited. If all our people were contributors, and the complete Missionary system of the Church was carried out everywhere, we would secure annually double our present revenue.

Lack of uniformity in the financial plan of our Churches embarrasses ministerial support and our benevolent enterprises generally. Novel plans for raising money are unprofitable. Direct contribution alone has the sanction of divine appointment. The regulations of the Discipline, if diligently observed, would produce the largest and most permanent results. Our pastors then would find their way prepared from year to year, and not be embarrassed, as many of them now are, by finding in new charges novel changes in the mode of raising money. An itinerant pastorate requires uniformity of system in order to the highest financial efficiency.

Dependence on extra help at religious meetings, in many places, we fear, is becoming a hinderance to the permanent results of our revivals. Personal effort on the part of a quickened membership, prompted by the faithful pastor's appeals, with full reliance on the word of truth, and on the Spirit's presence and power, always secures the most abiding results. Other than home agencies are not condemned, but these are paramount, and to be preferred, as our Church records show from year to year.

A want of reverence in the house of God is increasing in some places, which should be promptly yet kindly corrected. We refer to lateness of attendance, lingering about the door until after service begins, pre-occupancy of mind with secular conversation up to the time of entrance, leaving before service closes, busily adjusting hats and coats, and even talking, while the doxology is being sung. Whether the un-Methodistic habit of standing while leading in public prayer helps to promote reverence or otherwise, we submit for consideration.

Our camp meetings are less helpful to the spiritual life of the Church than they should be. Especially is this true when they are made a source of revenue mainly, or where entertainment rather than salvation is the chief end, or where luxurious ease and popular amusement are more largely patronized than prayer meetings are. Serious hinderances to the cause of Christ [illegible] offences [illegible] over a large extent of territory near camp meetings by the desecration of houses of worship, the [illegible] of public [illegible], and a general demoralization of the community, and by the [illegible] of the Sabbath [illegible] public travel. This is a crying evil [illegible] where the distinctive methods of the Church are yielded to conciliate the prejudices of good men of other denominations. We lose more than the Master gains, while others gain all we lose. We should not be bigots, yet we do well always to remember we are Methodist Christians.

And we are constrained to condemn as a grievance to all good people, many meetings held in the name of Christianity and of temperance which are controlled by inexperienced and in some cases by irreligious men, which often supersede religious worship, lower the standard of piety, and encourage neglect of the house of God on the Sabbath. Church temperance meetings should be held by our own pastors with the aid of their people and other co-workers. Let the Church lead in every good word and work.

Finally, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, if there be any praise, think on these things.

Commencement at the Central Tennessee College.

The examinations began on Friday, May 14th, and continued on Monday and Tuesday, the 17th and 18th. The examinations included classes in arithmetic, algebra, geometry, mechanics, calculus, geography, history, grammar, botany, geology, astronomy, Greek and Latin authors, mental science, Bi[illegible]

The examinations were satisfactory. The annual sermon was preached by Rev. W. Hays, of the Tennessee Conference, on Sunday, the 16th. The sermon was well arranged and full of thought.

Tuesday night an educational meeting was held, and excellent addresses were made by Rev. C. Pickett, of the Tennessee Conference, and Rev. S. J. Harris, of the Holston Conference. The endowment association also held the annual meeting, and some additional subscriptions were made. Wednesday morning the graduating exercises of the Normal and Academic classes took place.

The following is the programme of the Normal class: Mattie J. Evans, Essay—The end is not yet; Cornelia A. Hayden—Home Life; Lucy J. Hay—No one liveth unto himself; Eva Holmes—School Life; Emma S. Pickett—School Friendship; Rebecca A. Sharber—Nothing Great is Easily Won. In the Academic class Green N. Johnson read an essay on Crossing the Red Sea, and William A. McKissack on Personal Liberty.

The essays were well composed, and read so that the audience could hear. The music, both instrumental and vocal, added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion. In the afternoon the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees was held, and Bishop I. W. Wiley, D.D. LL.D., was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Bishop G. Haven. At night the memorial service was held for the sainted Bishop and Rev. C. Pickett made an excellent address on the life and labors of the Bishop, and spoke of the fact, that he was not specially the friend of the colored man, but of the oppressed. Had it not been for the wrongs of the slaves, and the outrages on the Freedmen, Bishop Haven would not have been any more their friend, than of any other people. It was because they needed help and sympathy that he labored and suffered for them, not because of their color. No man labored more earnestly to destroy mere color caste than Bishop Haven. Hon. Thos. H. Coldwell, of Shelbyville, Tennessee, formerly Attorney General of the State, made an effective address, in which he paid a high tribute to the Bishop's brave, large-hearted philanthropy, to his scholarly attainments, his genial social qualities, his power in the pulpit, and his purity of heart and of life.

It was a high tribute to the personal power of Bishop Haven, that a Southern man, with his local prejudices and who, prior to his personal acquaintances with the Bishop, thought him only fit to be classed with rash fanatics, should be so changed by a comparative short personal acquaintance as to be moved to tears as he pays the highest tribute to the intellectual strength, the comprehensive philanthropy, the active benevolence, the pulpit power, and the Christian character of the deceased Bishop and whom the speaker felt honored to call his friend.

The Clark Chapel choir, composed almost entirely of former students of the college, and led by Mr. J. C. Brown, one of the Tennesseeans, furnished some excellent music during the evening exercises. On Thursday morning, May 20th, the graduating exercises of the Scientific and College classes were enjoyed by a large audience.

Of the Scientific class, Charles P. Westbrook delivered an oration on "The Power of the Will." In the college class addresses were made by Julius J. Holland, on Moral Courage; Laura A. Moore, Make Haste Slowly; Chas. H. Phillips, Pleasures of Memory; Isaiah B. Scott, Our Work and its Growth. The degree of Bachelor in Science was conferred on C. P. Westbrook, and Bachelor of Arts on those in the College Class.

In the afternoon an interesting event occurred in the marriage of Miss Cornelia A. Hayden, sister of Miss Julia Hayden, who was killed a few years ago, while teaching in Trousdale Co., in this State, and Dr. J. H. Wilkins, a graduate of the Meharry Medical Department. Also Rev. Green N. Johnson, a graduate of the Academic department, and Miss Lucy J. Hay, a graduate of the Normal class. Both couples left on the evening train for their fields of labor. Dr. Wilkins to practice at Athens, Ga., and Bro. Johnson to take work in the Chattanooga District, Holston Conference. The college has closed one of its most prosperous years, the entire enrollment being 335 at Nashville and 101 in the Preparatory School at Mason, Tenn. The College, Theological, Medical and Law classes are now fully organized, and the prospects are flattering for a large attendance next year, which begins on Monday, the 6th of September.

We clip the following from the Atlanta Constitution:

BISHOP WARREN.

The late General Conference of the M. E. Church (North) elected four bishops, making their effective force twelve. The successor of the late Bishop Gilbert Haven is Bishop H. W. Warren, one of the four recently elected.

He is a minister of ability and culture, and we hope he will find Atlanta an agreeable home.

Wednesday night he preached a sermon to the students of Clark University and their friends in Loyd Street M. E. Church. The house was well filled and the discourse was one of great power.

His text was drawn from the first chapter of Genesis, the 26th and 27th verses: "And God said, let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and creeping things that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

He closed by reference to the eternal kingdom prepared for the faithful—the true dominion of the Christian—saying that Christianity demands the largest possible man; neglect not, therefore, the body, and let the body be filled with mental power—cultivated in mind; but most of all, live in your whole being—not in the cellar or first story, but in the whole spiritual man. Let God's spirit fill your whole being. Never think that you can be God's children, fit to rule, unless touched by God's great spirit.

The Constitution gives but the closing paragraph of what was an able university sermon, in which the Bishop impressed with power the ancient maxim—"Know thyself"—showing man's three-fold nature; body, mind and soul, the proper cultivation of which fitted for dominion—dwelling on the higher nature of man. "I wish to raise," said he, "to a higher realm, the spiritual nature, and glance at the power of spirit over mind, the man who would rule must be a spiritual man. But there is a spirit in man: and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them 'understanding.' Such was the language of Elihu in the days of Job. Speaking to you, students, let me say when the spirit of man is quickened by the spirit of God, the intellect is wonderously quickened too for study and success. This inspiration of the Almighty should be sought and found.

"The conviction that man is a sinner is not an intellectual conviction, it comes from God—so when the soul is pardoned and the spirit bears witness, this is an inspiration of the Almighty, the spirit of God coming into the spirit of man, 'leadeth him into all truth.' Oh! happy word, I hope to live to see the time when even our scientists will thus be lead into all truth. Rationalism in all its Godless forms is wrong—materialism is a sin—let us rise to the realm of our spiritual nature—it is so God-like—though the physical man may be in suffering and sorrow we can rejoice in spirit with a radiant joy divine. The martyrs suffered the loss of natural life, but their spiritual being—their spiritual life remained untouched."

The Bishop illustrated this point by many fine illustrations, and closed with the paragraph given by the Constitution.

He has made a fine impression, and is a welcome addition to the clerical force of this beautiful mountain city, and will be cordially received by all denominations; whilst his brethren of our own Church rejoice in such a leader.

The commencement exercises of Clark University are over—it has graduated eleven students this year, and gives great promise of success in the next. The building on the new grounds is nearly completed, and with its 450 acre campaign or estate, will become a noble monument of our departed Bishop Haven as well as of Bishop Clark. By the way, allow me to remind your readers of that monument for Bishop Haven. Dr. Rust has done a noble work for the Church. I trust your Northern readers will gladden his heart by making it easy for him to collect the proposed endowment and building funds for Clark University.

Bishop Gilbert Haven.

MINUTES ADOPTED BY THE TRUSTEES OF THE CENTRAL TENNESSEE COLLEGE.

With peculiar sadness we heard of the death, on the 3d of January, 1880, of Bishop Gilbert Haven, President of the Board of Trustees of the Central Tennessee College. We, the surviving trustees, direct our secretary to spread upon the records of the corporation the following tribute to his memory:

In the death of Bishop Haven the Central Tennessee College has lost a friend whose visits always brought sunshine; who by his earnest words encouraged the students to strive after higher attainments, and whose sympathies were ever with the unfortunate. In labors he abounded—preaching, lecturing, soliciting aid for some needy student, assisting some struggling institution, relieving some burdened church, encouraging some poor, persecuted, despised pastor—were toils in which he delighted. He was a hero, standing up boldly and fearlessly for right. In his fellow man he saw a child of God—a brother. He was the champion of the oppressed. His life was a well-written history, beautifully illustrated by his daily actions, filled with examples worthy of imitation.

His death, like his life, was full of sunshine. In passing through the valley of death there was no gloom—all was bright with heavenly glory. There was no terror; no enemy to conquer. His end was triumphant, for he realized the truth of the Savior's words: "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." In life he preached a salvation of joy, and dying he experienced its triumphs.

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past:
The battle's fought, the race is run,
And thou art crowned at last."

With the Colored Brethren.

Yesterday, in the interval between my own services, I preached for the colored Methodists. Their preacher, a man of good education and more than usual intelligence, has gone to General Conference, and I was respectfully applied to for afternoon-preaching. Of course the singing was grand; I have not heard the like for many a day. There was a general shout, and at the close of the sermon a local preacher opened the doors of the Church, and there were two applicants for membership. The mode of reception was truly primitive. There were no disciplinary questions, no vows of any sort. The local preacher extended his hand, remarking simply, "I give you the right hand of fellowship on behalf of the pastor and congregation;" but he immediately made this significant announcement. "Brother and Sister M. will join class No. 2; the recording steward will please take notice."

In the conclusion of the service a brother announced that they had a debt to raise. It proved to be a deficiency in the pastor's salary, which they wanted to make up before his return. Then a sister struck up the most unique debt-raising hymn it has ever been my lot to hear. Let the magnates around Nashville who dedicate churches and lift collections take notice. Here is the chorus:

If it had n't have been for Adam and Eve
There 'd never been a sinner in the world.
But Adam he broke God's holy law.
And we've got the debt for to pay.
My little children!
We've got the debt for to pay.

And from the strength of lung with which this chorus was sung again and again, the congregation evidently took a keen delight in cleaning off Adam's old score.—Jno. J. Tigert, in Nashville Advocate, May 15, 1880.

Avoiding the Issue.

When your play-loving boy asks to go out after supper, and you don't think it best, for any reason that he should, do not snap out, "No, you can't! The place for boys is in the house at night." If the lad has any of the old Adam in him, he will either sulk or rebel, or manage to make himself and every one near him uncomfortable until bed-time. You can rule him, of course, by force; but it isn't a victory to be proud of. How much better to make him prefer to stay in—or at least to reconcile him to it. Propose a game with him, taking a hand yourself; or read to him out of a book a little beyond his range of reading, but quite within his line of thinking, or have a frolic, or corn-popping lark—or anything to give the boy a good time and make him forget his disappointment. No time is better expended in family government than helping the children to prefer or accept cheerfully your way. Things are going wretchedly wrong in that family where the little ones stay in the house as a prison, or go to bed unhappy.

The wisest and most successful mothers are those who avoid, whenever possible, direct issues on trivial matters with young children who have a very positive will of their own. It is quite possible to "go one eye" on little delinquencies without being blind to disobedience or wrongdoing. Those especially, who can not rule their own spirits should be very careful not needlessly to precipitate a conflict with those under them. There is sometimes more courage in running away than fighting; more wisdom in avoiding the issue than in asserting authority.—Golden Rule.

A Strong Government.

There is no interest in our country which I feel is more to be fostered than that of the public school. Intelligence is the security of the Republic, as ignorance is the upholding of monarchy. To insure ourselves against the disasters of war, particularly of civil war, we want education diffused, that the minds of our youth may be sufficiently taught to read and to distinguish between right and wrong; and with such education universally diffused the Republic can never be in danger. I only regret that the statistics show in our country as much illiteracy as they do. I was surprised at some figures that I heard repeated within a few days; but, when we consider the infancy of our public school system, it is, probably, not so much to be wondered at. My hope is that the day will come, and that not far distant, when the school facilities everywhere will be such that every child may have the opportunity of receiving a common school education at the expense of the State; and, if it should be necessary, that there should be in each State of this Union, compulsory education.—U. S. Grant.

The New Book Committee met in Cincinnati, May 28, and organized with Rev. Homer Eaton, D.D., of Saratoga Springs, as chairman, and Rev. I. S. Bingham as secretary. The salaries of the General Conference officers were continued as fixed in February last, and the salaries of the four Bishops elected by the recent General Conference will be $3,000 each, and $1,000 each for house-rent.

Rev. Richard K. Diossy.

A pioneer of the Church in this State has finished his work. C. N. Sims, in the New York Advocate of the 10th inst, has given a brief sketch of his active and useful life, and to it we are partially indebted.

Rev. Richard K. Diossy, of the New York East Conference, died in the city of Brooklyn June 2, 1880. He was born in New York City, and on reaching manhood entered upon the practice of opthalmic surgery. At the age of twenty-seven he was converted in the John Street M. E. Church in Brooklyn, under the preaching of Rev. John N. Maffit. About two weeks later, in connection with a wonderful baptism of the Holy Spirit, he received what he felt to be an unmistakable call to preach. He at once began active Christian work, and was licensed to exhort by the Methodist Protestant Church, which he had joined. Three years later he became a member of the Ohio Conference of that Church, and was stationed in Cincinnati and vicinity for a period of seven years. Coming eastward he was pastor for two years each in Hartford and Georgetown, Conn. Then entering the service of the American Sunday-school Union, he was Assistant Secretary to Henry C. Trumbell, the Secretary of the Union, for six years. At the outbreak of the war he took work in the Christian Commission, continuing in it until the war closed.

Bro. Diossy was one of the original members of the Louisiana Conference, and continued in it nine years, five of which was spent as presiding elder of the New Orleans Mission, Opelousas and New Orleans districts. Broken in health, he was transferred to the New York East Conference in 1874, from which time he held a supernumerary relation, but was constantly employed in smaller charges doing such work as his broken health permitted. At the time of his death he was in charge of the Church at Bayport, where he was greatly beloved.

He was an energetic minister and performed much arduous and dangerous work in behalf of the church and the freedmen of this State. During his connection with the Freedmen's Bureau, he generously and efficiently contributed to the material and spiritual wants of thousands of colored people, who remember his deeds with affection to this day. After the organization of the public school system, State Superintendent Thomas W. Conway selected him to be division superintendent of public education for the third division—(a congressional district.) He held this position for over two years, and as a painstaking organizer was perhaps without an equal in the State. In the church, in his official position, at all times, he was most persevering in the discharge of his duties, and we have no doubt that his naturally frail and delicate constitution suffered from exposure to sun, rain and the night air while on horseback he was plodding through the bogs of South Louisiana. He made friends at every point, and had personally visited every considerable place in his districts. His pen was in constant service inditing messages of hope and counsel to his co-workers, both far and near; and a large correspondence occupied hours of continuous labor. As an illustration of his generous nature it is related that while conveying sick soldiers up the Mississippi River, he sold his watch to buy for them delicacies which the Government did not furnish. He appeared in the pulpit to encourage the cause of the Lord and of education. He distributed Bibles and tracts as a conscientious itinerant, and gladdened the hearts of the children in every household.

The Republican National Convention.

THE PLATFORM.

On Saturday, June 5, Hon. Edwards Pierrepont submitted the following from committee:

The Republican Party, in National Convention assembled, at the end of 20 years since the Federal Government was first committed to its charge, submits to the people of the United States this brief report of its administration.

It suppressed a rebellion which had armed nearly a million of men to subvert the national authority. [Applause.] It reconstructed the union of the States with freedom instead of slavery as its cornerstone. [Applause.] It transformed 4,000,000 human beings from the likeness of things to the rank of citizens. [Applause.] It relieved Congress from the infamous work of hunting fugitive slaves, and charged it to see that slavery does not exist. It has raised the value of our paper currency from 38 per cent. to the par of gold. [Cheers.] It has restored upon a solid basis payment in coin for all the national obligations, and has given us a currency absolutely good and equal in every part of our extended country. It has lifted the credit of the Nation from the point where 6 per cent. bonds sold at 86 to that where 4 per cent. bonds are eagerly sought at a premium. Under its administration railways have increased from 31,000 miles, in 1860, to more than 82,000 miles in 1879. Our foreign trade has increased from $700,000,000 to $1,150,000,000 in the same time, and our exports, which were $20,000,000 less than our imports in 1860, were $264,000,000 more than imports in 1879. [Applause.] Without resorting to loans, it has, since the war closed, defrayed the ordinary expenses of Government, besides the accruing interest on the public debt, and has annually disbursed more than $30,000,000 for soldiers' pensions. It has paid $888,000,000 of the public debt, and by refunding the balance at lower rates, has reduced the annual interest charge from nearly $151,000,000 to less than $89,000,000. All the industries of the country have revived; labor is in demand; wages have increased, and throughout the entire country there is evidence of a coming prosperity greater than we have ever enjoyed.

Upon this record the Republican party asks for the continued confidence and support of the people, and this Convention submits for their approval the following statements of the principles and purposes which will continue to guide and inspire its efforts:

1. We affirm that the work of the last 21 years has been such as to commend itself to the favor of the Nation, and that the fruits of the costly victories which we have achieved through immense difficulties should be preserved; that the peace regained should be cherished; that the dissevered Union, now happily restored, should be perpetuated; and that the liberties secured to this generation should be transmitted undiminished to future generations; that the order established and the credit acquired should never be impaired; that the pensions promised should be extinguished by the full payment of every dollar thereof; that the reviving industries should be further promoted, and that the commerce already so great should be steadily encouraged.

2. The Constitution of the United States is a supreme law, and not a mere contract. Out of confederated States it made a sovereign Nation. Some powers are denied to the Nation, while others are denied to the States; but the boundary between the powers delegated and those reserved is to be determined by the national, and not by the State, tribunals. [Applause.]

3. The work of popular education is one left to the care of the several States, but it is the duty of the National Government to aid that work to the extent of its constitutional power. The intelligence of the Nation is but the aggregate of the intelligence in the several States, and the destiny of the Nation must not be guided by the genius of any one State, but by the average genius of all.

4. The Constitution wisely forbids Congress to make any law respecting an establishment of religion, but it is idle to hope that the Nation can be protected against the influence of sectarianism while each State is exposed to its domination. We therefore recommend that the Constitution be so amended as to lay the same prohibition upon the Legislature of each State, and to forbid the appropriation of public funds to the support of sectarian schools. [Cheers.]

5. We affirm the belief, avowed in 1876, that the duties levied for the purpose of revenue should so discriminate as to favor American labor, [applause;] that no further grant of the public domain should be made to any railway or other corporation; that slavery having perished in the States, its twin barbarity, polygamy, must die in the Territories, [applause;] that everywhere the protection accorded to citizens of American birth must be secured to citizens by American adoption, and that we esteem it the duty of Congress to develop and improve our watercourses and harbors, but insist that further subsidies to private persons or corporations must cease. That the obligations of the Republic to the men who preserved its integrity in the hour of battle are undiminished by the lapse of the 15 years since their final victory. To do them perpetual honor is, and ever shall be, the grateful privilege and sacred duty of the American people.

6. Since the authority to regulate immigration and intercourse between the United States and foreign nations rests with Congress, or with the United States and its treaty-making power, the Republican Party, regarding the unrestricted immigration of the Chinese as an evil of great magnitude, invoke the exercise of those powers to restrain and limit that immigration by the enactment of such just, humane and reasonable provisions as will produce that result.

7. That the purity and patriotism which characterized the earlier career of Rutherford B. Hayes, in peace and war, and which guided the thoughts of our immediate predecessors to him for a Presidential candidate, have continued to inspire him in his career as Chief Executive, and that history will accord to his Administration, the honors which are due to an efficient, just and courteous discharge of the public business, and will honor his interpositions between the people and proposed partisan laws. [Cheers.]

8. We charge upon the Democratic Party the habitual sacrifice of patriotism and justice to a supreme and insatiable lust of office and patronage; that to obtain possession of the National and State Governments and the control of place and position, they have obstructed all efforts to promote the purity and to conserve the freedom of suffrage, and have devised fraudulent certifications and returns; have labored to unseat lawfully-elected members of Congress; to secure at all hazards the vote of a majority of the States in the House of Representatives; have endeavored to occupy, by force and fraud, the places of trust given to others by the people of Maine, and rescued by the courageous action of Maine's patriotic sons; [illegible] in principle and tyrannical in practice, attached partisan legislation to appropriation bills, upon whose passage the very movement of the Government depends; have crushed the rights of individuals; have advocated the principles and sought the favor of rebellion against the Nation, and have endeavored to obliterate the sacred memories of the war, [illegible] to overcome its inestimably valuable results of nationality, personal freedom, and individual equality. The equal, steady, and complete enforcement of laws, and the protection of all our citizens in the enjoyment of all privileges and immunities guaranteed by the Constitution, are the first duties of the Nation. The dangers of a solid South can only be averted by a faithful performance of every promise which the Nation has made to the citizen. The execution of the laws and the punishment of all those who violate them are the only safe methods by which an enduring peace can be secured, and genuine prosperity established throughout the South. Whatever promises the Nation makes the Nation must perform, and the Nation cannot with safety relegate [illegible] to the States. The Solid South [illegible] and the honest [illegible] against terrorism, [illegible] of the Republican Party to use every legitimate means to restore all the States of this Union to the most perfect harmony that may be practicable, and we submit it to the practical, sensible people of the United States to say whether it would not be dangerous to the dearest interests of our country at this time to surrender the administration of the National Government to the party which seeks to overthrow the existing policy, under which we are so prosperous, and thus bring distrust and confusion where there are now order, confidence, and hope.

The following, offered by Mr. Barker, of Massachusetts, was also adopted:

The Republican Party, adhering to the principles affirmed by its last National Convention, of respect for the constitutional rules governing appointment to office, adopts the declaration of President Hayes, that the reform in the civil service shall be thorough, radical, and complete. To that end it demands the co-operation of the Legislative with the Executive Departments of the Government, and that Congress shall so legislate that fitness, ascertained by proper practical tests, shall admit to the public service; that the tenure of administrative offices (except those through which distinctive policy of the party in power shall be carried out) shall be made permanent during good behavior, and that the power of removal for cause, with due responsibility for the good conduct of subordinates, shall accompany the power of appointment.

THE BALLOTS.

On Monday, June 7th, the fifth day of its session, the Convention commenced to ballot for a candidate for the office of President of the United States. During the day and evening sessions twenty-eight ballots were taken, resulting in no choice. On Tuesday eight more ballots were taken. The following is a complete record of the votes:

Gen. James A. Garfield, of Ohio, having received a majority on the thirty-sixth ballot, was declared the nominee for President.

At the evening session Mr. Geary, of Maryland, moved that the convention proceed to receive nominations for a candidate for vice-president. Adopted.

Mr. Pixley, of California, nominated Elihu B. Washburne, of Illinois. Mr. Robbins presented the name of Marshall Jewell. Mr. Hicks, of Florida, named Thomas Settle. Mr. Houck, of Tennessee, nominated Horace Maynard. Mr. Woodford, of New York, nominated Chester A. Arthur.

Mr. Arthur's nomination was seconded and supported by a majority of the whole of the delegations from Ohio, New Jersey, Illinois, Missouri, Mississippi and Maryland.

Mr. Chambers, of Texas, presented the name of ex-Gov. Davis, of that State.

Members of the delegations from Pennsylvania, Kentucky and other States then announced that they were almost unanimously for Arthur. Florida thereupon withdrew the name of Settle, and Texas that of Davis. The roll was then called for ballot. New York cast sixty-nine for Arthur and one for Washburne. The ballot resulted: Washburne, 193; Jewell, 114; Settle, 1; Maynard, 30; Arthur, 468; Davis, 2; Woodford, 1; Bruce, of Mississippi, 8; Alcorn, of Mississippi, 4.

Mr. Frye, in the chair, said Mr. Arthur had received a majority of the votes cast.

On motion of Mr. Haymond, of California, the nomination of Mr. Arthur was made unanimous.

THE CANDIDATES.

James A. Garfield, of Mentor, Ohio, was born in Orange, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, November 19th, 1831; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts, in 1856; was President of a literary institution for several years; studied and practiced law; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1859-60; entered the Union army in 1861 as colonel of the Forty-Second Ohio Volunteers; was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General January 10th, 1862; was appointed Chief of Staff of the Army of the Cumberland, and was promoted to the rank of Major General, September 20th, 1863; was elected to the Thirty-eighth, Thirty-ninth, Fortieth, Forty-first, Forty-second, Forty-third, Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth Congresses. He was re-elected to the Forty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,166 votes against 7553 votes for Hubbard, Democrat, and 3148 votes for Tuttle, National. He was a member of the Electoral Commission in 1876. At the last session of the Ohio Legislature he was elected United States Senator, to succeed Allen G. Thurman, whose term expires March 4, 1881. Mr. Garfield presented the name of Secretary Sherman to the convention, in an eloquent speech, and subsequently refused the use of his name. His nomination is attributable to a union of Blaine and Sherman men to defeat Gen. Grant. Gen. Garfield is the acknowledged Republican leader in the House of Representatives, and is a scholarly and popular statesman with sound views on finance, tariff and the Chinese questions.

Hon. Chester A. Arthur, of New York, was born Oct. 15, 1830 at Franklin, Vt., and is now in his fiftieth year. When a young lad his parents removed to New York, and he attended school at Greenwich. At the age of 14 he entered Union College, and graduated well up in a class of 18. In a few months he went to the city of New York, and entered the office of E. D. Culver, member of Congress from the first district. Mr. Culver was a leading anti-slavery man, and from him Mr. Arthur imbibed firm Republican sentiments. At the age of 23 he was a delegate to the first Republican convention ever held in the State. When the celebrated Lemon slave case came up, he was selected by the anti-slavery men to defend the fugitive. He was practicing law when, at the beginning of the war, Gov. Morgan appointed him Quartermaster and Inspector General to organize and equip the State militia. He became a Major General of Volunteers and a division commander, and made a good record. He was appointed collector of the port of New York by President Grant in 1871, which position he held until 1878, when he was removed by President Hayes for alleged violation of civil service rules. An investigating committee reported that his office was a model, and no complaint was heard against it. Like Gen. Garfield he is a strong believer in the sovereignty of the Union. He was strongly supported in the convention, is a friend of Senator Conkling, and a prominent personage in New York State politics.

We have received a memorial portrait of Robert Raikes, published by Rev. C. C. Goss, 97 Varick street, New York, from J. C. Nobles, general agent, 7 Barclay street.

Revels called a few days ago and gave us words of good cheer. The Sunday-school centennial at Wesley chapel was a complete success. Dr. C. B. Galloway, of the church South, addressed the school, and he has preached many sermons for us this year. We raised $10.15, and but for the rain, would have collected more."

A. D. Payne, Oxford: "In my charge are five churches, but mostly small, the entire circuit constituting a membership of 156. There are Sabbath-schools in some places doing well; in others there is a lack of competent teachers; but we move on, trusting in the Lord, hoping and praying that the day is not far distant when Shaw University, and similar institutions shall furnish and fill this country with instructors to supply the deficiencies. Then the pure word of God can be disseminated to all of its inhabitants. At our second quarterly, presiding elder J. G. Johnson being absent, Rev. S. A. Cowan presided. He preached for us Sunday with effect. The elder's collection was $9."

Letter from Lonoke.

DEAR EDITOR—I notice an article from R. T. Louis in your issue of May 27 in reference to [illegible] Louis, the lecturer, being [illegible] by two colored men, in which he states that he was [illegible] from the M. E. Church, [illegible] had been speaking [illegible] of our members here. [illegible] and we have a large [illegible] society here. I write to correct a mistake made by Mr. Louis. Madam Louis did not lecture in our church, but in the Baptist church. The people generally regret very much that such a thing occurred in their midst, as this neighborhood is considered one of the most [illegible] ble in this part of the State, and the people seemed to be very favorably impressed with Madam Louis' lecture. Lonoke circuit is in a prosperous condition. Last Sunday at Pleasant Grove I received five into the church. We have had one conversion and have a number who are seeking Christ at every appointment. We are going to hold a circuit camp meeting at that place in August, and we are praying for and expecting a shower of converting and sanctifying grace to fall upon the people. The people love the SOUTHWESTERN.

L. M. LAYTON, Pastor.

Richwoods, Ark., June 4, 1880.

Our Northern brethren have had a good deal of perplexity over the question of the election of a colored bishop. Appreciating the political difficulties of the situation, they have had our sympathies. [illegible] thing to prescribe a theory of action for your neighbor, and [illegible] quite another thing [illegible] yourself.—Nashville Advocate.

[illegible] Condition of the M. E. Church Among the Colored People of the South.

In my last article I showed that the present [illegible] mode of preaching drove the young people from our churches. Old members are found occupying the front seats of the church, young men and women back near the door, and many others are gone to the streets and woods, hunting, playing and profaning the Sabbath.

That our perpetual boisterous preaching, and to untimely hours, drove us out of the towns and cities, leaving them vacant for other denominations who shall come in at a later day. That we have lost [illegible] thousands of our converts for want of properly organizing and instructing them in the doctrines and discipline of our church, and for the want of having [illegible] church accommodations for them, and intelligent officers to take charge of them.

I speak what I know, and testify to what I have seen. We have [illegible] class leaders and trustees, who never had a Discipline of [illegible] church, nor one of our hymn [illegible] our [illegible] not [illegible] I [illegible] preachers [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] people, [illegible] from [illegible] into it. [illegible] that [illegible] members [illegible] for immoral conduct are [illegible] the other churches in good and full standing. The M. E. Church is scriptural. We want them to stick to it, for their chances for salvation are better in it. We have preachers who have been the means of converting hundreds, if not thousands, and never got any [illegible] nor built a church, [illegible] all the time where we [illegible]. The Baptist preachers follow them, and organize them, [illegible]. They, with the [illegible] and C. M. E's, follow [illegible] I have [illegible] By inquiring [illegible] Methodist [illegible] in the M. E. [illegible] came want and suffering on account of having no parsonages, no churches, no trained officers, and of course no trained members. I have seen members who were leaders, stewards and trustees eight or ten years, and did not know what their duties were. So little interest is taken in church property that we frequently have no deeds to it, or very imperfect ones. (The brethren should recollect that Dr. A. J. Kynett, of the Church Extention Society, will furnish good blank deeds to all who will write to him for them.)

On one district several circuits and stations offered to furnish one young man each with provisions and books if they would go to school, but very [illegible] the Conference [illegible] them without. [illegible] back until they go through the conference studies and come up to the conference standard. Young men are entering our conferences who read poorly, cannot spell nor write, and can scarcely count up the number of their members. They are passed through the four years' conference course without having seen [illegible] of the books, or having studied so as to pass an examination in it. Local preachers are asked a few general questions, and are passed along through the four years' course without having seen or read any book but a little in the New Testament. The committees examining for admission into the traveling connection should be more particular. Send the unqualified ones to school instead of sending them to the annual conferences as is now done.

In every Methodist family, among all our converts and among all our Sunday-schools, Methodist books should be circulated. In the present unsettled condition such books as "Fifty Reasons for Being a Methodist," "Methodist Discipline Explained and Defended," "Notes on the 25 Articles of Religion," "Manual of Methodism," etc., should be read. Hundreds of Methodist families are without a book—even a Bible. As many cannot read, our preachers should read them in their houses, and one day in the [illegible].

Our fathers all carried our Methodist books around in their saddle-bags, read them themselves and [illegible] to the people. No [illegible] nor persecutions could drive their members from the Methodist [illegible] now [illegible] with churches more perfectly [illegible] and consolidated; more Methodist books and instruction among our people; more Methodist literature in our Sunday-schools, and more church property and better buildings. [illegible] churches have been used in the country without doors, windows, floors, stoves, or comfortable seats. There is no encouragement to fix old buildings on other people's land. In the towns and cities we ought to have no more box churches. They answered when we first broke the shell of bondage, but now we ought to build good weather-board, brick or rock buildings, and good weather-board parsonages on every circuit and station, to save expense.

"As many as ye shall"—Gospel an invitation to a soul-satisfying feast. Sure retribution to those who mock God's message. The outcasts of the world God invites. Christ furnishes for all a wedding garment.

"And these shall go away"—Either to the right or to the left. We best serve God by helping men. The devil's servants share his punishment.

"Not as I will"—Prayer is the best refuge in trouble. Prayer either succeeds or submits. Be careful not to betray Christ.

"Who his own self bare"—Christ suffered that we might not suffer. He was derided who always blessed. Christ died that we might live.

"Lo, I am with you always"—The risen Christ is worthy of worship. Lying is the refuge of unbelief. The gospel is for all the world.

Haunted Me.

Debt, poverty and suffering haunted me for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did no good. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have been sick a day since; and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost.—A Workingman.

"I wish I was dead," is an expression not unfrequently used by the Dyspeptic and sufferer from Liver disease; the depressed spirits unfitting the mind for anything and almost driving him to despair. Be of good cheer, there is life and health left for you yet. Take Simmons Liver Regulator. It regulates the liver, dispels despondency and restores health. Look well that you get the genuine, prepared by J. H. Zeilin & Co., inclosed in a white wrapper, with a red Z on the front.

The American Book Exchange has sent us Vol. III of the Library Magazine, bound in cloth, containing 1152 pages. In this volume appears "The Light of Asia," by [illegible] Price 60 cents, postage 9 cents. It is a wonderfully cheap and an interesting volume.

THE SALON OF MADAME NECKER. Standard Series. I. K. Funk & Co., New York. Price, 15 cents.

Taken from documents among Archives of Coppet. Collected and edited by her great-grandson, Othenin d' Haussonville. This book has created much interest in France, where it has just issued. Madame Necker, one of the famous women of her age, was the mother of the celebrated Madame de Stael. Her husband was for years the Controller General of Finance, taking a prominent part in the events which ushered in the Reign of Terror. Madame Necker's house was the resort of distinguished writers of the time. This volume is rich with the conversations and correspondence of these great men, never before published. Gibbon, [illegible] engaged to be [illegible] Curchod (the [illegible] Madame Necker), and this engagement was broken. Correspondence is here published, which, it is thought, will reverse the verdict of history on this point. The book has the interest of a novel, yet every word is history.

Cut this out and Save it.

If those persons laboring under disease proceeding from vitiated humors in the blood; causing Ulcers, White Swellings, Coxalgia or Hip Joint Disease, and the class of diseases termed Scrofulous, proceeding from hereditary taints, where the bones are destroyed, defying the usual treatment of physicians, will procure SWAIM'S PANACEA, they will find a remedy which has saved thousands of lives; and thoroughly tested by the late professors Chapman, Dewees and Gibson of the old University of Pennsylvania; besides hundreds of medical men eminent in their profession, continues to be a "forlorn hope" to sufferers worthy of its fifty years' reputation.

SWAIM'S PANACEA is imitated and a preparation sold for it by druggists with a name somewhat similar. Purchasers therefore must be careful and see they get that containing the recommendations of the distinguished professors alluded to. It is seldom advertised in our public papers.

SWAIM'S PANACEA is prepared only at Swaim's Laboratory, 113 South Seventh Street, below Chestnut, Philadelphia.

There are sketches of the prominent men connected with the Massachusetts Company, including Governor Winthrop, Rev. John Cotton, Rev. John White, Roger Clapp and others. One illustration shows a view of the site of Boston before the first house was built; another is a quaint old map of the neighborhood around Boston; another is the drawing of the first church in Boston from 1630 to 1640. There are other articles, replete with information, especially "Modern Jewish Life," which is elaborately illustrated. The serial and short stories are by popular authors; "Be-Be, the Nailmaker's Daughter," is continued, and "Little Hinges" is concluded. There are admirable sketches, essays, etc., by Alfreton Hervey, Herbert Lee, Rev. Mr. Houghton, and other favorite writers. The poems are numerous. A Memorial Service.

To the memory of Mrs. Mary Ann Harvey, an eminent Christian woman and an acknowledged licensed preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church, who, during the last ten years of life did effective work in the cause of her divine Master. Many hundreds now living within the Christian church can trace their first thoughts of reformation to the soul-stirring sermons of this wonderful woman. Mrs. Mary Ann Harvey was loved and respected by all who knew her truly. Christian piety won for her the admiration and respect of thousands who heartily condemned the idea of a woman being called to preach the gospel. Memorial service will take place at the Methodist Episcopal Church in the city of Kosciusko, July 18, 1880, at three o'clock, p. m. The ministry of the Church of Christ and the many friends of the deceased are expected to be present. Fraternally,

PREVENT Yellow Fever

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventative. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventative and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

. . . .

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

[illegible] BROTHER.

[illegible] chickens
[illegible] in a row,
[illegible] little orphans,
Knew not where to go.
Who had killed their mother?
That I can not say;
But I know they found her
At five o'clock that day.

"Peep!" said the eldest,
"Peep!" the others cried,
And to wake their mother
All [illegible] tried.
[illegible] calling,
[illegible] why,
[illegible] moment
Made their own reply.

[illegible]
Tried to hide a tear;
[illegible] mother's farmery
[illegible]
In it placed the chickens,
And above them spread
A [illegible] duster,
[illegible] to bed.

[illegible]
[illegible] and warm,
Underneath the feathers,
Safe from every harm.
There each night they brooded,
Until almost grown;
'Twas the queerest mother
That I have ever known.

Prejudice Kills.

Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best (and some of the worst) physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had poohed at for two years, before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did, on account of prejudice agains so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The Parents.

It is very rare to find ground which produces nothing; if it is not covered with flowers, with fruit trees and greens, it produces briers and pines. It is the same with man—if he is not virtuous he becomes vicious.—Bruyere.

Blancard's PILLS

Weakness, result of too rapid growth in youth, of warm weather or climate, or a vitiated state of the blood; loss of color; various complaints peculiar to females, traceable to a debilitated system; and scrofulous affections, as swelling of the glands, are removed by Blancard's Pills of Iodide and Iron. Iodine is the best alterative known; Iron is necessary to restore the blood to its normal condition. Prescribed by distinguished physicians for 30 years. Sold by all druggists.

YELLOW FEVER.

That this terrible disease has for years held a despotic sway, at certain seasons of the year, in portions of our own fair land, and in other countries, is known by each and every one. As well known is it, that a cure, or even a preventive, has not been heretofore discovered.

Within the past twelve months our National Government has taken hold of the subject, have instituted a Commission composed of men high in the knowledge of sanitary matters and medicine, and have given them full power to devise and institute measures to prevent its recurrence. In their published report, they speak in detail of its action upon a patient after the fever is set in, and yet have little to say of the origin and reason for the existence of so fatal a disease, and still less of the way to prevent it. They say that "In the pathology of Yellow Fever, it has been found by Dr. Blair, and since verified by other observers, that the blood, the breath, vomited matter (at certain periods of the disease) are marked by alkaline, owing to an excess of 'volatile alkali.'" That albumen was found in the urine; that gastric irritation, and coagulation of blood was prevalent. While this "National Board of Health" tells us of the condition of the afflicted one, when down with the fever, they make no suggestions as to a preventive. Seemingly, it is not inappropriate at this time to supplement their report, by asserting that which is known to every intelligent man and woman, that the reason for this fearful scourge is neither more nor less than the malarial poison that emanates from low marshy lands—whether adjacent to salt or fresh water—especially in certain stages of the drying process, under a hot sun; as well are these familiar with the fact, that uncleaned cess-pools, insufficient drainage, unremoved filth of any kind or character, are generators of this same death-dealing miasma. Observations of centuries has made every person, blessed with the least faculty of discernment, acquainted with the effect of this subtle malarial poison. Each and all know that Typhus and Intermittent Fevers are the lesser natural sequences of an inhalation of this poisonous exhalative, and that Yellow Fever is the greater.

It is admitted and definitely understood, that malaria poison is not cognizable by the senses, nor can it be detected by chemical tests. It is known only by its effects upon the system. Alkali in the blood (as made mention of by the National Board of Health,) is a necessary ingredient in maintaining the same in a healthy condition. When an unusually large quantity is present, a diseased condition of the vital fluid is apparent. That this acid is permitted to be in excess is because of an inefficient action of the kidney and liver, and when so in excess, induces inflammation, and brings on a fever of some sort. Yellow Fever is the one secured in places where malaria is present. After a careful reading and study of the Report of the National Board of Health, no other conclusion can be drawn than that if the blood is kept in a healthy condition, the birth, growth and spread of yellow fever is materially lessened, if not actually prevented. It is a matter understood by all and every one, that if the kidney and liver—the organs that filter and cleanse the blood—are kept in a wholesome and sound condition, this same vital fluid will ever be clear from all impurities. That these organs, the kidney and liver, can be kept free from disease, and at all times in condition to well and faithfully perform their duties, is a matter beyond dispute, cavil or argument, and equally it is true, that a free use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, in connection with Warner's Safe Pills, will actually compel these same organs to perform their allotted functions.

Testimonials by the thousands are in the hands of the proprietors of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, vouching for its positive curative qualities in all diseases of kidney and liver, and as a natural consequence, a purifier of the blood. Walking about the streets, in hundreds of our cities and towns, are men, and women too, who have been raised from beds of sickness to perfect health by means of this same medicine. These are occular demonstrations of the efficacy of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The press spontaneously and cordially endorse it. The bench, the bar, the pulpit, men prominent in the counsel of State and Nation, as well as citizens in private life, have their signatures attached to testimonials, affirming the almost miraculous curative powers of this Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and that as a cleanser of the blood, and a preventive of yellow fever, we have no hesitation in offering it to the public.

Some Newspaper Figures.

H. P. Hubbard's Newspaper Directory of the World, says there 10,131 American (United States and Canada) newspapers—899 dailies, 8,[illegible] weeklies, tri-weeklies and semi-weeklies, 804 monthlies and semi-monthlies. The total circulation of a single issue of each of these papers (omitting 1,920 not given), reaches the enormous aggregate of 20,697,548 copies, divided as follows: Dailies, 3,540,160; weeklies, tri-weeklies and semi-weeklies, 13,511,424; monthlies and semi-monthlies, 3,625,958. This is an average of 2,041 to each paper for a single issue, and taking all issues of the whole for one year, a grand total of 1,836,473,568 copies. Taking ordinary forty-lb. newspaper at its average measure of 4,000 sheets (solid) to the foot, one issue of all these piled up would measure 5,170 feet—nearly a mile in height, or for a whole year, 459,119 feet, over 87 miles high. Counting them all at the average size of 27x41 inches, and placed end to end, one issue would extend 70,648,255 feet, or 13,380 miles; for one year, 6,274,618,106 feet, 1,188,374 miles, or over 47 times around the earth, and five times the distance from the earth to the moon. In a thousand ems of type there are nearly 2,000 different pieces, and in an average four-page, eight-column paper, set in solid brevier type, there are 148,000 ems, or about 450 pounds, 296,000 types in one newspaper. To print one issue of the total 10,131 papers of this average size, there must be handled nearly 5,000,000 pounds of type, or 2,988,776,000 types. The total number of editions of all these dailies, weeklies and monthlies for one year would make 724,796, and to print them occasions handling of 2,178,499,849,697,000 types.

In the column of over 6,000 of these 10,000 newspapers, an advertisement can be found, that tells of a medicine that is a safe, sure and certain cure for all and every disease of the kidneys and liver, Bright's disease included, and is known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. Volumes of written evidence testifying as to the value of this medicine, and of the curative qualities of other of Warner's Safe Remedies, are in the hands of H. H. Warner & Co., the proprietors, and can be shown to any doubting mind.

Not Inaugurated March 4th.

Some discussion has been had as to how many Presidents of the United States were inaugurated on other dates than March 4th. Below we append the list of such: George Washington was inaugurated April 30, 1789; James Monroe, second term, March 5, 1821; John Tyler, April 6, 1841; Zachary Taylor, March 5, 1849; Millard Fillmore, July 10, 1850; Andrew Johnson, April 15, 1865; R. B. Hayes, March 5, 1877. The valuable medicine known as "Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure" was inaugurated June 10, 1879. It now governs and regulates the world over, all and every disease of kidney and liver, and reigns with perfect success.

Coming Wheat Crop.

"The Chicago Times published on Saturday 185 special telegrams from eleven Northwestern States, giving an estimate of the yield of winter wheat this year. If the figures are trustworthy, and if reasonably fair weather prevail, the increase of the yield over the large yield of last year will be about sixty per cent. This depends, however, on the weather of the next month, as a severe frost on fields bare of snow might produce disastrous results." Fair weather or foul, Kidney and Liver diseases are ever present. The remedy that cures these is known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Georgia Healthy.

The "Times," Columbus, Ga., has it: "Not a cloud foreshadows the hereafter of Georgia, neither will there be sickness nor suffering so long as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is to be found on sale at all our Drug Stores."

ROBERT RAIKES.

In dear old England, far away,
When throngs of children were astray,
Good Robert Raikes planned Sunday-schools,
A hundred years ago.

Upon the holy Sabbath day
The streets were filled with boys at play,
Which pained the pious heart of Raikes,
A hundred years ago.

Through byway, highway, hedge and lane,
He went, the ragged waifs to gain,
And opened many mission schools,
A hundred years ago.

The children now break holy time,
In every street, in every clime;
Who'll do for them like Robert Raikes,
A hundred years ago?

Let every Christian heart awake;
[illegible] Sunday-schools for Jesus' sake,
[illegible] the honor Robert earned
A hundred years ago.

the Methodist Episcopal Church has a membership of over four hundred thousand, and in that part of our nation in which the chief strength of the latter Church is found, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is establishing her churches and conferences. Thank God, there are now no sectional lines circumscribing any of the Methodisms of America. What the wiping out of these lines may lead to we do not know and need not ask, but the fact that they are wiped out marks the advanced era toward that broad and complete fraternity which God intends shall unite and hold in one with indissoluble bonds of love all the Methodisms of America and of the world.

The Rev. Atticus G. Haygood, D. D., the ministerial fraternal delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, whom I have the honor, Mr. President, to present to you, is a Christian minister widely known throughout the religious world. For nearly six years, as editor of the Sunday-school publications of his church, he did grand service for the Master. As an author he has made valuable additions to the literature of the age, and as the editor of a widely-circulated religious paper, and as president of a college, both of which positions he now occupies, he is exercising a powerful influence for good in the world of thought. Bishop Simpson, it is with great pleasure I now introduce the Rev. Dr. Haygood.

Dr. Haygood said,

Mr. President, Fathers and Brethren: I count it a great privilege to share, with my honored colleague, Dr. Carlisle, of South Carolina, the duty of conveying to the great Church which you represent the Christian salutations of your brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

An occasion like this brings together so many representatives from our Methodist families, planted by the good hand of God in many lands, that we must now say in minutes what might not all be said in hours. Would that words, few or many, could tell you how sincerely the Church which we represent wishes you prosperity in all good things. For you we can repeat the prayer of St. John for his friend Gaius: "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth."

Twice have the representatives of our Church, met in General Conference, received the messages you sent by your fraternal delegations. Their hearts burned within them while they listened to the wise and gracious words of your messengers. Once your Church, in its representatives, has received the fraternal greetings of Southern Methodism. Four years ago your General Conference, at its session in Baltimore, in the Centennial year of the independence of our common country, received with generous warmth two of our most honored brethren, and heard read the fatherly and affectionate letter of the venerable chairman of our delegation, the Rev. Dr. Lovick Pierce, a wise and saintly man, who held in his heart the memories of three generations of Methodists. He lived through the "heroic days" of Methodism; he lived through the period of its more perfect ecclesiastical organization; he lived to see Methodism established on every continent and every chief island of the sea. Last November he died full of faith, of years and of honors, saying of himself in one of his last messages to the Church, "I am just outside the gate of heaven."

May I now say—for it was my privilege and honor to have been much with him from my boyhood, and often with him during the last [illegible] he lingered among us—that [illegible] of fraternity, with all that [illegible] word signifies, helped to [illegible] his declining years very [illegible]; that your response to his [illegible] letter in 1876 cheered and [illegible] him as perhaps no event [illegible] done for fifty years. [Applause.] He [illegible] full of hope and [illegible] of the greater things yet [illegible] through the in-[illegible] of our two-one Methodism [illegible] the world?

[illegible] of our messengers to [illegible] in 1876, the much [illegible] Dr. James A. [illegible] his prime and [illegible] since he [illegible]. The [illegible]

Myers, who bore an important part in the deliberations at Cape May, who, in September, 1876, fell at his post in the city of Savannah, saying to a friend just before the yellow fever stilled his eloquent and truthful tongue, "I am ready, and have been ready a long time."

I have mentioned these names, brethren, that I might say to you at this time; their words were the words of our Church. To all their fraternal and Christian utterances our people said, "Amen." [Applause.]

I am deeply conscious, brethren, that it is not in the power of any words of mine to express to you in a worthy manner the Christian sentiments that such an occasion as this inspires. But fraternity is an affair of the heart and never yet did the heart satisfy itself with words.

Let me say, however, that your brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are not unmindful of your history. They have knowledge of your great achievements in the good cause of Christ. And they share in the blessings and joys of your success. For this cause is one, not only in spirit but in all true interests, however diversified may be its manifestations. What is true of the universal Church is especially true of Methodism to Methodists; the whole is interested in each of the parts, as the least member is interested in the health and peace and prosperity of the whole body. When we hear that God has blessed the work of our fellow-laborers of other denominations, whether at home or abroad, whether in the great cities of our own country or in the most remote and obscure of mission-stations in heathen lands, we rejoice with them. For we are all truly one in Christ Jesus, and none can be blest of him and any—the very least of the tribes of Israel—be unblest. But we are not lacking in true catholicity of feeling when we say that Methodists everywhere have especial delight in the good done by the hands of Methodists anywhere.

Therefore, when we hear of the prosperity of your Church we are glad, and anew thank God for the man called John Wesley, and for "the people called Methodists."

We have been profoundly interested, not only in your general prosperity, but in special manifestations of your Christian zeal and enterprise. I believe I will say, also, of your Christian courage.

It would not become me to set in order before you the statistics of your Christian work. But I may mention, with propriety, some things that have impressed your brethren of our Church. They have observed, with interest and pleasure, the great success of your publishing enterprises. Your success in this direction has not excited our envy, but it has provoked our zeal in the good work of seeking to furnish our people with Christian literature. We have observed with much satisfaction how wisely and vigorously you have taken hold of the great and delicate problem of Christian education. Here, too, your example will do us good. Church-extension schemes have excited deep interest among us, and started many questions as to what we can do in this line of things. Your great work, through the agency of the Freedmen's Aid Society, we recognize and appreciate.

But, Mr. President, if I am not much mistaken, your enlightened zeal and your far-reaching enterprise in the work of foreign missions have excited among us the deepest interest. Methodism is, indeed, a grand missionary system. Its founder was a missionary. Far more for us of to-day, counting our hosts by millions, than for our revered founder himself, are the truth and inspiration that belong to his motto: "The world is my parish." Your Church seems about to try very boldly the experiment of realizing the prophecy that was in the words of Mr. Wesley.

But I am sure, my brethren, that the world, small as the scientific people say it is, is still a very large world, and that there is not only room enough but work enough for all the many branches of our Methodist family. Your Southern brethren are not afraid that you will do all the work there is to be done, leaving them only to sit down and weep that they have not an obscure province to conquer for Christ. For, Mr. President, the evangelization of the world is a very large affair. Hardly anybody knows [illegible] is, and yet we are [illegible] there are more than twelve hundred millions of people that live upon this earth. The majority of them know not Christ. I am told that there are still portions of our globe, as in some of the interior provinces of China, where there are not two preachers to each million of people; that there are others, as in the interior of Africa, where there are millions of human beings who have never so much as heard whether there be a Christ or a Holy Ghost. Upon the work of the world's evangelization, the Church is just entering. It has not been long, measuring time by the life-time of nations and of Churches, since William Carey proposed at Northampton to discuss the question, "Whether it is not the duty of the Church to attempt the conversion of the heathen." We have gotten beyond that question, Mr. President. We may now discuss the question, "Whether a Church that does not attempt the conversion of the heathen can continue to exist." [Applause.] It has not been very long since we began to think seriously of our duty to the heathen. Not yet have we entered upon the vast work of converting them. The missionary fire burns high in some hearts in all the Churches that are in the succession of Christ and of the apostles, but the divine impulse has not yet moved the great mass of Christian people. When it does, instead of going by ones and twos, they will march by regiments upon the heathen world.

I have spoken in terms of sincere admiration of the zeal of your Church in the work of foreign missions. Mr. President, I will add this word: Numbering nearly two millions, with your great wealth, with your facilities, with your opportunities, you ought to do great things for the heathen; you ought to lead the world in this, the grandest work of any age; the work of giving the Gospel of the Son of God to those that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death. [Applause.] I cannot doubt that many of you feel profoundly the responsibility of this great duty, the duty of preaching "Jesus and the resurrection" to the many millions that are waiting and watching for our coming in China, in Japan, in India, in that marvelous and mysterious Africa that God is so strangely opening up to the faith and love of his children, and in all lands that know not the Lord.

But I must tell you something of the state and work of the Church which we have the honor to represent to this General Conference. We also have reason to "thank God and take courage."

Mr. President, your brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are Methodists in deed and in truth. Whatever is peculiar to Methodist doctrines we preach with all the ability that God gives us. Notwithstanding the wide swing of a recent indictment of the entire Southern pulpit, evolved from the consciousness of a distinguished and eloquent Chicago lecturer, you will permit me to say, the Gospel, the old-fashioned Gospel, is still "the power of God unto salvation," as it is preached throughout the length and breadth of our Southern land. Whatever is peculiar in the modes, manifestations or degrees of Methodist religious experience, is realized and exemplified among our people.

The power and spirit of a true Methodist itinerancy are in our preachers. In every city, town and village, in every county and parish of our States of which I have any knowledge, our itinerants, nobly aided by our local preachers, proclaim a full and free salvation. On the mountains, in the wire grass, on the Atlantic coasts, across the continent to the Golden State, in our largest cities and in our sparsest settlements, in the Indian Territory and on the border of Mexico, our itinerants rejoice in their vocation of self-denial and Gospel proclamation for the sake of Christ and souls.

Pardon me, Mr. President, for our seeming boasting. At family reunions we are always glad to hear of the prosperity of our brothers and of those we love. I am sure you will be glad to hear how the Lord has dealt with us, and that you will rejoice with us that he has prospered the work of our hands. Magnify, my brethren, the grace of God in us. You are not alone in your growth in numbers and in grace.

In 1866 we numbered, all told, 505,101, of whom 419,404 were white members; the minutes for the year 1879 showed a total of 830,-126, all of whom are whites except 6,125. God has helped us mightily, and we have nearly doubled our numbers in fourteen years. Last year our net increase was 31,364.

In most of our conferences the increase of our membership has been many times greater than the increase of our population. Even in Texas we have kept pace with the increase of population. In one of the Texas conferences we last year received over 5,000 members.

God's blessing upon our labors manifests itself in many ways that will interest and encourage you as sharers of our toils and rewards. There is a manifest quickening of the zeal of our Church as to all those great enterprises to which all enlightened Churches are, in this day, committed.

Our Sunday-school work is steadily growing, not only in the number of children and young people that attend the schools, but in the thoroughness of instruction and in fullness of spiritual results. Our church is also waking up to her duty in the work of sanctified learning. We are beginning to realize our educational function. We are far behind you in the matter of college endowments, but even here we have begun to do something. We have 14 male colleges, 33 female colleges, and nearly 50 district schools, under the care and patronage of the Church. We have one thoroughly organized and equipped university, embracing all the departments. That it was built and endowed, for the most part, by the broad-minded liberality of a citizen of New York, does not make us love you any the less. [Great Applause.]

But far more important than these statistical statements is this: Everywhere the masses of our people are awaking to the value, not of education only, but of education baptized by divine grace. Very deep is the conviction in the heart of our Church that learning and religion must go hand in hand. Very deep also, is the conviction of the danger of a godless culture.

Our publishing interests which have suffered many reverses, are, I am glad to say to you, being not only disentangled, but placed upon a firm and productive business basis. Our large debt of three hundred thousand dollars has been "placed" in long-time four per cent bonds. The business of the house is conducted on a cash basis; the management buys nothing on a credit. It makes no debts, and does not owe a dollar on account of business transacted since June 1, 1878. [Applause.] The business of the house is constantly increasing and there is every reason to believe that it will continue to increase from year to year. Be assured, brethren, our Church will bring no financial dishonor upon Methodism. [Applause.] It will pay every dollar of its publishing house debt, as it paid every dollar of its mission debt. [Applause.]

The dozen or more papers published in the interests of our Church are extending their circulation, and growing in power and usefulness.

It may be mentioned with propriety, also, that there is a great and wide-spread building revival among us. The improvement in our business interests has brought invigoration to all our Church finances. Our lands have brought forth plentifully, our great staples have brought good prices, and our people have made haste to divide their money with the Church. Throughout our connection there is a zeal for building churches and parsonages we never saw before.

Our conference collections for the aid of our superannuated preachers, and of the widows and orphans of those who have died in the work, are larger than heretofore. Our preachers are better paid, our Sunday-schools are better furnished, our poor better cared for than ever in our history.

I rejoice to tell you that our Church is taking some advanced steps in the work of foreign missions. We are far from doing what we ought to do; we are not yet doing what we soon will do. But we have made notable progress during the last few years. For a long time our Church occupied itself for the most part, so far as mission work was concerned, in preaching to the negroes upon the plantations. That work God owned and blessed in a most extraordinary manner. Less than twenty years ago there were nearly a quarter of a million of colored people in the community of our Church. Hundreds of our preachers were constantly employed in preaching to them. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were expended upon this part of our work. There is not a bishop in our college who has not sustained pastoral relations to the colored people, and there is hardly a preacher among us forty years old and upwards, who has not, as pastor, preached to them, and enjoyed religion with them.

Surely we ought to have done more for foreign missions. But you will rejoice to hear of the progress we are now making. Ten years ago we had in the whole foreign field but two missionaries and their wives. At that period all our aggressive plans were hindered by the incubus of debt. That paid, we began to move forward. We have now missions in China, in Brazil, in Mexico, among the Germans in Texas, among certain Romish French populations in Louisiana and among the Indians. In China we have 5 white male missionaries and 9 native preachers; in the City of Mexico 1 missionary and 13 native preachers; on the Mexican border we have 2 American missionaries and 13 native preachers. In Brazil we have 2 missionaries. We have an Indian conference with 25 traveling preachers and 108 local preachers. Among the Germans in Texas we have a regularly organized annual conference with 21 traveling and 16 local preachers.

It should be mentioned in this connection that the good women of our Church are moving in the work of foreign missions. Two years ago the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was organized. Our sisters have taken the work seriously in hand. While their statistics are not comparable to the imposing array of the older societies, still they have wrought famously. They have effected vigorous organizations in twenty-six of our annual conferences. Last year, their second year, they raised thirteen thousand dollars. They have three representatives in China, and will in due time send more.

Within the next ten years we shall, there is every reason to believe, quadruple our missionary force in that foreign field. Never, Mr. President, as now, have our people been moved on the subject of their obligation to Christ to give the Gospel to the heathen. As indicating the character of this increased interest, I may mention, among other interesting facts, that in the present senior class of Emory College, Georgia, there are three young men now under appointment to China. Another in the same institution awaits his graduation to take a foreign appointment under the direction of our board. Another, a graduate of three years, and a son of one of our leading preachers, has been accepted by the board for foreign service. I am informed of a profound interest on this subject in other of our Church colleges. Individuals have of late been moved to give larger sums than have been common among us. One brother built a beautiful church in Shanghai, that was visited last December, a few days after its dedication, with an old-fashioned Methodist revival. Another is building a church and mission school-house in Suchow.

Our delinquencies, Mr. President, forbid boasting—were we inclined to that small vanity—but in the knowledge of large improvement, and in the consciousness of greater zeal, we are much encouraged. It is Methodistic to give thanks for "growing in grace."

As our Church has made some notable changes in its working economy during the last fourteen years, it may not be out of place to inform you briefly of some results of our experiment. I may safely say that it is almost the universal judgment of our preachers and laymen, that the results, after faithful trial, justify the wisdom of our leaders, who, in 1866, with true faith and courage, made such changes in our polity as Providence seemed to indicate.

The most important of these changes was the introduction of lay representation in all of our conferences. It was really a notable thing that the itinerant preachers who, from the beginning, had held in their own hands the entire legislative power of the Church, should, on their own motion, have surrendered one-half of it to their lay brethren. I say "on their own motion," for the laymen had not asked this surrender. It was not preceded by agitations. There were a few newspaper discussions, conducted almost exclusively by the traveling preachers.

Some good and wise men feared at the beginning that the laymen, in equal numbers in our General Conference, would be over-much given to experiments in Church legislation. The results have certainly reversed these judgments. It is a matter of common remark among us that the laymen in the General Conference are so very conservative—so jealous for the "original John Wesley Methodism"—that they have allowed the preachers but small margin for trying their own pet schemes, of what they think may be progress. [Applause.]

Indeed, in 1870, at their first General Conference, the laymen came very near putting the pastoral term back to two years. [Applause.]

We are persuaded, Mr. President, that lay representation has brought a great blessing to our Church. It is obvious to all informed persons among us that our lay brethren, appearing in all our conferences and participating in the business of the Church, have become better informed on all questions that concern the welfare of the Church. Better knowledge of the Church, its work, its plans, its methods and its needs, has developed in them a deeper interest in all its enterprises. It has quickened their zeal, increased their faith, and enlarged their liberality in the support of all the institutions of the Church. Another very gracious result I mention: the laymen have responded to the confidence reposed in them by more love for their pastors. Indeed, Mr. President, we make no question that lay representation in our Church has been "a means of grace" to our lay brethren; it has improved their personal piety. And this deeper, broader, and stronger religious life among the laymen has reacted upon the preachers. They also have had an upward movement.

Before closing this address, I may add that our people have looked forward to this General Conference with deep interest, not only because it is in itself a most important and influential assemblage of Christian men, met to consider of affairs vital to the Church, but chiefly because here and now, the first practical steps are to be taken for bringing about an Ecumenical Conference of Universal Methodism. [Applause.]

It is a grand conception, Mr. President, that honors the heart and mind that first suggested it. It will honor, also, the hearts and minds of those who, under God, may so guide the development of this great idea as to realize the large possibilities that this scheme involves.

Let this greater conference be held. Let representatives—the wisest and holiest of them all—be present from every Methodist family in the world. And this conference, my brethren, will be held. As great a thought as this, of a Pan-Methodist Conference that may confer, in brotherly love and confidence, in the spirit of mutual helpfulness, concerning all the interests of Methodism, and that, so conferring, must help forward all these interests—a thought as great as this, with so much wisdom and faith and Christian love in it, was not born to die.

Such a conference might, as it seems to me, bring to each one of our Methodisms the momentum of the whole body; might impart to each the larger views and higher inspirations of the whole confederation, but would, at the same time, preserve intact the autonomy of each, thus leaving each one of the Methodist household to fulfill, without hinderance, its providential mission to the world.

We trust that this General Conference will devise and accomplish many wise and excellent things for the Church; that it will be long remembered for the blessings that followed it; but will not its relations to Ecumenical Methodism give it its chief historic glory and importance? I cannot doubt that in every country where Methodism has a foothold, there are ascending prayers for the divine blessing upon the deliberations to be had in this city, preliminary to the assembling of a Pan-Methodist Conference that will consider of the affairs of universal Methodism, and of the greater affairs of our common Christianity.

The Colored Bishop Question.

The General Conference did not elect a bishop of African descent. There exists a wide-spread feeling among the colored membership of the church and others that the election of such a bishop would be wise. That there should be some disappointment over the result is not at all strange; but there is no wide-spread dissatisfaction. A few men here and there who were personally ambitious, or had not considered the question in all its bearings, may feel keenly over the matter and say some foolish things. We have confidence in the average judgment of our colored membership, and feel sure that the spirit of the old Mother Church toward them, can ever be misunderstood, or that her work in behalf of them and their people can ever fail of appreciation.

There was no Bishop of African descent elected, because there appeared no such man, on whom the colored brethren themselves would unite and urge as in their judgment fully and well qualified for the office. In spite of this, about seventy-five votes were cast for colored men when the bishops were elected. We know from remarks made by many prominent men of the Conference that there were enough votes to elect a colored bishop, could a man have been brought forward by the colored brethren whom they themselves had felt was fully qualified. And this very fact indicates the correctness of our remark, touching the average judgment of our colored membership. The colored people do not want a colored bishop simply because of his complexion. Neither do they want a Bishop from their people to be elected and hid away in the swamps of Africa. If it was the policy of the Church to elect missionary Bishops, the question of a colored Bishop for Africa could be properly entertained. Neither do the colored people want a colored Bishop to preside over colored conferences merely. Every one understands that this would be but the first step toward another Colored Methodist Church. A few ambitious preachers may want this end are ready to listen to the arguments of white-liners who want to drive our colored people from us. But the mass of our colored preachers and people are sound to the core in their loyalty and devotion to the Church. Our thoughtful colored brethren know that in no parts of the work of the Church is better episcopal supervision demanded than among our colored people. Older Conferences could do without a Bishop occasionally, while among her poorer and weaker children the Church must always send her very best help and superintendence.

The way in which the question touching the election of a colored Bishop came before the General Conference was unfortunate. The Committee on Episcopacy asked that a Bishop of African descent be elected, and so the matter came before that body in a resolution asking that such a Bishop be elected. Such a proceeding was both unusual and contrary to the constitutional ideas controling deliberative bodies. No deliberative body can by resolution control the votes of its individual members. When the time came for voting for bishops each delegate had the right to vote as he desired. Any attempt to force the election of a colored bishop upon the General Conference, until it of its own free will sees the way clear, only embarrasses and hinders the good cause. The indefinite postponement of the proposition from the Committee on the Episcopacy was to have been expected. The wise action to have been taken would have been to have practically reaffirmed the actions of 1876 and 1872, that there is nothing in race, color or previous condition to prevent any man being elected to the Episcopacy. This would have [illegible] what we are sure was the real sentiment of the Conference.

The Methodist Episcopal Church [illegible] elect a bishop simply because he is colored, or because he [illegible], while she retains her [illegible] general superintendency; [illegible] our colored people or [illegible] people want to be put half [illegible] of the Church by having [illegible] to them Bishops who can[not] be superintendents of the whole Church. We have advocated the [illegible] of both colored and German [illegible], and will continue to [illegible] not irrespective of quali[fications].

Help Shaw University.

Shaw University, at Holly Springs, Miss., has just closed a grand year's work. President Hooper remains at Holly Springs during the vacation to push the completion of improvements to the buildings. Read the following account of the commencement exercises and send on what you can to complete the new building:

The annual examination of classes in Shaw University began Tuesday, May 25, and closed Monday, May 31. On Sunday morning, May 30, the students' love-feast took place in Asbury Chapel. The remarks made, and the spirit manifested, showed that a deep work of grace had been in progress among the students during the year, and the majority of those who spoke seemed to believe that the influences brought to bear upon them in the University were the means of bringing them into the church. At three o'clock in the afternoon the church was crowded with an intelligent audience, eager to listen to the annual sermon, which was delivered by Rev. R. S. Rust, D.D, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The Doctor took for his theme "The Love of God," and in a clear and forcible manner illustrated the different ways in which God has manifested his love to man. Although the day was very warm, and the house crowded, the most perfect attention was given throughout the entire discourse, and the universal verdict was, "A grand sermon." On Monday afternoon a meeting of the board of trustees was held in the college building, and besides other business transacted, the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. Wm. Earnshaw, of Dayton, Ohio. The following communication from Judge Watson was received by the board, and as the writer is well known and very much loved and honored throughout the State, it was ordered to be printed in the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE.

To the friends of Shaw University:

I am sincerely the friend of your school. I regard it as about the best high school in the State for our colored population. I am fully satisfied that President Hooper is eminently qualified for his position, and from my personal observation and knowledge, I believe that he is doing a great and good work in the cause which he has greatly at heart—the advancement and elevation of our colored population. I wish I were able to do a great deal for you; but my inability must control my feelings. I will pay $20 toward your contemplated improvements whenever it may be needed. Most respectfully, JOHN W. C. WATSON.

On Monday night a literary entertainment was given by the school in the Masonic Hall. The exercises were varied and interesting, and many of those on duty received great praise from visitors present.

Tuesday morning the college chapel was filled with students to listen to the reading of their grades in scholarship and deportment and to remarks from visitors present. A very earnest and appropriate address was delivered by Dr. Rust, beautifully illustrated by incidents from his own experience and observation. The Doctor has made us many visits all of which, though brief, we have very much enjoyed and appreciated, but during this last he seemed to especially endear himself to all.

Some interesting remarks were made by Bro. Ben. Black, who was followed by Rev. J. G. Johnson, Presiding Elder of the Holly Springs district. The Elder introduced a series of resolutions setting forth the relation of each student to the University and his obligations to labor in its behalf, and his remarks upon these were pointed and forcible. He held that the people of Mississippi ought not to ask of the Freedmen's Aid Society anything more than the support of teachers in the University; that the new building in contemplation should be erected by the people for whose immediate benefit it is needed. His resolutions and remarks received a hearty endorsement by the students.

On Tuesday night the annual exercises of the literary societies were held in the college chapel and were very much enjoyed by all.

On Wednesday night the students held their annual sociable in the college building which was a pleasant occasion after a year of hard labor.

The results of the year's work were very gratifying both to teachers and pupils as well as to the visitors. The institution has never before had so large an attendance nor more thorough work on the part of its students. During a portion of the year it was almost impossible to accommodate all those wishing to attend, and the promises for next year are a very great increase of students over this year. It is therefore sincerely to be hoped that those interested in our school will act promptly and vigorously in raising and forwarding means for the new building so that it may be begun at an early date.

All moneys sent, for this purpose, to W. W. Hooper, Secretary of [illegible], will be receipted [illegible] the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Exodus.

In the United States Senate June 1, Secretary Vance submitted a majority report, signed by the Democratic members of the Senate Exodus Committee. Here is a telegraphic synopsis:

We think it clearly established, from the testimony, that the following may be said to be the causes which induced this migration of colored people from various portions of the South to Northern States, chiefly Kansas and Indiana. The exodus to Indiana was undoubtedly induced in a great degree by Northern politicians and negro leaders in their employ and in the employ of railroad lines. Particular examination into the condition of the colored men of North Carolina showed that the causes of discontent among the colored people could not have arisen from any deprivation of their political rights or any hardship in their condition. It showed an average compensation in that State quite equal if not better than the average in any Northern State to which the exodites were going. The closest scrutiny could detect no outrage or violence inflicted upon their political rights in North Carolina. It also was shown that there existed societies in Washington City and in Western cities to promote the exodus. Every member and friend of these societies were Republicans, whose object in promoting it was surely political, hoping to remove a sufficient number of blacks from the South to where their votes could aid in turning the scale in close States in favor of the Republican party.

Questions of wages, rents and the share system of cultivating lands were inquired into in all the Southern States, and the fact ascertained that the rates of compensation received by the colored people were about as liberal as in North Carolina. With regard to landlord and tenant laws in the various Southern States and the system growing out of them, adopted by many planters, for furnishing supplies to their tenants and laborers, the committee find they were urgently called for by the circumstances in which the South found itself after the war. The universal adoption of homestead and personal property exemption laws deprived poor men of credit, and the landlord class, for its own protection, procured the passage of these laws. As to alleged extortion by landlords and country merchants in the South who furnished supplies to laborers and tenants, the committee admit they found that frequently bad and dishonest men would take advantage of the ignorance or necessity of negroes and exact exorbitant prices, but in justice to the planters of the South they felt bound to assert that this abuse is not at all general or frequent.

On the subject of the mistreatment of blacks in Southern courts of justice, the committee say they have ascertained that in many districts the courts were under entire Republican control, and that generally there was as many complaints from such districts as from districts under control of Democratic officers. Taken altogether, the complaints might be said to be such as are generally made by the ignorant, who fail to receive in courts what they think is justice.

The educational advantages of the South, the committee say, are insufficient, and far inferior to those of most of the Northern States, but such as they are the same facilities are afforded to blacks as to whites.

With regard to political outrages, which, the committee say, have formed the staple of complaint for many years against the people of the South, they find nothing new. Many old stories are revived by zealous witnesses, few of whom ventured to say that any considerable violence or outrage had been exhibited toward the colored people of the South within the past few years, and still fewer of those who testified on this subject testified to anything happening within their knowledge. Their evidence, with rare exceptions, was all hearsay.

In conclusion, the committee expresses the positive opinion that the condition of the colored people of the South is not only as good as could have reasonably been expected, but is better than if large communities had been transferred to a colder and more inhospitable climate, thus thrusting them into competion with a different system of labor; and while gradual migration might benefit the individual black man and his family, as it does those of the whites, the committee regard this wholesale attempt to transfer a people without intelligence from the homes of their nativity as injurious to the people and labor system of the States where they go, and more than all injurious to the last degree to the black people themselves. That there is much in their condition in the South, the committee say, to be deplored, no one will deny; that their condition is gradually improving in every respect is really true. Clashings, the committee say, between the two races is neither to be denied nor wondered at, but when we come to the consideration of the method in which these people were freed as the result of a bitter and desolating civil war, and that for purposes of party politics, these incompetent, ignorant, landless, homeless people, without any qualification of citizenship; without any of the ties of property or the obligations of education, were suddenly thrown into political power, and the effort was made not only to place them upon an equality with their late masters, but to absolutely place them in front and hold them there by legislation, by military force and by every other means that could possibly be resorted to; when we consider these things, no philosophical mind can behold their present condition and the present comparative state of peace and amity between the two races without wonder that their condition is as good as it is.

The signers of the above report are Senators Vance, of North Carolina; Voorhies, of Indiana; and Pendleton, of Ohio. Of Senator Vance it may be said that as an ex-Confederate General and a representative of the bulldozing element of his State, his signature was to be expected. As to Senator Voorhies, during the war he was under military surveillance because of his ardent Confederate sympathies. Senator Pendleton was the candidate for Vice-President on the ticket that during the darkest hours of the war, declared it to be a failure, and thus performed great service for the Confederacy. These gentlemen, charged with the preparation of a campaign document, have acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of those whom they served. The report would have been stronger in a partisan sense had it been signed by one or two Senators from a Northern State, less known for their disloyal prochivities during the war; yet it will be noticed that it admits and seeks to palliate some of the grievances of the blacks.

In the Senate, on the 16th inst., Senator Windom, of Minnesota, presented the minority report of the Exodus Committee. In the opinion of the minority there is no evidence to show that the Republican party directly or indirectly encouraged the exodus of the blacks from the Southern States. The aid societies which helped on the migration were purely charitable and had no connection whatever with any political movement. The prime cause of the exodus was the ill-treatment of the blacks in the South, and the only way to stop it is to treat the negroes fairly. The report is signed by Senators Windom and Blair.

Our readers know the causes of the exodus full well, and they will judge for themselves as to which of the above is the correct report.

It is the opinion of Zion's Herald, concerning the vexed question of what amusements are lawful to a Christian, there is no better rule than the following given to Wesley by his mother: "Would you judge of the lawfulness or unlawfulness of pleasure, of the innocence or malignity of acting, take this rule: Whatever weakens your reason, impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your sense of God, or takes off the relish of spiritual things — in short, whatever increases the strength and authority of the body over the mind, that thing is sin to you, however innocent it may be in itself."

Bishop Scott wrote a note to Harris: "The Conference maintained its reputation for sound Methodistic common sense to the last. I am better, but feeble and dizzy. The Lord be with you."

—In the matter of the contest, by relatives, of the will of Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey, testimony was taken in the Second District Court of this city. Jefferson Davis on the stand stated that he knew nothing of the intentions of Mrs. Dorsey to make him her heir until the instrument was opened. The lady had been his friend and the friend of his family for years, and for some time acted as amanuensis for him. She was a great believer in the Confederacy, which, though defeated, she thought would yet live and triumph. He did not know that Mrs. Dorsey had any morbid sense or hallucination that she was dying, and considered her a woman of extraordinary courage and great intellect, which never became impaired.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Geo. Washington, Terrebonne: "My protracted meeting closed with 13 converts and 12 on probation."

W. P. Forest, Baton Rouge: "Decoration Day was observed by the Sunday-school, with a collection of $3 35."

W. P. Forest, Baton Rouge: "Sunday-school centennial was a glorious time, 159 present. Several ministers spoke, and it was the greatest time we ever had with the children in this city."

Rev. Levi Johnson, of Shady Grove Circuit, in Washington parish, reports that he is being prospered in his work. At Shady Grove a new frame church is being built, 30 feet wide and 40 feet long. At another point of the circuit a church 15x30 feet is being built. The people turn out in large numbers, and the Sunday-schools are doing well. The pastor walks 240 miles each month in doing his work. He needs a horse and we hope the people will be able to get him one. The church at Indian Village is being completed.

Rev. L. Johnson, Shady Grove: "Our quarterly meeting was held Sunday, June 13. The absence of Presiding Elder Dale was a disappointment. There are five Sunday-schools on the circuit. Members joined, 21. We are building a new church between Indian Village and Bogue Chitto. I travel each month 240 miles. The centennial was duly observed, and $8 raised. All our leading Sunday-school workers participated."

MISSISSIPPI.

R. Johnson, superintendent of Shubuta Sunday-school, writes that the centennial programme was carried out successfully, and that Rev. M. Adams spoke of Robert Raikes.

Rev. G. Brooks, Meridian: "On centennial day we raised $10 for the Sunday-school Union. We could not observe Children's Day at the time appointed, but will do so at an early date."

P. Jamison, Macon: "I closed my protracted meeting last night. The good Lord was with us; fifty-one accessions to the church—probationers, 17; converts, 26; by letter, 8. Our Sunday-school is doing well."

J. Medlock, Ripley: "My wife and I are well pleased with our pastor, Rev. L. R. Brown. He is respected by all, and is a noble worker in the Sunday-school. We have a fine choir, led by Prof. J. N. James."

P. H. Hill, Attala: "At our quarterly conference Elder Johnson presided, and was listened to by an appreciative congregation. In class meeting four were received. We have bought and paid for a church lot, and built a new church. There are four churches on my work, from 10 to 15 miles apart."

R. Anderson, Ricks circuit: "Our second quarterly conference was held on the 29th and 30th of May. Our presiding elder was with us and he preached acceptably and administered the Lord's Supper to 56. Collected for Elder D. A. Williams $9 50. Members received this quarter, 9; accessions to the church, 60; children baptized, 2."

Jas. Ellis, Roebuck: "At our basket meeting, May 1, we took up $37. Bros. S. Harris, G. Young, S. Cannon, G. Robert and H. Bradbury were with me. On the 9th, at St. Paul's $18.80 was taken up. I was assisted by Revs. E. Coldman and S. Harris. Elder L. Bradford held our quarter, and preached a good sermon. We gave him $10. Basket meeting was held at Minter City, May 30."

J. C. Walker, Moss Point: "As the pastor is very sick and unable to discharge the duty, I write you about our observance of the Centennial. Our school teacher, Bro. Fisher, delivered a very interesting discourse on Robert Raikes. A collection of $6 35 was taken. Our Centennial was a perfect success. Sisters decorated the church, and as we have had much rain, prayed for a clear day. There were many clouds, but not a drop of rain."

G. W. Barney, Yazoo City: "I found the church $900 in debt, but have been praying and working. The deed was corrected. We are going to work on our new church again. We asked the people for $75, and we put down the flooring with it. Last week the choir went to work and raised $26. Last Sunday night $116 was taken up to put in the windows and doors. The children were well pleased with the centennial service. We expect to get into the church the last of the month."

O. Gillespie, Macon: "The first quarterly Conference on the Ex-Prairie Circuit was held on the 24th and 25th of April. Our worthy Elder, J. W. Dunn, was with us. The Lord's Supper was administered to about 145; Elder's collection, $13.50. Our Sabbath-schools on the work are doing well. On account of the inclemency of the weather the Love feast was postponed for about one week, and we witnessed an outpouring of the Holy Ghost."

TENNESSEE.

T. Woods, Memphis: "I left here April 26, to see my children in Nashville, and returned June 2. I found work in a prosperous condition under the leadership of Bro. A. P. Porter, whom I left in charge."

D. Cook, Dickson: "Centennial day will long be remembered by our little folks. The school has grown from 12 to 40 pupils. There was a large attendance. Rev. M. F. Womach and Bros. McComb and Lovell were present. They addressed the school after which the collection for Sunday-school Union was taken, $2.26."

J. B. Bradford, Martin: "Sunday May 30, was a grand day at our church. At both services we could scarcely find seats for the people. Collection $8 65. The people see the good being done them by the old church. I have seated the church, built a new pulpit, bought a bell, had 1000 feet of lumber sawed, raised $30 and added seven to the church. Day is breaking."

TEXAS.

P. Gates, San Antonio: "The church will be out of debt in ten days. Will settle up everything with the Church Extension Board."

J. Smith, Huntsville: "Centennial day was observed. Collection $5.00. Since last quarter I have been hard at work trying to improve the church. A festival realized $51 60."

L. W. Woodward, Blossom Prairie: "In protracted meeting received 10 converts, and 8 on probation. May 30 preached to the children. Collected $20.88 for the Sunday-school Union."

J. W. Anderson, Mission Valley: "Sabbath-school is going on nicely here; 75 visitors were present at our meeting. It was decided that Miss Dicey Anderson should have the prize book of the first class; the second was awarded to Matterson Gafford."

W. H. Moseley, Lavernia: "I have been home to my family who were sick two months, but am now on my work. I have four appointments and have preached at all. Elder Mack Henson is beloved by the people. Have had 8 converts, 7 on probation. Bro. Richardson says he was on my work and the people did not know that he was coming. I told all in the presence of the elder that my people were very poor, and as farmers had not made their bread, I hope the brethren will not think that I don't care for the school."

Letter from Holly Springs.

MR. EDITOR—The first district conference for the Holly Springs district, Mississippi Conference, for the year 1880, met at Oxford, June 3, 1880. The presiding elder, Rev. J. G. Johnson, presided with his usual acceptability. Reports from the presiding elder, pastors, local preachers and Sunday-school superintendents showed the spiritual condition of the district, as well as the temporal, to be in a healthful state of prosperity. The character of the local preachers and exhorters was closely scrutinized, and the conference voted not to renew any more licenses of local preachers and exhorters that failed to attend the district conference, unless they informed their preacher in charge of their inability to attend, or send a written statement to the district conference of their work. The cause of education received attention.

Elder Johnson made a most eloquent speech upon education, and of the much needed additional building at Shaw University, whereupon Rev. A. M. Trotter offered the following resolution, which was adopted by a unanimous rising vote:

WHEREAS, The educational interests of the Mississippi Conference and of the entire South, as regards our race, are now and should be depending on the manly efforts of the membership of the church; and,

WHEREAS, Shaw University only needs an additional building to accommodate all the children knocking at the door for entrance; therefore,

Resolved, By this conference that each minister and other member of this conference go from here with new zeal and determination to raise our part of the $5,000 that was pledged by the last annual conference forthwith.

By consent, Rev. R. O'Neal, a member of the Baptist Church in Oxford, offered a resolution relating to education, which was adopted. Brother O'Neal thought that the resolution offered by A. M. Trotter should be published in the SOUTHWESTERN, and each minister be furnished with a copy; and that they be empowered to lecture among other denominations, as we think it is time for all our people to help. He expected to send his children to Shaw University next year. A collection was taken up to get a few copies of the SOUTHWESTERN containing the action of this meeting, to distribute among our Baptist brethren and friends. Our Baptist brethren and friends should have an opportunity of contributing whatever amount they desire. I am sure that it will be duly appreciated.

The next district conference was appointed to be held at Kosciusko.

Letter from Aberdeen.

ABERDEEN, Miss., May 31, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Our work is progressing finely. We have just closed a protracted meeting, in which there were 18 conversions and 32 accessions to the church, and a great awakening generally. There were sometimes as high as 115 mourners at the altar for prayer. Baptism was administered to 15 adults and 14 children on last Sunday, in the presence of 700 persons. Rev. Mr. Scruggs, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, and Rev. Mr. Lowry, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, assisted us in our meeting. Our Sunday-school is doing well under the supervision of F. G. Bumpass and an able corps of teachers. The majority of those converted were from the Sunday-school; 6 pupils and three teachers joined, and one old man over 70 years of age professed a hope in Christ.

The Sunday-school Centennial was observed on the 30th. The regular programme was adhered to. The bell-ringing at 6 o'clock, service of prayer by the officers and teachers at 8:30; regular session of school at 9:15. The Baptist Sunday-school, by special invitation, was present and took part in the services. Some remarks being made by the pastor as to the origin of the Sunday-school and its first objects. At 10:30 a sermon by the pastor, at the close of which a collection was called for by the superintendent, and $10 85 was contributed. The secretary's report shows that 500 persons were present. At 2:30 the Centennial celebration opened according to programme, upward of 400 being present, at the close of which the superintendent of the Baptist Sunday-school made some appropriate remarks, after which another collection amounting to $5; making a total of $15.85.

Letter from Batesville.

BATESVILLE, Ark., June 1, 1880.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to give you a brief sketch of the work on this circuit. Between first and second quarter I had a revival, and 23 conversions and 26 accessions at Greenbrier, three miles from Batesville. The elder was on hand, with Rev. W. O. Emory. A meeting was then held in Batesville, and 4 conversions resulted. Stewards have bought a horse for me. Good Sabbath-schools are held at three of my appointments. At some of the places there is no one to carry on a school. In those places they have had no public school, except two sessions of three months when the Republicans were in power; but the white schools go on every year. This is very bad for our people. God help the old Methodist Church to fill this Southern country with school houses and teachers, until our people can see a little for themselves; so they can learn something else besides working all their days for the white people on their farms for nothing, and think it is right. We have men among us, who if given a chance would make doctors, lawyers, statesmen and preachers, and would fill any office; but in the South we are kept in the dark. The Southern people say they are our friends. If that is so we have no friends in the world. Where one of them will help fifty are against us. So you see just how it is in this country. We need education for our people. Walden Seminary, at Little Rock, I pray for, and for schools at other places in the South. We collected $2.25 for S. S. Union. Yours respectfully,

W. H. HIGGINS.

The Colored People of the South.

MR. EDITOR—It seems to me that "Observer" must have been very unfortunate in his observations as to the condition of the colored people in the South. No doubt the colored preachers in the M. E. Church are pre-eminently revivalists, but so are the white preachers. In fact, Methodism itself is a revival of religion, and a preacher that is not a revivalist has no business in the M. E. Church; he belongs elsewhere, and the sooner he finds his religious home the better. I have known white preachers in the North and East who were successful as revivalists, but who did not seem to know how to get a church lot, much less to build a church. Were they, therefore, of no value to the church. No, no! by no means. The M. E. Church is unique—unlike any and all other churches. She proposes to know what each member can do, and then give to each their appropriate work. One man is a Whitefield, warning the people away from the wrath to come. The Church listens to this heavenly herald; she sees how his voice seeks to peace the heaving billows of grief and despair, and says to him: "Go work in the vineyard of the Lord, wrench as many souls as you can from the grasp of the devil." She finds another that combines the Wesley and Whitefield—a very rare combination—and she gives him work to do. Her motto is: "Every man to his work." Yet to all of her preachers she says: "You have nothing to do but to save souls, therefore spend and be spent in this work; bring as many sinners as you can to repentance, and with all your power to build them up in that holiness without which they cannot see the Lord." Let it be distinctly understood that in the M. E. Church it is nothing against a man though he thinks "of nothing but getting souls converted," nor that he "catches every new thought that will awaken and affect the sinner." These are not the preachers that drive the children away from the congregations and the young men and women to the back seats.

We believe the Bible is the record of God's will and a revelation of divine truth to man, and that from it we derive all correct knowledge of religious truths and duties; further we believe that "it is the only [illegible] rule of a Christian's faith and practice," and we do most assuredly believe that the precious book should be found in all Christian [illegible] then we never once [illegible] either of a family's [illegible] or piety by the number of Bibles we might find in their homes. This smacks a little [illegible] of intelligence and piety [illegible] easy to please us. It is the Bible, read and studied, its thoughts [illegible], that is the only basis of [illegible] intelligence, and its pre[illegible], that is the proper evidence of real love for God. This [illegible] of the M. E. Church, [illegible] it is doubtless true that [illegible] our preachers do not [illegible] this book as they ought, [illegible] use for other [illegible] some of them seldom, if [illegible] upon the attention of the [illegible] necessity of education. [illegible] have observed [illegible] is not a state of things [illegible] merely to the colored people [illegible] I know that we [illegible] we measure ourselves [illegible], and compare [illegible]. It is a [illegible] a professing [illegible] to have no [illegible] than [illegible] yet few [illegible]. It is easy [illegible] be pleased [illegible] churches than the members of the M. E. Church. Our colored people so long accustomed to the most terrible subjugation, called by John Wesley "the vilest that ever beheld the sun," may be a little slow in making use of the means of their egress and elevation but it will nevertheless come, but God forbid that, with its coming, there should be a kind of ascetic theology to suppress the emotional part of their nature and making their religious meetings cold as icebergs. The Pharisees of old were great advocates of decorum, they were anxious to have Christ rebuke his disciples because they were so noisy and to them ranting in their worship, but Jesus said unto them, "I tell you if these should hold their peace the stones would immediately cry out." God save our colored people from that "cold, sedate, dead-level style of worship" that characterizes some white congregations and give them preachers that will be "perpetual revivalists," able to "keep up a high state of unending excitement" from year to year.

Our school year closed very successfully last Thursday. It has been an encouraging year. We have now a fine class of young men and ladies on the road to a college course. Everything is hopeful for rapid and permanent growth. The most of our students will teach during vacation. Elder Malloy and Rev. E. Lee were present during the week of the examinations, and expressed themselves gratified with the progress made.

Prof. Davis and Miss Patton will remain to conduct the Normal School during the summer. I start North to-morrow. Shall spend a few weeks in the mountains of Colorado before going to my home in Ohio. My home address will be Antwerp, Ohio.

Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

BY MARY L. SHERMAN,

To whom send any communication on the Y. W. C. T. U. work in the South. Address, Sodus, Wayne Co., N. Y.

At the last meeting of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union Miss Sherman was appointed committee for the N. W. C. T. U. on Young Women's Work, and especially for the South, by the chairman of that committee, Mrs. F. J. Barnes.

The following appeal, prepared by Miss Sherman, was sent to the Southern delegates of several religious bodies during the month of May. Among these, the General Conference of the M. E. Church at Cincinnati, Ohio. This she visited for the purpose of conferring in an informal way with the delegates of the South, and of getting from them the address of respectable and efficient Christian women with whom to correspond and co-operate, with reference to finding home workers among the young women, married and unmarried, who will join the young women already organized against the common foe in the work of preventing intemperance.

She was more than successful, and takes this opportunity to thank the delegates for help already given, and to ask them to still continue their interest and assistance. She desires that all, men and women, who are interested, will seek to extend the interest, and to help in this new work.

The National Committee sends greetings to all the young women of the South, and bids them God speed in all good work, earnestly inviting them to join in organized work for the prevention of intemperance.

MARY L. SHERMAN,
Committee for South.
MRS. F. J. BARNES,
Chairman.

DEAR BROTHERS, AND ALL MEMBERS OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH:

The united voices of the women of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union come to you now through its Committee on Young Women's Work, to ask your co-operation in calling into activity in Christian work the young women of our land.

We appeal specially to our brothers in the South, because we believe that the [illegible] conservative, and yet fresh and strong [illegible] of the young women's work will [illegible] clearly understood and readily [illegible] in conservative communities.

[illegible] work in which young women [illegible] not give them embarrassing [illegible]. These specialities are the [illegible] temperance education of children, [illegible] influence over young men and [illegible]; for a reform that overlooks [illegible] than blunder, [illegible] the young as no others [illegible] sire that Christian ministers shall have the opportunity and power to reap the harvest that comes from the temperance work of Christian women. To do this, in the nature of things, the church must concern itself in the organization and continuance of this temperance work.

The Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the daughter of the crusade mother, shares this loyalty to the church. It is conservative in that it asks young women to do nothing that is not recognized by society as being in "woman's sphere,"—believing that reform work proper should be engaged in by women ripe in years and experience; it is liberal because it admits to its society all young women that will work in harmony with Christian people. It is not limited to girls. It invites all women who are young enough in heart to attract girls to good works and to God. It is aggressive because it takes out of the ranks of the enemy and adds to its own members the yet unspoiled strength of the enemy's recruits.

For all these reasons and numberless others, we appeal to the powers of the Christian church to make entrance for this work. It is most difficult for strangers to open a new field; it is impossible for them to make the work continuous. The church is in every field and is perpetual. To it we look for the enlistment of the young, because Christ, who never grew old, who took children in his arms, who gave all women place when he said, "For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother and my sister and mother," is in the church.

Very few of our girls are in active Christian work, though they have more leisure than the older women. The reflex action of this work will do them, the temperance cause, and the church, great good.

We beseech you that during the coming four years you will use your great influence in this work that there shall come up at the next General Conference, from the South, as well as from the North and West and East, glorious news of the triumph of the church over the evil of intemperance, through the work of prevention by and for the young.

Letter from Duvall's Bluff.

DUVALL'S BLUFF, Ark.

DEAR EDITOR—I am on a very poor field. The people are all Baptists, but good. I have concentrated all of my power among the young people, and with the assistance of Prof. Paul Jacko, a member of our church, I am gaining ground fast. I want to have a revival soon, and will, I am confident, have great success in behalf of my church here before very long. I have thus far gained the young folks in our Sunday-school, and am now going to work for converts. I have worked hard for this. Prof. Jacko has done the same, and we have succeeded in gaining the sympathies of the whole people, which has never been done here before. In order to show to the ministers in our church what hard work some of our preachers have to encounter, I hope you will publish this. On the 30th of May, 1880, Prof. Jacko and myself proceeded to celebrate the Centennial of the M. E. Sunday-school in honor of Robert Raikes. All the young people of the town and vicinity, as well as the old ones, came forward and participated in the celebration, and we had one of the grandest times that has ever been witnessed in this section of the country. I consider this a great victory for our church, for every preacher who has been sent to this point before myself has been hated and worked against by the Baptists, except Bro. Emory, and they have failed to do any good here.

The change is this—the minister of the Baptist church has agreed to come in and help me convert souls, and called upon his members to do the same. Dear editor, our work among the young people in behalf of our Sunday-school, on the 30th, has brought about this change.

Rev. Isaac Gentis delivered an able lecture on the Sunday-school, followed by Rev. Alex. McNeal and T. Johnson, a school teacher.

Prof. P. Jacko addressed the school, in which he said: "The work of the M. E. Church is a powerful one. I see the effects of it. The M. E. Church is a church inspired from on high, because its work is principally among those who are not able to help themselves; for Jesus staid with the poor. Her Sunday-schools are doing a powerful work among the young folks. The M. E. Church is instrumental in the emancipation of all the slaves on the globe;" after which our little girls Rose E. Home, C. A. Cunningham, Mary, Georgian Ellison, Rosaline Moore, and others read important essays on Sunday-school.

S. LEWIS, Pastor.

Bennett Seminary.

The sixth Commencement of this school began on Sunday, June 6th, with a very able sermon, by Rev. H. M. Murphy, of this conference. The usual ordeal of examinations was passed through with on Monday and Tuesday, very creditably to all concerned.

Bishop Warren won the admiration of our people by a very eloquent and plain discourse on Tuesday night. Would that all our students might be inspired to attempt to reach the ideal of "perfect manhood" so grandly portrayed by the bishop. The visits to our school by our church officials have a very salutary influence on the work. Our people would like to see the [illegible] frequently. Many of them do not know that we have any such officials.

On Wednesday was held the Prize Declamation Contest, in which a young lady carried off the first prize, and a young theologian the second. The exhibition on [illegible] Pub[illegible] night was attended by a large and very orderly audience, which seemed highly entertained. A social gathering on Friday night closed up another year of toil and pleasure.

The school has done much to conquer the prejudices against it, and is now stepping rapidly to the front. We hope soon to have a force of educated young men in the field who will work earnestly for the school; for those who have tried its blessings know best how to inspire others with a desire for the same.

We are trying hard in North Carolina to convince by our success those of our Northern friends, (so largely represented in the last General Conference), who doubt the wisdom of our Southern work, that we are here on a divine mission and have come to stay.

A Notable Day in Enterprise.

A friend requests us to republish this from the Enterprise, Miss., Courier, relative to the closing exercises of the Enterprise Academy:

COLORED EXHIBITION.

Prof. Brown, the colored teacher who has had charge of the colored school, gave an exhibition Friday and Friday night that was very creditable to him and his pupils. His term was finished some weeks ago, but being anxious to show what he has done, he has kept them in training, and on Friday morning we witnessed something that was new to this place. His pupils numbered nearly one hundred and fifty, and early on Friday of last week his scholars made their appearance on the streets. They were dressed the girls in blue sacks and white skirts, and the boys in blue jackets and white pants, and headed by the colored band marched through the town and performed evolutions that would be creditable to a military company. Of course they have had to undergo a long course of training to do this. Their exhibition has been all the talk among the colored people for weeks. It so happened that during one of their evolutions and while they were near the depot the excursion train from Meridian, going to the Shubuta tournament came down. It was altogether an accident, and we are sure that these colored people had no design to exhibit themselves before strangers.

On Friday night at the colored Methodist church, where the school has been taught there was a concert, and declamations and recitations by the pupils.

A good many white persons both ladies and gentlemen attended, and we must say that it was a very enjoyable affair. Most of the pupils performed their parts creditably, and the music on the organ by Prof. Brown and the singing by his assistant Ogburn, and the pupils was good.

A Song.

MR. EDITOR—Please publish this song in the SOUTHWESTERN, by Miss Lucy Hardeman, of Pine Bluff, Ark.

Oh, when I was a sinner
I loved my distant well.
And now it takes a Christian
That dreadful road to tell.

CHORUS—I am on my journey:
Oh, mother, will you meet me?
I am praying for you, mother:
Oh, mother, pray and meet me.

Oh, now I am a Christian;
I am on my journey home.
I heard a little whisper,
And Jesus bid me come.

CHORUS—

There is coming judgment,
It is for one and all,
But when the sinner stands and looks
Upon their dreadful fall.

CHORUS—

The Bible tells me how
The sinners stand up stout,
But by-and-bye they'll cry, oh Lord
The saints will make a shout.

CHORUS—

Oh, sinner, take a warning,
I want you all to pray,
For there is coming judgment,
It will be a judging day.

CHORUS—

Oh, may we meet in heaven
Where parting is no more;
We'll live with blessed Jesus
On the celestial shore.

CHORUS—

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 1, 1880.

Bro. A. W. Decker, of Denison, Texas, was given a hearty reception by his many friends as he passed back to his work from Ohio with his new bride.

Mrs. Geo. French received them at her residence, where a sumptuous supper was prepared. Among the gifts presented was some silver ware valued at about $10. Our good Bro. Decker has many warm friends in the City of Roses. They remember the day when Zion languished, and the hungry were unfed, and the wayward and straying were uncalled, when in these days of need how the faithful rap and voice of this shepherd was heard calling them back to the fold. We almost begrudge the good people of Denison their pastor, and our good Bro. Ford his faithful little flock here. We are glad to see the continued success of this work under Bro. Ford, and pray that it may be yet more glorious.

There will be a conference meeting in Rich Woods, on the Lonoke circuit, commencing August 5th, and continuing over the second Sabbath. We shall be glad to have with us the preachers of the conference. If they cannot help us both Sabbaths, let them come for the first or the second. The third quarterly meeting will be held at the above time.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

June 27, 1880.—PAUL'S TEMPERANCE PRINCIPLES.
(Recommended by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

SCRIPTURE.—Gal. 5: 13-26; 6: 7, 8.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak."—Rom. 14: 21.

TOPIC.—"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

The best temperance society is the church; the best temperance pledge is the pledge to serve the Lord God with all the heart, the soul, and the mind. "Temperance," or self-control, consists, not as many think in the signing of a vow not to touch any alcoholic liquors—for a vow however well drawn often is broken—but is one of the "fruits of the Spirit." Real liberty is a recognition of righteous law. While they are not to be slaves of the law, Christians are to be servants of each other. There is one bondage which they must recognize, and but one, and that is the bondage of love. He who loves his neighbor as himself is certain to love God also. The servants of Christ are not left without the guidance, comfort, and counsel of the one whom Christ promised to send. They have the fulfilment of the prophecy: "Thine ears shall hear a word behind thee saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left." Among those who walk in the Spirit there shall be no bitings or devourings, and none of the suicidal follies mentioned in verses 19-21. It does not say that one who walks in the Spirit shall not be tempted, but that he will be able to overcome temptation. The flesh and the Spirit unalterably are antagonistic. Both demand complete dominion in the soul. The conflict must go on until either for the one or the other there is complete victory. If the flesh triumphs it is to the humiliation of the Spirit, and a victory for the Spirit is a vexation of the flesh. It is at banquets and in social companionship that the glass is, at first, at all a temptation. If social drinking could be abolished drunkenness almost entirely would disappear. Those who still offer wine in the midst of the potent influences of the home, or who make use of the pressure that society and companionship so strongly can exert to induce men to taste the intoxicating cup, are incurring for themselves a fearful responsibility which at the judgment day they will not care to meet. Temperance is the crowning grace of the Christian, just as drunkenness is the crowning shame of the man of the world. He can not exercise it in its completeness until he has overcome the lust of the flesh through the power of the Spirit. Drunkenness is the most bitter of the fruits of the flesh—temperance one of the firmest and best flavored of the fruits of the Spirit.

"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Concerning this, two things specially are to be noted: "Be not deceived: God is not mocked." In the matter of the cultivation of the ground no one is deceived. He knows that just what he sows that he will reap. There is a blessed certainty in the operations of nature which always brings to him a harvest of the kind that he has planted. The laws of cause and effect being just as certain in the moral as in the physical world, it is a little strange that in the latter many people often are deceived. They have sown "wild oats," and expect to reap therefrom nothing that would give them any trouble. Spendthrifts with surprise have reaped poverty. The "moderate drinker," with the same amazement, has reaped the saddest of all harvests—poverty, loss of character, loss of self-respect, an irresistible appetite, and a grave of shame. The smoker finds that the graceful curls of smoke that ascend from his cigar are cords which he has not strength enough to break. All of these are harvests that are unexpected—though the experience of men through thousands of generations can lead one to expect nothing else. Though men may deceive themselves, God is not mocked, and so the harvests in the moral world still continue to be just in exact concordance with the seed that is sown. Sensuality stamps its grossness and affiliation with corruption upon the face. Its pimples, and blotches, and bestiality suggest the end. The drunkard's face is a prophecy of his ultimate loathsome condition. If we sow here to the flesh, all of our pleasures must end where ends the flesh—in the corruption of the grave.

Haunted Me.

Debt, poverty and suffering haunted me for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did no good. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have been sick a day since; and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost.—A Workingman.

The New Louisiana Remedy is winning golden opinions from many who have tested its merits in the treatment of coughs, colds, etc. We recently examined some fourteen pages of signatures vouching for its effectiveness. Read advertisement elsewhere, and remember that this home medicine is well known, and finds sale throughout the country.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

—The Little Folks' Reader for June (D. Lothrop & Co., Boston) has "The Story of Pussey Gardner," "Facts About Elephants," and other happy selections, finely illustrated.

—Appleton's Journal for July has Variations of the Roman Church, by Dean Stanley; Kossuth and Louis Napoleon; Plea for Musicians; Professor Winchell's Preadamites; The Suez Canal and Egyptian Finances; Modern Italian Picturesque Sculpture, etc. Price, 25 cents, at the newstands.

—The Southern Quarterly Review for April, (No. 2, Vol. 1) D. K. Whitaker, editor, New Orleans, has a full table of contents. The contributions, mainly by local writers, cover a wide range of topics. The editor opens with a review of the famous book, by a New Orleans author, "The Republic of Republics," which is extolled highly and in these words: "No greater or truer work has been produced in our day." That is a very positive statement for a sound critic to make, and we judge the editor's ardent States rights convictions have warmed him up a little. Frank McGloin writes of "Communism in the Present and Future" in an entertaining style. John Dimitry reviews Father Rouquette's Indian legend, "La Nouvelle Atala; or La Fille de L'Esprit." Dr. Samuel Logan's address on the "Character and Influence of the Profession of Medicine," is good. There are several poems and articles well worth reading. As a local enterprise, we wish the Review all success. Messrs. Clark and Hofeline are the printers and exhibit their usual skill in neat typography.

THE FRIGHTFUL SCOURGE.—Yellow Fever can be prevented by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and Warner's Safe Pills. Keep the blood clean and pure, and Malarial Fevers will not be apparent. These Remedies keep the kidney and liver in perfect action, and when they do their duty the blood will be pure.

What Eminent Physicians Say.

Preventive of Malarial.—Colden's Liebig's Extract of Beef is particularly useful when tonics are required. In diphtheria, ague, malarial typhoid fevers, and every depressing disease, we have prescribed it with excellent success. J. H. Leslie, M. D.; G. H. Copp, M. D; S. B. Parsons, M. D.; R. A. Vaughan, M. D.; Drs. S. L. and J. C. Nidelet, all of St. Louis; and many others. I. L. Lyons, druggist agent, New Orleans.

Straighten your old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again.

Cincho-Quinine cures Chills and Fever.

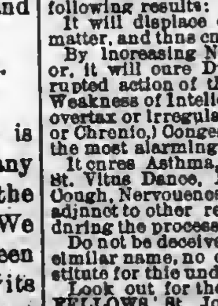
Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient continues to hold its own against all of the imitations that its great success has encouraged other manufacturers to put upon the market. For years this mild, wholly uninjurious and efficacious preparation has enjoyed the confidence of the public, until it has become one of the indispensable and most trusted of known medicaments.

There is no argument for Christ's religion equal to a pure, noble, godly life which is born of His Spirit. Nothing so repels, disgusts, and hardens the unconverted as daily contact with those who profess Christianity only to make it odious. Let us all be watchful; for it is certainly possible to live so closely to Christ, that when men see us they shall see Jesus.—Theo. L. Cuyler.

A paper commenting on the fact that a farmer nearly lost his life by sinking in a quagmire, adds: "Men who do not subscribe for a newspaper must expect to be sucked in every now and then."

PREVENT
Yellow Fever

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventative. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventative and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents.



The Promotor and Perfector of Assimilation.
The Reformer and Vitalizer of the Blood.
The Producer and Invigorator of Nerve and Muscle.
The Builder and Supporter of Brain Power.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES

Is composed of ingredients identical with those which constitute Healthy Blood, Muscle and Nerve and Brain Substance, whilst Life itself is directly dependent upon some of them.

By its union with the Blood, and its effect upon the Muscles, re-establishing the one and toning the other, it is capable of effecting the following results:

It will displace or wash out tuberculous matter, and thus cure Consumption.

By increasing Nervous and Muscular Vigor, it will cure Dyspepsia, feeble or interrupted action of the Heart and Palpitation, Weakness of Intellect caused by grief, weary, overtax or irregular habits, Bronchitis (Acute or Chronic), Congestion of the Lungs, even in the most alarming stages.

It cures Asthma, Loss of Voice, Neuralgia, St. Vitus Dance, Epileptic Fits, Whooping Cough, Nervousness, and is a most wonderful adjunct to other remedies in sustaining life during the process of Diphtheria.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name, no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Look out for the name and address, J. I. FELLOWS, St. John, N. B., on the yellow wrapper in water-mark, which is seen by holding the paper before the light.

[illegible] hangs a saber, and there a rein,
[illegible] a rusty buckle and a green curb chain;
[illegible] of spurs on the old gray wall,
[illegible] a squabby saddle—well, that is all.

Come out to the stable—it is not far.
The moss-grown door is hanging ajar.
Look within! there's an empty stall,
Where once stood a charger, and that is all.

The good black horse came riderless home,
Flecked with blood drops as well as foam.
See yonder hillock where dead leaves fall,
The good black horse pined to death—that's all.

All! Oh, God! it is all I can speak.
Question me not—I am old and weak;
His saber and saddle hang on the wall,
And his horse pined to death—I have told you all.

Prejudice Kills.

Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best (and some of the worst) physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had poohed at for two years, before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did, on account of prejudice agains so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The Parents.

As weeds grow fastest in fat soil, so our corruptions grow and thrive most when our natural state is most prosperous. Therefore, God's love and care of us constrain Him sometimes to use severe discipline and to cut us short in our temporal enjoyment.

POISON.—It is an understood fact that Yellow Fever and its companions, Intermittent and Remittent Fevers, are the results of poisoned blood, made impure by breathing an infected atmosphere. No medicine in existence will so quickly purify the blood as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, used in connection with Warner's Safe Pills.

LEMONS,

A Wonderful Medicine!

A RECENT DISCOVERY BY A PROMINENT SOUTHERN PHYSICIAN.

A PLEASANT LEMON DRINK.

REGULATES THE LIVER, BOWELS, STOMACH AND KIDNEYS.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR ALL CATHARTIC AND LIVER PILLS.

An interview with a number of St. Louis' most prominent citizens as to the merits of this New Medicine, a few whose names appear below. They have been using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir personally and in their families for twelve or eighteen months. They pronounce it a most wonderful Medicine, and recommend it to the PUBLIC as the only Pleasant, Thoroughly Reliable and Economical remedy they have ever used for the diseases for which it recommended:

Judge Alex.——. Davis, Fourth and Chestnut streets.
Judge John P. Hudgens, 102 N. Fourth street.
Hon. John I. Martin, office opposite Four Courts.
T. P. Orastey, Law office, 1107 Clark avenue.
Capt. J. A. K. Stotts, of the St. Louis Beef Canning Company.
J. T. Morris, Real Estate Office, Sixth and Chestnut streets.
Dr. L. C. Mats. 1413 N. 9th street.

Lemon Elixir cures all Biliousness, Constipation, Headache, Indigestion, Bilious, Malarial, Remittent or Intermittent Fevers, Sallow Complexion, Pimples or Blotches on the skin, Impure Blood, Foul Stomach, Pain in the Back, Kidney Disease, Loss of Appetite, Weakness or Debility, Chills, Colds, and all other diseases caused by a torpid or diseased liver; nine-tenths of all diseases of the South and West are caused by the failure of the liver to do its duty. Show me a sick man or woman and I will show you a torpid or diseased liver. It is an established fact that the fresh juice of lemons, when combined with other liver tonics, produce the most desirable result upon the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, such is Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir.

Yellow Fever.

The National Board of Health,

IN THEIR PUBLISHED REPORT, SAY THE CAUSE OF THIS DISEASE IS

BLOOD POISONING,

So poisoned by breathing the vitiated atmosphere of malarial and infected districts.

All know the Kidneys and Liver are the cleansers of the blood, and that if these organs are kept in a healthy condition, Yellow Fever can, and will, be averted.

That these organs can be kept free from disease, and at all times in condition to well and faithfully perform their duties, is a matter beyond dispute, cavil or argument, and equally it is true, that a free use of

Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure,

in connection with

Warner's Safe Pills,

will actually compel these same organs to perform their allotted functions, and hence [illegible] of the blood and a preventive to [illegible] no hesitation in offering [illegible]

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

W. P. HILL, Crockett Station, Tenn., writes: "DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC has done wonders here. A lady who had been doctored nearly to death for several years, has been cured of Debility and Great Prostration by the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, which raised her from her bed, where she had been lying for many months."

Dr. Harter:—Mr. James Brown of our county, has requested us to tender you his grateful acknowledgments for the great benefits his wife received from the use of your IRON TONIC. He tells us that, after having paid three or four hundred dollars doctors' bills, two bottles of your IRON TONIC did her more good than all other medicines she ever used. She was troubled with Derangement of the Womb, Whites, etc., from which she is much relieved. F. A. PATRICK & CO. CENTERVILLE, TEXAS.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

[illegible]

ies in the South, and in very many instances excel the expectation of the most exacting critics. While we claim, from observation, that we have as creditable a showing of intelligent young people in our communion or congregation as any other Protestant body in the South, we would not deny that there remains much room for improvement with us as well as with other churches—white or colored.

We speak authoritatively when we say that there are three agencies, simple or compound, that deter a much larger body than is already with us, coming in our communion; and this charge of being noninstructive is certainly not one of these agencies. It may be a problematic one, but certainly not axiomatic.

The first agency is to be found in the untiring and ceaseless efforts of our Congregational brethren, whose church [illegible] the South is made up almost exclusively of young colored members. They labor almost exclusively for the young. They will frequently neglect and pass over a half dozen elder persons to reach, convert and educate one promising young person. They educate in their schools many of our sons and daughters, and having educated them, gather them into their churches upon terms of perfect social equality. We may well remember that the Congregational Church in the South is made up almost entirely of their former students and those immediately related to these students. We may here say that this bond of attachment is generated in their schools and universities, where they are received as equals, eat and drink side by side at the same table with their teachers. No difference on account of color. No lifting of the noses at these sable sons and daughters; no second table arrangements, as is sometimes tolerated and practiced. They have no white work in the South to the exclusion of the colored, and no colored work to the exclusion of the whites. These are great odds, and they weigh greatly against our instructive mode of preaching, when we seek to persuade the young and intelligent.

The second agency often outweighing our more instructive services is what is generally denominated race-pride. This agency is manifested in the disintegration of our young people to the African Methodist, or other bodies having colored bishops. Young people are naturally sensitive. They have not the faith to believe that the broken promises of the past will be accomplished in the future. They look for present full recognition. But let us here say that we have implicit and unwavering faith in the Methodist Episcopal Church. We, who have watched the steady upward march of the M. E. Church in the recognition of her colored children; we, who have seen her forty-four years ago censuring men for advocating the abolition of slavery, and have seen her marching upward until she ordained colored [illegible] elders, and two colored [illegible] bishops. When we remember that large bodies move slowly, we feel confident that the time is not far distant when the last vestige of prejudice on account of color shall be wiped out from [illegible]. The presence of thirty [illegible] delegates upon the floor of our late General Conference is a [illegible] of the times upon our Methodism. The victory will soon be [illegible]. churches. The picture is not complete yet; only let one colored man walk in there with his family to hear the instructive sermon, and judge for yourself whether caste and prejudice are dead. This, the third great agency that is counteracting our best efforts, and leading "many under age to the streets and woods, hunting, playing and profaning the Sabbath." Our reason for saying Protestant Church is that this is not true of the Romanists. They will rent their pews and administer the sacrament to any who will rent and are in a state of grace to receive the sacrament.

Fraternity at Cincinnati.

[From the Daily Advocate.]

ADDRESS OF DR. HAYGOOD.

Concluded from last week.

When that Conference meets—when the English Methodisms, Irish Methodism, the Methodisms of the Canadas, of Australasia, India, China, Europe, and the many Methodisms of our great Union—Episcopal and non-Episcopal, Caucasian and African—when all these brothers meet together to advise, to bless and to help each other, then will the ascended fathers say, with deeper emphasis and larger meaning than the words ever bore before, "What hath God wrought!"

There is no more encouraging fact among all the encouraging facts of the bright day in which we live, than the coming together of all Christian people in close and brotherly sympathy. Of the endless and bitter logomachies that characterized a past age, this age says, "Let the dead bury their dead." Christians are learning to love and honor each other as never before—to love and honor each other for the sake of the Christ-image that is seen within them. We must, if Christ be in us, love our brother whom we have seen, when we see that Christ is also in him. For the basis and condition and soul of all true human brotherhood is in Christ Jesus, who is the Son of God and the Son of Man, and therefore, the brother of every man.

The two converted heathen of the Pacific islands, who met for the first time on the deck of a missionary ship, understood fraternity. Ignorant of each other's language, each saw something in the other that drew them together. Looking into each other's faces they read the "signs infallible" of the new life. Clasping hands, the one said, "Hallelujah!" The other answered "Amen!" They understood each other; they were looking for the good in each other; they found it; they loved each other; they were helpful to each other. Fraternity was established.

Mr. President, it is not in the traditions or the spirit of Methodism that it should be the last to feel the promptings or to realize the blessings of a broad, generous and true fraternity. The time has fully come for all Methodists to meet on the platform of Mr. Wesley's text: "If thy heart be as my heart, give me thy hand." [Applause.]

The different sections of our wide-spread country are being brought close together by steam and electricity. May they be brought together in affection also!

The opening of your great Cincinnati Southern Railroad was counted a very notable event by the business men. And so it was. A wise and energetic city does not spend twenty millions of dollars that her people may go on excursions to Lookout Mountain. Cincinnati seeks not a better view, but a broader field. She seeks the very heart of the gulf cotton States. And these States bid her 'Come on.'

But a few weeks ago the Southerners, by the thousand, came to see your "Queen City," on this beautiful Ohio, and the hospitality, good cheer and brotherhood of Cincinnati quite took their hearts away. Recently a large delegation from that city visited my own State. The Georgians received them as brothers wherever they went. I fell in with some of them, and I thought them very pleasant people to know. We wish them to come again and stay longer. I am told they were pleased with their visit.

A Georgia lady told me that there is serious apprehension that Georgia and Ohio are about to lose some of their children. [Hear!] I hope they may [illegible] all [illegible] heart [illegible]

our best Southern boys. [Applause.] And that one hundred thousand of your best boys were married to one hundred thousand of our best girls. [Applause and laughter.] Then we would beat the politicians. Moreover we would beat the editors—especially the Church editors—of whom I am one. And when we beat the politicians and the editors we will have a union and a peace that it will be a joy for the sun to look down upon. [Applause.]

My brethren, my countrymen, my fellow citizens, the Methodists, the Christians, the people of this country, will love each other if they be let alone. [Applause]

I came through Nashville, the capital of Tennessee, on my way to this city. The "Rock city" was in holiday dress. One man told me that "one million United States flags"—the veritable "Stars and Stripes"—had been sold in Nashville during her centennial week. [Long continued applause.] I know not the number they are numberless. They are everywhere, from the proud State house to the lonely cabins of the poor. There are great arches spanning the streets. These arches are twined with the national colors and decorated with countless little flags. They spanned the carriage ways that lead to the Southern Methodist publishing house. [Applause.] I could not get into the house without passing "under the flag." The little flags were all over the face of it, fluttering from every door and window of it. I slept in the house of John B. M'Ferrin (who is reported to have "surrendered on the last ten acres"), and there is a United States flag full two yards long, floating from the top of it. [Applause.]

Mr. President, "Let us have peace!" [Applause.]

If we Methodist preachers and people intend to allow Cincinnati merchants and Georgia merchants to love each other better than we do, then it is time to call for "mourners." [Continued applause.]

Mr. President and brethren, we find in what God has done for us and through us very much that is encouraging. But we should "rejoice with trembling." There are more than twenty five hundred thousand of us. Great are our responsibilities—to the country, to the world, to God.

Our greatest work is before us. "There remaineth yet very much land to be possessed." Plans of Church enterprise that startled by their boldness fifty years ago are tame and meagre to-day. Plans that are counted large to-day will be reckoned small to-morrow. We smile when we are told that our fathers in England rejoiced when they had so much as $200 to place in the hands of Pilmoor and Boardman, when they were sent across the Atlantic to plant Methodism on this continent. In one hundred years from to-day, those who come after us will smile that we took pleasure in what we now esteem our courage and our liberality. Already there are indications that conceptions of Christian work, commensurate with the opportunities of our time, are beginning to assert themselves in the consciences of Christian men. Within one year we are told that twelve persons in the United States gave three million dollars to the cause of foreign missions. One man gave a round million. There is a streak of millennial light in such gifts to God and humanity.

This is a day of great triumphs over matter. The spiritual in man begins to dominate the material in nature. Her subtlest and mightiest forces man is learning to employ in the service of his pleasures, his avarice and his ambition. Marvelous is the progress of invention; marvelous are the triumphs of mind over blind and dumb nature; marvelous is the boldness of the great builders and projectors. What faith they have in their science, in themselves, in the permanence of nature and the constancy of her law! It is the day of trans-continental railroads and ocean cables; of St. Gothard tunnels and African explorations; of Suez canals and Panama ocean ways. Surely there are "giants" in these days.

Why, sir, they talk of redeeming Sahara by turning the sea into it. And one bold thinker has proposed to dig away part of Alaska and let in the warm currents of the Pacific Ocean upon the ice and death of Arctic regions. These schemes [illegible] but it is not vis[illegible] of our souls, [illegible] to talk of warming into perennial life and beauty the frozen regions of unbelief and spiritual night.

Shall it always be true that "the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light?" If the children of this world, for money, and fame, and power, can tunnel the Alps at the cost of many millions of money and the sacrifice of hundreds of lives, shall not the children of the Kingdom expend millions of money and lay down hundreds of lives to carry salvation to every nation under heaven?

It is "faith that overcomes the world," whether in the labors that redeem a wilderness or a nation.

If men of the world believe in science, may we not believe in the Gospel?

If they rely upon the permanence of nature and the constancy of her laws, cannot we rely upon the permanence of that Kingdom that endureth forever, and upon the constancy of him who is "without variableness or shadow of turning?"

Shall the men of this world, sustained only by their faith in things "seen and temporal," surpass in the broadness and boldness of their schemes of conquest the Church of God, sustained by faith in things "unseen and eternal," encouraged by the promise of Jesus Christ, and succored by the "powers of the world to come?"

Pardon me, Mr. President and brethren, for alluding once more to the mission work of our Churches. If anything worthy is to come out of our fraternity and our Ecumenical Conferences, surely one result will be a vast increase of our faith and zeal and enterprise in the work of converting the many millions of the heathen world. Vain is our boast of more than four million Methodists, if when we are drawn together in the bonds of Christian brotherhood, we do not realize the greatness both of our opportunity and responsibility.

"Out of discipleship comes apostleship," Philip Brooks tells us. It is true; and it is also true that out of brotherhood comes an increment of power that no array of mere numbers can express. And power means responsibility. Brethren, in this "home stretch of the nineteenth century" it seems that Providence is about to put us to the severest test that can try the very spirit and life of a Church; to try us in the use of vast resources. We are told to "use this world as not abusing it." Do we consider the importance and difficulty of so using the power of great Churches as not abusing that?

When we are using our power in pushing the conquests, not simply of Methodism, but of Christianity, then, be sure, we are not abusing our power. But a great Church that is not doing its missionary work is a fearful thing to contemplate. It is nigh unto cursing and death.

Long time have we been praying to God to open the doors of the heathen world. God has lifted these doors off their hinges. Do we read the "signs" of these times? Do we see that God makes even the "wrath of man praise him," and that "He restrains the remainder" of wrath? Do we see that in his own way God is using the men of this world, bent only on their own schemes, to open the way for his people? Do we see how the all-embracing, all observing, over-ruling Providence, through wars and conquests, through explorations and inventions, through the sword power and the money-power, through the tongue-power and the pen-power of this world, is making the "crooked places straight," and the "rough places smooth?" Do we see how God uses even the kingdoms of this world that "come with observation," to "prepare the way" of the "Son of Man" and the "Son of God," whose "kingdom cometh not with observation?"

Diplomatists may "rectify frontiers; conquerers may "change the map of nations," but it is the Church of Christ alone that, by God's help and blessing, changes the hearts and the homes of the world.

If now our Methodist fraternity and our Methodist Ecumenical Conferences can only kindle in our souls inextinguishable fires of missionary zeal—if they can only show us how to evoke and to use the vast resources of thought and impulse, of culture and money, of men and women, of faith and love that God has committed to our Methodist millions, then may we indeed bless the day that brings together our Methodist brotherhood.

May all our numberings of Israel be not for the glory of Israel, but for encouraging the faith of the people, that they "are well able to subdue the land" that is promised; that they may now "go up and possess it" in its length and breadth, in the name of Jesus Christ, our Savior and King.

Brethren, may the spirit of Christ guide your General Conference! May it inspire your Church! May it inspire ours! May it sanctify us all! And may it help us to help each other in the Lord, to the good of men and the glory of His holy name! [Great applause.]

Education in the South.

BY JAMES MITCHELL, D.D.

Will the authorities of the Church allow me to utter a respectful word on the subject of Education in the South; not in a general way, but bearing on the Church work among the whites as well as colored.

We feel grateful for the aid rendered colored schools, and must credit the Northeastern part of the Church for the greater measure of zeal, self-sacrifice and liberality in this good work—the colored schools under our care and those under the care of other Protestant Churches attest this devotion.

But an equally great work, if not a greater, remains to be done in aiding the white population of the South. Will the Northwest and Central States emulate the Northeast and grant their proportion now—there are over seven millions of white people in the South and it is safe to say that over one half are illiterate, and need the helping hand of their more fortunate brothers.

Our Board of Education has been formed for years. It was formed by the best minds of the Church—Bishop Janes and Dr. M'Clintock among the departed, and some of the most able and influential among the living—called it into being, for great and holy purposes, among others that of moving on the inert masses of the South, white as well as colored.

The late Educational Convention asked the General Conference to recognize this general educational work, and the appointment of an able secretary to stir our slumbering Church to action. We of the South were hopeful that primary education in our poor parishes would then come up for care and place, as well as the endowment of higher Northern schools, trusting that God would set before him an open door that no man could shut, while raising a thank offering worthy of the growing wealth of this rising nation, now the leading Protestant nation of the world in number of home population. The German empire is composed of several small nations, with a large proportion of Romanists. England has a wider detached empire, as Mr. Gladstone claims, but she has not an equally compact home population, and can never have again. The census of this month will place us in this advanced position. The authorities of our Church know this, nor is it in pride I remind them that they are the watchmen over what is now possibly the largest Protestant Church in this nation. But do we lead all others relatively in benevolence and educational effort? I fear not.

The General Conference took an unusual step on the subject, possibly the best that could be done, all things considered, as they had no power to elect an Educational Secretary, the Board of Education having reserved that right and duty to itself. The Conference thereupon empowered the bishops to act for it, in aid of the Board of Education, so that the whole Episcopal body becomes part and parcel of our Board of Education. To that institution they carry no new, undefined powers, but their great experience and wisdom, and the strong pulsations of great hearts watching over humanity. It is enough; the Board shall live, and dare, and do for the poor and ignorant of Christ's flock. The lambs of the flock are Christ's greatest care, and the moral acquisitive power of our ten million movement must come, not from the academic shades where move the sons of wealth, but from the cabins of the unlettered poor of Christ, of whom the Holy Spirit writes in the 72d Psalm.

I have no doubt the Board of Education will place one or more secretaries in the field, to guide and direct the Church in raising a gift offering worthy of the one hundredth year of her Methodist organization. We do not forget that Dr. R. S. Rust is one of these secretaries entitled to large donations for his special cause, but we need one or more for the white work.

The people of the South feel the need of cheap, good schools, during eight months of the year at least. Country schools in the South last not much over three months in the year in the poorer sections, and in all neighborhoods good schools are too costly for the poor of our people, and yet they are valued in the South as well as in the North.

A young minister who can teach and will give himself freely to the work of teaching and preaching in our circuits, will be able to gather a white congregation as well as a school—reason, we have an abundance of country preachers in the South, but few of them can teach, or if they can they do not. Again, I repeat it, good schools are valued in the South as well as in the North. Cheapen our schools and the whole Southern people will bless you, for as matters now stand a first-class education costs too much in the South.

There is room for the work of Christian women who are willing to devote themselves to the business of teaching, and they may become as useful as were, "the helpers" in the days of St. Paul. Shall the devotees of Rome give the only examples of singleness of aim in building up their spiritual dominion over souls? Will not the faithful of our Church come South and aid their Southern sisters in training and educating their children in Church and other schools?

It is my conviction that a prudent movement can be organized in harmony with the views and wishes of our brethren of the Church in the South that will be a blessing to many a neighborhood and give work to many an educated mind now idle.—Atlanta Methodist Advocate, June 23.

The Presidential Contest.

Another presidential contest is upon us, and from one end of the land to another, from now until November, the all absorbing topic will be, "Who will be our next President and Vice President?" The Republican party has nominated General James A. Garfield, of Ohio, and General Arthur, of New York, as its candidates; and the Democratic party has nominated General Winfield Scott Hancock, of Pennsylvania, and Hon. William H. English, of Indiana. The whole country is to be congratulated upon the nomination of four men against whom so little can be said as to their private characters. All are gentlemen of high standing. General Garfield has a splendid record as a scholar, soldier, financier and legislator. He is a member of, and occasionally, in former years preached in the Christian or Campbellite Church. General Arthur has the record of a strong and reliable man. His contest with President Hayes over the collectorship at New York brought him prominently before the country, and as that contest is fully understood, General Arthur's reputation as an honest, upright man has steadily gained. General Hancock has a good record as a soldier, and stands very high, especially among the people of the South, because of his course during reconstruction times. Mr. English is a prominent banker in Indianapolis, and has a good congressional record in addition to his standing as a successful business man. With four such respectable gentlemen as candidates there ought to be little or no personal bitterness in the canvass. We hope it will be so.

While we have reason to expect that there will be but little personal bitterness in the canvass, we fully realize that many things indicate that the present promises to be one of the most hotly contested presidential elections the nation has ever seen. The parties are so closely balanced that each goes into the contest with a fair show of success. The Democrats claim they were defrauded out of the Presidency in 1876, and have so persistently affirmed this that the rank and file of the party believe it. The Democrats have a solid South to begin

CLIPPING HAS BEEN TAKEN

The growth and development of ministerial character and ability, and of good church life and efficiency among our colored people in the South, during the past fifteen years has been simply marvelous.

Rev. L. P. Cushman, last week, and Rev. A. E. P. Albert, on the first page of this issue, takes "Observer" to task, and we also have communications from Revs. Stephen Priestly, S. Duncan, E. Williams, G. B. Lynch, L. Johnson, and Prince King, on the same line. We are real glad to have our brethren so quick to resent what they think an unjust criticism upon our people. It is possible, however, to be too sensitive. It is a good rule never to take any hard criticism as applying to ourselves if we can help it, and remember that some of the wisest things Christ said were his severest. Having published Bros. Cushman and Albert's articles in full we give the substance of the communication from the other brethren named:

Did "Observer" intend to tell the world that the M. E. Church is not organized in the South? This cannot be true. What have the annual conferences been publishing in its Minutes for fifteen years or more? What have the preachers been doing all this time? Have our Bishops been telling falsehoods in their addresses on the Southern work? All the colored people did not live on the plantation, many of the colored people have been raised with intelligent white people, and know but very little of the old plantation style, and we have but few plantation churches, at least in Louisiana. I know of no young preacher that is following the weakness of the old ones in Louisiana. If the old men are weak God has brought strength out of their weakness, by these old men, and has given the M. E. Church a power in the South second to none. The writer says in a certain church members are taken into the church on relating their experience. The preachers of the Louisiana Conference know very well that a person has to come into the church on probation. That certain church and preacher ought to be named, and not tell to the world that this is the present condition of the M. E. Church among the colored people of the South as a general thing. How can the M. E. Church be the highest in morals without good ministerial standing among her preachers. Surely the ministry raises the moral standard of the people. In regard to converts I would like to know if it is not the preachers business to gain converts, this should be his aim which the writer seems to speak against. Also it is said that many of our preachers are driving our young people from the congregations. Now this may be so in a few cases, but it is not true, as a rule, among our colored preachers in the South. The hundreds that the writer mentions of not knowing our doctrines, rules and usages, are they to be blamed? Rather let them be helped.

As to the thousands leaving the M. E. Church going to other denominations, please state what church, or conference that has lost these thousands of our members. It is a great mistake. Our numbers are increasing every year and our people are being raised to a higher standard every year. We have had a few that have followed the M. E. Church for the loaves and fishes and these were not the ignorant ones who have gone over to other denominations, and this was because they could not get things to suit themselves. Now if the colored preachers of the South are so weak and ignorant set them aside at once and check this evil.

As to the location of our churches. If it was not for the white man's property near our churches in the centre of many cities and towns our churches would have been burned down, which every preacher knows in the South had already begun. White people don't like to locate by negroes as a general thing. Why put the blame upon the church? The writer says the Baptist and other denominations are organizers, and a few of our revival preachers have gone over to the Baptist and carried our Discipline and usages. Now, if they are such good builders and organizers what need have they for our books and usages? If they use them they will soon be Methodists. The article referred does injustice to the M. E. Church and its colored preachers.

Residences of the Bishops.

Bishop Levi Scott will continue to reside at Odessa, Delaware; Bishop Simpson, at Philadelphia; Bishop Bowman, at St. Louis; Bishop Harris, at New York; Bishop Foster, at Boston; Bishop Wiley, at Cincinnati; Bishop Merrill, at Chicago; Bishop Andrews, at Washington City; Bishop Peck, at Syracuse, N. Y.; Bishop Warren, at Atlanta, Ga; Bishop Foss, at St. Paul, Minn; Bishop Hurst, at Des Moines, Iowa; Bishop Haven, at San Francisco.

Support of Bishops.

The following circular letter from Drs. Hunt and Stowe, the treasurer and assistant treasurer of the Episcopal Fund, explains itself, and we trust every pastor will read it and at once act upon its suggestions. The support of the Bishops soon must come entirely from the free will offerings of the people. Up to this time a part of their support came from the proceeds of the Book Concern; but the last General Conference directed that after next January no money should be paid from the Book Concern for the support of the Bishops:

EPISCOPAL FUND.

NEW YORK and CHICAGO, June 15, 1880.

DEAR BROTHER—By action of the recent General Conference at Cincinnati four additional Bishops were elected to meet the demands of the Church. This increase in the number of Bishops requires a proportionate increase of money to meet their salaries. The Conference also adopted a plan which will shortly relieve the "Book Concern" of all responsibility connected with the support of the Bishops.

The Book Committee directed us to place this matter before the Church, and request the Pastors to add twenty-five per cent. to the amounts apportioned to the several charges for the current year. We are satisfied the Church will meet this claim in full if properly brought before it.

Will you please present these facts to your people, and if possible secure twenty-five per cent. additional to the amount apportioned for this year.

You will also greatly oblige by sending the funds to us or to the Book Concern at New York, Cincinnati, or to any of the Depositories, as, for this purpose, as fast as received. They are needed to [illegible] response from [illegible] each generous, [illegible] submitting [illegible] of the [illegible] York.

Mrs. Louisa Wilhemine Cambias.

This sister in the Lord fell asleep in Jesus in this city Monday, June 21, 1880, at seven o'clock in the morning, aged 54 years, two months and twenty days. Her maiden name was Becker, and she was born in Blasheim, Prussia, and was confirmed in the Lutheran church at the age of fourteen. In 1845 she came to America and made her home in New Orleans. Here she met her now bereaved husband and they were married in December 1846, and during nearly thirty-four years she was a loving and faithful wife. She was the mother of twelve children, six of whom had passed on before her to the spirit world. Five of her children died in infancy, and the other, a son of nineteen years, died in 1867, happy in the Lord. The oldest living son is now twenty-five, and the oldest daughter is twenty-three, while the youngest child is ten years old.

Mrs. Cambias began her real religious life soon after her marriage. In 1848, when she was happily converted in the Methodist Protestant Church, under the preaching of Rev. Messrs. Graves and Presley, she united with that Church with her husband. As that Church was disbanded she and her husband united with the Moreau Street M. E. Church, South, of which they remained members until the re-organization of the M. E. Church in New Orleans in 1863. From that time until her death she was a faithful member of the Church. She is sincerely mourned by a large circle of friends. As a wife she was loving, kind and diligent; as a mother her whole aim was that her children might grow up in respectability, intelligence and piety, and as a Christian she was not demonstrative but sincere and faithful.

Her funeral took place from Ames M. E. Church; the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bristor, and presiding elder, Rev. Dr. Hartzell, conducting the solemn services. The pastor gave a touching address, and the large number of friends present gave evidence of their love and esteem of the character of the departed. May the blessed Master sustain and comfort the stricken husband and children.

Bishop Warren's Appeal.

Bishop Warren proposes to follow the example of his predecessor in the South, the now sainted Gilbert Haven, and speak often to the Church through the press. This is well, and the new Bishop writes grandly. He takes in the situation and sees at once the great work we have on hand in the South. His latest is an appeal in the New York Advocate, for women missionaries to come South and work in our Churches, among white and colored people. He states the occasion and plan for the proposed work as follows:

THE OCCASION.

The census tells us that thirty-nine per cent. of the entire population of the South cannot read. The North has had tides of ignorant foreign voters flowing in upon it for seventy years. Yet of the 2,000,000 voters in the county unable to read, 1,700,000 are in the sparse populations of the South. An agent of the American Bible Society told me he had lately finished canvassing a country, which he named, and found one third of the families without any Bible. Included in this number were twenty ministers, regular members of a great denomination—not Methodist, not colored—and in charge of Churches. They be blind leaders of the blind. This statement seemed incredible to me, and I hope to have it disproved. Of twenty-two scholars old enough to read, brought into a Sabbath-school in a week by one of our missionary ladies, only five could read at all. These people are our countrymen, our associate sovereigns. They have been deprived of the blessings we have enjoyed. They must be helped. The strong must bear these burdens of the weak. They cannot be reached by Churches and preaching. They must be reached, if at all, by personal visitation.

THE PLAN.

Christ's house-to-house plan is the ideal. It took the death of Stephen and the havoc made by Saul to compel the Pentecostal Church to be scattered abroad every where preaching the word. We need a devout, godly woman to volunteer to go into each of at least one hundred of our individual Churches in the South the coming winter. She will work in connection with the pastor—perhaps live in his family. Her work will be to bring the results of education, the culture of the best civilization, the charm of womanhood, and the grace of Christ, into immediate contact with individuals. She will be a Bible reader, a Sunday-school agent, a Church missionary. This plan already has the indorsement of the friends of the South. Dr. Fuller and the pastor of our Church at Atlanta have seen its working. Mrs. Rust and Mrs. Hartzell have written earnestly in its favor, and it is being tried with success in New Orleans. It is neither new nor chimerical. It is Christ's way of work. The nation has [illegible] under [illegible] pouring the influence of one section on another through individuals. Thus the Western Reserve was settled, and it has already turned the scale in politics several times. In 1845 an effort was made by ex-Gov. Slade and Beechers to send scores of teachers to Indiana. It resulted in the greatest good. We already have teachers in the South of the most heroic kind. We have numerous churches, but we must have the servants of Christ to compel the people to come in.

This work is now being organized by the preachers of Philadelphia and the workers of the South. Its management will be offered to some existent organization—the Ladies' and Pastors' Christian Union, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, or the General Missionary Society. The purpose of this article is to feel the pulse of the Church in three particulars: Are there individuals, properly recommended, who would spend a winter in the South for this purpose at their own expense? Is there money in the treasury of God's stewards to support the work already begun, and to enlarge it a hundred fold? Are there individual Churches willing to support a missionary of their own under proper direction?

Philadelphia, June 14.

Women to the Front.

The General Conference decided that according to the Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church women could not be licensed to preach, and, of course, could not therefore be ordained. The work of those who believe that women ought to be licensed and ordained, will now be to labor to have the Discipline, on this point, changed. But the General Conference did do one very wise thing in relation to the women of the Church. It decided that she should hereafter be eligible to any office in the Church to which laymen are. They can be Stewards, Trustees, Leaders, Sunday-school superintendents, etc. This is right. We have too many officers in the Church who are such simple because they are men, instead of because they are qualified for their offices. Let these step aside and let their places be filled with holy, active, and competent women.

The Greenback Nominee.

Hon. James B. Weaver, nominated for the presidency by the Greenback convention, at Chicago, was born at Dayton, Ohio, in June, 1833. After receiving a common school education he studied law, and graduated from the Cincinnati Law School in 1856. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted as a private in the Second Iowa Infantry, and rose by successive steps to the rank of brevet brigadier-general. After the war he returned to his law practice in Iowa, and was elected district attorney in the second judicial district of that State in 1866. In 1867 he became United States assessor of internal revenue for the first Iowa district, holding the office for six years. The Greenback party nominated him for Congress in 1878, and he was elected over the Republican candidate by a majority of 2,058. He gained some notoriety in Congress as the author of a bill which proposes to issue a large amount of additional greenbacks, to pay additional bounties to Union soldiers, in order to make their pay in greenbacks during the war equal to what it would be in greenbacks worth par in gold.

Alcorn University.

This school, located at or near Rodney, Mississippi, is the State institution for the education of colored young men and women. At its head is Rev. Dr. H. R. Revels, a man of large experience and fine qualities as a scholar, instructor and Christian gentleman. He has associated with him a full corps of professors. It was our privilege to visit this institution during a late commencement week, and we take pleasure in testifying to its good character. The buildings are large and commodious, and the courses of study include the classics, English branches, normal training, etc. The expenses are moderate. Read the advertisement in another column and for all needed information address Rev. Dr. Revels, Rodney, Mississippi.

From the Mississippi Republican, of Jackson: "Gen. Stewart, President of the Oxford University, with several members of the faculty and many ladies of Oxford have just completed the organization of a Union Sunday-school of the colored Methodist and Baptist people of that city. The scheme bids fair to prove a grand success. The colored people seem to be delighted at the interest taken in their moral and religious instruction by their former masters, and often express their surprise at why the white folks didn't start this work long ago. May the God of the poor crown the efforts of those Christian-hearted men and women, and may their example have its due effect throughout the South."

Dr. J. H. Vincent is expected back from London in season for the opening of the Chautauqua meetings.

The Democratic National Convention.

The national convention of the Democratic party met in Cincinnati, Ohio, June 22, and was called to order by W. H. Barnum, chairman of the national committee. Hon. George M. Hoadley, of Ohio, was selected temporary chairman, and the usual committees were appointed.

On Wednesday, June 23, the committee on credentials reported, excluding the Tammany contestants from New York, and admitting the Butler delegation from Massachusetts on a half vote. The report was adopted, and the Tammany delegates invited to seats on the floor. Hon. J. W. Stevenson, of Kentucky, was elected permanent president of the convention. Nominations being declared in order, Mr. McElrath, for the California delegation, nominated Stephen J. Field; Geo. Gray, of Delaware, nominated Senator Thomas F. Bayard; Samuel S. Marshall, of Illinois, nominated Wm. R. Morrison; Senator Voorhies, of Indiana, nominated Thomas A. Hendricks; Mr. Sweeney, of Ohio, nominated Hon. A. G. Thurman; Dan Dougherty, of Philadelphia, nominated W. S. Hancock.

THE BALLOTS.

The first ballot resulted:

Total vote cast			135½
Hancock	171	Bayard	153½
Payne	81	Thurman	88½
Field	65	Morrison	61
Hendricks	49½	Tilden	38
Seymour	8	Loveland	5
Bond	1	Randall	3
Lathrop	1	McClellan	2
Black	1	English	1
Parker	1	Jewett	1
Ewing	1

The chair announced that no one having received two-thirds there was no choice.

At 6 p. m. the convention adjourned to 10 a. m. next day.

On Thursday a second ballot was taken, but before the vote was declared changes were made, and then the nomination became a unanimous one.

For Vice President William H. English, of Indiana, was unanimously nominated.

THE PLATFORM.

Henry Watterson, from the committee on resolutions, reported the platform, which was adopted unanimously:

The Democrats of the United States in convention assembled declare:

1. We pledge ourselves anew to the constitutional doctrines and traditions of the Democratic party, as illustrated by the teaching and example of a long line of Democratic statesmen and patriots, and embodied in the platform of the last national convention of the party.

2. Opposition to centralization and to that dangerous spirit of encroachment which tends to consolidate the powers of all departments in one, and thus create, whatever be the form of government, a real despotism. No sumptuary laws; separation of church and State for the good of each; common schools fostered and protected.

3. Home rule; honest money, consisting of gold and silver, and paper convertible into coin on demand; strict maintenance of public faith, State and national, and a tariff for revenue only.

4. Subordination of the military to the civil power and general and thorough reform of the civil service.

5. The right to free ballot is a right preservative of all right, and must and shall be maintained in every part of the United States.

6. The existing administration is a representative of conspiracy only, and the claim of right to surround the ballot boxes with troops and deputy marshals to intimidate and obstruct electors, and the unprecedented use of the veto to maintain its corrupt and despotic power, insults the people and imperils their institutions.

7. The great fraud of 1876-77, by which, upon a false count of the electoral votes of two States, the candidate defeated at the polls was declared to be President, and for the first time in American history, the will of the people was set aside under the threat of military violence, struck a deadly blow at our system of representative government. The Democratic party, to preserve the country from civil war, submitted for the time, in the firm and patriotic faith that the people would punish this crime in 1880. This issue precedes and dwarfs every other. It imposes a more sacred duty upon the people of the Union than ever addressed the conscience of a nation of freemen.

8. We execrate the course of this administration in making places in the civil service a reward for political crime, and demand reform by statute which shall make it forever impossible for the defeated candidate to bribe his way to the seat of the usurper by billeting villains upon the people.

[Note.—This was read again in response to demands, and was received with applause.]

9. The resolution of Samuel J. Tilden not again to be a candidate for the exalted place to which he was elected by a majority of his countrymen, and from which he was excluded by the leaders of the Republican party, is received by the Democrats of the United States with sensibility, and they declare their confidence in his wisdom, patriotism and integrity, unshaken by the assaults of a common enemy; and they further assure him that he is followed into the retirement he has chosen for himself with the sympathy and respect of his fellow-citizens, who regard him as one who, by elevating the standards of public morality and adorning and purifying the public service, merits the lasting gratitude of his country and his party.

10. Free ships and a living chance for American commerce on the seas and on land; no discrimination in favor of transportation lines, corporations or monopolies.

11. An amendment of the Burlingame treaty; no more Chinese immigration except for travel, education and foreign commerce, and therein carefully guarded.

12. Public money and public credit for public purposes solely; and public land for actual settlers.

13. The Democratic party is the friend of labor and the laboring man, and pledges itself to protect him alike against cormorants and commune.

14. We congratulate the country upon the honesty and thrift of the Democratic Congress, which has reduced the public expenditure $40,000,000 a year; upon the continuation of prosperity at home and national honor abroad, and above all upon the promise of such change in the administration of the government as shall insure a genuine and lasting reform in every department of the public service.

THE CANDIDATES.

Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock was born in Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, Feb. 14, 1824. His early education was received at an academy at Norristown. At 16 he entered West Point, and graduated with credit June 30, 1844. He distinguished himself in the Mexican war, and at its close was a second lieutenant of infantry. From 1848 to 1861 he was in the military service in various capacities. When the war broke out he was stationed at Los Angeles, California; he offered his services to Pennsylvania and the National Government. Gen. Scott ordered him to Washington, and President Lincoln commissioned him a brigadier general of volunteers Sept. 23. He served with the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. McClellan recommended his promotion to be major-general. He also obtained the brevets of major, lieutenant colonel and colonel in the regular army. He fought at South Mountain and Antietam, and became a division commander.

He was commissioned major-general of volunteers in November, 1862, and was assigned to command the Second Corps in June, 1863. For his gallantry at Gettysburg, where he was wounded, Congress voted him a resolution of thanks. On recovering from his wounds in 1864, he commanded a corps under Gen. Grant, and participated in all the great battles up to the operations around Petersburg, when he was compelled to retire from service for a while owing to his wounds breaking out anew.

He was detached from the Army of the Potomac, Nov. 26th and placed at the head of a veteran corps of 50,000, at Winchester, Va, with an entire command of 100,000 men. When the murder of Lincoln occurred he was summoned to Washington, and executed the sentence of court martial against Mrs. Surratt. In July, 1865 he was assigned to command of the Middle Department, with headquarters at Baltimore. In July 1866 he was put in command of the department of Missouri, and conducted several Indian campaigns. He subsequently commanded Louisiana, Texas, Dakota, and the Department of the East—the last his present charge, with headquarters on Governor's Island.

Wm. H. English, the nominee for the vice presidency, was born in Scott county, Indiana, August 27, 1822. After receiving a good common school education, he spent three years at the University of South Hanover, studied law and was admitted to practice in 1845. In 1843, he was elected clerk of the House of Representatives of Indiana. During Polk's administration, Mr. English was a clerk in the Treasury Department. In 1851 was Speaker of the State Legislature, and in 1852 was elected a member of the Lower House of Congress, and was several times re-elected, when he retired to private life. Mr. English is popular with the Democracy in Indiana, and that fact dictated his nomination.

A Rebuke to the West Point Snobs.

Hon. Alexander W. Ramsey, Secretary of War, in his address to the graduates, spoke the right words, in view of the Whittaker case:

"It is pre-eminently the duty of the graduates of this academy, who are beneficiaries of all our people, to symbolize their faith in the vital source of our nation's strength, the equality of manhood, by recognizing the right of all persons, of whatever condition, to strive for the attainment of such a position as their abilities and desires may warrant. It is an ignoble thing to be governed by imaginary superiority over any of our less fortunate fellow citizens born of adventitious circumstances, and thrice ignoble to make active exhibition of so unworthy a sentiment by oppressing those we may deem beneath us. A true manhood dictates the extending of a helping hand to lift up the lowly, and words of encouragement to those who are struggling to elevate themselves. I ask you, my young friends, to give some thought to these suggestions, and to cultivate, not only of love of country, but as well a love for the sentiment of which our country was born."

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Bishop Harris is in New York editing the new Discipline. His part of the work is about complete.

—Rev. Dr. D. P. Kidder, Professor of Practical Theology in Drew Theological Seminary, has resigned, and will re-enter the pastorate.

—J. H. Bailey, late of Springfield, La., writes us from East St. Louis, Illinois, where he has removed, that he is very well satisfied with his new location.

—Judge W. B. Hyman, recently appointed Surveyor of the Port, has entered upon the duties of his office, and retained as his chief deputy a son of Gov. Wells, his predecessor.

—Rev. Dr. G. R. Crooks, formerly editor of the Methodist has been elected to fill the chair made vacant in Drew Theological Seminary by the election of Rev. Dr. Hurst to the Bishopric.

—Mrs. Isabella Howells writes from Brenham, Texas, to the editor: "I have been watching the proceedings of the General Conference with deep interest, and pray God to bless the Church and save the people for Christ's sake."

—Rev. W. H. Traeger has been transferred from the North-west German Conference by Bishop Harris to this city and stationed at our Second German Church. He has entered upon his work with zeal and gives evidence of success.

—Bishop Simpson left Philadelphia last week for San Francisco, where he will soon embark for Japan and China. He meets the Central China Mission at Kiukiang October 13th, the Foochow Mission October 23; the Japan Mission, at Yokohama, August 12, and the North China Mission, at Peking, September 16.

—The Republicans of the Third Congressional district of this State are much discouraged because Judge Beattie declined the congressional nomination. A new convention will be called. Many will urge Judge Beattie to reconsider his action, and this would accord with the wishes of his friends. The name of Linden E. Beatley, editor of the Donaldsonville City Press, is freely used, and it is believed he will be an acceptable candidate. The Morgan City Free Press and Republicans of Pattersonville, St. Mary parish, have favored Mr. Beatley's candidacy in a flattering manner.

—Bishop Hurst during the past few years has been instrumental chiefly in raising $310,000 as a permanent endowment to Drew Seminary to take the place of this endowment lost by the financial failure of Daniel Drew, after whom the institution was named. It was a fitting compliment to him that a professorship should be named after him. This was done on motion of Gen. Fisk, by the trustees.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

R. Anderson, Centreville: "A Baptist preacher, Milton Hunter, joined us May 30."

Geo. E. Lynch: "On June 20, at St. James church, Hahnville, a basket meeting was held, and $25 raised. Revs. Priestley and King were present, and all enjoyed themselves."

H. J. Wright, Alexandria: "The Robert Raikes Centennial was observed in the Murray Street Church. The walls were decorated with wreaths, arches, flowers and mottoes. 'Robert Raikes' appeared in gilt letters, over an arch of evergreen hung in the pulpit. The picture of John Wesley was also encircled in a wreath. On the right were the figures 1780-1880. Under the picture of Wesley, in gilt letters, was 'God Bless Our School.' Vases of flowers adorned the pulpit. The classes were handsomely arranged. There were 138 pupils present. They were addressed by the superintendent, Prince Prather, of the Baptist church, and Rev. Joseph Allen. At 2 p. m. Rev. H. C. Duncan, of the Episcopal church, came in as did a representative of every church in town. Rev. R. Johnson introduced Rev. Duncan who delivered a very impressive address on Robert Raikes. The choir sang some beautiful pieces. A collection of $17.70 was taken up."

Turner Jackson, Whitman Station: "I received the 100 Sunday-school cards on the 30th receipt of the Sunday-school Union."

The Carroll county school was present. A stage was prepared and queens were crowned. White and black celebrated together. The collection was $1.30. The people have but little money, and take most of their earnings in trade."

Death of David Campbell.

MR. EDITOR—While sitting in a board meeting at Ebenezer Church on Saturday, the 12th inst., word came to me that my father, David Campbell, was dead, having died very suddenly that morning.

TOPIC.—The Creation of Man.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Preliminary.—The Book of Genesis is an account of the beginning of things. There is no other record that is not puerile in comparison. Very few comparatively now hold that the six periods of creation were six literal days. The Scriptures assume that God was before all things else, and that he was the author of all things. Creation is a systematizing process, the different steps of which clearly appear in the six periods which are described. First day (2-5). Of the earth is it said that it was "without form, and void." We do not know how long this state of chaos had been a fact. All that we know is that at this time this was its condition. "The deep" does not refer to the ocean, which then was not in existence, but to this formless and [illegible] matter just spoken of. Upon it was shed no light from without, and none was [illegible] from within. According to the account, there were as yet no luminaries. God "divided the light from the darkness." Second day (6-8). In this day the work of Separation [illegible] a firmament, [illegible] Third day (9-13). [illegible] his nostrils the breath of life. 7. For him God prepared a home. He planted for him a garden "eastward in Eden." All of this peculiar and exceptional pains with and for man were taken in order that he might adore the one who created him and that he might have a perfectly happy life in the world wherein he was placed. "Seventh Day" (2: 3, 2). Man was created near the close of the sixth day. He therefore began his existence with the Sabbath of the world. He entered with God into his rest—and, had it not been for the fall, he still might have been sharing its satisfaction and peace. Concerning this Sabbath, let it be noted: 1. That the obligation upon man to observe the Sabbath day as a day of rest is one of relationship and not of coincidence in duration. From the Scriptures it is plain that still we are in the Sabbath eve. But the day is at hand. The epistles are full of prophesies of the coming of "the day of Christ." There will be a "morning when the upright shall have dominion when Zion shall have put on her beautiful garments," and when the church "shall arise and shine; for her Light has come, and the glory of the Lord has arisen upon her." When that day shall come there will be no succeeding night.

Among the elections none interested us more than the re election of Drs. Fuller and Hartzell respectively to the Atlanta and New Orleans Advocates. Those papers are rendering the most valuable service to the church. They have not "paid" in dollars and cents, but have repaid an hundred-fold in the stimulus given to every church agency in the South. Nothing can exceed the fallacy that such papers should be stopped because it actually costs a bonus to circulate them over and above the cost of making the papers. At a minimum, ten thousand persons see each of these papers each week, and it is impossible to estimate the impetus thus given to every department of activity through the manliness, zeal, intelligence and courage caught from the papers. Our pulpits are comparatively isolated, but the church newspaper fuses the membership into a mass which labors, prays, moves, and influences the world in harmony with our connectional spirit. We deliberately declare that the church as a whole would be stronger if it could circulate the paper gratis among the people. Drs. Fuller and Hartzell have done immeasurable good in the South, and the church owes them an unpayable debt. We shall deem it among our most privileged duties [illegible]

Rachel Covington died the 29th of January, 1880, at my home near Marion, Miss., where she had been a member fifteen years in my family. Her grand-daughter is my wife. She died of old age, and lived, as near as can be ascertained, to the great age of 110 years. She was a member of the Methodist Church, and lived and died a Christian. Her daughter, whom she had not seen for over twenty years, arrived four days previous to her death. When her daughter came she was as well and hearty as she had been since she became a member of my family, and after the joyful meeting of her youngest daughter and child, she took her bed, and without any pain at all left this world to live in Heaven—the haven of rest. She nursed or held on her lap her great-great-grandchild, who is now seventeen months old.

The Cause Discovered.

Most of the readers whose eyes scan these pages have suffered from headache, lassitude, nausea or pains in the back; but we doubt if they knew what the cause was. In nine cases out of ten it was some trouble with the kidneys or liver. This is a truth which has just become known, and the result which Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has accomplished. The above named troubles are caused by disordered kidneys and liver, and the remedy which cures the cause banishes the pains which arise from it.

HINTS TO SELF EDUCATED MINISTERS. By James Porter, D.D. New York: Phillips & Hunt.

This book is intended for local preachers, exhorters and other Christians whose duty it may be to speak more or less in public. It is by the author of "Compendium of Methodism," "Helps to Official Members," etc., and has an introduction by Bishop Wm. L. Harris. It is a manual our young ministers may refer to with great profit.

MEMOIRS OF MY EXILE. By Louis Kossuth. Translated by Ferencz Jansz. Price, 40 cents. Nos. 30 and 31 Standard Series. New York: I. K. Funk & Co.

This work has just been issued in Europe, being published simultaneously in Pesth, Hungary, Paris and London. It is proving the literary sensation of the year. The prominent part taken by Kossuth in the events described, his patriotic singleness of purpose, and, above all, the hold he has upon the hearts of Americans, will give the book many readers in America.

POPULAR HISTORY OF ENGLAND. By Charles Knight. Vol. 8. Price, 35 cents. No. 18 Standard Series. New York: I. K. Funk.

This is the concluding Vol. of Funk & Co.'s popular edition of this great work. It contains the Appendix-Annals 1849-1868, a large number of Tables of Contemporary Sovereigns, Chronological Tables of British Writers, etc. This volume also contains a very complete Index and Table of Contents for the entire work. A very great improvement has been made in this edition, in grouping together the tables of each class instead of scattering them, as they are in other editions, through the different volumes. The price now of this valuable history is so low that almost every family can possess it.

—The following publications of the American Tract Society we have received from the Presbyterian Book Depository, 94 Camp street, New Orleans: "Helps by the Way," "Rubies," "Gems of the Season," "Wayside Gleanings," "Words for the Weary Ones." These are packages of handsome cards, with printed Scripture texts, most acceptable as rewards of merit or gift-tracts.

—The International Review for July has an article on Jonathan Edwards, by Oliver Wendell Holmes; Frontier Folk, by George Booth; Lord Beaconsfield; The Labor Problem, from the Reform Side, by Jesse H. Jones; Mr. Poynter's Lectures on Art. II, by P. G. Hamerton; The Wrecking of Life Insurance Companies, by Julius Wilcox. New York: A. S. Barnes & Co. Price, 50 cents.

—The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending June 12th and 19th contain the following: Animal Intelligence, and The Letters of Charles Dickens, Westminster; Memoirs of Madame de Remusat, Quarterly; "Cymbeline" in a Hindoo Playhouse, Macmillan; What Shakespeare Learnt at School, Fraser; Ascent of Roraima, Temple Bar; A Persian Garden-Party, Tinsley's Magazine; Music in St. Paul's Cathedral, Leisure Hour; Social and Literary Dandyism, Saturday Review; The Pinch of Wealth, and Matthew Arnold on Poetry and Religion, Spectator; Professional Fools, Globe; Anchor-Ice, Nature, with the usual amount of poetry. The subscription price is $. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

—Harper's Magazine for July, apart from its splendid pictorial attractions, is an exceedingly popular number. One of its strongest features is the beginning of a new serial novel, by Henry James, Jr., entitled "Washington Square." The number opens with a brief but excellent article on the late William Hunt. It is seldom that descriptive articles have the depth and meaning which make Rebecca Harding Davis' "By-Paths in the Mountains"—the second paper in this number—so interesting. Mr. A. A. Hayes, Jr., contributes a graphic description of the old Santa Fe Trail—full of romantic adventures. The most popular article is Mrs. Oliphant's interesting biographical sketch of Queen Victoria. Dr. John W. Draper's paper, entitled "Franklin's Place in the Science of the Last Century," contains a volume of curious and important information relating not only to Franklin but also to all the most important scientists of the eighteenth century.

—The Popular Science Monthly for July is quite up to its usual standard. It opens with a translation of a French article on "The Interior of the Earth." With the second part, which will appear in August, it will constitute a compact popular report on the present state of knowledge upon this interesting question. "Changes of the Circulation during Cerebral Activity," by C. S. Minot, proves experimentally that the slightest change of feeling or emotion is accompanied by altered circulation of blood in the brain. Professor Tyndall's instructive paper on "Goethe's Theory of Colors" is concluded. Professor F. W. Clarke has a kind of scientific poem entitled "My Fire," a short history of the universe in lively rhyme. "A Vindication of Scientific Ethics," by William D. Le Sueur, is the best exposition of Herbert Spencer's ethical system that has yet been made. "The Coming of Age of the Origin of Species," by Professor Huxley, is a lecture on what has been accomplished in the progress of knowledge and liberality since Darwin published his book in 1859. The Editorials, Literary Notices, and Miscellany, are full and varied. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

—The Chancellor of the German Empire is unquestionably the most astute politician of our time. But he differs in one important particular from the current type of the European diplomatist. The Metternichs, Gortschakoffs, Beusts, et id omne genus, with all their imitators big and little, look on diplomacy as a sort of legerdemain, or, perhaps we should better say, as a game of cards, where the player must under no circumstances "show his hand." The diplomat must use language to conceal his thoughts, and he must never commit himself to anything. But Prince Bismarck has repeatedly proclaimed his purposes in advance with the greatest candor. The reader who is curious to obtain an inside view of Prince Bismarck's character as the genius of State-craft, will find much to interest him in a paper contributed to the North American Review for July, by the great Chancellor's Boswell, Moritz Busch, entitled "Bismarck as a Friend of America and as a Statesman." Other articles in the same number of the Review are "Canada and the United States," by Prof. Goldwin Smith; "The Exodus of Israel," by President S. C. Bartlett—a defense of the Pentateuchal account in the light of modern research; "The English House of Lords," by J. E. Thorold Rogers, M. P.; "The Ethics of Sex," by Miss M. A. Hardaker,—a calm, philosophical study of the woman question; "The Panama Canal," by Count de Lesseps; and "Profligacy in Fiction," by A. K. Fiske.

PREVENT Yellow Fever

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventative. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventative and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW,

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for the proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

• • • • • • • •

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

THE SOURCE OF STRENGTH.

Physical force is one of the greatest of human possessions, but unfortunately it lasts only a short time. Accident, disease or old age come along, and the forces which were once so powerful quickly pass away. Anything that can restore these powers or preserve them is therefore more valuable than the powers themselves, and more to be admired. This is exactly what Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure does. It takes the body when it is broken and bowed by sickness and restores it to all the powers it once possessed. It casts disease and all other opposing evils over the precipice into oblivion. It has no friends that are enemies of health and no enemies that are the friends of health. The vast importance of the lower portion of the body in producing good health is becoming better known every day. Both men and women of all classes realize this. For women previous to child-birth, for all the diseases peculiar to their sex, for debilitated men and puny children there is nothing which so safely and surely sustains and restores as this Great Natural Remedy. The kidneys and urinary organs, when deranged, undermine the life much quicker than consumption, and they must be attended to promptly or fatal consequences are sure to follow. The testimonials which are printed herewith clearly show that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure will not only check those diseases, but entirely cure them even after they have become seated. It is the only known remedy which will safely and certainly do this, and there is not an instance on record where it has failed. It is for sale by druggists in all parts of the world, and is manufactured by

STRONG WORDS FROM STRONG SOURCES.

The following statements are the voluntary expressions of a few among thousands who have been saved by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The writers are not personally known to the proprietors, but they have sent these letters as the expressions of their gratitude. Their sincerity, therefore, cannot be questioned:

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

GENTLEMEN: I have for a long time been afflicted with a terrible kidney complaint, which it seemed at times nothing could control. I tried doctors and [illegible] extensively but found no relief. Finally I was advised by a friend to try your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and now, after suffering nearly four years the most acute pain, I find myself entirely well and able to attend to business every day. Respectfully,

JOHN G. L. CRAWFORD.

Jersey City, June, 1880.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

GENTLEMEN: Without solicitation I desire to express to you my high appreciation of your remedy. [illegible] my attention was called to a gentleman who had for a long time been a great sufferer. After making a thorough examination of the case I found that his kidneys were [illegible] affected. Not without hesitation I prescribed your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. [illegible] after taking two bottles, has been satisfactory in the extreme. Without hesitation I would prescribe the same remedy to all similarly affected. Yours truly,

R. GAULKINS, M. D.

Rochester, N. Y.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

GENTLEMEN: I have been afflicted with disease of the kidneys for the past two years and have tried numerous [illegible] partial and temporal relief. Your [illegible] and after taking it the [illegible] me, and I am to-day [illegible] I am perfectly satisfied that Warner's Safe Remedies are [illegible] and can cheerfully commend them to others.
